A DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

J. RICHTER ATTEMPTS TO MURDER HIS WIFE AND SHOOT HIMSELF.

Quarrelled About Money—Her Wounds Were Not Serious, But He Lies in the Hospital at the Point of Death.

With starvation and ruin staring him in the face, John Richter first attempted to murder his wife and then tried to commit suicide by shooting himself with the same revolver.

Ever since the first of February John Richter and his family have been living at 211 Richmond street in the second row of houses known as the "Eight Sisters," between Second and Third streets. Richter is a German and has lived in Plainfield for the last twenty years, where he is well known as a shoemaker. The shooting occurred at the house about 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Pistol shots were heard and the next moment Mrs. Richter, followed by her children, came rushing out of the front door and took refuge at the home of their neighbor, A. D. Jennings, of 215 Richmond street. Mrs. Richter was screaming, and there were two bullet holes in the cloak that was thrown about her shoulders. Her speech was incoherent and disconnected. "He is going to shoot the baby! The baby! The baby! He shot me! He shot me!" she cried, as she burst in upon her frightened neighbors.

Lendrun Jennings was sent for a policeman, and he found Sergeant Kiely. That officer and Patrolman Saunders reached Richter's house at the same time, and Chief Grant soon joined them. An investigation was made and Richter, shot in three places, was found in a back room on the second story. Drs. Murray and Hedges were called, while the officers made a brief examination to learn the nature of his injuries. The ambulance was sent for and carried the injured man to the hospital.

The circumstances of the attempted murder and the causes that led up to it were told to the officers of the law and a Daily Press reporter by Mrs. Richter herself when she had returned from the hospital after having her wound dressed.

When he came home at dinner time she asked him for some money. He replied that he had none. "I must have some for the baby; you had some last night." He still refused and nothing more was said for a time. After their scanty meal, Richter laid down on one of the beds upstairs. When he came down he said that he was going down town, and she replied that she was going too. Richter went up stairs again and then came into the sitting room where his wife was waiting. "Are you going to town?" he asked, and when she replied that she was going if he did, he seized her roughly by the coat, for she was all prepared to go out, and cried "Then you will have to die." He whipped a revolver from his pocket and fired. Her back was partially toward him and the bullet struck her on the right shoulder, inflicting a slight flesh wound. She ran into the hall, when he fired a second time, the bullet passing through her coat, but missing her. She fled for protection to the neighbors, screaming to her ten-year-old daughter Annie to bring the baby. There are four children—Annie, ten years old; Paul, five years old; Willie, three years old; and little Fredia, who was born only last June. Annie is a brave little girl, and went back after her baby sister.

To a Daily Press reporter, she told a simple, straightforward story of how she went back and started to carry the little child away. Her father saw her and shot again, missing her but burning her face with powder. She managed to escape. Her story of the quarrel was somewhat more lengthy than her mother's and gave several details that had not before been mentioned. When her mother asked for money, she said, her father told her that the dollar that he had given her was enough for the week. Her mother begged for some money to buy bread, and Annie thought he gave her a little. When her father asked her where she was going, the reply was, "None of your business."

Mrs. Richter was taken to the hospital in a hack and while she was absent, little Annie seemed to be the only one that could sooth the baby.

The house where the tragedy occurred, is an ordinary two story and attic frame house with three rooms on each floor and a loft above. The front room Richter had made his workroom until about a week ago. The rooms were sparely furnished downstairs except the sitting room, while the bedrooms were more homelike. It was in one of these, the right hand rear room, where Richter tried to end his own life. The only trace of it was a few drops of blood on the floor and rug and on the sheets of the bed.

Mr. and Mrs. Richter both came to this country from Germany and were married in Plainfield eleven years ago last February. Their married life has been one continued round of disputes and quarrels. Although neither is known as a quarrelsome person, they never seemed to be able to live peacefully together. He has deserted her four times, the longest time being from April 15th to January 2d, nine years ago. In speaking of it Mrs. Richter said in her broken English, "I never asked for money, but took in washing and kept boarders to support myself and children. I gave up my bed to the boarders and slept for many nights on a board, and that board is up stairs now. At last he returned and wanted to come back, and promised to be a good husband and never listen to the bad men again." At this point in her story Mrs. Richter's feelings overmastered her and she wept as if her heart would break. The first time he ran away he took $35 of their savings with him, and returned after three days with only $4 left. Two other times he ran away, once for twenty days and the other time for twenty-four days. The last time happened eleven months ago. They have been living on East Third street, next to Thorn's laundry, and moved to their home on Richmond street, several weeks ago.

Mrs. Richter is thirty-seven years old, short and not very stout. She has two brothers in this country, one in New York and the other on a farm near Springfield. Another sister and brother of Mrs. Richter still live in the "Fatherland."

John Richter came here about twenty years ago and was employed first at Solomon Flagg's cobbler shop at the corner of East Front and Church streets. After seven years spent here, Richter opened a shop near the Potter Press Works. About nine years ago Richter entered the employ of Doane & Van Arsdale and remained with Mr. Doane, moving with him, until last January when he started a shop of his own in the same store with Charles Yaeger on West Front street. He moved it to his house on Richmond street and then to Madison avenue and, when he shot himself, was just considering the question of a new location for his shop. He was an excellent workman and managed to lay by quite a little, owning several lots at Netherwood at one time, and being a member of the Plainfield Building and Loan Association. During the last year he has been particularly unfortunate and has had very little work to do.

During the last two years Richter has made two attempts to commit suicide, but each time, as he told T. U. Smith, of Doane Edsall, there has been something strong that seemed to hold him and he couldn't pull the trigger. He has always indulged in liquors to some extent and the last month he has been drinking heavily. It is thought that he was partially intoxicated at the time of the shooting which will, perhaps, account for shooting at his children as he has always been very fond of them.

In one of his drunken rages, last winter, he drove his wife out of the house on a cold night and she wandered about until midnight when the police found her and gave her shelter.

Richter is forty-four years of age. He was formerly a member of the Knights of Honor but left that organization sometime ago. He is now a member of Miantonomoh Tribe of Red Men, of the A. O. U. W. and the Gesang and Turn Verein. In the event of his death his wife will receive $123 from the Red Men, $2,000 from the A. O. U. W. and $2,500 from the German society. He is vice-president of the latter.

Richter's condition is very serious and the doctors have little hopes for his recovery. He remained about the same yesterday and was slightly better this morning.

A New Company.

The Boys' Brigade of Hope chapel has disbanded. A paper is now going the rounds of the chapel, and is being signed by all the young men, with the intention to organize a company. The number of signers already makes the affair an assured success.

Large Accessions.

Twenty-three persons united with Trinity Reformed church at the Communion service yesterday morning, eleven by confession and twelve by letter. A large congregation was present and the new members received a hearty welcome.

A Large Load.

Frank Hand, the truckman, of Park avenue, will convey a five-ton printing press from Scott's Press Works, in this city, to Perth Amboy, for a newspaper there. It will take his three largest trucks to carry the load.

ASSAULTED ON THE ROAD

WM. FLASHBACH KNOCKED DOWN BY THREE UNKNOWN MEN.

He Attempted to Punish One of His Supposed Assailants, and Was Arrested. He Could Not Swear to His Identity.

William Flashbach, of East Front street, was walking along Richmond street, Saturday night, when three men sprang at him and sent him rolling in the gutter. The assault, he states, was utterly without cause. The three men went down to Front street and walked in the direction of the centre, of the town, while Flashbach followed in the rear. On Front street, he saw the man that he thought had knocked him down, and struck him with his umbrella. The man protested against such action, and Roundsman Rockafellow arrested Flashbach.

Flashbach appeared before City Judge DeMeza, this morning, and the young man he had struck, William Schwick, was also present. Flashbach thought he was the same one, but was not willing to swear to it, so Schwick was released. Sentence was suspended on Flashbach.

BOROUGH DEMOCRATS MEET.

An Opposition Ticket is Placed in the Field for the Coming Election.

The Democratic primary was held in the basement of the school house on Saturday evening. The meeting was called to order by D. D. Smalley, who was elected permanent chairman, and D. J. Carney, secretary. Nominations for candidates for Councilmen brought forth the names of Clarence L. Murphy and George Kirch. Mr. Murphy declining, Joseph A. Blatz's name was substituted. For constable, three years, Thomas Melcher was unanimously nominated. D. D. Smalley and Harry H. Conklin were named for Justices of the Peace. For Commissioners of appeal: R. H McCollough was nominated for three years; W. J. Conroy, two years; and A. F. Marsh, one year. No nominations were made for Surveyors of Highways or Pound Keepers, the matter being left to the following committee: D. D. Smalley, A. F. Marsh, J. R. Newman. The committee will also make out the necessary appropriations that must be placed on the ticket. The meeting then adjourned.

THE FUNERAL OF PETER M'LINAY.

An Old Plainfielder, Who Died in New York, Buried Here.

The funeral of Peter McLinay took place yesterday afternoon from the St. Mar's church. Mr. McLinay, who resided in this city some five or six years ago, has been an inmate for some time at Bellevue Hospital, New York city, as a sufferer from pneumonia. His death occurred last week at that institution. He was in the 66th year of his age, and was the father of Mrs. James Donohue, of East Front street, and Mrs. William Daly, of Greenbrook road.

The bearers were Charles and Edward McCann, John Day, Dennis Carney, James Muldowney and Patrick Melvin. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery. The remains were brought to this city and taken charge of by P. Casey & Son.

Twenty-Five Years Old.

At the silver anniversary of the W. B. F. M. society, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, last Friday evening, there was a very large attendance. A most interesting programme had been prepared under the direction of Mrs. Peter Wykoff, the president. Miss Libbie Fish recited very impressively the poem, "Only a Chinese Babe." There were also carefully prepared papers read by Mesdames Fish, Middledith, Opdyke and Rand. After the collection, which amounted to $82, a Russian tea was served.

An Interesting Speaker.

An all-day sewing meeting of the Young Ladies' Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will be held Tuesday, March 3, in the Bible class room. In the afternoon Miss Lorenzon, who is doing mission work among the Germans in New York, will address the meeting at 3 o'clock. All are cordially invited to be present

A Contest For Slippers.

The Skandia Junior Society will hold a ball in Saenger Hall, Somerset street, April 20th, at which there is to be a slipper contest in which the lady receiving the largest number of votes will be the winner of a handsome pair of slippers.

Changes In the Plainfield Corps.

The present captain of the Salvation Army is to end her duties here next Sunday and next Sunday night a farewell meeting will be held. Next Tuesday night visitors from the Bound Brook and Somerville corps will be present.

THE LAST SAD RITES.

Miss Jemima Hillyer and W. Lance Titsworth Laid at Rest.

The funeral services of the late Miss Jemima Hillyer were held Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, from the house 30 Duer street.

The attendance of friends, including members of the Women's Relief Corps No. 10, and L. W. Serrell's Bible class, of which the decedent was a member, was very large.

Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes conducted the services, and spoke highly of the Christian life of the departed, and of her faithfulness in attending the church services. At the close of the remarks an impressive selection was rendered by E. E. Runyon and Miss Bessie Blair.

Interment was in Plainfield avenue cemetery.

There was a very large attendance of relatives and friends at the funeral services of the late W. Lance Titsworth, which were held at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon from the house, 518 Watchung avenue.

Rev. Dr. Lewis read appropriate Scripture selections and made a few remarks. The closing prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Livermore. The floral tributes consisted of a handsome pillow from Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., A crown from the Royal Arcanum and several small bunches of choice cut flowers from friends. During the service selections were rendered by Mrs. D. E. Titsworth, E. E. Runyon, Miss Nancy Randolph and D. E. Titsworth.

The pall bearers were Joseph Titsworth, Arthur Titsworth, George Titsworth, E. Wood Titsworth, David E. Titsworth and J. D. Spicer.

Interment was in Hillside cemetery.

MARCH IS HERE.

It Comes With a Cold Wave, High Winds and Snow.

The cold wave predicted by the Weather Bureau came last night and the mercury fell about 20 degrees. The rain gradually ceased in Plainfield as it grew colder, although a few flakes of snow fell early in the morning. Jersey City and New York felt the storm quite severely, however. At three o'clock it began snowing and about six inches fell. The snow storm seemed to be of very small extent, for at Bergen Point and Westfield only about ¼ of an inch of the frozen moisture covered the ground. Between Westfield and Plainfield the white blanket that covered the ground to the east, came to an end.

Early this morning the wind began to blow, and limbs of trees and signs began to feel the effects. The chilly wind, the cloudy sky and the falling temperature made March weather.

THIRTY-THREE BAPTIZED.

The Converts of the Revival Meetings Baptized at Mt. Olive Church.

Yesterday was a day which will go down in the history of the Mt. Olive Baptist church as a day with the greatest number of baptisms since the church was founded. Thirty-three candidates, all of them converts of the recent revival meetings which have been held in the church, came forward to receive baptism at at the hands of the pastor of the church, Rev. P. S. Gibson. The congregation that witnessed the ceremony was one of the largest seen in the church in a long time, every seat being taken and no standing room was available. Last night each one who had been baptized in the afternoon had the right hand of fellowship extended to them by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Gibson.

A FAREWELL TO BACHELOR LIFE.

George Firstbrook Gives a Dinner to His Comrades of the West End.

George Firstbrook, who was recently married, gave a dinner on Saturday night at McVey's to a dozen of his comrades of the West End. Alex. Muir, Dan Page and John Cose favored with songs, and James Brown made a few remarks. The gathering was a sort of a farewell of Mr. Firstbrook to his bachelor friends.

Those who enjoyed Mr. Firstbrook's hospitality were: Alex. Muir, Dan Page, John Cose, James Brown, David Gray, Ben. Eddy, Walter Higgins, Sylvanus Hoffman, Harry Page, John Evans, Frank Marsh and Art. Leland.

Simon S. Hartman, of Tunnelton, West Va., has been subject to attacks of colic about once a year, and would have to call a doctor and then suffer for about twelve hours as much as some do when they die. He was taken recently just the same as at other times, and concluded to try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He says: "I took one dose of it and it gave me relief in five minutes. That is more than anything else has ever done for me. For sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

ABOUT EGYPT.

Rev. Henry Mason Baum Delivers an Interesting Lecture.

The illustrated lecture on Egypt given by Rev. Henry Mason Baum, D. C. L., in the Y. M. C. A., Saturday evening, was well attended and thoroughly interesting to all. Mr. Baum gave a geographical description of this wonderful country in commencing his lecture, thus acquainting his hearers with the dimensions and situation of it. He then went on to tell something of the country. The pyramids are chiefly located on the west bank of the Nile river, which overflows its banks once every year. The Egyptians formerly had the idea that the heavens were flat and made of iron, and that the stars were suspended from chains. They worshipped the Nile and several kinds of animals.

The pyramid of Gizeh, he said, covered over seven acres of ground, and the supposition is that it took 100,000 men twenty years, working three months in the year, to build it.

He presented a picture from the top which gave a beautiful view of the country, showing the Nile, with its winding course.

These pyramids were beautiful inside, being divided into spacious rooms, with massive columns handsomely carved.

He showed an ancient table giving the age of Egyptian civilization to be 4,000 years. This fact is exactly in accordance with the Bible and confutes the ideas of the higher critics who tried to prove that the Bible was wrong.

Other views were given showing in detail many points of interest which are of great value to Bible students.

A LEAP YEAR CARD PARTY.

Miss Overton, of Rockview avenue, Entertains Her Friends at Hearts.

A charming leap year party was given Saturday night by Miss Katheryn Overton, of Rockview avenue, to a number of her friends of Plainfield and Brooklyn. Progressive hearts occupied the attention of the young people for most of the evening, and costly prizes were awarded at the close to the Misses Alice Barlow and Lulu French, and Messrs. Walter Douglass and Edward Waring. Those who enjoyed Miss Overton's hospitality were the Misses Agnes Blair, Lulu French, Halla VanDeventer, Sarah Douglass, Grace E. Overton, Alice Barlow, and Miss Eddy, Miss Pate, Miss White and Miss Lane, of Brooklyn; the Messrs. Douglass, Waring, Coriell, Petrie, Nevius, Brown, Peck, Gallup, McGee, and the Messrs. Abbey, Richard Edwards and James Edwards, of Brooklyn.

Mr. Smith's Engagement.

The engagement of Frank H. Smith, of Plainfield, N. J., and Miss Marietta Bentley, of this town, has been announced. Both young people are popular with a wide circle of friends and acquaintances. Mr. Smith is paymaster at the Potter Press Works, of Plainfield. Miss Bentley is the daughter of Senator B. Court Bentley, who resides on School street.

The above is taken from The Westerly, (R. I.,) Sun of a recent issue. Mr. Smith was born and passed his boyhood days in Westerly, and came to this city in 1880 with his parents, who reside at 441 Madison avenue. He is well know here and is an enthusiastic cycler, being a member of the Crescent Wheelmen, of this city, and a century medal hangs from his watch chain. Mr. Smith and his sister, Miss Ernestine Smith, have only recently returned from a visit to their former home in Rhode Island.

Progressiveness.

Neuman Brothers, the popular Watchung avenue grocers, have just received a handsome new delivery wagon, which makes the seventh. Hereafter orders, left personally or by telephone before 10 o'clock in the morning, will be delivered before noon.

All last winter Mr. Geo. A. Mills, of Labanon, Conn., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. At times it was so severe that he could not stand up straight, but was drawn over on one side. "I tried different remedies without receiving relief," he says, "until about six months ago I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. After using it for three days my rheumatism was gone and has not returned since. For sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

MAY LOSE HIS ARM.

A. S. FRITTS SUFFERING WITH SARCOMA OF THE FOREARM.

The Mysterious Trouble Started Two Years Ago and Has Been Growing Gradually Worse — Operation Necessary.

About two years ago A. S. Fritts, son of Dr. J. T. Fritts, of Park avenue, noticed a small lump growing at the base of the right thumb over the wrist joint. It was about the size of an almond nut and nothing serious was thought of it at the time.

A year ago last September it was thought best to remove it. This was done by Dr. Fritts, and no further trouble was anticipated, until another lump began to grow in the same place, and in less than a year it was as large as the first one. Between Christmas and New Year's Dr. Collins, of New York, removed the second lump, but it began to develop again. It was then thought wise to have the trouble examined at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, in New York, where A. S. Fritts is a student. Drs. Pruden, Bull and Weir made thorough examinations and pronounced the growth that of sarcoma, which is considered very serious. The physicians all advised him to have the arm amputated at the elbow, which course was considered best in their judgment.

No cause is attributed to the growth, but the physicians say it might be the result of a bruise. In view of the fact that Mr. Fritts has been preparing to take up surgery as a profession and expects to be graduated this spring, it is an exceedingly sad case. After close application to studies and ambitious to conclude the prescribed course in his profession with honors, he is nearly crushed at the thought of being compelled to lose his right forearm. But this will undoubtedly be the result as the physicians offer him no encouragement. The prospects are that in a week or so the operation will be performed at the college in New York. The duties at the latter place makes it impossible for him to undergo the operation at present.

THE POET SCOUT SPEAKS.

He Entertains an Interested Audience in Crescent Avenue Church Chapel.

Captain Jack Crawford is not an unknown visitor in Plainfield, and despite the inclement weather of Saturday, he attracted a goodly number to the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church. The entertainment given by the "Poet Scout," as he is called, was of a general nature and included songs, stories of his own experiences and original recitations. Humor and pathos were blended together in his stories in a way that made the entertainment a very enjoyable one. It was given for the benefit of Marconnier chapel, and Captain Jack Crawford gave his services gratuitously.

A Grand Rally.

A. D. Shepard, of "The Gables," who is spending the winter in New York, is the holder of one of the boxes in Carnegie Music Hall for the Presbyterian Rally to be held Tuesday night in the interest of Home Missions. Scott Foster, of Seventy-second street, New York, so well known here, is the holder of another box. President Cleveland will preside at the meeting.

Will Report on the By-laws.

The German Beneficial Society, of North Plainfield, will meet tonight in the Crescent Hotel. The committee on by-laws, consisting of M. Menzbach, Harry Baker and Otto Keller, will make a report. Some other business will also come up, and a full attendance of the members is desired.

Arranged By Mr. Fitzhugh.

One of the selections to be rendered at the Choral concert next Thursday evening is a chorus harmonized from an old German folk song by Edward J. Fitzhugh. Mr. Fitzhugh has dedicated this chorus to the ladies of the Plainfield Choral Society. The ladies of the society have the honor of being the first to sing the chorus.

Not to be Trifled With.

(From Cincinnati Gazette.)

Will people ever learn that a "cold" is an accident to be dreaded, and that when it occurs treatment should be promptly applied? There is no knowing where the trouble will end; and while complete recovery is the rule, the exceptions are terribly frequent, and thousands upon thousands of fatal illnesses occur every year ushered in by a little injudicious exposure and seemingly trifling systems. Beyond this there are today countless invalids who can trace their complaints to "colds," which at the time of occurrence gave no concern, and were therefore neglected.—When troubled with a cold use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is prompt and effectual. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue, T. S. Armstrong Manager.

EVA BOOTH HISSED

Frigid Reception for the New Commissioner in New York.

FIRST APPEARANCE IN AMERICA

Her Efforts To Suppress an Uprising of the Salvation Army in Newark Also Meet with Disaster—Statement by Ballington Booth.

New York, March 2.—Commissioner Eva Booth, the new commander of the Salvation Army, made her first public appearance in this city at a meeting in Cooper Union last night, and the reception she received from the 4,000 persons present was distinctly unfriendly. She was hissed as she walked through the line of staff officers to the front of the platform, and again, in spite of the appeals of two previous speakers for fair play for her, the opening words of her address were greeted in like fashion. The hissing was not general but came from all parts of the hall and was only silenced by the rattling of the big drums.

Rebellion Breaks Out at Newark.

Newark, N. J., March 2.—Commissioner Eva Booth of the Salvation Army came here last evening with the intention of quelling a revolution which is alleged to be budding in the local corps, but when she appeared in the hall she was hissed by an audience of about 1,500 people. Col. Nicol, who accompanisd her, was jeered, while cheers were given for ex-Commander Ballington Booth. The local soldiers wore American flags pinned to their breasts. Ballington Booth sent word from Montclair last night not to revolt, and the captain of the corps restored order after Miss Booth had returned to New York.

WILL LEAD A NEW MOVEMENT.

Ballington and Mrs. Booth's Promised Statement Made Public.

Montclair, N. J., March 2.—Commander and Mrs. Ballington Booth have issued the following statement to the press: "Being continually pressed upon all sides to state definitely the action we shall take in the future, we now desire to make known our present position. First. We did not wish it said that we had taken the Salvation army; that we had, through ambition, swept the organization in this country out of the general's hands, or that we had taken property which we had acquired while owing allegiance to him; furthermore, we did not want to influence those under his authority through their loyalty and steadfastness to us, nor have it said that we had proved faithless to a trust reposed in us so far as administration was concerned. We had no alternative but to accept our dismissal, which closed our relationship and negotiations with London. Since then we have allowed those in authority full scope, neither appearing in public nor counselling any beneath their command to leave.

Will Head a New Movement.

"Second. We cannot, however, close our eyes to the fact that we have another allegiance; we are not our own and cannot dispose of our lives and influence to please ourselves. God has called us to work for him. We dare not, therefore, remain idle. We have at heart the interest of our country which called so loudly to us to continue in action. Seeing that the people of the United States of America, in an urgent and unmistakeable manner, have voiced their desire that we should inaugurate a movement affording us an opportunity to continue our labors for the uplifting of the unchurched and unchristian people of our country, and as there appears to us to be no alternative between this course and retiring from public service, we have decided on the former action. It is furthest from our desire that such a new and independent movement should be hostile to the one we have labored so long and so hard to upbuild. The United States, with its vast and ever-increasing population, should offer ample room for such effort without any uncharitable warring.

Small Beginning Expected.

"Third. It would be premature here to decide upon the details of our future labor. We seek above all else God's leading. An organization cannot be formed in a day, and one that owns Christ as its head cannot be formulated on the opinions and enthusiasms of the moment. We shall probably have a small beginning and gain step by step. Fourth. We shall assuredly, under any circumstances, stand for the principals we have hitherto upheld, having for our aim the saving of souls.

"BALLINGTON BOOTH,
"MAUD B. BOOTH."

Statement to Their Friends.

In an open letter to friends all over the United States the Booths say they were forced out of the army by action of the International headquarters, an action of haste and coercion. "Oh! none will ever know, dear friend, the darkness of sorrow and the agony of disappointment with which we went out of our beloved national headquarters with the stinging words and threatened curses upon us and our little ones still stabbing our hearts." Concerning the property of the army Ballington Booth says: "We intend as soon as we can legally and properly deed this over to do so, upon the understanding that it be thoroughly secured for the uses and purposes of those who contributed the money and the rank and file of the Salvation Army. We do not want it."

Reduced to One Cent.

New York, March 2.—James Gordon Bennett has reduced the price of the Evening Telegram, which is the evening edition of the Herald, to one cent. The reduction takes effect to-day.

SPRING FLOODS.

Heavy Rains and Melting Snow Cause Great Damage.

Fort Hunter, N. Y., March 1.—The ice has moved out of the Mohawk river here and the water is very high this morning In some places the river has overflowed its banks, causing much damage. For miles west, however, the ice is still solid. The lowlands along the stream up the valley are under water and many cellars are flooded.

Gloversville Inundated.

Gloversville, N. Y., March 1.—It has rained here for thirty-six hours, and with the rising temperature and melting snow the city has been nearly inundated. Immense damage has been done by the flooding of houses, barns and cellars. The tracks of the Fonda, Johnstown & Gloversville railroad are covered with two feet of water for nearly three-quarters of a mile. All traffic on the Guyadutta Electric railroad has been stopped on account of the flooding of the car house. The bridges in this city were carried away.

Great Flood at Hudson, N. Y.

Hudson, N. Y., March 2.—The freshet in the Hudson river at this point is the most severe known during the past twenty-five years. Buildings and wharves are flooded. The tracks of the Hudson River railroad are covered with water, and travel north has been discontinued.

High Water at Albany.

Albany, March 2.—The flood at Albany this morning had attained greater proportions than any in years, excepting only that of 1893, when the Hudson was swollen to a height of seventeen feet above the normal flow.

Three Hundred Hands Idle.

Whitehall, N. Y., March 2.—The high water here carried away the flume of the Champlain Silk mill and 300 hands are thereby thrown out of employment.

Greatest Flood Since '57.

Troy, N. Y., March 1.—The water in the Hudson river last night reached the highest point attained since 1857. At 9 o'clock the mark of the memorable flood of 1886 on the bridge pier was lost sight of and the water continued to rise.

Barre, Vt., Flooded.

Barre, Vt., March 1.—Never in the history of Barre has high water done so much damage as in the last twenty-four hours. The heavy rain caused a vast amount of snow to melt and late Saturday night the ice in the river went out with a rush, shaking the heaviest blocks and tearing away many supports along the river bank. This rush of ice threw water in many basements and the occupants had no warning. The water then receded, but rain set in again in the middle of the night, and this morning the streets are submerged.

Rivers Rising in Maine.

Westbrook, Me., March, 1.—The Prosumscott river is rapidly rising. It has swollen to the height of twelve feet above the average in twenty-four hours. Two small bridges and a building, occupied as a club room and shoe store, have been carried away, besides the large stone building of S. D. Warren & Co.'s paper mills.

Floods in New England.

GOV. GREENHALGE'S CONDITION

The Chances Now Favor His Ultimate Recovery.

Boston, March 1.—This morning Private Secretary Thomas received word from Gov. Greenhalge's residence in Lowell that no material change in the governor's condition took place during the night. The governor is holding his own. For several hours the governor hovered between life and death. If he can sustain the change his recovery is assured.

HON. W. W. RICE DEAD.

Ex-Congressman and Brother-in-Law of Senator Hoar.

Worcester, Mass., March 2.—Hon. W. W. Rice, ex-congressman and brother-in-law of Senator Hoar, died at his home here last evening from organic trouble of the heart, aged 70 years. He was the oldest ex-mayor of this city.

Raines Bill and Greater New York.

Albany, March 2.—As has been the condition since the beginning of the session, Greater New York and excise will be the important matters that will engross the attention of members of the legislature this week. The Greater New York bill of Senator Lexow is a special order in the senate for Wednesday. Senator Raines has hopes that his liquor tax bill can be reprinted with the senate caucus amendments and passed this week. It is not believed, however, around the legislative halls that this is possible.

New York at Her Dock.

New York, March 2.—The American line steamer New York, which went ashore at the Quickstep bell-buoy near Swinburne island in the lower bay during the dense fog which prevailed Saturday and was floated yesterday with the assistance of six tugs, is now at her dock here. An examinaion of her bottom will be made to-day, but it is not believed that she is injured.

Chicago Derby Off.

Chicago, March 2.—As a result of Ed. Corrigan's visit to Chicago the $25,000 Chicago Derby has been officially declared off. No payments have been made on it, and the first declarations are due to-day. There are 247 entries, and the stake was too costly to transfer. The only Hawthorne stakes now left are the Stallion stakes of 1897 and 1898.

WEEK IN CONGRESS

The Dupont Case To Come Up in the Senate Wednesday.

DEBATE MAY LAST TWO WEEKS

Struggle To-Day Over the Arkansas Land Matter—The House Soon To Take Up the Senate Cuban Resolutions.

Washington, March 1.—The coming week will inaugurate the discussion on a question of the highest privilege in the senate—the title to a seat in the body. Mr. Mitchell, chairman of the committee on privileges and elections, gave notice Friday that he would call the Dupont case up Wednesday at 2 o'clock. Mr. Mitchell, will make the opening speech and will be followed during the week by Mr. Turpie of Indiana for the democrats, and Mr. Pritchard of North Carolina for the republicans. The chairman of the committee is of the opinion that the debate on this subject will not last longer than ten days, or, at the outside, not to exceed two weeks. To-day there is every probability of the senate locking horns over a matter against which there appears to very determined opposition in the senate. It is the bill unanimously reported by the senate committee on public lands to approve a compromise and settlement between the United States and Arkansas. The agricultural bill will also be called up to-day by Mr. Cullom, who has it in charge. Inasmuch as there has been no amendments to the legislative features of this bill, as it came from the house, it will probably be passed in one afternoon. During the week it is not unlikely that Mr. Teller of Colorado may make his promised speech on the tariff-silver question, in which he will explain the stand he has taken and the reasons for his recent opposition to the tariff bill. Beyond this there is no programme for the week.

House of Representatives.

There is so general a demand for action on the senate Cuban resolutions, that the managers of the house of representatives have consented that as soon as the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, the pending unfinished business, has been disposed of, Cuban resolutions shall be the next order. How much time will be devoted to their consideration is as yet undecided. At least a dozen members have expressed to Mr. Hitt, chairman of the committee on foreign affairs, a desire to speak, and it is probable that at least a full day's session will be occupied by the debate. Following the Cuba resolutions the postoffice appropriation bill will be taken up in the house, and this it is expected will practically exhaust the remainder of the week.

U. S. SUPREME COURT.

A Number of Important Opinions Expected To-day.

Washington, March 2.—After a recess extending over a month the supreme court of the United States will reassemble to-day for the last session of the term of 1895. The meeting will be the occasion for the announcing of opinions in a large number of important cases which have been prepared during the recess. It is expected that at least fifty cases will be disposed of to-day, and among them may be the famous Stanford case which was argued by J. H. Choate and Solicitor General Conrad in the last week of January. Other cases of great importance in which the judgment of the court may be looked for are the habeas corpus proceedings by T. F. Brown, auditor of the Allegheny Valley Railroad company, involving the validity and force of the amendment of the interstate commerce law protecting witnesses who testify as to violation of the statute; the irrigation cases from California; the habeas corpus proceedings from Texas, involving the question whether or not participants in the Garcia movement in Mexico in 1893 were political offenders or ordinary criminals and amenable to the extradition laws.

Killed by a Powder Blast.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., March 2.—Hugh J. Williams, aged 31, was killed on Saturday night by an explosion of gas in the Franklin mine; John W. Jones was seriously injured, and Daniel Baker was slightly bruised by flying rock. The explosion occurred in a tunnel where men were blasting rock. In tamping the powder ignited, causing the blast to go off sooner than expected.

SPANIARDS ENRAGED

Popular Feeling Against the United States Growing in Bitterness.

THE AMERICAN LEGATION GUARDED

Warships Being Made Ready for Immediate Dispatch in the Event of This Country Acknowledging the Cubans as Belligerents.

Madrid, March 2.—Popular feeling here is bitter against the United States because of the action of the senate in adopting a resolution favoring the granting of belligerent rights to the Cuban rebels. The stock market has responded to the excitement, and there is a material decline in purely Spanish and Cuban securities. In view of the financial difficulties under which the government is laboring, this is a most unfortunate time for Spanish securities to decline in value. The action of Admiral Herenger, minister of marine, in ordering the speedy preparation of six warships and some of the naval reserve vessels of the Spanish Transatlantic company for dispatch to the Bahama channel meets with hearty approval. It is very evident that, despite Prime Minister Canovas del Castilio's declaration on Saturday that if President Cleveland should be compelled to endorse the action of congress it would not provoke an international conflict nor interfere with the friendly relations existing between Spain and the United States, the government is doing its utmost to prepare against any possible contingency.

Will Defend Her Rights.

The prime minister said last evening: "I trust that Cleveland will veto the formal resolution of Congress, and I have more reason to trust that he will not comply with the recommendations contained therein." He added: "The granting of belligerent rights to the Cuban rebels is not casus belli, but Spain shall declare that it is not the act of a friendly nation. I do not think that Spain is threatened by foreign aggression, but measures shall be taken for the defense of Spanish rights, chiefly in Cuba. As regards demonstrations in the streets here I shal repress them severely if they are attempted."

Insults Offered to Spain.

Senor Silvela, leader of the dissident conservatives, has, in an interview, advised the union of all Spaniards without regard to their political faith. He added that the act of the American senate was without precedent in international law. He greatly feared, considering the bad faith of the Americans, that they gave belligerent rights a different meaning than is described in international law. An interview was also sought with Senor Castelar, the republican leader, but he refused to speak on the subject, as he considered the circumstances to be of the most serious nature. The Duke of Tetuan, minister of foreign affairs, has sent a long cable dispatch to Senor Dupuy de Lome, Spanish ambassador at Washington, instructing him to present to the American government a formal reclamation against the insults offered to Spain in speeches delivered in the senate during the discussion of the belligerency resolution.

American Legation Guarded.

At several of the cafes here last night bands played patriotic airs, which evoked much cheering and enthusiasm. Occasionally cries could be heard against America and the Americans. The troops are confined to their barracks, in readiness to respond to any call for their services. This morning the city was quiet, but the public buildings, the American legation and the residence of Minister Taylor were guarded, the authorities fearing that in the present state of public excitement an attack might be made upon them.

Getting Warships Ready.

In addition to the warships Peleyo, Vizcaya, Oyuendo, Maria Teresa Lepanto and Alfonso XIII., the ministry of marine has ordered that several torpedo boats and one torpedo catcher be made ready for immediate dispatch in the event of the United States acknowledging the Cubans as belligerents. Dispatches from Barcelona state that an attack has been made upon the United States consulate in that city, notwithstanding the fact that the building was guarded. During the day a procession comprising 10,000 persons, headed by four republican members of the chamber of deputies, paraded through the principal streets of the city as a demonstration against the action of the American senate. A strong guard had been placed about the American consulate in anticipation of trouble. As the procession passed it there was some derisive whistling, interspersed with cat-calls and other tokens of disapproval. Some of the police and gendarmes succeeded in driving them away, but not until they had been forced to charge upon the mob with drawn sabres. While this trouble was going on the main body of the procession continued its march to the town hall, where the leaders of the demonstration handed to the mayor a strongly worded protest against the action of the American senate and also against the speeches that had been delivered therein on the Cuban question, it being declared that some of the speakers had grossly insulted Spain and the Spanish government in defending Cuban bandits and outlaws.

Stoned the American Consulate.

Subsequently a great crowd assembled in the Plaza Cataluna, and a number of patriotic speeches were delivered. The crowd became greatly excited by the burning oratory of the speakers, and after the meeting had broken up a large number of those who had listened to the words glorifying Spain and denouncing the United States proceeded to the American consulate, where they gave vent to their patriotism by stoning the building, much to the damage of the windows thereof. As in previous mob demonstrations in Barcelona, the police were almost impotent to disperse the rioters, who did about as they pleased. After this outrage on the flag of the United States, the mob become more violent, and a proposition to make a further demonstration against the American consulate was speedily acted upon. The mob proceeded to the consulate, in the meantime arming themselves with stones. Arrived at the consulate, a perfect volley of missiles was directed against the shield over the doorway bearing the American coat-of-arms, which was battered almost to pieces. The mob in some way became possessed of several American flags, which were destroyed with ribald jests and expressions of contempt for the nation which they represented. The situation was becoming more and more threatening, when reinforcements for the guards at the consulate arrived in the shape of a detachment of mounted gendarmes. The crowd was ordered to disperse, which they sullenly refused to do, whereupon the gendarmes charged them with drawn swords and put them to flight. Several of the rioters were injured by being trampled upon by the horses. Until a late hour the boulevards were thronged by an excited crowd singing the "Marseillaise" and patriotic Spanish songs.

Arming Merchant Vessels.

Admiral Beranger has ordered that the training squadron be be held in readiness for service. Its probable objective point is Cuba. Fifty merchant ships will receive armaments and will be used as transports or cruisers should the necessity arise. Several captains in the merchant service have offered to arm their vessels and turn them into privateers in the event of war. A captain in Barcelona has informed the government that if he be granted letters of marque he will fit out and maintain at his own expense a swift steamer to prey upon the maritime commerce of the United States.

Cubans Thank Senator Sherman.

Paris, March 2.—Senor Betances, a Cuban agent in this city, states that the recognition of the Cubans as belligerents by the United States would ensure their speedy triumph, and that the revolution would end in three months. Several Cubans here have cabled their thanks to Senator Sherman for his advocacy of the Cuban cause.

TO STRENGTHEN HER NAVY.

Great Britian's Plans Will Stir Germany to Action.

Berlin, March 2.—The emphatic declarations recently made by Freiherr Marschall von Bieberstein, minister of foreign affairs, that the government has no intention of making any increased demands for the purpose of strengthening the navy have failed to convince members of any political party that the idea of the enlargement of the navy has been abandoned. It is clearly understood that the emperor is determined to obtain an enlarged naval estimate, and the hope is entertained in official quarters that the disclosures in regard to British naval plans made by George J. Goschen, first lord of the British admiralty, in his speech at Lewes, together with his insulting allusions to Germany, will so thoroughly excite the indignation and resentment of the members of the reichstag as to cause them to grant any increase of the naval estimate that may be demanded.

Barley from the United States.

It is stated that a firm in Montana has contracted to ship to Germany 2,500,000 bushels of barley, and if the venture pays the men in the deal they will ship a much larger consignment of Minnesota barley. The Berlin Nachrichten makes the statement that the revised decree in regard to American insurance companies shows a clause declaring that all United States companies will be locked out of Prussia unless the German companies are granted equal facilities with other companies doing business in the United States. This implies that New York state must repeal its recent legislation affecting German companies.

Efforts To Redeem Friedman.

A well-known Baltimore prelate, who was an intimate friend of the absconding lawyer Fritz Friedman before his fall has offered to support him and to make an attempt to effect his social redemption. If Friedman is released in Bordeaux, as he likely will be, he will sail at once for Baltimore.

Ailsa in Seventy Feet of Water.

New York, March 1.—The Atlas line steamer Ailsa, which was sunk Saturday by the French liner Bourgogne, lies in about seventy feet of water southwest of Fort Hamilton, 300 yards from the shore with her masts and the top of her funnel above water. A small boat with a diver is examining the wreck. The steamer George W. Clyde is still ashore, stern first, high up on the beach near Owls' Head, with several of the Chapman wrecking boats alongside taking out cargo.

A. R. Lee's Sudden Death.

Erie, Pa., March 2.—A. R. Lee of the W. L. Scott Coal company of Erie died unexpectedly yesterday at the age of 59 years. Deceased began life as a oil operator and then went into the coal business. In 1876 he joined W. L. Scott in his coal operations and at the time of his death was the western manager with headquarters in Chicago. He leaves a large fortune.

Emigrants for Liberia.

Savannah, Ga., March 2.—The steamship Laurada dropped down the river yesterday afternoon with 311 colored emigrants bound for Liberia on board. The party is sent out by the International Emigration society of Birmingham, Ala., this being the second party sent out within a year.

MASSACRE AT BIRIJIK

Over 1,000 Armenians Killed or Converted to Islamism.

NOT ONE CHRISTIAN LEFT TO-DAY

Terrible Tortures Inflicted To Compel the Unfortunates To Give Up Their Faith — Women Carried Off by the Captors.

London, March 2.—The United Press correspondent at Constantinople sends the following regarding the massacres at Birijik, province of Aleppo. Birijik had about 200 Christian houses or say about 1,000 souls in the midst of a Mussulman population of about 9,000 souls. After the massacre at Curfa on October, 1895, the authorities at Birijik told the Armenians that the Muslims were afraid of them, and that therefore they (the Armenians) must surrender to the government any arms that they possessed. This was done, the most rigid search being instituted to assure the authorities that nothing whatever in the way of arms remained in the hands of the Armenians. The disarmament caused no little anxiety to the Armenians, since the Muslim population was very generally armed, and was constantly adding to its arms. In fact, during the months of November and December, the Christians have been kept within their houses because the danger of appearing upon the streets was very great.

Massacres Finally Begun.

Troops were called out by the government to protect the people. Since the soldiers had come to protect the Christians the Christians were required to furnish animals for them to use to carry their goods. Then they were required to furnish the beds and carpets to make them more comfortable. Finally, they were required to furnish the soldiers with food, and they were reduced to a state bordering on destitution by these increasing demands. The end came on the 1st of Jan. 1896, when the news of the massacre of several thousands of Christians at Ourfa by the soldiers appointed to guard them, incited the troops at Birijik to imitate this crime. The assault on the Christian houses commenced at about 9 o'clock in the morning, and continued until nightfall. The soldiers were aided by Muslims in the terrible work. The object at first seemed to be mainly plunder. But after the plunder had been secured the soldiers seemed to make a systematic search for men to kill those who were unwilling to accept Mohammedanism.

Not a Single Christian Left.

The cruelty used to compel men to become Muslims was terrible. In one case the soldiers found some twenty people, men, women and children, who had taken refuge in a sort of cave. They dragged them out and killed all the men and boys because they would not become Muslims. After cutting down one old man who had thus refused, they put live coals on his body, and as he was writhing in torture they held a Bible before him and asked him mockingly to read them some of the promises in which he had trusted. Others were thrown into the river while still alive, after having been cruelly wounded. The wounded and children of this party were loaded like goods on the backs of porters and carried off to the houses of Mussulmans. Christian girls were eagerly sought after, and much quarreling occurred over the question of their division among the captors. Every Christian house, except two claimed to be owned by Turks, was plundered. Ninety-six men are known to have been killed, or about half of the adult Christian men. The others have become Mussulmans to save their lives, so that there is not a single Christian left in Birijik to-day. The Armenian church has been made into a mosque and the Protestant church into a Medresse seminary.

KENTUCKY DEADLOCK.

Hunter's Withdrawal Further Complicates the Senatorial Muddle.

Frankfort, Ky., March 2.—The withdrawal of Congressman Hunter from the race for the senatorship before the deadlock legislature still further complicates the situation. Some argue that it cannot fail to help the democrats. It is not believed that any single republican can control the following which has heretofore supported Dr. Hunter, which furnishes additional ground for the belief that the democrats will profit by his action. Other members of the Kentucky delegation believe that it will cement the republican strength and that if a satisfactory arrangement can be made with the two populist members of the house, a better opportunity is afforded now for the election of a republican senator than at any time since the senatorial fight began.

Tremblie To Be Guillotined.

Douai, France, March 2.—Raoul Tremblie, who was arrested at Dunkirk on May 28, 1894, for the murder in the Argentine Republic of Francois Farbes, has been sentenced to be guillotined. Tremblie induced Farbes to go from France to Buenos Ayres, and after their arrival there murdered and robbed him. The body was decapitated and cut into twelve pieces, after which it was salted down in a barrel. Tremblie then fled to France.

Four Schooners Missing.

Philadelphia, March 2.—Great anxiety exists in shipping circles over the fate of four Philadelphia schooners which sailed from North Carolina ports twenty-five days ago and of which on tidings have since been heard. The missing vessels are Frank S. Hale, the Melvin, the S. Warren Hall and the Eunice R. Dyer. The crews of the four vessels number sixty men in all.

March.

The stormy March has come at last.
With wind and cloud and changing skies,
And now as ever is the time
To pay attention to your eyes,
To Collier's therefore you should speed
And learn if treatment they do need.

It not only is so, it must be so, One Minute Cough Cure acts quickly, and that's what makes it go. L. W. Randolph, 143 W. Front St.

THEATRICAL.

Augustin Daly will send here the scenery originally used by him in his famous production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," both in New York and London, and will be displayed in the presentation of the delightful comedy which we are to have here at Music Hall, tonight. For that purpose forty-four people are to be dispatched hither, most of them prominent members of his company and a number of musicians, to be added to the already efficient orchestra. In this country its most successful production was by Mr. Daly, and when he was audacious enough to go to Europe with it and offer it as a perfect realization of the great poet's fancies, even the English people acknowledged his triumph, and the historic critic was led to affirm that it was a better performance than the great King gave of it. In existing records of the play concerning its production in this country, England and Germany, the critics have personally distinguished themselves by trying to show that the comedy lost its poetry and its atmosphere by being transferred to the stage. In earlier criticisms, of course, there was much more to regret than now, the stage has reached such a marvelous advancement that mimicry of the real has seemed more poetic, than the real would be to the most sentimental dream. Of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" Thomas Campbell wrote: "This play is so purely delicious, so little intermixed with the painful sweets, so fragrant with hilarity as stern sweets, so bland and yet so bold, and I cannot imagine Shakespeare's mind to have been in any other frame than that of healthful ecstacy when the sparks of inspiration thrilled through his brain when composing it."

Augustin Daly's company of over forty people arrived this morniug. The indications for this evening's performance of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" are for a large and very fashionable audience. The production of this beautiful Shakespearian creation is an event of unusual interest in the theatricals of this city.

Comedians who are comic, girls who are pretty, singers who can sing, and dancers who can dance, abound in this season's version of Cosgrove and Grant's perennial "Dazzler." The realms of comedy, song, and even opera have been invaded by these enterprising managers, and their prizes shine forth with a new and added lustra as part of the merriment and abandon of the performance. Bobby Ralston, a diminutive comedian, in his unique and comical specialty, will reap his usual reward of applause while Will West, the favorite baitone of last season, will be heard in many of the latest European successes. Max Miller, the original Dutchman of "The Dazzler," is again in the cast, and new life and zest may be looked for in his characterization of the retired brewer, while the grotesque features of the performance will be well taken care of by Raymond Finlay and George Leslie. A number of pretty and talented young ladies add life and beauty to the ensemble and "The Dazzler of 1895-6 bids fair to equal if not eclipse any of its predecessors in the line of life, mirth and music. It will be seen at Music Hall tomorrow night.

AN EX-PLAINFIELDER MOBBED.

The Consul General at Barcelona Was Formerly of Netherwood.

The American Consul General at Barcelona, Spain, who was mobbed yesterday, is Herbert Wolcott Bowen, formerly of Netherwood, and brother of H. E. Bowen, of Watchung avenue, and fourth son of the late Henry C. Bowen. He was appointed by President Harrison and re appointed by President Cleveland.

A Delightful Entertainment.

Plainfield's best musical talent will give an entertainment on Friday night in the lecture room of the Trinity Reformed church, the proceeds to be applied for the Easter music of the church. The entertainment will be one of the finest of the kind ever held in this city.

—Hood's Pills are purely vegetable and do not purge, pain or gripe. All druggists, 25c.

—The crosswalk at the junction of Craig place and Grove street is in a dilapidated condition and should immediately receive the attention of the authorities.

—Ninety per cent of all the people need to take a course of Hood's Sarsaparilla at this season to prevent that run-down condition of the system which invites disease.

—The second of the series of Bible talks on the Ministry of the Holy Spirit will be given by Wm. D. Murray at the Y. M. C. A. building this evening. Ladies and gentlemen are invited.

CYCLING COMMENT.

The F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company received a shipment Saturday of thirty Cleveland and ten Crescent wheels.

Will Shaeffer, of West Second street, is having a sixteen-inch wheel made to order. The wheel will be geared to 80.

Thomas U. Smith will ride a '96 Cleveland track wheel this year, and will in all probability enter several race meets.

Peter Hanson, of Liberty street, is riding a Cleveland Swell Special, Model 22, purchased from the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company.

Among those that have recently purchased wheels from the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company are W. T. Amernean, of New York, Cleveland, Model, 22; A. T. Russell, of Westfield, Crescent No. 4; S. Rowland, Crescent No. 2; Mr. Burtis, Cleveland, Model 22.

The Barnes Bicycle Company is building a ten-seated machine called a "double quint," upon which will be mounted ten of the fastest professionals to pace E. C. Bald, the "white flyer," for records. William VanWagoner is the designer of the machine.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The Juniors of Hope chapel will bowl the Y. M. C. A. team on the latter's alleys March 12th.

The date for the bowling game between the C. Y. M. L., of Elizabeth, and the Catholic Club, of this city, has been set for tomorrow night, the game to take place on the latter's alleys.

The Westfield Y. M. C. A. and the Roselle Casino Juniors rolled two games Friday afternoon. The Roselles won the first by a large lead while the Westfields took the second by one pin.

A friendly match between Clarence and Morris Sutphen, of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A., and Wright and Condit, of the Westfield Y. M. C. A., was rolled Saturday evening on the latter's alleys. The Westfield boys won all three games.

Next Thursday evening two ten-men bowling teams from Hope chapel will go to Rahway and bowl two games with the Y. M. C. A. there. The party will go by stage and anyone who desires to go should send their name to Ben Eddy, 210 Muhlenberg place.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

At the indoor meet of the Long Island Interscholastic Athletic Association, held in Brooklyn Saturday afternoon, George P. Smith, of the Plainfield High School, secured fourth place in the shot-putting contest. There were eighteen contestants. Jesse L. Hurlbut, formerly of Plainfield, now of New York, was second in the pole vault.

The Truth Told Earnestly.

The men's meeting at the Y.M.C.A. yesterday afternoon was one of the largest held there. The meeting was attended by a number of men from both Potter's and Pond's, and was led by David E. Titsworth, of Charles Potter & Co., who took for his subject "The True Guage." The speaker gave a very interesting talk, which was attentively listened to throughout, by all present. In additton to Mr. Titsworth's talk, some earnest testimonies were given by Will Mosher, Frederick Wharton, Donald McInnes and Henry VanMiddlesworth. The musical part of the meeting was greatly enjoyed. The native African choir was present and rendered excellent music.

$5 for a Spree.

Charles Keller, coachman for W. J. Buttfield, of Rockview avenue, was arrested Saturday night for being drunk. He was fined $5 this morning by Judge Crosley.

George Robinett, of Wilmington, Del., is the guest of Asa Collier, of East Sixth street.

AN EARLY MORNING FIRE.

Geo. Bremmer's Home on Greenbrook Road Nearly Destroyed Yesterday.

A fire broke out in the kitchen of Geo. Bremmer's residence on Greenbrook road yesterday morning about 2 o'clock. Wm. Barry, a neighbor, discovered it and, not knowing that the fire-alarm boxes were in working order, ran all the way to the engine house to give the alarm.

Marshal Wilson, who is on duty there all the time, rang the bell and a number of firemen responded. The apparatus was at once taken to the scene of the fire, and in about an hour succeeded in extinguishing it. Considerable clothing was destroyed, and the kitchen is a wreck.

The supposition is that the fire caught from the stove.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

The undersigned hereby gives notice that he has sold the Drug Business so long conducted by him under the style of Reynold's Pharmacy to Mr. Thomas S. Armstrong for many years in his employ as manager of said business. The sale dates from March 1, and comprises stock, fixtures, book accounts and notes. Mr. Armstrong being duly authorized to receive and acknowledge payment of all dues and assuming all outstanding liabilities.

In retiring from a business which he has successfully conducted for twenty eight-years the undersigned would very sincerely acknowledge the favor and kindness shown to him by the community in which he has lived; and he asks for his successor—already well known to the public—a continuance of the same favor and kindness.

HOWARD PRESCOTT REYNOLDS.

Plainfield, March 2, 1896.

As above stated, I have purchased the Drug Business known as Reynold's Pharmacy, so long under my management; and I would hereby respectfully ask a continuance of the confidence and patronage of the Plainfield public.

DANIEL'S WIFE.

BY MRS. M. L. RAYNE.

AN'T say I believe in superstition myself."

"Nor me. Though I've seen the time when I wouldn't look over my left shoulder for fear of seein' the new moon."

"But you can't change the law of the universe to suit yourselves, an' I for one know that a dog howlin' is a sure sign of death."

"I broke a lookin' glass once and didn't have no luck for a year."

"Now, I don't b'lieve in any of them signs, but if I spill the salt I'm bound to get into a quarrel with a neighbor. Never knew it to fail."

"If a fork drops from your hands and sticks in the floor it's a sure sign that somebody's coming. And you can tell by the way it slants where he's coming from."

"Hush! Here's Daniel's wife comin' in from the kitchen. Don't let her hear you."

They were a company of plain country folk who had assembled at a neighbor's deathbed, that of a decrepit old man, Uncle Abner Field, who had just passed away. He was feeble and childish, but as a relative of their young neighbor, Daniel Field, he commanded some respect. For himself he was covetous, grasping and ill-tempered, and as no one cared to have him about he lived alone in a tumble-down house, when Daniel's wife—pretty Loretta Price, that was—took pity on him and invited him to make his home with them, Daniel agreeing to everything that she suggested.

"It's too dreadful to have the old man living and dying alone there when we have a room to spare and a bite and sup for him. He's your own flesh and blood, Daniel, and we must do as we would be done by," Loretta had said.

Of course the people who attend to everybody's business but their own said that Loretta expected to get something for her goodness, but she laughed at the suggestion that poor old Uncle Abner, who had always been the personification of poverty, had any money. She would have demanded it peremptorily if only to make him more comfortable, for her husband was poor, farming not being his vocation. Like herself, Daniel was educated, and longed to see the world, but she was more practical and did not disdain present opportunities. But she was working beyond her strength before she took Uncle Abner in.

And never once did he try to lighten her labors by any consideration on his part. As long as he was able to be about he spent much of his time in the old house which he owned, as well as the three acres of ground pertaining to it, and this he deeded to Daniel with much formality and many specifications. The whole property was worth a few hundred dollars, if ever a purchaser could be found.

"We'll tear down the house and plant an orchard on the land," Daniel had said, but his wife had no interest in it one way or another. More land was not one of her hobbies; less would have pleased her better.

Now Uncle Abner was dead, but in dying he had evolved a strange and portentous omen from the realms of superstition. He had lain for many hours in an unconscious state, with all the friends and neighbors of the family gathered about him, as the custom obtains in rural districts, and several times he had actually ceased to breathe

"WHAT DOESN'T COME TRUE?" ASKED LORETTA.

—when in one of his returns from the border land, he opened his eyes and looked upon the faces of those about him, then said, in his shrill voice:

"Daniel's wife!"

Loretta stepped hastily to him, and took the cold hard hand in her soft warm palm, but with those words he ceased to breathe. There was no more coming back—Uncle Abner had gone the way of all flesh since Adam, and the only one to shed a tear for him was she whose name was last on his lips, in that form of address customary with him.

But the effect of his words on all gathered there, excepting Loretta herself, was most remarkable. They left the deathbed with precipitate haste, and grouped together in the other room began to talk in hushed tones over Uncle Abner's last words and to discuss their different forms of superstition which had proceeded so far as the spilling of salt, when Loretta herself appeared among them, and immediately became an object of the greatest interest.

"Don't take it to heart," suggested one.

"He just wanted to see you," remarked another.

"It doesn't always come true," said one neighbor in a tone that indicated exactly the opposite of what she expressed.

"What doesn't always come true?" asked Loretta, who did not catch the drift of their vague insinuations.

"Why, you know," stammered an old lady who was rather afraid of Daniel's wife, who was considered very clever, "when folks are a-dying, it is said that the last name on their lips will be the next one to go; it's said to be a sure sign, 'cause the dying have dying knowledge; but I daresay he had forgot something he wanted to say to you, Loretty."

"If that's all, you needn't worry about me," said Loretta, quickly. "I shan't die till my time comes, and that won't be set by Uncle Abner, I'm very sure."

"N—o," said another of the company, "but the dying are often gifted with fore-knowledge. There was my husband's sister's second son; he died out in Californy just the same time to a minute that his mother died here, and he said her name with his last breath—he knew."

"Yes—maybe," said Loretta, "but we'll eat a warm supper now, and you'll all feel better, and"—with decision—"we won't talk about Uncle Abner's last words any more."

This only added fuel to the suppressed flame, but at least the friends were polite enough not to talk about the matter before Loretta. They carried it to their homes, and discussed it there, and talked of it at the general store on Saturday nights, and it was not long before Daniel's wife was looked upon as a doomed woman.

Did she know it? Yes, Daniel himself told her of the reports, and they laughed over them together. Loretta declared three was not a grain of superstition in her nature, and she would not die any sooner for being "called."

When we say we have no superstitions we deceive ourselves. It may not be in your way—or ours—or yours—but in my own way, I am full of superstition. You laugh at the potency of the new moon seen over your left shoulder, but you will stand an hour on the walk rather than cross between the carriages of a funeral procession. I smile at your superstition, but if I met a black cat on the threshold of a journey I would postpone the journey.

Daniel's wife was not superstitious, but from the hour of old Abner's death she began to pine and fail in flesh and spirit. She knew it was foolish, but she heard that rasping voice calling her everywhere, and at all hours: "Daniel's wife!" "Daniel's wife!" and in the night she would rise hurriedly from troubled slumbers and go over the house as if in obedience to the "call," and return pale and trembling, the cold perspiration bathing face and hands, while Daniel slept on undisturbed by her waking idiosyncracies.

But he, too, saw that his wife was affected by the strange happening, and to divert her mind and give her something else to think of, he suggested tearing down the old house, and planting the new orchard.

She assented indifferently. Farming was not to her taste, but she loved her husband and tried with wifely interest to take part in all his schemes. So a couple of neighbors were invited to assist, as the custom is in farming communities, and the old-fashioned window casements and the doors were removed, and soon a sound of ripping and tearing saluted Loretta's ears. It brought back the presence of the old man, and his last cry; she could hear it as distinctly as if he were in the next room. Often in the night when she heard it in dreams she awakened with a glad feeling that she was still alive, a breathing, hoping, loving woman, not a clod out in yonder place where he lay. She loved life even under its present disappointments, for always while there is life there is hope.

"Daniel's wife!" That was no ghostly voice, but a real living cry from warm lips. Other voices took it up, and Loretta hearing the call ran out into the sweet May air and saw her husband waving a paper he had and men running toward her with curious little parcels in their hands, and one and all they shouted: "Daniel's wife."

What could it mean? Daniels had to explain it half a dozen times before she could "sense" it. The poverty-stricken old man, Uncle Abner, had died enormously rich, and the old house was his bank. It was filled between the walls with a lining of gold and silver, and deeds of vast possessions that no one had ever heard of, and there, too, was a will written on a letterback to save paper, but duly signed and attested, and it left everything, silver, gold and lands, to Daniel's wife.

If the bad news of his "call" had flown fast, the good news of his wealth flew faster. More people knew Loretta than Loretta knew. The golden lever moved off the incubus of superstition with material haste. There is nothing supernatural about gold or silver or bank bills.

And Uncle Abner's "call" proved the open sesame to all the joys of the world for Daniel's wife.—Detroit Free Press.

A Hunted Look.

"You are of American tory stock, are you not?"

"Yes. But how ever did you guess it?"

"Oh, I knew your wife was a daughter of the revolution, and you have a hunted look."—Judge.

WORTH A GLANCE.

Several works by Margaret of Navarre, the author of the Heptameron, have just been discovered in the National library at Paris. They comprise poems written in the last four or five years of her life, amounting to 12,000 verses; two dramas, letters, dialogues and songs.

Three volumes of the memoirs of Marchese Giorgio Pallavicino have been published in Italy. He was a fellow prisoner with Silvio Pellico and Maroncelli in the Spielberg, and was later Garibaldi's adviser. He brought about the plebiscitum in 1860 by which Naples and Sicily voted to join the kingdom of Italy.

Quinine in Italy is very expensive, costing to the public $100 a kilogramme, and is often adulterated. As good and cheap quinine is needed in the malarial districts, Signor Boselli, minister of finance, proposes that the sulphate and hydrochlorate be sold by the government at a uniform price in all stores dealing in the state monopolies, tobacco and salt.

A HISTORY LESSON.

The New Testament in its revised form appeared in 1881, and the Old Testament came out in 1885.

Wall street, in New York, was so named because about 1650 a stockade was built there as protection from the natives.

The American Colonization society did not originate in the slave states, as has been recently stated. The idea was first conceived in 1773 by Rev. Samuel Hopkins and Rev. Ezra Stiles of Rhode Island. But the actual founder of the society was Rev. Robert Finley, of New Jersey.

One of the historical old houses of Philadelphia has just been given to the American Catholic Historical society. It is the Nicholas Biddel mansion at No. 715 Spruce street. The old house was built about the year 1820 by Nicholas Biddle, lawyer, statesman and bank president, the son of Charles Biddle, vice president of the supreme executive council of Pennsylvania under the first constitution.

"You have pretty rough roads around here," began Ringbrand, bracing himself into his seat. "I should think—"

The interruption was an ominous snap, and the horses stopped. "That sounded mighty like something broke," said the colonel, and they alighted and looked the carriage over carefully. "Yes, here it is, for sure," he continued; "tongue's broke off right here."

They examined the fracture, and Ringbrand sugested wrapping it in splints with one of the halter-straps.

"I reckon it wouldn't hold," said the colonel, "but we can try it."

They spent some time trying to put the suggestion into practice, succeeding finally in making a clumsy splice, which the first pull of the horses disjointed hopelessly. "It's no use, Mr. Ringbrand," said the colonel; "we're in for it; there's nothing like a blacksmith shop this side o' Tregarthen."

Ringbrand looked at his watch and saw that it was half-past ten. "How far are we from the village, colonel?" he asked.

"About eight miles, I reckon."

That settled the question of departure for that day, and Ringbrand was annoyed to find himself feeling rather jubilant than disappointed over the unavoidable delay. He helped the colonel unhitch, and after an hour's hard work they got the buggy to the top of the hill, where they left it at the side of the road and walked back to the nearest farmhouse, leading the horses.

"I'm proud of you, Mr. Ringbrand," she said.

Since the colonel knew nearly every one in the valley, it followed that they had only to mention their need to obtain the hospitality and assistance of the farmer, who lent them an antiquated carriage and refused to let them depart until after dinner. Adding the delays to the time consumed in the careful driving necessary to the preservation of the farmer's vehicle in a state of entirety, it was near the middle of the afternoon when they got back to Tregarthen, and then Col. Latimer insisted upon taking his companion up to the mountain for the remainder of the day. Ringbrand offered every reasonable objection he could think of, knowing that another visit to Hester would immeasurably increase the pain of leaving her; but in the end discretion was swept away by an overwhelming desire to see and talk with her once more, and he yielded. They drove past the Ludlows', and he ran in to tell his hostess that he would not be home for tea. She saw the change in him, and detained him to ask if his trouble had disappeared.

"No," he replied, and she saw the look of despondency come into his eyes again; "and that isn't the worst of it; I'm going to do something that will make it infinitely harder."

"Are you going to see Hester?"

"Yes."

"How can that make it harder?"

"I can't explain without telling you all about it, and I haven't the courage to do that now."

"Tell me one thing, at least. Has your trouble anything to do with Hester's money?"

He shook his head. "I wish it were nothing worse than that. I haven't anything, as you know, but I think I could earn a living for both of us."

"And you won't tell me what it is?"

"I cannot."

"Then tell her; Hugh, I—I believe she has a right to know."

He looked up quickly. "You mean that she cares for me?"

"I have no right to say it—she has told me nothing—but I can't help thinking that she does. She seemed anxious and disappointed when you didn't come home last night."

Ringbrand hurried from the house, resolving to break his engagement with the colonel at all hazards, but that gentleman calmly waived his stammering excuses aside and made room for him on the seat of the carriage. "After I've done spoiled your day, a-draggin' you over the country afoot, the very least you can do is to let me cyar' you home with me, and the mo' especially as you cyan't make us a visit."

Ringbrand gave up again, for the simple reason that he had no valid objection to offer, and half an hour later he was sitting on the veranda of "The Laurels," deep in the discussion of the race problem with the colonel—a discussion in which the northern point of view fared indifferently because the mind of its advocate was too busy with questions suggested by the presence of Hester Latimer. All through the argument he was studying her face, searching therein for the proof or the contradiction of Mrs. Ludlow's assertion, and tormenting himself by trying to imagine what Hester would say if he should tell her of his intended departure and the reason for it.

After an early tea the colonel excused himself, riding off with Henry to the west farm, a portion of the estate lying two miles farther back on the mountain. When they were left alone together, Ringbrand made a commendable effort to keep the stream of conversation flowing in trivial channels; but his thoughts set so persistently toward the feud, and its bearing upon both their lives, that he had spoken of it almost before he knew what he was saying. "I should think it would be a constant source of anxiety to you," he said, irrelevantly.

"Perhaps it would, if I knew what it was," she answered, demurely.

"Pardon me—I must have been thinking aloud. I meant the feud."

She smiled at his preoccupation. "I supposed that was what you were thinking of. No, I can't say that it is exactly a source of anxiety, although, of course, I should be glad enough if the Bynums would leave the country. It isn't pleasant to have the enmity of such people."

"But your father and brother—don't you sometimes feel anxious on their account?"

She shook her head. "That would be disloyal; it would imply a doubt of their ability to take care of themselves."

Ringbrand was thoughtful for a moment, and then he said: "It's a dreadful state of affairs, though, Miss Hester; I should think it would be a perfect nightmare to you."

"It seems terrible to you, no doubt, but you must remember that we are used to it—or, anyway, as nearly as one can be used to such things. I should feel quite lost without the feud."

"I envy you your courage."

"That's odd. I didn't suppose a man ever envied a woman the possession of such an ordinary virtue as courage."

"Perhaps it isn't so commonplace as you imagine."

"Oh, I meant with gentlemen; of course, it says itself that women are cowards, but that is only another way of saying that men are brave."

"I'm not quite sure that I follow your logic. Would you mind giving me your definition of courage?"

"Perhaps I will—after you've told me yours."

Ringbrand reflected a moment before answering. "Possibly my definition is not quite sincere. I have always thought that the truest courage consisted in doing right when it is easier and safer to do wrong—in other words, that it requires a higher kind of courage to suffer injury than to resent it. I'm beginning to suspect, however, that this test can be applied only to martyrs and to cowards—to the latter, because they use it as a plea for nonresistance."

"I think that is a little beyond my depth," replied Hester, snipping a rose from the clambering bush that covered the end of the veranda and beginning to trim the petals into Jahlia-like precision with her scissors. "I have always thought of a brave man as one who was simply not afraid of anything; one of whom it could be said that he did not know what fear was."

"That always seemed to me like dubious praise. If one doesn't know the sensation of fear, there can be little virtue in being brave. To my mind, the man who realizes the danger and yet compels himself to face it, though it may be with pallid face and shaking knees, deserves the greater credit."

"I suppose that's true; only I never got that far into the subject before. I don't often reason about such things, because—I suppose you would say because a woman doesn't reason about anything; but it doesn't seem necessary; life isn't so much a question of motives as of deeds: it isn't so much what one thinks as what one does. And father says one does what his ancestors did."

"In that case I ought to be a brave man," said Ringbrand, smiling; "my forefathers were Scottish clansmen, and they haven't left a record of many other virtues."

"Is your name Scotch?"

"Yes; tradition has it that our ancestors were the heralds of the clan, and that the name comes from their custom of whirling a lighted brand in a circle as a signal for the gathering of the hosts."

"How sweetly romantic! It sounds like a bit out of dear old Sir Walter. I should always believe that, whether it is true or not."

Ringbrand laughed shortly: "You have a true woman's admiration for valorous deeds, haven't you? A peaceable man finds himself rather out of the running."

She looked up in surprise at the cynical outburst. "I think that's a little unkind," she said, quietly; "but if you will insist upon throwing down the challenge," she paused and trimmed off the last remaining petals of the rose, "I don't begin to understand how any true woman could respect a man who isn't brave; I'm sure it wouldn't be possible for me, if for no other reason than that I am my father's daughter. There has never been a coward among the Latimers since the day when the good old bishop went to the stake."

He had known well enough what she would say, but the verbal confirmation of his conviction came to him like the sentence death to a criminal who has been proved guilty. He rose and walked the length of the veranda, coming back to lean against the railing opposite her. "You've said a hard thing, Miss Hester," he began, "and I hope you'll forgive me for having provoked it. I wished to say something entirely different—to tell you something of myself—"

They both looked around at the sound of horses' hoofs on the gravel of the avenue, and saw the colonel and his son riding toward the house. Hester rose and waited for him to finish. "It's of no consequence," he went on, "or, at least, you wouldn't think so now. Will you tell me good-by, Miss Latimer?"

She suffered him to take her hand, wondering a little at his abruptness. "Surely you are not going so early?" she said.

"Yes, I think I'd better."

"But we shall see you again soon, shan't we?" she asked.

He was saved from replying by the entrance of the colonel, who protested warmly against his early departure, adding: "Cyan't you stop awhile longer, and then take one of the hawsses to ride down?"

"No, thank you, colonel; I think I'd better be going; and I'll enjoy the walk. Good night."

The flush of the summer sunset was still in the western sky when he reached the end of the avenue. "I can't go down there and meet Tom and his wife," he mused; "Helen would drive me crazy with questions that I can't answer to-night. I'll go the other way and walk till they've gone to bed."

He turned out of the avenue and took the road leading to the head of McNabb's cove, sauntering slowly along and going over the events of the past few weeks for the hundredth time. "It's no use arguing the thing," he muttered, "not the least in the world. I can't change my nature, and she would despise me if she knew what a miserable craven I am; I don't believe I could bear that; and yet it's harder than death to leave her now. I know I could make her love me—I saw it in her eyes to-night, and I should have made a wicked fool of myself in another minute if the colonel hadn't come. Hello! who's that?"

He turned at the sound of a galloping horse behind him and waited until Henry Latimer reined up beside the footpath. The colonel's son glanced quickly around into the gathering dusk, and then leaned over and handed a revolver to Ringbrand. "Father saw you turn up this-a-way," he explained, "and he says you'd better tote that. You mightn't need it in a hundred years, but if you did you'd need it right much."

Ringbrand took the weapon awkwardly as a man handles unfamiliar tools. "I'll carry it because you were kind enough to bring it, but I doubt if I'd have the dexterity to make use of it; however, I imagine there's not likely to be any occasion. Please thank your father for me."

He dropped the pistol into his pocket and stood looking after Henry as the latter cantered back toward "The Laurels;" then he resumed his walk and his gloomy meditations.

Thinking about it afterward, he never knew just how far he had gone. He had an indistinct recollection of coming out upon the cliff once, opposite the furnace, and of stopping to look down into the fiery throat of the cupola lighted by the intermittent flare of the burning gas. After that he remembered that the road made detours into the forest and came out upon the cliff alternately for what seemed a distance of several miles. His last clear impression was the picture of a deep rent in the mountain lying before him in the obscurity of fathomless darkness; he felt rather than saw that he was looking into its depths from the verge of a precipice; and he noticed that the shadow of a great tree came between him and the stars. It was here that the mysterious warning of the undefined sense which tells of approaching danger began to make itself felt; and when he recognized its admonition he realized that it had been pressing upon him all along, and that he had been too preoccupied to heed it. Now, however, it refused to be longer ignored, and he felt cold little chills of apprehension creeping over him as he peered around into the shadows of the forest. "What a contemptible coward I am!" he muttered, struggling to brace himself against the unnerving attack, "standing here shivering like a child in a dark room! I don't deserve to be called a man!"

Then he turned to retrace his steps toward Tregarthen; but he had not left the shadow of the tree when two men appeared before him as suddenly and as silently as if they had dropped from the branches over his head.

"Th'ow up yer han's, dern ye!" commanded the one nearest him, advancing with rifle half raised.

Ringbrand saw his opportunity as distinctly as if its details had been written in letters of fire on the murky background. Though both of the men had guns, neither of them covered him; he had only to draw his revolver and step behind the tree, fighting or parleying from that stronghold as the urgency of the case demanded. It was all simple enough, and his mind was clear to direct; but alas! his palsied limbs refused to obey, and almost before he knew what he was doing he was standing with uplifted hands, his teeth chattering and his knees shaking in a pitiable agony of fear.

He captors gave him no time to protest. "You go on ahead," said the one who had spoken, addressing his companion. "Now, then, fall in, Mr. Spy, jest thar behind him, an' don't you nev' look cross-eyed, 'les ye're hankerin' to get a bullet th'oo yer haid. March!"

Ringbrand did as he was told, following the shadowy outline of his guide, who turned to the left into the forest. As they stumbled along in the darkness, he knew that a brave man would have yet turned defeat into victory: they had not yet disarmed him, and he saw how easy it would be to make the chances of a struggle at least equal by shooting the man in front. The thought returned again and again with urgent insistence, but he could not bring himself to the point of action; and the opportunity vanished when the file-leader stopped at the bottom of a small sink-hole in the plateau, and, turning upon him suddenly, pinioned his arms to his side with a few turns of a rope.

"What are you trying to do with me, anyway?" he demanded, while they were pushing him forward to a spot of blackness appearing like the mouth of a well between two bowlders.

"Jest you wait a minute, an' you'll see; we don't 'low to have no revenuers a-spyin' round this yere mounting."

"But I'm no revenue officer; you should know that if you know anything at all about me."

"That's as how it may be; we don't 'low to take no chainces, nohow. Now, then, down you go."

Ringbrand bit his tongue to keep from crying out as they thrust him forward into the black hole between the rocks; there was a horrible sensation of falling into measureless depths, ending in a sharp jerk of the rope around his body, and he remembered no more.

"Th'ow up yer han's, dern ye!"

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. Ask your agents for tickets via this route.

Many Join Churches.

The results of the recent revival services were very apparent in the different churches yesterday when a number were admitted. Thirteen united with the Crescent Avenue church, eight new members joined the First Presbyterian church, one was received at the Congregational church and another at the First M. E. church. Rev. Mr. Johnson baptized twenty-three colored converts from the Fillmore Avenue Baptist church in the Park Avenue Baptist church yesterday afternoon.

PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE.

A Morning Stroll Down Washington's Greatest Street.

Famous Statesmen Who Walk from Their Residences to the Capitol Every Bright Forenoon—Opening a Session of the Senate.

[Special Washington Letter.]

People who walk can see a great deal more than the people who ride. A majority of the busy men of this city ride from their residences to the capitol either on the horse cars of the Metropolitan or the cable cars of the Pennsylvania avenue line.

Just for a change and for the exercise of a walk in the crisp morning air, I walked down Pennsylvania avenue from the treasury to the capitol today, and the experience was worth narrating. It would have done anyone who is a stranger in Washington a great deal of good to have had the pleasure of taking such a walk on any morning while congress is in session.

Just beyond the treasury I was overtaken by Julius Caesar Burrows, of Michigan, who slapped me on the shoulder and said: "Isn't this a glorious morning? It makes me feel as though I were in dear old Kalamazoo, among my own people, instead of being here in the national capital."

As we walked along by Willard's hotel and entered the triangular space on Pennsylvania avenue we overtook Senator Allison, of Iowa. The conversation was for a few moments of a personal nature, then naturally drifted into politics. The senior senator from Iowa has some very posiitve views from a republican standpoint concerning existing conditions, and he expressed them very freely. But then you must understand that when public men are thus conversing with newspaper men on the basis of personal friendship it is exceedingly improper to quote what they say.

Leaving the senators from Iowa and Michigan at the Twelfth street corner I attended to a domestic errand, and then resumed my walk down Pennsylvania avenue. Just ahead of me I saw Vice President Stevenson. He always walks to the capitol, except in rainy or snowy weather, and then uses his barouche. He is a tall, handsome man, and quite a commanding figure in any assemblage, and as he walks down Pennsylvania avenue a great many people who know him take off their hats, so that he is constantly returning salutations of that kind nearly all the way down the avenue.

Speaker Reed, who boards at the Shoreham, which is within a block of the Normandie, where the vice president resides, always walks down the avenue to the capitol, and he overtook me this morning before I reached Tenth street. He is a very large, heavy man, and walks slowly. He is as bright and entertaining in private conversation as he is vigorous in political affairs and in the management of the house. Among other things, he said: "I called upon the president to pay my respects this morning, and I presume that the papers will have all sorts of stories about a conference between the president and the speaker of the house. They will probably say that Mr. Cleveland and myself made arrangements to secure all manner of legislation. As a matter of fact, when I call to pay my respects to the president the matter is of no more significance than would be the call of any other member of the house of representatives."

I walked with Speaker Reed to Peace monument, where Pennsylvania avenue runs southward around the capitol, and we there boarded a cable car which took us up to the top of Capitol hill. A great many of our public men walk down Pennsylvania avenue and also walk up the long marble staircase on the terrace west of the capitol; but it is a pretty hard climb, and when it is not desired it is much better to ride up Capitol hill on the cable cars. In the car we found Congressman Joe Cannon, of Illinois, chairman of the house committee on appropriations; Congressman Boutelle, of Maine, chairman of the committee on naval affairs, and ex-Speaker Crisp, of Georgia. Attached to the rear of the cable-car train was a beautiful white car which is used for carrying the United States mail. It is fitted up just as a mail car on the steam railroads, but it only runs three miles. From the navy yard to Georgetown this car is daily running, and from its use a great deal of time is saved in the distribution of the mail of the city. It also carries mail to the depot, and thereby saves the time which would be otherwise expended by the people carrying their letters to the city post office and having them carried from there to the depot.

After we reached the top of Capitol hill we walked over to the Capitol building, and entered the south wing, which is occupied by the house of representatives. When we got on the elevator we found there Congressman McMillan, of Tennessee; Congressman Clark, of Iowa; Congressman Boatner, of Louisiana, and Congressman Dalzell, of Pennsylvania. In fact, in every turn of our meanderings we came upon statesmen of every degree, all of them men of more than ordinary ability, and many of them occupying places of great distinction and honor at home as well as in the national capital.

Just a few feet from the elevator is the speaker's room, and at its door sits Neal, the colored man who has acted as messenger for the speaker of the house of representatives for the past 20 years. He arose and opened the door, and Speaker Reed entered his special apartment, turning as he did so, saying: "I bid you good morning, gentlemen." The door closed and the speaker was thus safe from intrusion of any kind. When he enters that room he finds upon his desk from fifty to a hundred and fifty letters, all of which have been opened by the clerk and spread out upon the desk for perusal and consideration. He picks up the letters one by one, reads them, and then, without raising his eyes, he begins to talk as though he were answering the letters to the persons from whom the letters are received. His stenographer sits on the side of the desk opposite the speaker, and rapidly takes down everything that Mr. Reed says, including addresses of letters. It usually takes Speaker Reed about an hour to read and answer these letters. By the way, that fact gives rise to the reflection how changed are conditions during the past generation. The art of shorthand writing has been so perfected that experienced men can write down as rapidly as any man cares to talk every sentence, every word and every syllable that is uttered. Only by the means of shorthand writing could public men keep up with their correspondence.

I walked through the house of representatives, meeting and shaking hands with a great many public men from the various states, and then proceeded through statuary hall and the capitol rotunda to the north wing of the capitol where the senate is assembled. On the way over there I met Senator Stewart, of Nevada, who is a great champion of the cause of free coinage of silver. You do not know, and the people throughout the country do not know, but the people of Washington are well aware of the fact that Senator Stewart has become so imbued with the one idea of which he has taken possession and which has taken possession of him, that all of his conversation is concerning silver. This morning was no exception. After shaking hands, he said: "The robbers and thieves in both of the old political parties are determined to enrich themselves and keep the people poor. I will fight them as long as I live. I wish you would read my silver paper published every week. I hope to live long enough to see the triumph of my ideas."

TOM REED CALLS ON GROVER.

After leaving Senator Stewart I proceeded to the room of the senate committee on territories, of which committee Senator Davis, of Minnesota, is chairman, and there I hung my coat upon the hatrack and made myself perfectly at home. Senator Davis sat at a little desk which stood in the corner of the large and beautiful room, dictating to his stenographer. He merely looked up and said "good morning." He went on with his dictation and I went over to the room of the committee of pensions, to see Senator Gallinger, of New Hampshire, who is chairman of that committee, and makes his headquarters in that committee-room. After transacting a little business there, coming out into the corridor I met Rev. Dr. Milburn, the blind chaplin of the senate, who was being led by his niece, a bald-mannered little lady who always accompanies him. Together they go to the elevator every day, ascend to the floor of the senate, and then go to the room of the vice president, where they remain until the noon hour.

Then, as the vice president arises to enter the chamber and call the senate to order, a little page boy comes and takes the hand of the blind preacher and leads him to the raised platform in front of the desk of the presiding officer. Vice President Stevenson does not ascend to his place, but, standing beside the blind preacher, he takes the little ivory gavel, raps once and says: "The senate will be in order." Then, lowing his head, while all the senators and little page boys also bow, respectful and reverent attention is given while the holy man raises his sightless orbs heavenward and invokes the Divine blessing upon the senate and prays that its proceedings may be for the glory of God and the welfare of our common country.

As soon as the chaplain's prayer was concluded the secretary of the senate, Gen. Cox, of North Carolina, proceeded to read the journal of the preceding day. When that was concluded senators offered petitions and resolutions and bills. This is done during what is called "the morning hour," although really it is between the hour of [illegible] and one o'clock p. m.

CITY AFFAIRS QUIET.

THE POSITION OF DELINQUENT TAX COLLECTOR NASH QUESTIONED.

The Council Increases the Salary of James A. Martin to $600 a Year. Licenses Granted and Other Business.

The regular March meeting of the City Council held last evening was very much unlike the weather which has ushered in the month, for the session was an exceedingly tame one, and little business was transacted. All the members were present except Councilmen Ginna and Fisk. After the minutes were read and approved a petition, signed by Howard Fleming and other residents of Park avenue, below Ninth street, asking the Council to lay sidewalks, curb the street, fix the roadway and place a crosswalk in front of the Park Avenue Baptist church. The matter was referred to the street committee.

A. G. Vogeler asked for the privilege of erecting an awning in front of his meat market at 207 West Front street. This was also placed in the hands of the street committee.

Alonzo Aldrich and several other residents of the west end petitioned the Council for a fire-alarm box, to be located at the corner of Grant and Sherman avenues. The matter was referred to the proper committee.

The following applications for hack and cart licenses were presented and later they were granted: Hack—Daniel Hibbits, Richard Day, George Belcher, J. Galbraith, P. M. Peterson; cart—C. Columbus, P. Robinson, D. Jones, A. Hankerson, S. Conway, F. Brown, R. Wortman, M. Ayres, E. J. Dunn, J. E. Smith, M. Lizanovits, W. Hand & Son, F. B. Bandolph, A. B. Summers, George Honora and A. B. Noe.

Mayor Gilbert then sent in the following nominations for policemen: Regulars—George W. Lunger, C. E. Post; specials—Jos. Galbraith, Chas. Giese, and they were confirmed by the Council.

Chief Doane presented his monthly report as building inspector. It showed that twelve permits had been granted. The report was received and filed, as was also the collector's and treasurer's reports for the month of February.

Mr. Dumont said that V. W. Nash had sent in two bills for the months of January and February. In his judgment he thought that Mr. Nash's term as delinquent tax collector expired at the close of 1895, and he did not think that the Council should pay the bills as he had not been re-appointed to the office and has nothing to do with it. He recommended that the bills be returned.

The question of the assessment on the Sarah A. Dickenson property, corner of LaGrande avenue and Richmond street, which was brought up at a previous meeting, and referred to the Commissioners of Appeal, was reported upon last evening by the commissioners. They recommended that $300 be deducted from the whole amount, and a release given. On a motion offered by Mr. Dumont, the recommendation was adopted.

Mr. Barrows made a motion that $225 be appropriated for the police department, to be used in purchasing uniforms for the new men and keeping the department in good condition. The motion prevailed.

On motion of Mr. Stebbins the matter regarding the salary of James Martin, first assistant chief engineer of the fire department, was taken from the table. He then moved that Mr. Martin's salary be increased from $300 to $600 a year. It was so ordered. Mr. Martin will now devote his entire time to the department.

Mr. Tolles offered a resolution that the street committee be authorized to secure bids for crushed stone, to be used in building culverts and for crosswalks. Resolution was adopted.

The auditing committee reported all bills correct, except one of John Siddall's, which had not been sworn to, and moved that they be paid, also the latter, when Mr. Siddall had complied with the reqnirements.

The Council then adjourned.

ODD FELLOWS ENTERTAIN.

Speeches, a Collation and Songs Occupy the Evening.

Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, had as their guests at their rooms in the Babcock building last night Kearney Lodge, of Newark, Queen City Lodge, of this city, and District Deputy Grand Master Pocock and staff. Remarks were made by a number from each of the lodges on the good of the order. At the conclusion of the talks all enjoyed a collation. During the time the eating was in progress excellent songs were rendered by Elmer E. Runyon, Messrs. Turner and Whitman.

J. H. Carney was present and made a lengthy speech, which was full of humor and many capital jokes. Mr. Carney speaks in an amusing Dutch brogue, and his speech made every one present shake with laughter.

BOTH WENT TO JAIL.

For They Both Tried to Punch Their Brother-in-law.

Roman Klamaszeskie appeared in the city court this morning, charged with being disorderly on Richmond street and with cursing and swearing, and attempting to thrash his brother-in-law. The sentence was a $15 fine or 30 days in jail. He could not pay and went to jail.

Michael Monoham was charged with being disorderly on West Third street, and striking his brother-in-law. The prisoner chose sixty days in jail to paying a fine of $30.

CORSA REINSTATED.

After Being Twice Dismissed from the Street Cleaning Department.

A peremptory mandamus compelling Street Cleaning Commissioner George E. Waring, Jr., to reinstate Henry C. Corsa, of Plainfield, as district inspector in the Street Cleaning Department of New York, was handed down by Justice Truax in the Supreme Court yesterday.

A Charming "At Home."

The first of Mrs. Wm. O. Chapman's "at homes," yesterday, at the residence of her uncle, L. W. Serrell, of West Front street, was the occasion for a large number of calls and much pleasant sociability. Mrs. Chapman, Miss Ella Serrell and Mrs. Harold Serrell received in the parlor. Miss Ida Yerkes and Mrs Lemuel Serrell, of Crescent avenue, presided at the table in the dining room, while Miss Maggie Harold, Miss Florence Serrell and Misses Frances and Helen Phillips looked after the comfort of the guests. Roses and carnations lent their beauty to the scene, and the mural decorations of southern smilax were graceful and effective.

Young Musicians.

The Young Men's Symphony Orchestra, of which P. Ludwig Conde, is conductor, that will assist in the fourth entertainment of the Y. M. C. A. Star Course, to be held this evening in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, will consist of the fellowing; First violins, Charles Davis, Clarence Mills and William McKillop; second violins, Lindley Hillman, Mr. Beekman and Gilbert Lovell; flute, Walter Serrell; cornets, Raymond A. McGee and Benjamin LaVere; double bass, Mr. Maier; pianist, Walter Raynolds; conductor, P. Ludwig Conde.

A Fine Performance.

The production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," by Augustin Daly's company, at Music Hall last evening, was, without exception, one of the best performances ever witnessed in this city. The cast was a strong one in every particular. It is to be regretted that the theatre-loving public cannot appreciate the efforts on the part of the management sufficiently to give them hearty support, and thus encourage them to bring first class attractions to this city.

A Rare Treat.

Mme. Szumowska, the pianist, who is to appear at the Choral Society's concert Thursday evening, the 5th inst., is the only pupil of the great Paderewski. Mme. Szumowska has attracted a great deal of interest in New York city, and her recitals have been very largely attended not only by amateurs, but also by prominent professionals. Miss Grace Haskell, a young, and promising soprano, will also assist.

New Telephones.

The following new telephones have been put in by the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company:—E. H. Ladd, Jr., Franklin place, 78B; O. T. Waring, Park avenue, 159.

Women's Gymnastic Class.

The classes for women and girls at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium have begun. Applications for instruction in gymnastics or swimming may be made at any time.

A head-pin tournament was started on the Crescent Wheelmen's alleys last night.

DEATH CAME TO RICHTER

TWO OF HIS SELF-INFLICTED WOUNDS PROVE FATAL.

Before Dying He Told His Daughter That He Was Sorry—What His Wife Has to Say About Him—Her Condition.

Death came at last to John Richter, the would-be murderer and suicide, for two of the three bullets that entered his body on Saturday afternoon accomplished their object and, after hovering between life and death for two days, the spirit of the desperate and hopeless cobbler flitted away last evening at about 6:30 o'clock. The end came unexpectedly. His condition had been about the same since his arrival at Muhlenberg Hospital, with a slight improvement yesterday morning. Late in the afternoon he began to sink rapidly but was partially conscious up to the last moment. He had nothing to say, however, and gave no sign of repentance for his actions of Saturday.

At 7 o'clock last evening a hackman drove up to the door of Mrs. Richter's home on Richmond street, and announced the news of her husband's death.

To a Daily Press reporter, Mrs. Richter said, "I was almost overcome when I heard the news, and it is so hard to think that a man could be influenced by bad men, and be made to do such a thing. It was very hard to get along with him, but it will be harder to live on without him. No one can imagine what it is until they have lived through it all. Oh! it was something awful! He never left anything for the support of the children, and I took in washing and ironing, and cleaned houses for people living in the neighborhood, and clothed the children myself. He wasted his money in drink, and often came home violent. I was able sometimes to keep him home from the saloon for two or three weeks at a time, and then some one would say to him, 'Richter why don't you come down town any more? I wouldn't let a woman rule over me in that way, why don't you take her by the throat and blow her brains out.'"

At this point in her story, Mrs. Richter's grief became uncontrollable, and she burst into a torrent of tears, but she soon continued, however, and said:

"He could not stand this and would again visit the saloon."

Sunday evening little Annie Richter accompanied by her uncle, Ernest White, of New York, went to the hospital and spent a short time with Mr. Richter, who at the time was suffering badly. The injured man told his daughter that he was very sorry that he had done it, but he did what the men told him to do; he also told her that if he had followed the teachings of his mother he would never have come to it. His last words to his daughter were "I wish I had never done it."

Mrs. Richter is improving, but is not in condition to do any work. She has been unable to sleep since the time of the shooting and at night, as she says, "I go to sleep for two or three minutes, and wake up in a fright seeing someone standing near pointing a revolver at me."

Mr. Richter left his wife the society benefits, already mentioned in The Daily Press, and a few dollars found in his pockets. She has been renting the house, in which she is now living, by the month, and said that she would continue to do the same for a few months longer. Mrs. Richter is doing nicely, and will recover from her wound in a short time.

Richter's funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at his late home, 211 Richmond street.

The New Leal Cadet Corps.

The first drill of the new cadet corps at Leal's school was held yesterday afternoon. Charles Bull acted as instructor. Eighteen of the students were present at the drill, but more are expected to join. The corps will meet every Monday and Friday afternoon for drill for the present.

A Successful Supper.

The ladies of the Christian Work Society, of Trinity Reformed church, are rejoicing over the fact that between $75 and $76 was realized at the supper held by them in the lecture room of the church on the evening of February 13th.

All last winter Mr. Geo. A. Mills, of Labanon, Conn., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. At times it was so severe that he could not stand up straight, but was drawn over on one side. "I tried different remedies without receiving relief," he says, "until about six months ago I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. After using it for three days my rheumatism was gone and has not returned since. For sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue. T. S Armstrong, Manager.

A NEW SCHOOL BUILDING

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION PROVIDE FOR ONE AT THE MEETING.

It Will Cost $20,000, and the Money Will be Raised on Bond and Mortgage—Other Routine Business Transacted.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Ebucation was held last evening at the pleasant home of F. C. Lounsbury, secretary of the Board, on Plainfield avenue, instead of at the High School building as usual. Messrs. Probasco, Lovell, Lounsbury, Jenkins and Abbott and Superintendent Maxson were present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved, and a list of audited bills were read and ordered paid.

The question of the new primary school building, to be erected on the property recently purchased by the Board at Berckman and East Second streets, was discussed, and the designs for the new building drawn by ten different architects were exhibited. After the members of the Board had examined the drawings and learned the merits of the different designs, Mr. Lovell introduced the following resolution:

Whereas: On inquiry and report, this Board is satisfied that the erection of a new public school building upon the corner of Berckman and East Second streets, will cost the sum of $20,000, and

Whereas: The Board is persuaded of the necessity that such building shall be constructed, and as it is not possessed of sufficient funds to meet the expense thereof. Therefore be it,

Resolved, That the Board will borrow on bond and mortgage upon said ground and building, for the erection of such structure, the sum of $20,000, and that the Finance Committee be instructed to immediately ratify and effect the borrowing of said sum when required.

The resolution was unanimously passed without discussion.

Superintendent Maxson read his report, which gave an account of the annual convention of the National Association of School Superintendents, that he attended last month. The report was an interesting and instructive one, and was attentively listened to by the members of the Board, and on motion it was received with thanks and filed.

President Probasco then stated that the postmaster, J. M. Hetfield, had agreed to place letter boxes in front of all the public schools, if the Board would provide the necessary posts to support the boxes. He had just received a communication, President Probasco said, from Postmaster Hetfield, stating that the posts, placed in position and painted, would cost $6.50. Mr. Lovell then moved that the President request Mr. Hetfield to place the posts and boxes in position at once. After ordering several bills paid, if found correct, the Board adjourned subject to the call of the president.

The new building is to contain eight rooms, and will relieve the over crowded condition of the primary grades in the other buildings.

The annual reports of the Board for 1895 were distributed at the meeting, as were the financial reports for the month of February. The latter was as follows:

After the regular business had been transacted the Board of Education proceeded to consider the plans submitted in competition for the new primary building in the First ward. Ten plans were submitted, all under a non de plume, so that the authors were unknown to the Board.

After much consideration three plans were selected as the best: those signed "Romanesque," "L' Ecole Modern" and "Cuibono." The sealed envelopes having been opened, the authors were found to be Patton & Firth, C. P. Karr, and David B. Provoost. At some future meeting of the Board these architects will appear before them and present the special merits of their plans, when the Board will make a final selection of one plan as the best.

A Veteran Hack Driver Dies.

Patrick Lynch, one of Plainfield's oldest cab drivers, was taken with a hemorrhage at his home, 433 Elizabeth street this morning and died soon after. He has been unwell all winter. He was fifty-one years of age and was born in Ireland. He has lived in Plainfield for the last thirty five years. He leaves a sorrowing widow, three daughters, Susan, Threasa and Mary, and two sons, John and James.

A Powerful Breeze.

The high wind slightly moved French & Vail's new Mountainview hotel on its foundations this morning.

A SAD MISFORTUNE.

Daniel O'Connor's Home Totally Destroyed by Fire Last Night.

An exceedingly pitiable sight was witnessed in what is known as Bull Frog city, last night, when the home of Daniel O'Connor was completely destroyed by fire, together with all its contents. About 8 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor and their daughter, came to town. Mr. O'Connor attended the meeting of a lodge of which he is a member, while Mrs. O'Connor and her daughter went to see a sick relative.

Before leaving the house the stoves were fixed for the night, and a small lamp was left burning in the kitchen near the window.

Edwin Vroom, who lives in the vicinity of Walnut street, noticed a blaze about 11:30 o'clock, and he sent in an alarm from Box 156 corner of Harrison and Cedar streets.

The fire alarm bell was rang by Marshal Wilson and in a short time the hose carriage carrying 1,000 feet of hose, was at the scene of the conflagration But this was not sufficient and the carriage returned for 1 100 additional feet of hose. By this time the house was burning rapidly and the men were unable to save it. A new house, being erected by Jacob Kliner, next door, was saved by hard work.

By the time the 2 100 feet of hose was laid and water secured, the house was about destroyed and all the firemen could do was to confine the flames to the one place.

The fierce gale blowing at the time made the fire a most serious one, and the firemen deserve unbounded praise for their work.

When Mr. O'Connor and family returned they discovered their loss and were nearly crushed with grief, for everything they owned, except the clothes they had on, was destroyed.

Mr. O'Connor had an insurance of $1,200 on the house and goods, which was held by the Franklin Insurance Company, of which M. M. Dunham is the agent.

It is a fact to be regretted that a few more hydrants are not located in this prrt of the borough, thus affording equal protection to the taxpayers. Great credit is due Augustus Fiering, John Pierson, D. C. Allen and William Pasch for the excellent hot coffee and lunch furnished the firemen.

The supposition is that the lamp was upset by the curtain blown against it by the heavy winds.

FENDERS ON THE CARS.

Mayor Gilbert and the City Council Witness an Exhibition.

Superintendent John Adleman, of the street railway, placed on trial yesterday an improved fender for the trolley cars. An exhibition of it was witnessed by Mayor Gilbert in the afternoon at the Watchung avenue terminus, and he expressed himself as being well pleased with it.

Last evening about 9 o'clock the members of the city council were invited to board the car, to see the fender in use, and they also were much pleased.

The fender is of the latest design and unquestionably one of the best in the market. It is impossible for a person to be injured with this safeguard on the car. The street railway company intend placing them on all the cars, if it meets with the approval of the city fathers, which it undoubtedly does.

Three Good Entertainments.

The entertainment in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, this evening, is the first one of a course of three, all of which are offered for 50 cents. The Amphion Ladies' Mandolin and Vocal Quartette, will appear at the second, which will take place on the 17th inst., and the third will be a lecture entitled, "Switzerland and Its People," by Henry M. Maxson, Superintendent of Public Schools.

Property Transfers.

The following transfers of property have been recorded in the Union County Clerk's office from February 20th to February 26th, inclusive:

John Ross et ux, Plainfield, to Eliza A. Barrett, Brooklyn, lot East Fifth street, Plainfield 40 feet, $2,000; Clarence J. Rice and Mary R. Loomis and husband, North Plainfield, to Minnie W. Williams, Plainfield, lot Sandford avenue, $1; Minnie W. Williams to Annie E. Williams, Plainfield, lot Sandford avenue, $1; Charles Graves et ux, Plainfield, to Charles C. Graves, lot North avenue, Plainfield, $900; Aaron Keiser et ux, Plainfield, to Thomas Newford, two lots, Aldene, $450.

Special Meetings at Hope Chapel.

Special meetings are being held in Hope chapel this week every evening except Saturday at 8 o'clock. The first one of the series was held last evening. The meetings are anticipated with much interest and good results are looked for.

The Same Assistants.

Charles H. Hall and John Powers, the gentlemanly assistants in Reynolds pharmacy, will be retained by the new proprietor, T. S. Armstrong, as will Lewis Lowrie, the porter of the place.

TWO BILLS INTRODUCED.

THE STATE CHARITIES' AID ASSOCIATION WORKING IN TRENTON.

The Union County Branch Meets Here and Transacts Business—They Will Push the Bills—Date of Meeting Changed.

The regular meeting of the Union County Branch of the State Charities Aid Association, was held in All Soul's church, Park avenue, last night.

The meeting was called to order by President H B. Newhall. Rev. Hobart Clark, pastor of All Soul's church and secretary of the Union County Branch, then led in prayer. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Samuel C. Blockwell, formerly of Elizabeth, tendered his resignation as a member of the branch. The resignation was accepted, as was also that of Mr. Kempshall, of Elizabeth. Miss Frannie L. Hawley, of Elizabeth, was recently elected a member of the Executive committee, and her letter of acceptance was read. Superintendent H M Maxson, of the public schools, sent a letter of resignation as a member of the Executive Committee on Children. His reason for resigning was that he was unable to be present at the meetings of the Aid Association as they met on the same night as the Board of Education. The resignation was accepted with much regret.

Mrs. Williamson, of Elizabeth, secretary of the State Aid Association, was present and made a few remarks on the bill which the societies have introduced into the Legislature, regarding the placing of children in the alms houses. An effort is being made to interest Governor Griggs in this measure, so that he will appoint a commissioner to look into the advisibility of the bill. Mr. Hall was authorized to correspond with Governor Griggs on the subject.

The Rev. Mr. Atkinson, pastor of Trinity church, of Elizabeth, was elected a member of the branch and later on was elected vice-president, in place of Rev. Mr. McAllister, of Elizabeth. Rev. H. H. Sleeper, of Elizabeth, was also made a member of the branch. Prof. H. M. Maxson's resignation was again taken up, and by vote it was decided not to accept the resignation, as many of those present were in favor of changing the day of meeting. The change of date was left to the Executive committee.

There was considerable talk concerning the institution for the blind which the State Society is endeavoring to build at Englishtown. A bill to appropriate $40,000 for this purpose was drawn up, but the appropriation was cut down to $10,000, and great efforts are being made to secure the passage of the bill with the $10,000 clause to it. A telegram was sent to Hon. Mr. Frances, at Trenton, asking him to do all in his power to get the bill through. The bill came up for second reading in the Legislature today.

A short meeting of the Executive Committee was then held. The minutes of the former meeting were read and approved. The committee decided to change the time of meeting from the first Monday in the month, to the second Tuesday. The meeting then adjourned.

Loan Exhibit Postponed.

The loan exhibition of the Plainfield Camera Club has been postponed from the week beginning March 14th, to the week beginning Easter Monday, April 6th to 13th inclusive. The reason for the postponement is that so many loans have been received that it will be impossible to catalogue and arrange them in time, while many, who would be unable to take any active interest in the exhibition during Lent, will now be of great assistance.

—John Hand Camp, No. 28, S. of V., will meet this evening and hear reports from the delegates who attended the recent encampment at Trenton. A full attendance is desired.

Not to be Trifled With.

(From Cincinnati Gazette.)

Will people ever learn that a "cold" is an accident to be dreaded, and that when it occurs treatment should be promptly applied? There is no knowing where the trouble will end; and while complete recovery is the rule, the exceptions are terribly frequent, and thousands upon thousands of fatal illnesses occur every year ushered in by a little injudicious exposure and seemingly trifling systems. Beyond this, there are today countless invalids who can trace their complaints to "colds," which at the time of occurrence gave no concern, and were therefore neglected.—When troubled with a cold use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is prompt and effectual. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue, T. S. Armstrong Manager.

AGAIN TALKING WAR

The Spanish Trouble the Principal Topic at Washington.

NOTHING SERIOUS IS APPREHENDED

Generally Believed, However, That Some Positive Action Will Soon Be Taken Looking to the Freeing of Cuba.

Washington, March 3.—War talk is again absorbing the attention of our national lawmakers to the exclusion of almost every other subject, and in the hotel lobbies nothing else is heard but discussion of the trouble with Spain. Of course, no one seriously believes that nothing more than talk will result in our relations with Spain, but that it is the intention of this government to take some step looking to the freeing of the Cubans, and that speedily, too, is the general belief here. No significance can be attached to Spain's prompt action in disavowing and offering to make amends to the United States for the outbreak of mob violence at Barcelona. Nevertheless, this action, and especially the fact that it was taken immediately after news of the affair reached the Spanish government, without waiting for any suggestion from the United States, will tend greatly to relieve the situation and prevent a serious outcome of the mob's attack on our consulate. It is perhaps in part owing to these official advices that the excitement in Spain over the action of the United States senate, leading up to the insult to the United States consulate at Barcelona, fails to find a corresponding reflex in Washington, at least in official circles, and almost everywhere the feeling is that the affair is not one which necessarily must lead to hostilities. A good indication that no serious trouble is expected is afforded by the course of affairs in the navy and war departments, which ran along this morning in the usual quiet manner

Authority To Enlarge Our Navy.

In view of the war talk, the action of the senate yesterday in passing a bill to enlarge the navy is significant. It was agreed to without a dissenting voice, and through it there is placed in the hands of the president a restricted power with which to deal with the Spanish-Cuban situation, should the emergency arise. The bill provides for the enlistment this fall of 1,000 men for the new ships now in commission, and appropriates $380,000 for their compensation; it also gives the president power, in the event such authority becomes necessary, to enlist such part of the naval militia (about 5,000 men) for a period of two years, giving full complements for such vessels that do not have full crews, and authorizes him to charter steamers as transports for troops.

House Cuban Resolutions.

The Cuban resolutions passed by the house yesterday just before adjournment are now in the hands of the committee on foreign affairs of the senate and a report is expected to-morrow. They were passed by the house after two hours' spirited debate, under the limitations of a suspension of the rules, by a vote of 263 to 17. They are the concurrent resolutions reported last week by the house committee on foreign affairs declaring that in the opinion of congress a state of public war exists in Cuba, the parties to which are entitled to belligerent rights and between which the United States should use its good offices and influences to that end; and that the United States should be prepared to protect the legitimate interests of its citizens in Cuba by intervention if necessary. The last of the series of resolutions reported by the committee, pledging the support of congress to the president in carrying out the foregoing, was stricken out, it being thought unnecessary, being covered in the others.

TURNED AWAY BY WEYLER.

He Has No Time To Listen to a Delegation of Poor Women.

Havana, Feb. 29, via Tampa Fla., March 3.—Inhabitants of Punta Brava, Guatao and other small towns west of Mariano, and under the jurisdiction of the volunteers and soldiers stationed at the latter place, are fleeing from Havana in terror. They say they have less fear of the insurgents than of the troops. Twenty-two women from Guatao, wives and mothers of the men slain there on the 22, or made prisoners at the time, are in this city. They called at the palace to see Gen. Weyler and beg for the freedom of the men in Moro castle, as well as to tell of the outrages committed by Capt. Calvo and the men sent out by the Marquis de Cervera. Their visit to the palace was on the same day the captain-general received a delegation of women who were attired in gay costumes and wore the red and yellow colors of Spain on their breasts. They had been throwing flowers, bon bons and live pigeons to the newly arrived troops, and shouting "Vive Espana!" until their voices were gone. Gen. Weyler received them and thanked them for their demonstrations of loyalty.

Declined To Receive Them.

They cheered him and departed. Then came the poor women of Guatoa. They were nearly all white women. Children clung to their skirts and two babes were carried in arms. Instead of gay colors most of them were in mourning. One of Gen. Weyler's aids talked with the one man who accompanied them and told him that the general could not receive them. Then they the left palace sad at heart and are still in the city.

Complaint Against Consul Williams.

American residents of Havana, who are all well informed, claim that Consul Williams' reports to the state department have not given the administration a correct understanding of the situation in Cuba. Mr. Williams has been in Havana so long and in such close touch with the officials at the palace that it is claimed his views are colored by Spanish representations. The consul cannot be accused of inattendance to duty. He is at his office from morning until night, but this close application to duties of minor importance may have prevented him from fully realizing the state of affairs on the island. He is also well advanced in years, and dislikes incidents which mar the quiet routine of office work. His attitude has not satisfied all of the American colony, and a petition is now in circulation asking the government for his recall. On top of this comes the rumor that he has sent his resignation to Washington.

TO INTERCEPT FILIBUSTERS.

Orders Sent to Revenue Cutter Commanders in Florida Waters.

Washington, March 3.—The treasury department has sent instructions to the commanders of revenue cutters in Florida waters directing them to use every effort to intercept an alleged filibustering expedition bound for Cuba which the Spanish authorities have reported to the state department as about to leave Alligator Key, between Key West and Tampa. The report says that two schooners, one from Tampa bearing Collazo and fifty men and the other from a point north of Tampa laden with arms and ammunition, left port last night for Alligator Key, where they are to meet the steamer Three Friends, recently purchased by Cubans in this country and cleared from Jacksonville in ballast several days ago. At the rendezvous the men and arms are to be transferred to the steamer which will at once sail for the northeast coast of Cuba. This expedition has been closely watched by the Spanish agents and all the arrangements for its departure and reception in Cuba have been well known for some time past.

DENIED BY MINISTER DE LOME.

Says Gen. Weyler Never Threatened To Exterminate the Cubans.

Washington, March 3.—Senor Dupuy de Lome has been authorized to state that Gen. Weyler never said in any interview or conversation, as published in the Madrid Liberal, that he would exterminate the Cuban insurgents. What he did say in that paper on Jan. 29 was that he would clear out the filibusters from the western provinces of Cuba and could then proceed to exterminate the small bands of bandits who remained. The alleged quotation from the Liberal was made much of in Senator Lodge's speech last week, and led to assertions which, it is claimed, were not warranted by the facts. It is explained that Gen. Weyler was only following the example of commanders in all civilized warfare in ordering the extermination of sporadic bushwhackers preying upon sections which had been passed by organized armies.

ALL QUIET AT MADRID.

American Legation and Public Buildings Still Guarded, However.

Madrid, March 3.—There is somewhat of a lessening in the popular feeling against the United States, but there is still a strong undercurrent of animosity which shows itself in various ways. The authorities have not relaxed their precautions to prevent an outbreak, and the guards are still maintained about the public buildings and the American legation. The more turbulent spirits among the students made repeated attempts last night to start demonstrations from the university, but the gendarmes were alert and prevented them. Fourteen of the ringleaders were arrested.

Jersey Assembly Favors the Cuban Cause.

Trenton, March 3.—The house last night passed unanimously the following resolution: "That the house of assembly of the state of New Jersey (the senate concurring) has heard with satisfaction of the adoption by the senate of the United States of resolutions according belligerent rights to the Cuban people and respectfully requests the members of the national house of representatives from this state to give their earnest support to these or other resolutions of similar tenor."

Big Safe Combine.

Providence, March 3. — President Joseph Hanigan and other big capitalists in this state have entered into a safe manufacturing combine, which will control the output under the direction of the Mosler people. The Herring & Hall and Marvin concerns are in the consolidation.

Raines' Liquor Bill.

Albany, March 3.—The senate committee on taxation and retrenchment will to-day report favorably to the senate Senator Raines' liquor tax bill with the amendments agreed upon in the republican senatorial caucus on Thursday night last.

Wires Down in Maine.

Porland, Me., March 3.—Payson Tucker, of the Maine Central railroad says that the main line between here and Bangor is broken by numerous washouts. The wires are all down between Bath and Rockland east of Bangor.

Standard Silver Dollars Redeemed.

Washington, March 3.—Since the treasury began the issue of what are called Sherman notes or treasury notes $19,211,722 have been redeemed in standard silver dollars.

Placed on Short Time.

Susquehanna, Pa., March 3.—The workmen in the extensive locomotive shops of the Erie railroad have been placed on twenty-four hours per week.

UNCLE SAM'S DEBTS

Interest Bearing Obligations Increased During February.

NON-INTEREST DEBTS DECREASED

Government Receipts and Expenditures Statement of the Coinage Output at the Mints During Last Month.

Washington, March 2.—The debt statement just issued shows a net increase in the public debt less cash in the treasury during February of $15,978,764.88. The interest bearing debt increased $75,252,350. The non-interest bearing debt decreased $115,886.50 and cash in the treasury increased $91,115,228.35. The balances of the several classes of debt at the close of business February 29 were: Interest bearing debt $822,615,170. Debt on which interest has ceased since maturity $1,667,630.26. Debt bearing no interest $375,491,579.14. Total $1,199,774,479.41. The certificates and treasury notes offset by an equal amount of cash in the treasury outstanding at the end of the month were $558,851,273, a decrease of $3,991,500. The total cash in the treasury was $853,811,830.91. The gold reserve was $100,000,000. Net cash balance $162,707,006.65. In the month there was an increase in gold coin and bars of $68,002,641.89 the total at the close being $167,695,998.46. Of silver there was an increase of $1,843,641.33. Of the surplus there was in national bank depositaries $24,394,556.83 against $14,803,893.55 at the end of the preceding month.

COINAGE AT THE MINTS.

The Output for February Amounted to $2,778,180.

Washington, March 3.—The coinage at the United States mints for February was very light, being only 4,652,000 pieces of the value of $2,768,180, as follows: Gold, $1,240,000; silver dollars, $1,500,000, and minor coin, $38,180. The national bank circulation outstanding March 1 was $217,093,465, an increase during the month of February of $3,685,680. National bank circulation based on United States bonds aggregated $195,048,954, an increase during February of $4,059,317, and since Febrary 28, 1895, of $12,141,071.

UNITED STATES FINANCES.

For Eight Months of the Present Year the Deficit Is $18,000,000.

Washington, March 2.—The official treasury statement of receipts and expenditures was issued yesterday. For February, 1896, the receipts were $26,059,228, against $22,868,057 in February, 1895. The expenditures $26,749,956, against $25,676,075 for February, 1895. The excess of expenditures for February, 1896, over the receipts is $690,728. For the eight months of the current fiscal year the receipts aggregate $224,560,690, and the expenditures $242,085,548, leaving a deficit of $18,000,000 in round figures.

MANY ARABS DROWNED.

Thirty Thousand Head of Cattle Also Perish by Flood.

Constantinople, March 3.—Heavy rains have caused the Tigris river to overflow its banks, and an immense expanse of territory has been inundated. Six hundred nomad Arabs are known to have been drowned, and it is feared the loss of life will be much heavier. Thirty thousand head of cattle have perished. The damage is enormous.

Indiana Joins the Squadron.

Washington, March 3.—The battleship Indiana went over from Norfolk to Hampton roads last evening and was attached to Admiral Bunce's mysterious North Atlantic squadron of evolution. Capt. Robley D. Evans, her commander, was at the navy department last evening. He will return to his ship this evening.

Rev. Dr. Parker

"I regard Hood's Sarsaparilla the best blood purifier, and I have good reason for this opinion. I am now 80 years of age. Four years ago I was afflicted with rheumatism in my back and limbs, so badly that it was impossible for me to get my usual sleep at night. I had just partially recovered from the grip, which reduced my weight 40 lbs. My appetite was poor and I felt languid and weak. In fact I was in a very dilapidated condition. Having heard and read so much about the wonderful cures produced by Hood's Sarsaparilla, I resolved to give it a trial. I followed the directions, and before the fifth bottle was finished my appetite was restored, and I felt

FREE TO ALL.

Advice about the Treatment of Coughs and Colds.

Constitutional Treatment to Prevent the Recurrence of These Dangerous Ailments.

A person may be very wealthy and yet not be inclined to give away any of his property. Lawyers who have great knowledge of the law are not noted for giving service for nothing. Physicians are known to be generous to the poor, yet they will not serve everybody free. Even the wealthy railroad companies, who could so easily and quickly carry us to our distant friends, will not do so without first receiving our dollars and cents. But there is one thing everybody has and everybody is anxious to give some of it to everybody else. We mean, advice. It is so cheap, and we never miss what we give away. Therefore, we follow the custom and give you some advice.

Do not neglect your cold. You may need no medicine for it, but do not neglect it. When first taken, try and break it up. Take a hot foot-bath; drink a bowl full of hot lemonade or ginger tea, get into bed, cover up well, and let the body perspire. Be very careful the next day. If the cold hangs on, or if one cold quickly follows another, then something more is needed. Constitutional treatment is necessary. This is especially true if your health is frail, or if there is a tendency to weak lungs in the family. Sore throats and colds inflame the delicate membrane which lines the throat, and which continues directly down into the bronchial tubes and lungs. One attack predisposes to another, and a slight attack invites another more serious. The best preventive to serious lung affections is to keep all the air passages in a healthy condition. Therefore, do not neglect an acute cough or cold. This is our advice, which is given freely.

But it will cost you fifty cents to procure a small bottle, and one dollar for a large bottle, of the remedy we recommend, which is Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites. It cures acute attacks, and thus prevents chronic ones. It builds up the tissues, invigorates the nervous system, and prepares the body to resist disease. The system only needs some such aid at the right time in order to completely master the germs of consumption, preventing them gaining a firm foothold in the lungs. One bottle taken in season will often accomplish as much as five bottles taken later.

Scott's Emulsion has been indorsed by the medical profession for twenty years. Ask your doctor. Because it is always palatable—always uniform—always contains the purest Norwegian Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites. Insist on Scott's Emulsion with trademark of man and fish. Put up in 50c. and $1.00 sizes. The small size may be enough to cure your cough or help your baby.

TO DROP BLACKBURN

Efforts To Break the Kentucky Senatorial Deadlock.

PLAN OF THE GOLD DEMOCRATS

After To-day They Will Vote for Some Sound Money Man, Hoping Thereby To Induce Some of the Republicans to Join Them.

Frankfort, Ky., March 3.—The break in Senator Blackburn's lines is expected to materialize to-morrow. The "gold" democrats who have been supporting the "silver" senator and have been holding conferences for over a week past looking to leaving him decided last night to vote for Blackburn to-day, after which they will vote for some sound money democrat, in the hope of being met in the spirit of a compromise by enough sound money republicans to elect some one. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, ex-governor, seems to be the favorite among those who contemplate leaving Blackburn. The Hunter organization is supporting congressman John W. Lewis of Springfield for the nomination, with ex-congressman H. F. Finley of Whitely county a close competitor. A fight is being made on Lewis on account of his indefinite views on the currency question, it being charged that he is not thoroughly in sympathy with the sound money element of the people. The joint assembly convened yesterday afternoon for the thirty-sixth ballot. The republicans divided their compliments between a dozen candidates. The vote stood: Blackburn, 59; Hunter, 38; scattering, 32. Necessary to a choice, 65. A motion to adjourn was defeated, 64 to 63, the Blackburn men defeating the motion. Another ballot was taken. The result was the same as the former one and the assembly adjourned.

ICEBOUND IN LAKE ERIE.

Provisions To Be Sent to the Shenango Car Ferry Crew To-day.

Erie, Pa., March 3.—A part of the crew of the Shenango car ferry, which is fast in the ice in Lake Erie, have reached North East after a trip of hardship and peril. The party was under command of Mate Rowan of Erie and comprised Engineer McGuire, Fireman McGraces and Greaser Lawrence. The men were quite exhausted and badly frozen when they reached land, but recuperated quickly. They will return to the boat to-day with a load of provisions. The Shenango is fifteen miles north of North East with forty feet of ice under her and is at the mercy of the floe. The provisions aboard are low, but there is coal enough to keep the boat warm for thirty days. Major Huldekoper of Meadville, president of the ferry company, has an expedition fitted out here to go to the boat. The crew is safe enough if the stock of provisions is renewed. The boat cannot be rescued before spring.

FRANCE ANNEXES MADAGASCAR

The United States Will Maintain Treaty Rights Already Secured.

Washington, March 3.—The recent action of France in establishing a colonial form of government over Madagascar has been communicated to the state department in a note stating that in view of the difficulties of maintaining a protectorate the French government had annexed the island. No official action has been taken by Secretary Olney in the matter, except a statement that the United States will maintain her treaty rights secured from the Hova government. Before making any declaration in the matter, this government will await the receipt of more definite and formal information showing just what status the French have assumed.

Flood Sufferers at Albany.

Albany, March 3.—The freshet of the Hudson river at this point is slowly subsiding and the real state of affairs is just being realized. Many poor families have lost all that they possessed, and Mayor Thacher has issued a proclamation asking for relief for the sufferers. The police are patroling the lower portions of the city in boats carrying relief to the destitute families.

New York State Mortality.

Albany, March 3.—The bulletin of the board of health of the state for the month of January shows that there were 10,176 deaths during the month, and an estimated death rate of 18.50, there having been an average daily mortality of 328, against one of 305 in December, and one of 354 in January, 1895.

Shot by Highwaymen.

Worcester, Mass., March 3.—Isaac Isaacson, while on his way home last night, met three men at the corner of Henchman and Crescent streets, who asked him for money. He refused, and was shot, three bullets entering his body. He was taken to the city hospital in a dying condition.

Pond Will Case Postponed.

Hartford, March 3.—The trial of the Pond will case has been postponed by Judge Thayer, owing to counsel and witnesses being unable to reach the city. The washouts on the Philadelphia, Reading & New England road between here and Winsted have blocked all trains.

Supreme Court Assignment.

Albany, March 3.—Gov. Morton has designated George H. Bradley to hold the special term of the supreme court at Penn Yan, Yates county, on March 16th.

Howling Gale at Highland Light.

Highland Light, Mass., March 3.—A howling northeast gale, with pouring rain, prevailed here all last night.

FLOODS IN NEW ENGLAND.

Bridges Washed Away, Railroad Traffic Impeded and Factories Closed.

Boston, March 3.—The floods throughout New England, which have carried away bridges and washed out railway tracks, have badly delayed the mails due in this city. Reports from many parts of Massachusetts this morning tell of great destruction being wrought by the high waters. At Haverhill the damage will be very great. The entire river front is submerged, and several factories have been compelled to closed down, rendering fully 4,000 people idle.

Floods Receding.

Boston, March 3.—Reports from places along the Connecticut river in New Hampshire and Vermont this morning indicate that the height of the flood has probably been reached and that the water is slowly receding. The Merrimac river has also reached its height. The weather has grown much colder and in most places a thick snowstorm, accompanied by high wind, prevailed last night. No loss of life has been reported.

Dropped Dead While Watching the Flood.

Winsted, Conn., March 3.—Twenty-four bridges in the county have been swept away by the flood. Mrs. J. B. Eggleston of Pleasant Valley, while watching Farmington river rise, dropped dead of heart disease. Word from New Boston, Mass., states that the big dam of Gladwin's birch mill has been partly swept away and the traffic on railroads is still impeded. The loss in the county will exceed $100,000.

Wild Night at Nashua.

Nashua, N. H., March 3.—Last night was one of the wildest ever witnessed here. A snow storm raged furiously, the city was in darkness, and swollen waters of the Nashua and Merrimac rivers had reached the highest point on record. The Merrimac has reached to Hobbs street and has overflowed its banks in the vicinity of Taylor Falls bridge. All railroad connections are severed, except in an irregular manner. The damage in this vicinity will be very large.

Eighteen Bridges Swept Away.

North Berwick, Me., March 3.—Out of twenty-one bridges in town eighteen have been washed away. Business is paralyzed.

SALVATION ARMY FUNDS.

Ballington Booth Will Probably Surrender the Money This Evening.

Montclair, N. J., March 3.—Staff Captain Crafts, the acting financial secretary attached to the Salvation Army headquarters, came to Montclair last night for the purpose of having the money deposited by Commander Ballington Booth to the credit of the Salvation Army transferred to Commissioner Booth. The transfer was not made, however, because Commander Booth's notaries failed to appear, and Captain Crafts left with his mission unfulfilled. He promised to return to-night. The amount involved is about $30,000. Commander Booth expressed his entire readiness to turn the money over to the commissioner. Commander Booth's mail is daily increasing in volume. Hundreds of letters are received by him every day, all of a commendatory character.

HOME MISSION SOCIETY.

Demand for Seats at Its New York Meeting Exceeds the Supply.

New York, March 3.—At the Home Mission society meeting, to be held in Carnegie Music hall to-night, at which President Cleveland is to preside, applications for seats have so far exceeded the capacity of the hall that an overflow meeting will be held at the Central Presbyterian church. Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage, Booker T. Washington and Dr. Sheldon Jackson, who are to speak at Carnegie hall, will address the overflow meeting, which will be free and open to all.

B. & O. Receivers.

New York, March 3.—Judge Lacombe, in the United States circuit court, has appointed John A. Cowen and Oscar G. Murray receivers of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad company in this district.

Chicago Team at Galveston.

Galveston, Tex., March 3.—The Chicago baseball team has arrived here for five weeks' spring practice. Daily games will be played.

THE ENGLISH NAVY

Efforts of the Government To Strengthen It.

THE ESTIMATES LARGELY INCREASED

Five New Battleships, Thirteen Cruisers and Twenty-eight Torpedo-boat Destroyers Is What Is Asked for Now.

London, March 3.—In the house of commons the Rt. Hon. George J. Goschen, first lord of the admiralty, after presenting the navy estimates, said said that the proposed increase in the naval expenditures was not due to any feeling of alarm. More ships meant more men, and these could be got. He commented upon the important personnel, which he said was due to the enormous complexity of modern warships. Nevertheless, the admiralty would have no difficulty in gleaning from a long roll of candidates. The government proposed an increase of £850,000 for guns and docks at Gibraltar. It had decided to build three docks instead of one. The cost of the works was estimated at £2,500,000 in addition to the £361,000 already alloted for the new dock there. Summing up the demands of the government, Mr. Goschen said it was proposed to raise the naval works bill from the £8,500,000 proposed by the last government to £14,000,000, which would be the amount of the government bill. (Cheers and cries of "Oh!" "Oh!") Continuing, he said that these might seem large figures, but the chancellor of the exchequer authorized him to state that the exchequer could supply the money. It was proposed to add to the navy five battleships like the improved Renown, four first-class cruisers, three second-class cruisers, six third-class cruisers and twenty-eight torpedo-boat destroyers. The total estimates were £21,822,000, against £18,700,000 for 1895-'96. The ministers believed that they had arrived at a point on which they might stand. If any tremendous strain came upon the country obliging Great Britain to bear the whole burden alone and unaided, or whether, in the event of any general disturbance, she would take her place with any other power, the British fleet would represent the self-reliance of a great nation. (Cheers.) This was the ministers' unanimous opinion. On that unanimity they commended the estimates to the house, confident that the cost would be willingly borne, and trusting that they would be received, as they had been conceived, in a spirit of moderation.

HENLEY REGATTA.

Yale Students' Request for Permission To Enter the Races Granted.

New Haven, Conn., March 3.—A conference of the academic and scientific branches of the Yale faculty was held last night, and it was decided that the request of the university navy management to enter an eight in the Henley regatta in July would be granted. The faculty have allowed every point of the petition of the navy. The latter asked that permission be allowed them to sail on June 6 before the close of the semi-annual examinations, in order that they might become acclimated before the race on the Thames. This request was granted, and the Yale oarsmen will leave New York on that date, probably by the Cunard line. The faculty stated to the crew management, after the meeting last night, that the most stringent scholarship standard would be required from the oarsmen who were allowed to cross the water, and any candidate whose scholarship was in doubt would not be allowed to represent Yale at Henley. The navy management will issue a call for a university mass meeting to settle details of Yale's entry in a day or two.

St. Patrick's Day Banquet.

Albany, March 3.—Senators and members of assembly interested in the celebration of St. Patrick's day have arranged for a banquet at the hotel Kenmore on March 17. The toasts are: "The United States," by United States Senator David B. Hill; "The State of New York," by Lieut.-Gov. Saxton; "The Day We Celebrate," Bishop Burke; "Civil and Religious Liberty," Senator Jacob A. Cantor.

Secured by the Biscuit Trust.

Baltimore, March 3.—The James D. Mason & Co.'s steam bakery at 17 West Pratt street, the largest bakery in the south, has passed into the hands of the New York Biscuit company. The headquarters of the biscuit trust is at Chicago, and word comes from there that two other Baltimore bakeries will shortly pass into the control of the New York Biscuit company.

Fairman Rogers Estate.

Newport, R. I., March 3.—The deed of the Fairman Rogers estate on the Cliffs to Alice T. Drexel, wife of John H. Drexel of Philadelphia, has been filed for record, and shows that the consideration was $150,000. The sale includes the land, 400 by 450 feet, the house and other buildings, and the furniture and personal property in the several buildings, with a few stated exceptions.

Only Six Delinquent Bond Bidders.

New York, March 3.—Yesterday was the last day for the payment of the second instalment on the 4 per cent. bonds just issued by the government. At the sub-treasury it was stated this morning that all but six of the bidders whose payments were due yesterday had paid up.

McCoy Defeats Ryan.

Maspeth, L. I., March 3.—The boxing contest between Tommy Ryan and "Kid" McCoy last night resulted in a victory for McCoy, who knocked Ryan out in the fifteenth round.

COMING EVENTS.

Announcements of all meetings, etc., will be made in this column, free of charge, if copy is furnished by 10 a. m.

March 3—Star Course entertainment in Y. M. C. A. hall.
March 2—Common Council and Board of Education meet.
March —Registry Boards in North Plainfield meet.
March 6—Lecture of Mrs. Florence Howe Hall at the home of Mrs. E C. Perkins, 723 Central avenue, at 3 p. m.
March 10—Lecture by Miss Elizabeth Yates, of Maine.

H. P. Reynolds, who yesterday announced through the columns of The Daily Press his retirement from the drug trade, leaves the busy cares of business behind after a successful career of twenty-eight years in Plainfield, and The Press feels that it voices the sentiments of the entire community when it says that he will be missed as the head of one of the most honorable and reliable of the old-established houses that have grown up with our beautiful city. But the patrons of the establishment and the public generally feel that the business has passed into thoroughly competent hands, in the person of Mr. Armstrong, who has been associated with Mr. Reynolds for the past fifteen years, and who will endeavor to retain the enviable reputation of his predecessor, and The Press bespeaks for Mr. Armstrong a successful and honorable future.

Resolutions of Condolence.

At a regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the First National Bank of Plainfield, New Jersey, held on the morning of March 3rd, 1896, the following resolutions were unanimously passed.

"Whereas, God in His all-wise Providence has removed from our midst, our fellow director and vice-president, Daniel F. Randolph, therefore resolved.

"That we, the Board of Directors of said The First National Bank of Plainfield, New Jersey, do hereby express our appreciation of his manly Christian character, his sterling integrity, and his faithful services to the bank for many years past, both as director and vice-president, and also the sense of the loss we have sustained in his death."

Resolved, that we extend to his bereaved companion and family, our deepest sympathy in their great affliction.

Resolved that a copy of these minutes be presented to the bereaved family, and also engrossed in the minute book of this Board, and also published in the local papers.

By order and in behalf of the Board of Directors.

THEATRICAL.

Cosgrove & Grant's comedians in "The Dazzler" will be the attraction at Music Hall tonight. In preparing "The Dazzler" for the season of 1895-6, Messrs. Cosgrove & Grant have born in mind that this wou'd be the sixth year of this piece and that it had already outlived by two years the average farce comedy, and so have determined that the piece should contain so many novelties that it should not only attract and please its old friends, but secure many new ones. With this object in view, the play has been rewritten and is now one of the very brightest and funniest of all the farce comedies, containing a clever plot and a bright story told in the breeziest way. It is full of good comedy situations, and yet plenty of time and opportunity is given for the introduction of other strong specialties by which the company has made its reputation in the past. Among the many features of this season's "Dazzler" is the re-engagement of the diminutive comedian, Bobby Ralston. Though scarcely three feet tall, his work during the past two seasons has stamped him as a genuine laugh-provoker as well as a good actor. Lottie Burke is the leading comedienne. She is young, pretty, a good singer and dancer, and has a magnetic way about her which wins an audience every time. Raymond Finlay, who is playing the part of "Ezekiel Pipes, the modest man," is one of the brightest young comedians to be found in farce comedy. Max Miller, the original of the German comedy part, returns to the cast this year and will be welcomed by all who saw his clean-cut comedy work during the first four seasons of the play. Will West, a clever and popular vocalist, has many friends in this city, others in the cast are George Leslie, Ida Marie Rodgers, Alice Whitney, Rose Leslie, May Harting, the Schuman Sisters, Julia Romaine and Marie Richardson The music is all new, bright and of the kind that is most popular with farce comedy audiences.

A four-act dramatization of George Du Maurier's famous novel "Trilby," by Paul M. Potter, will be given here by A. M. Palmer's Company at Music Hall on Friday night, March 6th. If the words of the critics who have seen it are to be taken, one would never know that the subject was taken from a novel unless he had read the book. As a piece of dramatic workmanship, it is truly admirable. In the climaxes Mr. Potter has shown himself to be a corden blue of the first water. He has preserved the characteristic individuality of each one of Du Maurier's personages, with a careful insight which leaves little, if anything, to be desired. He has gone further than the original and swelled out "Svengali" to quite epic proportions, and with excellent results. Taken as a whole, however, Potter's play is in accord with the novel. He departs from the latter slightly in making "Trilby" leave Billee," not because she has promised to do so, but because "Svengali" wills it. Here it is that the power of the hypnotist is brought into play. This act of hers naturally robs her of the credit of self-sacrifice, but the change is nevertheless commendable. No modern production has ever commanded such attention as this one of "Trilby." The craze that set the pace agoing, is, perhaps, alone responsible for the great desire to see the play. With such a grand production and great cast, as the one furnished by A. M. Palmer, there should be no lack of appreciation. William A. Brady, under whose direction this company is touring, guarantees us one of the finest seen in many years. A great play and a grand cast.

March 9th, marks the twenty-fifth anniversary of the partnership between George Primrose and William H. West, and to fittingly celebrate the event Madison Square Garden has been secured for that evening, and a monster jubilee will be held which will enlist the services of three hundred performers in the first part in addition to a band and orchestra of fifty persons each. The programme, which is not fully completed as yet, will include many startling features, prominent among which will be the appearance of Primrose and West in double clog dance in which they made their debut, as a team, a quarter of a century ago. The affair promises to be a most unique entertainment, and the arrangements have been made on a colossal scale. A short biography of the lives and experience of these two minstrels will doutless be read with interest. Mr. Primrose was born in London, Ont., while Syracuse claims Mr. West. The former made his professional debut in Buffalo, in 1869, as a variety performer, doing a single song and dance act. At another house W. H. West was presenting a similar turn. The rivalry between the two was very great, and for two years each endeavored to outdo the other, until, in 1871, they settled the matter most effectually by doubling up.

BEST SPRING MEDICINE.

The Palm Given to Dr. Greene's Nervura.

That Great Jury, the People, Have So Decided.

Grandest Medicine for Blood and Nerves.

Used By Hundreds of Thousands in Spring.

Nervura Indeed the World's Great Spring Medicine.

Dr. Greene's Nevura blood and nerve remedy is indeed "The Worlds Great Spring medecine." It has come to be recognized by almost everybody as the best possible spring medicine to take, and hundreds of thousands of our people use it during the trying spring months, to tone up anew the relaxed nerves and re-invigorate and enrich the blood.

A spring medecine is a necessity if one wishes to keep in perfect health and vigor, during the changes from winter to summer. This grand spring tonic, this perfect spring medicine, Dr. Greene's Nevura blood and nerve remedy, is exactly what the system needs at this season. It not only purifies, but makes rich, red blood; it not only strengthens and invigorates the nervous system, but re-energizes and re-vitalizes the nerves by feeding them with renewed nerve force and power. It is not only an aid to digestion, but it creates a regular, natural and healthful action of the bowels, liver, kidneys, which in the spring are always inactive.

In fact, it is just what people need to make them well and keep them well during these months, so threatning to the health of all, and when it is considered that Dr. Greene's Nevura blood and nerve remedy is made entirely of pure, health-giving, vegetable remedies, and that people give it more testimonials of cure than any other remedy on earth, no one can doubt that it is the very best spring remedy for everybody to use.

Mr. Gustave Lelbach, of 337 First St., Jersey City, N. J., says:

"I was troubled with sick headaches and could not sleep on account of the pains in my head. I was suffering night and day with dyspepsia, could not eat anything, my stomach would sour so. I had to starve myself to have any ease. I had to give up work at last, I was so nervous and miserable, and I was falling away in flesh so that my friends hardly knew me. I tried several remedies, but without avail. At last someone recommended Dr. Greene's Nevura blood and nerve remedy. I tried one bottle and began to improve. I started in to eat all right, then I picked up my health; my headaches disappeared and my weakness and sour stomach went away. I used three bottles and could sleep all night with ease; I used six bottles and I felt like a new man. I can now do a hard days's work without any trouble, and I am as happy a bird in spring. I was so miserable, always suffering, always in pain, but now I am like a new man."

Use Dr. Greene's Nevura blood and nerve remedy this spring, for it is the discovery and prescription of a well known physician, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th St., New York City, who is responsible for its beneficial action, and who can be consulted free of charge, personally, or by letter.

J. W. Pierce, Republic, Ia., says: "I have used One Minute Cough Cure in my family and for myself, with results so entirely satisfactory that I can hardly find words to express myself as to its merit. I will never fail to recommend it to others, on every occasion that presents itself." L. W. Randolph, 143 W. Front St.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The first meeting of the Executive Committee of the New Jersey Interscholastic Athletic Association, was held at Pingry School, Elizabeth, on Saturday. President Geo. P. Smith, of the Plainfield High School, presided, and the representatives present were Myers, of Pingry; Cornwell, of the Plainfield High School; Schulz, of the Newark Academy, and Sandford, of the Stevens Preparatory School. The meeting was held to formulate athletic scheules, and make the preliminary arrangements for the spring meet. Pingry, Stevens and the Plainfield High schools, announced that their membership would be permanent, and that they were ready to arrange for games. The Newark Academy stated that, as there had been some misunderstanding concerning the constitution and intentions of the association, it was undecided about continuing its membership. The Montclair High School and Rutgers Preparatory will remain in the association. It is understood that the Elizabeth High School will also be elected to membership. The spring meet caused considerable discussion, especially in regard to the place where it should be held. The Plainfield delegates were, of course, in favor of the Crescent Oval, but the others thought that the grounds of the New Jersey Athletic Club, at Bergen Point, would be more suitable. It was decided to make an effort to secure the latter. The games will be held on the first Saturday in June, and the events will be open only to members of the association. Each school may make as many entries as it desires, but can run only three in each event. Points will be scored in the usual manner—five for a first, three for a second and one for a third. The prizes will be gold, silver and bronze medals for individuals, and a cup or banner for the school scoring the greatest number of points. The events will be as follows: 100-yards dash, senior; 100-yards dash, junior; 220-yards dash; 440-yards run; 880-yards run; one-mile run; 120 yards hurdle; one-mile walk; putting 12-pound shot; high jump; pole vault; running broad jump; one-mile bicycle race. The association also decided to have a baseball league for the championship of the association. A fine of $5 will be levied upon each team forfeiting a game. While no places were selected for the playing of the games, the following schedule was adopted: Rutgers against Stevens, April 11th; Montclair against Plainfield, April 11th; Plainfield against Rutgers, April 18th; Pingry against Newark, April 18th; Montclair against Stevens, April 25th; Pingry against Plainfield, April 25th; Newark against Stevens, May, 2d; Montclair against Rutgers, May 2d; Rutgers against Pingry, May 9th; Newark against Plainfield, May 9th; Montclair against Pingry, May 16th; Plainfield against Stevens, May 16th; Pingry against Stevens, May 23d; Newark against Rutgers, May 23d; Montclair against Newark, May 30th.

Krewson is twelfth in the State championship pool tournament which is being held at Newark.

The Orange Lawn Tennis Club and the Essex County Country Club have united, as far as the golf privileges of the latter club are concerned, the members of the tennis club being entitled to the privileges of the links. The course is to be extended.

CYCLING COMMENT.

It is probable that the next Irvington-Milburn bicycle road race will be run over the Hudson County Boulevard. The general opinion seems to be strongly in favor of the change.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

Another game will be rolled Friday night in the series between the teams of employes from Potter's and Scott's.

A game will be rolled tonight between the bowling teams of the Elizabeth C. Y. M. L. and the Plainfield Catholic Club.

The match which was arranged for tonight, between the Y. M. C. A. teams of Plainfield and Westfield, has been indefinitely postponed.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

—English law takes no account of libels on the dead. Not so in France. A Parisian lady has just obtained a verdict against an author who published some defamatory statements of her grandfather.

—Before the coming of the whites to America the Mississippi river was known by a different name every few miles in its course. Each tribe that dwelt along its banks gave it a name, and more than 30 of these local designations are preserved in the narratives of the early travelers.

—Sportsmen's enthusiasm is not always contagious. It worked distinctly the other way in the case of a resident of Bayside, Me., who recently was stopped on the highway by a party of sportsmen and made to wait with them an hour and a half, so that he would not scare away a deer which others of the hunting party were trying to drive out of the bordering wood.

—A late official report shows that, contrary to common belief, cases of religious mania are rare in the British isles. It also discloses the strange fact that more mental aberration is developed among the tribe of peddlers than among any other class, physicians and druggists coming next. Melancholia prevails most in Ireland.

—The archer fish has a natural blow gun. This animal possesses the curious property of being able to shoot drops of water from its mouth with extraordinary accuracy to considerable distances. This singular faculty is of use to the animal in securing its food. A fly or small insect passing over the water has very little chance of escape from the deadly aim of the archer fish. The drop of water brings down the insect, which is then incontinently devoured.

—Experiments are being made in Arizona in the establishment of carrier pigeon messenger service between remote mining camps and the nearest town or railway shipping points. So far as tried the service has proved successful and very valuable. The trails out from some of the large camps are long and difficult to traverse at times, and the carrier pigeons insure a great saving of time in exchanging communications.

—Five thousand horses in one bunch were rounded up on the Flathead Indian reservation in Montana a week or so since. So large a band of horses is seldom seen now except on a few of the Indian reservations where there is an unrestricted range. For almost a week before the bunch was gathered in the Indians and half-breeds were scouring the valleys, canyons and mountain sides, driving every horse they found toward the common center, ready for the annual cutting out into individually owned bands.

HOWARD'S FIRST CLIENT.

He Came on Mighty Particular Business, But It Was Not a Divorce

When Representative M. W. Howard, the populist member from Alabama, first hung out his shingle as a lawyer he was 19 years of age. His patience was nearly exhausted by days spent in vain waiting for his first client to come, when one day he heard a knock at the door. On calling "Come in!" a darky, known as Sam, stepped into the little office.

"What can I do for you?" the lawyer asked, as visions of his first fee came to him.

"'Scuse me, sah," said Sam, "but 'deed I wants to see you on partikler business."

Mr. Howard, thinking that the man most likely wanted a divorce, said: "Sit down and explain everything carefully."

"'Deed, sah, I would like to close de dore, fo' de bizness am mighty pertikler," said Sam. After having closed the door he took the proffered chair. Then he explained:

"Sah, I has got a gurl in Georgah dat I wants you to write a letter to fo' me."

"Do you love her?" asked the lawyer. "Do you want to marry her? Does she love you?" and many questions of a like nature.

To all these questions Sam replied: "Suttingly."

The replies being satisfactory, he proceeded to write the letter. After having finished it he read it to Sam to see whether it agreed with his ideas.

"'Scuse me, boss," said Sam, scratching his woolly head; "'scuse me if I offer a sugghestan; I would like to put something else in dar also; something like dis:

De roses am red,
And de vylets bloo;
De pinks am preaty,
And so is you.

And having put it in, Howard asked if that was all. Sam scratched his woolly head a minute and then said: "Boss, dar am one mo' thing dat ought to go in dar—dis: 'I hopes dat you will 'scuse de pore, mizerable writin' and de bad spellin'."—Washington Post.

The Fagot Party.

If one has a wide fireplace and a number of friends who are good story-tellers, a fagot party may be a pleasant form of entertainment. Give to each guest a ribbon-tied bundle of fagots or bits of wood, place cozy seats about the fire and ask number one (the ribbons should be numbered) to throw her fuel upon the fire. As it burns a story is to be told, neither longer nor shorter than the time of its burning, and as the light dies out number two begins his tale. A room for a fagot party should be lighted only by candles and the firelight. Finish the evening with an informal dance, if your guests are of the dancing habit, and with a light and dainty supper, as most of us are of the eating habit.—N. Y. Post.

Couldn't Serve Him.

Drummer (hurriedly)—Can't wait for dinner—have to catch 11:10 train—I'll just have a quick lunch. Can you open me some oysters?

Landlord Smithville Hotel — Very sorry, sir; but the cook broke the can-opener this morning.—Puck.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS.

To decorate a grate that is not required for use, place in it some small pots containing ferns. Collect small fir cones, varnish them and throw around in the grates so the pots shall be hidden.

If you possess a cozy corner with a shelf at the top have a zinc trough made to fit it and fill this with some hardy foliage and flower plants. They will last a long time and add greatly to the beauty of the room.

The latest card cases and pocketbooks are made from a leather that is called elephant's hide. It has rather a rough surface and is of a light tan color. They are mounted at the corners in dull gold, or have a plain gold band around them, headed by a narrow beading.

It is not necessary to have fresh and green things for all salads. The cold cooked vegetables may be utilized—asparagus tops, peas, beans, cold potatoes and beets, cut in cubes, or any of them, mixed together with a few capers and sliced olives. The dish, for any salad should be rubbed inside with a raw onion.

Furs will look much improved if they are cleaned with bran heated in the oven. Rub the hot bran well into the fur with a piece of flannel, then shake the fur to remove all particles, and brush thoroughly. Fur collars that have become soiled from rubbing against the hair may be made to look like new by using hot bran on them. Apply the bran a second time if the fur is badly soiled.

WOMEN EVERYWHERE.

Miss Helen M. Winslow, of Boston, was the guest of honor at the Professional Woman's league meeting in New York. She is said to have made one of the brightest impromptu speeches ever heard at the league.

Mrs. John Ward Dunsmore, of Cincinnati, wife of the artist, has made quite a success as a speaker on art topics, a subject with which she is thoroughly conversant. Mrs. Dunsmore, who is an exceedingly graceful and charming woman, was a Boston girl, Miss Corrinna Buffinton.

It was after ex-Empress Eugenie of France that Princess Beatrice's little daughter was named. The unfortunate empress holds the children of this princess very dear to her, and is seen much with them during her residence in the highlands and when she stays with her majesty. She probably remembers that had her son been spared to her Princess Beatrice's children would have been her own grandchildren.

The duchess of Albany has come to the front as an inventor. She has designed a schoolroom desk, for which the Sanitary institute has awarded her a gold medal at its exposition in London. It was designed some time ago, and is now in use in most of the royal and imperial nurseries in England and on the continent. The invention has special reference to the effect of posture on the health of school children, and is very suitable and practicable, its parts being adjustable to the work of physical development of a child.

THE MOUTH AND TEETH.

The star fish is all mouth. When this creature intends to make a meal he simply surrounds his prey and waits until it is digested.

The enamel of the teeth is composed of 95 per cent. of calcarious matter, a larger portion than enters into any other part of the system.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. Ask your agents for tickets via this route.

Pneumonia.

That dreaded disease that temporarily compels a cessation of the work of all the greater organs of the body, thus stopping the digestion of food, the creation of new tissue, brings the patient to a point where the flickering flame of life is blown out like the light of a burnt-out candle. To make recovery probable, keep up the patient's strength — give him that great concentrated essence of the vital principles of lean beef, the strength of which is enhanced by our special cold process method of manufacture, it can be retained by the weakest stomach, and in every instance makes blood, flesh and strength. Dr. Charles Wilson, Atwell Ave., Providence, says; "My wife suffered a severe attack of pneumonia; after passing the acute stage fearing heart failure, I gave her freely Bovinine and port wine, equal parts. I have never seen such good results. I am a hearty believer in Bovinine for quick nutrition." Over 25000 other physicians endorse it equally strong.

VII.

A CASE OF NECESSITY.

Mr. Thomas Ludlow said what he believed to be the truth when he told his wife that the efforts of the company's attorneys to purchase the Bynum farm had come to naught, but in making the statement he had seriously underrated the astuteness of the gentlemen in question. Instead of abandoning the attempt, they had merely withdrawn from the field for the purpose of approaching it at a different angle, and Ludlow's assertion only proved how well the secrets of their plan had been guarded. Indeed, at the very time when he had spoken so confidently of the failure of the New York attorneys, these worthy gentlemen had already begun an attack from another quarter; and the emissary of a Cincinnati broker, who was supposed to represent a new mining company organized in that city, had made more than one stealthy visit to the farmhouse in the cove, driving thereto from Dunbar, the railway station next above Tregarthen, for the purpose of keeping himself discreetly in the background. This diplomatic ambassador had his final interview with the Bynums on the day following Ringbrand's excursion with the colonel; and when, late in the afternoon, he drove back to the hotel in Dunbar, the deed to the Bynum acres was safely buttoned up in the inside pocket of his coat.

If the shrewd agent congratulated himself a little on the success of his mission, it was certainly pardonable, for there had been difficulties. Jule Bynum was obstinately opposed to the sale from the first, because it involved the uprooting of the family from the soil of Tennessee and a migration to the unfamiliar regions of the Texas frontier; and her reluctance was shared in a less degree by her brother Jed. On the other side, however, Jeff, in whom the seed of restlessness had been implanted on his former journey, was anxious to be gone again; and his stories of the unrestrained life on the border had gained him a partisan in the person of his other brother. With this equal division in numbers, the plans hinging upon the sale of the farm hung in the balance until Jule's opposition was finally overcome by the arrival of a letter from her Uncle Jed, who described, in such glowing terms as his limited vocabulary could furnish, the prosperity which awaited them in the west. This letter had opportunely reached the cove on the day preceding the emissary's final visit, and its urging, together with a substantial increase in price offered by the ambassador, had procured the reluctant consent of the two obstructionists.

Having thus arrived at the threshold of the proposed migration, the details of its accomplishment were arranged in the evening of the same day, when the family was gathered in the kitchen of the farmhouse. Jeff and Jule did most of the talking; Jed set back in the chimney-corner, saying little; and Bud had taken the stock from his rifle and was swabbing the barrel in a pan of watef before the wide fireplace.

"D' ye 'low ye can get ready for to light out by to-morrer night, Jule?" asked Jeff.

"Oh, I reckon so," replied his sister, with a dissatisfied air; "y'all ain't gwine to rest now tell we's done to'n up an' gone. But how d' ye reckon we-all can go in the night? They ain't no cyars a-runnin' then."

Jeff rose from his seat on the bed and broke off a leaf from the bunch of tobacco hanging over the fireplace. "We-all didn't 'low to take the cyars at the settlement," he explained. "I been sort o' figurin' on gettin' squar' with that dern crowd up on the mounting 'fore we-all done lef' Tennessee for good, an' 'tain't gwine be healthy for none o' we-all to be seen round here atterwards. Come to think of it, though, they ain't no use o' makin' you ride over the mounting in the night; ye can go jest as well the nex' day an' wait for we-all at McNairville."

"What on top o' the yeth does y'-all want to start from McNairville for?" she asked, in surprise.

"'Cause the cyars done leave thar 'bout three o'clock in the mo'nin', an' we-all can get th'oo yere an' make hit 'crost the mounting 'fore that time."

"An' ye was 'lowin' to do that to-morrer night?"

"No; that 'd be too soon for what we's a-figurin' on; to-morrer's Thursday—ye can take the mar' an' ride over Friday, an' we-all 'll jine ye Friday night. How'll that thar do?"

"Oh, I reckon I can go one time's well as another. What did y'-all do with the city feller las' night?"

Bud chuckled. "Scared him plum to death an' drapped him in the hole in 'Possum holler."

"Didn't tote him up nothin' to eat, did ye?"

"No. 'Lowed to let him go hongry for a spell, so 't he could sort o' see what hit was like."

"What y'-all gwine do with him?" asked Jed, speaking for the first time.

"Reckon we'll turn him loose after he's done scared up enough to min' his own business," responded Jeff, leisurely filling his pipe with the crushed leaf of tobacco. "'Tain't gwine hurt him none to stay thar a day or so."

Jule went to the cupboard in the corner, and a few minutes later left the room. Jed broke the silence which followed her departure. "I done heard that Tom Ludlow 'd put a gang to workin' in the McNabb ag'in to-day," he said.

"I know hit," replied Jeff. "We-all 'll give 'em a s'prise party 'bout to-morrer night. I reckon they'll keep gyard thar, but that ain't gwine do no harm."

Bud shook his head. "No, they-all don't know nothin' about the crevice. Wonder if the city feller can hear 'em a-workin'?"

"I reckon so," replied Jeff. "'Mos' likely he's been a-hollerin' the top o' his haid off all day, a-tryin' to make out to raise somebody. I believe he was 'bout the worst scared-up feller I ever did see."

Bud laughed. "He shore was. He trem'led jest like a gal when I was a tyin' his arms."

Jeff tilted his chair against the wall and smoked meditatively until his pipe went out. "D'ye know, Buddy, I cayn't get shet o' the idee that I've done see that thar feller afore"—he knocked the ashes out of the pipe and dropped it into his pocket—"an' I jest cayn't ric'lict whar—By Hick'ry! I do ric'lict, now!" The speaker brought his chair down with a crash, and the others looked up with astonishment at his sudden exclamation.

"Whar was hit, Jeff?" asked Bud.

"Hit was down at Waco; that's whar hit was"—he got up and paced the floor excitedly—"that's jest whar hit was. I done told you all 'bout that thar ruction in the express office, when that plum fool messenger 'lowed to stan' we-all off with a gun; thar wasn't no time for to talk, an' jest as I fired I done saw a man comin' in at the back do'—" He paused and then added, impressively: "Boys, hit was that thar city chap, an' he's down yere to get me."

An awed silence fell upon the group in the kitchen after Jeff made this announcement. Bud put his gun together and loaded it carefuly, sitting quietly afterward with the weapon across his knees; and Jed came out of his dark corner to feel mechanically on the high mantel shelf for his pipe. The night had closed in with storm signals flying in the western sky, and the rising wind began to sigh dismally through the trees, sending occasional puffs eddying down the chimney to scatter little clouds of light ashes from the expiring embers on the hearth. The measured sob of the great engine at the furnace rose and fell on the breeze, mingling its tones with the hoarser mutterings of the approaching storm. At the head of the cove there is a deep cleft in the perpendicular wall of rock, known to the dwellers in Harmony Valley as "The Chimney." With the breath of the tempest, the fissure becomes the dispason of nature's great organ, and already its deep reedy voice could be heard, filling the cove with a sound like the rushing of the waves on a sandy beach, or like the distance-softened roar of a mighty cataract. From his watch tower in the blasted oak behind the barn, a great owl added his mournful call to the weird noises of the night, while all the shriller and cheerfuller voices of nature were hushed and silent in the presence of the storm-king. Jeff Bynum continued his monotonous walk up and down the narrow limits of the kitchen, stopping at each turn to peer out of the windows into the thickening gloom.

Bud was the first to speak. "What-all does ye 'low to do 'bout hit, Jeff?" he inquired.

The elder brother dropped into a chair and thrust his hands deep into his pockets. "I 'low I don't jest rightly know, Buddy—I don't, for a fact; thar cayn't be no mistake; I ain't nowise likely to forget that thar face; hit's been a harnt to me more'n one night tence I seed hit; hit has, for shore."

Jed got up and threw another stick of wood on the fire. "Ye reckon ye're plum shore, Jeff?" he asked. "'Pears like this yere feller's been mindin' his own business tol'able clost sence he come to the settlement."

"No, Jed, he hain't; that's what's a-rattlin' me. He was a-pryin' round this yere very cove only day before yistiddy; I seed him; an' Jule she took him up the mounting and p'inted him the way back from the McNabb."

"Jule!"

"Yes, Jule. I 'low she didn't know who 'r what he was. She done left him standin' afore the mouth of the tunnel. An' that ain't the mos' curiousest part o' hit; he scrambled into the hole over the broken rocks, an' jest about a minute afterwards he come a-pilin' out o' thar like he seed a harnt, an' the last I seed o' him he was a-makin' the longest kind o' tracks to'rdst the valley."

"What d' ye reckon he seed in thar?"

"I'll nev' tell ye; but that hain't the question; hit looks mighty like he's a-sneakin' round yere to fin' out somethin' 'bout we-all, an' I reckon thar's got to be somethin' done."

Bud glanced around into the gathering shadows in the room, and asked: "Whar's Jule?"

"I dunno," replied Jeff; "gone to baid, I reckon."

Bud stood his rifle in the chimney-corner and went out, coming back in a moment to say: "I reckon she has; leastways, thar's no light."

Another interval of oppressive silence followed Bud's assurance. The three men sat around the hearth, each knowing the others' thought, and each hoping that one of the others would put the pitiless suggestion into words. While they waited the first great drops of rain pattered on the roof, and the soughing of the wind through the tree-tops and the louder growling of the thunder, drowned the roar of "The Chimney." The dusky interior of the kitchen grew more shadowy as the handful of fire on the hearth died down, and the darkness was intensified by an occasional flash of lightning contrasting its glare with the twilight of the room. The red glow from the coals fell upon the faces of the three brothers grouped about the fireplace and sitting in silent judgment upon a man whose only offense was his resemblance to some other man. Each of the three felt that there was a terrible margin of doubt, and yet each knew that it was only doubt and not certainty. If their prisoner and the single witness of Jeff's crime were identical, there could be no safety for at least one of them while the man lived; if not—if Jeff were mistaken, after all — the alternative was sufficiently dreadful to make them hesitate to give it shape in speech.

The suggestion came finally from the one who was most deeply concerned. Jeff rose slowly and took down his rifle from its pegs over the mantel. "I reckon hit's got to be done, boys," he said, huskily. "I hate hit mighty bad, but I cayn't affo'd to take no chainces."

Bud joined him at once, but Jed hesitated. "You don't have to come, Jed," said the elder brother; "two of us is enough, an' I know ye ain't afeard."

"I'm goin' 'long with you-all, only I hope yere pow'ful shore, Jeff; seem like hit's mighty tough to go an' shoot him like he's a rat in a hole, less ye're p'int-blank certain ye got to do hit."

They went out noiselessly, so as not to awaken Jule, and Jeff led the way to the trail up which the woman had piloted Ringbrand two days before. The wind had risen to a gale, and it was wringing and twisting the trees above their heads; but the rain delayed and the storm seemed to be blowing over. When they reached the base of the cliff, they left the path and turned shortly to the right, following the line of the rocky wall until they reached a narrow ledge affording a precarious passage up to the table-land. Emerging, after a breathless scramble, upon the unsheltered mountain-top, where the wind had full sweep, they pushed on gasping until they stood in the small ravine under the lee of the bowlders marking the entrance to Ringbrand's prison. Jeff uncoiled the rope he had brought, and was preparing to descend, when Jed stopped him:

"Don't ye 'low that'll be sort o' reasky? If that thar feller's what ye done took him for, he's gwine fight, for shore. He ain't gwine stan' still an' 'low ye to shoot him in col' blood."

The caution brought back with appalling distinctness the ghastly horror of the deed they were about to do, and they paused in fearful hesitation. Then Bud proposed that they go down into the other cavern, using the narrow crevice for a loop-hole, and a few minutes later he and Jeff were standing in the pitchy darkness of the subterranean chamber, while Jed watched at the aperture above. Jeff felt his way along one of the walls until he came to a niche where they kept a miner's lamp, and, lighting this they cautiously reconnoitered the adjoining chamber as well as they could by its inefficient help. The light from the lamp penetrated but a short distance beyond the narrow opening, but it answered the purpose, and they could see the shadowy outlines of the figure of a man stretched out upon the sandy floor of the cavern. Jeff handed the lamp to his brother and took careful aim at the motionless form; his hand trembled so that he could not hold the gun steady, and he got down upon his knees and rested it against the side of the crevice. Even then he was so long about it that Bud's nerve collapsed and the lamp fell from his shaking fingers; it did not go out, and as he held it up again he whispered: "Shoot—quick! I can't—"

A blinding flash illuminated the cavern, and the dead air of the place jarred with a concussion that put out the light and reverbrated like pent-up thunder in the arches of the vault. The two men fell over each other in their frantic haste to reach the open air, fighting like caged wild beasts for precedence up the difficult stairway; and when they emerged from the mouth of the smoky pit, the contagion of terror communicated itself to their passive accomplice, and the three men scattered in a mad flight toward the cove.

Monday Afternoon Club Lectures.

At the meeting of the Monday Afternoon Club held yesterday, Mrs. T. Logan Murphy presented an interesting paper on "Current Events," and Mrs. W. E. Lowe gave one on "The Medici," which was followed by an informal discussion. Next Monday afternoon Miss Kate Thompson will lecture on "Savonarola." An extra lecture will be given by Mr. VanDyke on Tuesday afternoon next, on Italian art. A second one will be given on a subsequent Tuesday afternoon.

A Pleasant Affair.

The twentieth anniversary of the happy day when Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Walker were united in matrimony, was celebrated at their home, 425 Rahway avenue, Elizabeth, last evening. About 150 friends from Rahway, Brooklyn, Newark, Milburn and Plainfield were present. Many beautiful presents were received. A bounteous repast was served, after which everyone joined in dancing. Prof. Frazee, of this city, furnished the music.

All About a Horse.

The horse case of Stryker against Bock, which was tried at Somerville, yesterday, resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff. It is likely the case will be appealed.

—Wm. V. Mundy, agent of the Travelers' Insurance Company, paid to Chas. Ulrich a check for $50 yesterday, a two-weeks claim for an injury received to his knee.

Will Havens, of New York, spent last evening with friends in town.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keading, of Liberty street, was made happy yesterday by the arrival of a daughter.

Wm. J. Kitchen has received his new red enameled Relay wheel.

Harry Coddington will ride a white enameled United States wheel.

Hudson Navigation Opened.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., March 3.—Navigation between this city and New York for the season of 1896 is open. Steamer J. L. Hasbrouck left her dock for the metropolis last night. The steamer fought ice for only a few miles, after which she had clear sailing to her destination.

Lathrop Prison Investigation.

Albany, March 3.—The Lathrop prison investigation was resumed this morning. The witnesses called were all for the defense. The defense expects to put in all its evidence in a day or two, and it is thought that the case can be closed this week.

Money Received for Bonds.

Washington, March 3.—Of the $110,000,000 for which the recent $100,000,000 issue of United States 4 per cent. bonds sold $95,804,772 have been paid in gold on account. The treasury gold at the opening of business to-day stood at $123,667,999.

Hospital Warden Dismissed.

New York, March 3.—The commissioners of charities held a meeting late yesterday afternoon and dismissed Warden O'Rourke of Bellevue hospital. The dismissal of O'Rourke is the first step towards reorganizing Bellevue hospital.

Leap Year Incident.

"Didn't you always say that McJones was so modest that he would never propose?"

"Yes, that's what I said."

"Well, he's engaged to be married."

"I knew it; but that does not go to show that I was wrong about his not proposing. He is engaged to a widow, and this is leap year.—Dallas (Tex.) Sifter.

Baby Could Talk.

Mamma and baby returned from a walk. "Oh," says mamma to her husband, "such good 'news. Baby talks. He has just said his first word."

"Really?"

"Yes, just fancy. We were in the zoological gardens, standing before the monkey cage when baby cried out: 'Look at papa!'"—Pittsburgh Bulletin.

Scented the Battle.

First Stranger (in street car)—I see you in these cars quite regularly, but seldom at this hour.

Second Stranger—No; this is an extra trip. My wife wished me to go to the store and match some trimmings for her.

Neighborly Comments.

Sisyphus was busily engaged in rolling the stone up to the top of the hill and letting it slide back again.

"It's pretty monotonous, isn't it?" remarked one of his acquaintances.

"Yes. But I could get used to it. I could get along very well if it wasn't for people who come along and make remarks. I guess about 700 people a month tell me to 'never mind; life always has its ups and downs.' And not less than 20 a day ask me if I don't know that a rolling stone gathers no moss."—Washington Star.

Why She Was Mad.

Mother (suspiciously)—What makes your lips so red? Has that young man—

Sweet Girl—No, he hasn't. If my lips are red, it's because I've been biting them. I was mad.

"Mad because he tried to kiss you?"

"No. Because he didn't."—Waverley Magazine.

Taking Thought of the Morrow.

"I'd rather live rich and die poor than live poor and die rich," remarked the dissatisfied person.

"Well, nobody has denied you that privilege," said the complacent man.

"But what worries me," moaned the dissatisfied person, "is how I am going to keep from both living and dying poor."—To Date.

SICK-POISON.

What It Is, and Where It Comes From.

Sick-poison is what makes you sick, irritates your nerves, disorders your functions, saps your strength, makes you miserable.

Different diseases have different poisons, some have several, indigestion more than any.

That is, the symptoms of indigestion are caused by the poisons which are created by undigested food

When you are sick, try to get rid of your poison.

It is often easier than you think, for all nature is helping you. Only the poison is obstinate, but the first step is to go to the root of it.

The poisons of undigested food, which cause lethargy, headache, dizziness, weakness, bad taste, stomachache, fever, flatulence, nausea, constipation, loss of appetite, jaundice, anæmia, neuralgia, rheumatism, etc., these poisons can be swept away and annihilated by the Shaker Digestive Cordial.

Curing the stomach and helping it to digest food, when it is too weak to do so by itself, will purify your system of poison and renew your strength and health.

Shaker Digestive Cordial, a pure, vegetable, digestive tonic, made by the Shakers of Mount Lebanon, will cure all disorders caused by the poisons of undigested food when nothing else will give any relief.

Sold by druggists. Ten cents for a trial bottle.

MUNYON'S COLD CURE

Promptly Effectual in Curing the Most Obstinate Forms of Colds and Coughs and a Sure Preventive of Pneumonia and All Lung Diseases.

Colds lead to coughs, coughs to pneumonia and consumption; therefore it is all important to check a cold before it reaches the lungs. Munyon's Cold Cure will positively break a cold inside of twenty-four hours if taken as soon as the cold manifests itself. When the cold reaches the lungs or bronchial tubes the Cough Cure should be used alternately every half hour with the Cold Cure. The Cold Cure is guaranteed to prevent pneumonia if used in the beginning of a cold. Pneumonia, or inflammation of the lungs, can be controlled by the use of these two cures.

The Cough Cure positively cures bronchitis, tickling in the throat, hoarseness, loss of voice, soreness of the chest, difficulty in breathing, hacking cough and all pulmonary diseases where the lungs are not too far consumed or covered with tubercles.

A separate specific for each disease. Sold by all druggists, mostly for 25 cents a bottle.

Personal letters to Prof. Munyon, 1505 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa., answered with free medical advice for any disease.

The squirrel is provided with a pouch on each side of his mouth in which he can carry a considerable amount of nuts, corn or other food.

According to the physiognomist, a projecting under lip is a bad sign, indicating pig-headed obstinacy and dullness, if not actual stupidity.

"The Principles of Dental Surgery," by Leonard Koecker, in 1826, placed dentistry on its proper footing as an independent branch of surgery.

Every tooth is provided with a nerve, and if any doubt is felt on this point, an exposure of the nerve will demonstrate the accuracy of the statement.

Several kinds of apes are provided with large pouches on the sides of the mouth. One kind of African ape can carry a quart of corn on each side of his jaw.

AT THE JEWELERS.

A cut glass inkstand with silver mounts, much favored this season, is square in form.

EDUCATE THE PEOPLE.

THAT WAS THE MORAL OF DR. RIGGS' LECTURE LAST NIGHT.

Refers to the Riots in Alexandria and Carlo, and From Them Draws a Conclusion to Solve the Eastern Question.

Another lecture on the Eastern question was given in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church last evening by the Rev. James F. Riggs.

The lecture was a continuation of the one given last week and was one of great interest. In the course of the lecture Dr. Riggs said:

"Last week I spoke of the extravagances in Egypt; tonight I am going to speak of the effects of them, and in doing so we must turn our attention toward the riots in Alexandria and Cairo. In the year 1882, the riots in Alexandria were something terrible. On a bright summer day an Enropean was in a coffee house in the city and was struck by an Egyptian and killed. At once the news spread over the city and in less than ten minutes over three hundred Europeans were killed. It was done in the twinkling of an eye, like the flash of a gun.

"These riots continued in cities and towns round-about, people were slaughtered and property was destroyed. The ruler of Egypt began to fortify the city and re-fortify the fort on the coast.

"It did not take long for the English to become roused and to consider it their duty to stop the matter. At length an English officer came to the Egyptian ruler and demanded that European life and property be protected. But the reply of the Egyptian was, 'European life and property is protected.' 'But why are you fortifying the forts along the coast?' was the next query, and the reply came, 'We are not.'

"The English commander had seen enough to understand the situation and he made preparations for war. On the evening of this same day he sailed out from the coast and in the darkness of the night his large searchlights were directed toward the forts and the whole thing was revealed. There in the forts were thousands of Egyptians working like beavers hoisting cannons into place. On the English ships the next morning only coffee was served, as is the custom not to go into battle after a heavy meal, then every man sought his post and waited for orders. A gun was fired from the Admiral's ship to signify that everything was ready, then for ten minutes came an awful silence after which another signal was given and from both the small guns at the mast heads and from the large guns below came a continuous roar, only ceasing to let the smoke clear away.

"For two or three hours a steady shower of steel was thrown into the forts until they were nearly demolished. Then one by one the forts hoisted their flags of truce and immediately the English started ashore to accept the terms of surrender, but before they landed the flags were lowered and the battle commenced with new vigor. The English signal was given to renew the cannonading and after ten minutes more the forts were deserted. Then the English went ashore, demolishing the fortifications and destroying all the cannon. They found many reasons to suspect that the Egyptians were commanded by foreign officers, one reason being that many French and Italian newspapers were found in the forts.

"The loss to the English was very slight while that of the Egyptians was very heavy.

"Much has been written about the bombardment of the city by the English, but this is all false. All the damage done to the city was done by the Egyptian army. Defeated in battle and desperate over the tiresome march of the retreat and the suffering caused by the wounds received in battle, they rushed into the city like a band of crazy men and plundered the homes and shops of the Europeans.

"Many times, during the wars in the various countries, rivers have been blockaded in order to prevent navigation. Skilled engineers have loaded ships with stones, sailed out into the channel and there sunk the ships thinking by this means that they had stopped navigation on that river, but, not so; the water strikes the blockade, is turned out of its course and wears away a new and better channel. So it is with the great Eastern question, it cannot be stopped by force. It must be stopped by the workings of religion and education, by a moral change in the people. Educate the people and the trouble will stop. This is proved by the evidence set forth of this truth in the work of our colleges and missions in the east."

The last lecture will be given next Tuesday evening and the subject will be "Oriental Literature." This lecture is not one of the regular course, but it is thought best to have it in place of the last lecture of the course.

A PLEASANT GATHERING.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Townsend Entertain a Few Friends.

A few friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Townsend, of Coddington avenue, gathered last evening at Mr. Townsend's home. The evening was delightfully spent in conversation and listening to vocal and instrumental music. Mrs. Charles Steiner delivered a recitation in a pleasing manner and Miss Etta Krymer sang a well rendered selection. H. J. Martin and J. E. Townsend also sang and W. C. Townsend rendered some excellent music on the violin, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Townsend.

Those present included Rev. and Mrs. Cornelius Schenck, Mr. and Mrs. G. Q. Dolliver, Mr. and Mrs. George VanEmburg, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woodruff, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Steiner, Mrs. Stuats, Mrs. Gillem, Miss Emma Gillem, Miss Etta Krymer, Mr. Mantz, E. E. Anthony, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Townsend, and Mrs. C. E. Beaman and J. M. Beaman, of Westfield, and Mrs. A. M. Smith, of Brooklyn.

A COLORED Y. M. C. A.

Steps Are Being Taken to Organize One.

A movement has been on foot for some time to organize a Y. M. C. A. for colored young men. Another meeting was held Monday afternoon and it was definitely decided to organize regularly. A committee on permanent organization, with Mr. Butler as chairman, was appointed. Thomas Hooker was made chairman of the committee on by-laws and constitution. The committees will meet tonight, the latter at the home of W. A. Kline, of East Sixth street.

Another meeting of those interested in the scheme will be held on next Wednesday night, when the association will be regularly organized. There were thirty present at the meeting Monday afternoon.

A Book Worth Reading.

Among the books lately added to the Plainfield Public Library is one which is of especial interest to every good citizen of New Jersey: Sackett's "Modern Battles of Trenton," an "up-to date" story of New Jersey politics and politicians, from 1868 to 1894.

Among the incidents touched upon in this "Romance of Jersey Politics," as one of the newspapers calls the book, are:

General Sewell's election to the United States Senate in 1881.

How Governor Abbett forced the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad to surrender the "irrepealable contract."

Details of the Ballot Box Stuffers' conspiracy in Hudson county.

The Coal Combine.

Race-track bills and the public excitement they aroused.

The Patronesses Announced.

Van-Buren.

High School Notes.

The military company of the High School has commenced the study of the manual of arms. The second drill will be held tomorrow afternoon from 3:30 to 4:30. Henry Eggerding has been promoted to Quartermaster Sergeant. Four corporals will be appointed during the next three or four weeks. The four privates who show the greatest interest in the company, carry themselves the best, and who are also the steadiest, will be chosen. Every member of the company will drill his best in order to obtain one of the promotions.

All last winter Mr. Geo. A. Mills, of Labanon, Conn., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. At times it was so severe that he could not stand up straight, but was drawn over on one side. "I tried different remedies without receiving relief," he says, "until about six months ago I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. After using it for three days my rheumatism was gone and has not returned since. For sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue. T. S Armstrong, Manager.

GIVEN BY LOCAL TALENT

FOURTH ENTERTAINMENT IN THE STAR COURSE LAST NIGHT.

The Admirable Elocutionary Efforts of Miss Addie Parker Jackson Pleased Everyone—Music Was All Instrumental.

The fourth entertainment in the Y. M. C. A. Star Course was given last night in the Y. M. C. A. Hall before a very appreciative audience. Those who took part in the entertainment were Miss Addie Parker Jackson, reader, William McKillop, violinist, a ladies' string quintette, which is composed of the Misses Blossom Randolph, Marie Newman, Bessie Cahoone, Marguerite Burnett, violinists, and Clyde Burnett, pianist, and Conde's Young Men's Symphony Orchestra.

The programme opened with an overture entitled, "Harvest Home," by Hermann, and was well rendered by the Young Men's Symphony Orchestra, composed of the following: First violins, Charles Davis, Clarence Mills and William McKillop; second violins, Lindley Hillman, Wyacham Beekman and Gilbert Lovell; flute, Walter Serrell; cornets, Raymond A. McGee and Benjamin LaVere; double bass, Mr. Maier; pianist, Walter Raynolds; conductor, P. Ludwig Conde.

The second number was a reading by Miss Addie Parker Jackson, the stirring story of "Annie Laurie," written by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps Ward. This was given in Miss Jackson's usual charming manner, bringing the whole scene clearly before her hearers, and holding their most careful attention.

The ladies' string quintette now played very prettily a selection from Dencla, their graceful appearance and excellent rendering of the music winning them such hearty applause that they were obliged to return to the stage and play a dainty little waltz.

A sketch from Samuel L. Clemens' "Travels Abroad" was Miss Jackson's second reading; a humorous selection, which was much enjoyed and vigorously encored.

The orchestra now appeared again, playing an American fantasia, by Bendix, "Tone Pictures of the North and South." The familiar airs, played in such a spirited manner, greatly pleased the audience, and the young men were obliged to play a second time.

A pupil of P. Ludwig Conde, William D. McKillop, next played a difficult violin solo, 'Theme de Bellini," by Paginini, with such excellent technique and so much depth of feeling that he was most enthusiastically encored.

Miss Jackson's closing reading, "How Girls Fish," was a bright, little sketch that kept the audience laughing from the beginning to the end.

The last numer, a tarantelle, "Sicilianne," by Gramm, by the orchestra, was a pleasant close to an unusually delightful evening.

A SUCCESSFUL BAND.

They Elect Officers and Hear the Annual Reports.

The annual meeting of the Young Ladies Mission Band, of the Presbyterian churches, was held yesterday afternoon in the parlors of the First Presbyterian church.

The election of officers was held and resulted as follows: President, Miss Emily Tracy; vice presidents, Miss Julia J. Ketcham and Miss Flora Petrie; secretary, Miss Harriet Halloway; treasurer, Miss Josephine Petrie; board of managers, the Misses Bessie Blair, Sarah Hayes, May Cahoone, Ethel Holmes and Marguerite Yerkes.

The annual reports of the secretary and treasurer were read. The latter showed the society to be in a good financial condition. During the year $200 had been paid according to pledges and $25 extra had been devoted to a woman's hospital in Siam. About $74 was cleared on the recent entertainment given by the band. Short accounts were then read about the different objects that the band is aiding. The meeting ended with an informal tea.

Justice Newcorn's Court.

An execution in the case of Horton & Bradley against Chase has been issued by Justice Newcorn. In the same court a disposses warrant has been issued in the case of Kimball & Co. against Rowley. A summons in the contract case of Cole against Henry was issued, returnable March 10th, and the case of Brooks, administratrix, against Conklin has been adjourned one week. Judgment was rendered for the plaintiff today in the case of Feller against Myers.

—The Woman's Relief Corps will hold their regular meeting on Friday evening.

FOURTH STREET FIRST.

WHERE THE HUM OF TROLLEY EXTENSION WILL BE HEARD FIRST.

Superintendent Adleman Says That Work Will be Pushed and Cars Running on the New Lines by June First.

Every person in Plainfield is delighted to know that the street railway is to be extended, thus affording easy access to all parts of the city, and the public will be pleased when they learn that arrangements are now being made to commence the work as soon as possible. A Daily Press representative met Superintendent John Adleman this morning and in an interview learned many interesting facts.

"Yes," he said, "we are getting ready to make the extensions. We will probably begin at the Watchung avenue terminus and lay the tracks through Fourth street to Grant avenue. The Netherwood extension will probably follow, then the line to Dunellen. The work will be pushed rapidly with a view to completing it at an early date for the summer travel. If we complete the equipments by June, open cars will be put into service. There will be five additional cars used and they will be built for the narrow-guage track which will be laid. Until we can change the guage of the tracks now in use passengers will have to change cars at both ends. I think that cars will be run, alternately, direct from Netherwood to the Dunellen line. The remaining cars will cover the other portions of the road. The cars will probably be run under twelve minutes headway.

This morning Mr. Adleman took a measurement of the Watchung avenue railroad bridge to ascertain if the cars would pass under, and he learned that there is sufficient space for the trolley pole.

AUXILIARY OFFICERS.

The McAll Society Elect and Hear Annual Reports This Morning.

The McAll Auxiliary held its annual meeting at the Public Library this morning, and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Isaac L Miller; secretary, Miss Saidee Hilliard Hunter; treasurer, Mrs. John Gray Foster; vice-presidents, Crescent Avenue church, Mrs. A. C. Baldwin; Grace P. E. church, Mrs. F. O. Herring; Congregational church, Mrs. Wm. B. Wadsworth; Trinity Reformed church, Mrs. Cornelius Schenck; First Presbyterian church, Mrs. James Petrie; First Baptist church, Mrs. Alex. Gilbert; Seventh Day Baptist church, Mrs. I. N. Van Sickle; Park Avenue Baptist church, Mrs. J. W. Richardson; St. Stephen's church, Mrs. Constantine Ralli; Grace M. E. church, Mrs. Herbert Randolph; Friends, Miss Minnie G. Wood. The reports were then read. The report of the secretary, Miss Hunter, was a very interesting one, and gave a complete account of the work accomplished during the year, in the meetings as well as out. The treasurer's report showed that $577.42 had been received during the year. Several letters were read, describing the work in Paris. "Tithe Gleaners," a novel method of securing subscriptions, were distributed to the vice-presidents.

CHORAL CONCERT TOMORROW NIGHT

The Programme and the Assisting Artists.

The principal events in the local musical circles are the concert of the Plainfield Choral Society, of which the second takes place tomorrow night at Music Hall. The large chorus will, as usual, have for its conductor Edward J. Fitzhugh, who is so well known in this city. The other artists who will assist are Mlle. Szumowska, pianiste, the only pupil of Paderewski; Miss Grace Haskell, soprano; Miss Jessie Utter and William E. MacClymont, accompanists.

The programme will be:

—Superintendent W. H. Peddle, of the Central Railroad, has written to Street Commissioner R. A. Meeker, that he will have an awning erected under the Liberty street railroad brigde, such as have been placed under the other bridges in the city.

A SUCCESSFUL ORGAN RECITAL.

W. E. MacClymont Gave His Fourteenth Recital Last Night.

A delightful evening of music was provided for all those who attended William E. MacClymont's fourteenth free organ recital, given in the First Presbyterian church, last evening. A goodly number were present, and all enjoyed Mr. MacClymont's well rendered selections. He was assisted by Miss Katherine Douglas Glen, soprano, who is well known as the soloist in the First Presbyterian church choir. Her solos were all given with an excellence that bespoke culture and training.

The programme was as follows:

Wedding Music ("Messe de Marriage"). Th. Dubois
(Composed for a wedding ceremony at La-Madeleine, Paris.)
Entree du Cortege.
Benediction Nuptiale.

The young men, who kindly served as ushers, were William Coriell, Edward Petrie and Fred J. Bettman.

A DOUBLE FUNERAL.

Going Home, One of the Pall Bearers Was Badly Injured.

A double funeral took place at the Stony Hill Roman Catholic church Monday morning. The services were held over the remains of Louis Myers, who died last Friday, and of Andrew Herbert, who died Saturday. They were both residents of Stony Hill and the funeral services were largely attended. Father Miller, of St. Joseph's church, North Plainfield, officiated. The interment was made in Stony Hill Cemetery.

John Hess, one of the pall bearers, while returning home was knocked down and run over by a horse owned by John Machasoni, which had broken away. The injured man was carried to his home and Dr. Wescott was summoned. The physician found several bruises on the patient's body and his face was badly cut where he struck on the sharp stones in the roadway.

He complained of a severe pain in his right side, but Dr. Wescott could not tell whether he was hurt internally or not.

BUSINESS AND SOCIABILITY.

Christian Endeavorers Meet, Transact Business and Enjoy Themselves.

A business meeting and committee conference of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church was held in the lecture room of the church last night. The reports of committees were made showing the progress of the last two months.

An interesting letter was read from Miss Barrows, a teacher in India, to whom the society sends $25 annually. The committees then retired for a short conference, after which an informal social was held. A vocal solo by Mrs. H. E. Rider, a piano solo by Miss Cora Richardson, and a novel question contest made up the programme. In the latter each person was given a list of fifteen questions on the constitution of the society. There were fifteen others who each had one of the answers. The object was to answer the question or to find the one having the answer. At the end the answers were read aloud in concert.

Refreshments concluded the evening's pleasure and, although the attendance was not very large owing to the unpleasant weather, everyone went home much pleased with the meeting and sociable.

The social committee that arranged the latter part of the meeting consisted of Miss Alice Spangenberg, H. E. Rider, Miss Mary Giles and Miss Annie Wyckoff.

Not to be Trifled With.

(From Cincinnati Gazette.)

Will people ever learn that a "cold" is an accident to be dreaded, and that when it occurs treatment should be promptly applied? There is no knowing where the trouble will end; and while complete recovery is the rule, the exceptions are terribly frequent, and thousands upon thousands of fatal illnesses occur every year ushered in by a little injudicious exposure and seemingly trifling systems. Beyond this, there are today countless invalids who can trace their complaints to "colds," which at the time of occurrence gave no concern, and were therefore neglected.—When troubled with a cold use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is prompt and effectual. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue, T. S. Armstrong Manager.

A CHARMING WEDDING.

MISS CROSLEY AND REV. MR. SCUDDER UNITED IN MARRIAGE.

The Event Took Place in the First M. E. Church and Was Largely Attended —A Delightful Reception Followed.

It was a very large assemblage that witnessed the marriage of Miss Janet Bullock Crosley, daughter of Justice and Mrs. T. R. Crosley, of 62 Duer street, to Rev. Charles Elmer Scudder, of Newark, last evening, in the First Methodist Episcopal church.

The pulpit platform was neatly decorated with large palms, behind which was seated the organist, Albert Pangborn, who rendered a pleasing programme while the guests were arriving.

At 7:30 the ever-popular notes of Lohengrin's wedding march were heard, and the bridal party entered.

First came the ushers, Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, of Plainfield; Rev. W. W. Winans, Rev. Robert Elliott, Rev. Frank McDaniels, of Drew Theological Seminary; Rev. Alfred Evans, of Newark; and Rev. Harry J. Johnson, of Cranford.

They were followed by the flower girls, Nellie Valiant and Mabie May Garey, gowned in pink and carrying bouquets of white roses. Then came the maid of honor, Miss Clara Hancock, of Trenton. She was exquisitely gowned in white silk faille, with pearl trimmings, and gracefully carried a bouquet of pink roses. The bride, accompanied by her father, followed, gowned in white silk, with pearl trimmings en train. The conventional tulle veil and wreath of orange blossoms were worn, while a handsome bouquet of bridal roses was carried.

When the bridal party reached the altar they were met by the groom, and best man, Rev. Arthur Scudder, of Wakefield, R. I., brother of the groom, Rev. Dr. C. R. Barnes, and Rev. Dr. Tuttle, of Roseville.

The party formed about the altar. The service of the Episcopal church was used, Dr. Barnes officiating, assisted by Dr. Tuttle, who offered prayer.

After the ceremony Mendelssohn's wedding march was rendered while the bridal party retired from the church. As they passed down the aisle, the bride and groom bowed pleasantly to their many friends. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents on Duer street, where a number of friends gathered to congratulate the newly wedded couple. During the evening supper was served, and genuine sociability reigned supreme.

An exceedingly large collection of the most costly and useful presents were received as tokens of esteem.

Mr. and Mrs. Scudder left on the 10 o'clock train for a short wedding trip and upon their return will reside in Newark, where the members of Mr. Scudder's congregation have furnished a parsonage for himself and bride. They also made him a present of a purse of money.

Among the guests present at the house were: Miss Ida May Stull, Raritan; John Lewis Laing, William Laing, Brooklyn; Mrs. Amanda Wolcott, Mr. and Mrs. William Wolcott, Mrs. E. Mickle, Mrs. Kate Cain, Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. Cook, Rahway; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Scudder, parents of the groom, Roxbury, N. Y; Miss Minnie Vosburg, Newark; Rev. Arthur H. Scudder, Wakefield, R. I; J. O. Scudder, New York University; Dr. and Mrs. Tuttle, Roseville; Dr. and Mrs. H. K. Carroll, Misses Alice and Grace Carroll, Mr. and Mrs. Garey, Mrs. Most, Mrs. Valiant, Ex-Mayor and Mrs. H. E. Needham, J. P. Humble, Mr. and Mrs. William Shotwell, Mrs. Homan, Miss Mary E. Laing, Miss Snyder, Miss Gertrude Sharp, Mrs. James Love, Miss Love, Robert Love, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Cornwell, J. A. Greene, Chief Marshall and Mrs. J. W. VanHorn, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Olssen, and Miss Humble.

An interesting incident was the presence of Mrs. Cook, of Rahway, who was bridemaid for Mrs. T. R. Crosley when she was married.

The groom is pastor of the Montgomery M. E. church, Newark, and is very popular.

Simon S. Hartman, of Tunnelton, West Va., has been subject to attacks of colic about once a year, and would have to call a doctor and then suffer for about twelve hours as much as some do when they die. He was taken recently just the same as at other times, and concluded to try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He says: "I took one dose of it and it gave me relief in five minutes. That is more than anything else has ever done for me. For sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

EXCITEMENT IN ITALY

The Whole Country Shaken over the Defeat in Abyssinia.

MINISTRY EXPECTED TO RESIGN

Details of Sunday's Battle Not Yet Received, But Rumors Place the Italian Loss at 3,000 Killed—Baratieri a Suicide?

Rome, March 4.—The Italian campaign against the Abyssinians threatens to become one of the most disastrous in which the Italian arms have ever taken part, and what the final outcome will be it would be hard to predict. It was rumored last night that the latest defeat of the Italians by the forces of King Menelik had compelled the ministry to resign owing to the popular disapproval of the government's policy, but to-day this report is denied. Details received here to-day of the defeat of the Italian army show that the Italian losses were very heavy, they being placed by some at 3,000 killed. It is still impossible to ascertain the precise losses, but popular opinion credits the report that the number of killed is not overstated. Among the dead are Gen. Albertone, commander of the left brigade, and Gen Dabormida, commander of the right brigade. The news of this lastest disaster has caused the greatest excitement throughout Italy, and the opposition party is taking advantage of it to make violent attacks upon the government's policy in attempting to extend the sphere of Italian influence in Abyssinia.

Ministry Denounced.

The scenes in the streets are very exciting, the populace being greatly incensed against the government. Denunciations of the ministry is heard on every hand. The pope is greatly disturbed by the news. He has ordered the suspension of the Te Deum, and also the diplomatic banquet that was to be given in connection with the anniversary of his coronation. A meeting of the cabinet was summoned immediately upon the receipt of the news of the Italian reverse. The ministers met at midnight and sat in closed session until late in the morning discussing the situation. They will meet the chamber of deputies to-day and make a statement regarding the position of affairs and their intentions. A persistent rumor circulates that the cabinet will retire. King Humbert has had interviews with Prime Minister Crispi and Signor Farini, president of the senate. The subjects discussed at the interview were presumably the Italian defeat and the course to be pursued by the government, but what, if any, decision was arrived at is unknown.

Fight Lasted All Day.

The latest report of Sunday's battle says that Gen. Baratieri, governor of Erythrea and at present commander of the Italian forces operating against the Abyssinians, made an attack on the latter on Sunday. The reserve Italian force took possession of the passes leading to Adowa without any opposition from the enemy. This force was commanded by Gen. Ellina. Gen. Albertone, with four batallions of native levies and four mountain batteries, then engaged the Abyssinians, but was soon overcome by overwhelming odds and was forced to retreat. Gen. Arimondi, the commander of the centre brigade, was ordered to cover the retreat of the left brigade, but his position was such that he was prevented from carrying the order out. In the meantime the Abyssinians, flushed with success, made an energetic attack upon the whole Italian front and enveloped both wings. The Italians made desperate resistance, but could not withstand the attack, and finally orders were given for them to fall back. Their positions were speedily abandoned. The fighting lasted all day. Gen. Baratieri with the wounded, Gen. Ellina and his command, together with the men under Gen. Arimondi retired to Adecajo, 100 kilometres from Adowa.

Italians Lose Many Guns.

Since Gen. Baratieri returned to Abyssinia from his visit to Rome, on which occasion he was decorated with the order of the Red Eagle by Emperor William, his conduct of the campaign has been very harshly criticized in certain military circles. His decision to break his line in this last battle and the tactics subsequently pursued by him are regarded by military experts here as inexplicable. The Italians are said to have lost sixty guns and all their provisions. Even the government acknowledges that when Gen. Baratieri was compelled to order his army to retreat from the positions held by it he was forced to abandon many of the guns. The nature of the country prevented the guns from being used against the enemy and later prevented the Italians from taking them with them in their retreat. These, of course, have fallen into the hands of the Abyssinians, who will undoubtedly use them against their former owners. The captured guns will enormously aid the artillery forces of the Abyssinians, already a factor that has had to be taken into account by the Italians. The situation is regarded as being so serious that the government has called out all the reserves of 1872. Every effort will be made to hasten the dispatch of reinforcements to Abyssinia. Orders have been issued for all the available transport steamers to assemble at Naples on Saturday next for the purpose of taking on board troops for immediate dispatch to Massowah.

Report of Baratieri's Suicide.

Gen. Baldissera, who was recently appointed to succeed Gen. Baratieri in the chief command of the Italian forces in Abyssinia, has arrived at Massowah. It is reported that Gen. Baratieri's attack upon the Abyssinians Sunday was the result of his desire to make a grand military coup and rehabilitate his reputation before he was superseded by Gen. Baldissera. Among the many reports current to-day is one to the effect that Gen. Baratieri had committed suicide, being unable to endure the humiliation of his defeat.

Second Serious Defeat.

This is the second crushing defeat that the Abyssinians have inflicted upon the Italians since the latter attempted to extend their power in the domain of King Menelik. About three months ago five companies of Italian troops, under command of Maj. Tosselli, were surprised and surrounded by a force of 20,000 Abyssinians. The Italians made a desperate resistance and fought until their ammunition was exhausted, when the Abyssinians charged upon them and massacred nearly the whole force. Fourteen Italian officers and over 700 men were killed. Only a small number of Italians succeeded in breaking through the beleaguering lines and making their escape to Makalle. Subsequently the Abyssinians besieged Makalle, and after practically reducing it allowed the garrison to evacuate the place with their arms and baggage. Afterward several minor engagements were fought, with varying success, until Sunday, when the Abyssinians inflicted another and worse defeat upon the combined Italian forces.

Many Rumors Current.

Among the many rumors current today is one saying that the cabinet tendered their resignations to King Humbert, but that his majesty refused to accept them. Another says that Gen. Baratieri will be recalled from Abyssinia and tried by a court martial. Military experts regard the retreat of the Italians as worse than their defeat, they having abandoned more than 100 miles of territory. It is uncertain whether they still hold Adigrat. A late dispatch from Massowah states that Gen. Arimondi is also missing.

FOUR KNOWN TO BE DEAD.

Sixty Families Rendered Homeless by Utica's Flat House Fire.

Utica, N. Y., March 4.—The occupants of the Genesee flats, which were burned yesterday, numbered 170, composing sixty families. The building was worth $120,000. Four persons are known to have lost their lives in the fire, and it is feared that two other persons, and possibly more, perished. The names of the dead are: Mrs. Hugh Hughes, aged 70, killed by falling from a fourth-story window while being lowered to the ground by a rope; Mrs. George Wood, aged 45 years, a niece of the late Gov. Seymour, and her daughter Mary, aged 15, and Noble Hopkins, aged 69. The bodies of the three last named are in the ruins. The search for these and any other bodies that may be buried in the debris begun this morning.

M'CLEARY GUILTY.

Convicted of Counterfeiting Quarters and Five-cent Pieces.

Philadelphia, March 4.—A verdict of guilty was rendered in the United States district court yesterday in the case of John S. McCleary, who was charged with making counterfeit quarters and 5-cent pieces. McCleary was engaged in making the spurious coin with aged Wm. Creger at North Wales, Pa. Sentence was deferred. Creger died recently in prison while awaiting trial.

New York Team Sails for Florida.

New York, March 4.—The Clyde line steamship Comanche, which sailed last evening for Jacksonville, took away the members of the New York baseball team for their preliminary season. On their arrival at Jacksonville the men will be divided into two teams and will play regular games. They will begin on Monday next.

Ex-President Harrison's Marriage.

New York, March 4.—The report that ex-President Harrison had announced that his marriage to Mrs. Dimmick would take place on April 12 could not be verified this morning, as the ex-president could not be seen at the Fifth Avenue hotel.

Special Assembly Election.

New York, March 4.—The special election in the Seventeenth assembly district yesterday resulted in the election of Francis J. Goodman, democrat, who received 2,170 votes, against 1,107 for Lewis J. Cook, republican.

$40,000,000 IS SAVED

The Government Benefitted by a Supreme Court Decision.

ABOUT 10,000 CLAIMANTS AFFECTED

The Question of What Constitutes a State of Amity Between the United States and an Indian Tribe. The Matter Decided.

Washington, March 4.—Decisions have just been rendered in the United States supreme court which save the government from paying out fully $20,000,000, and which involve questions of importance, not only to the government, but to several thousand claimants. The cases referred to were those of Marks against the United States and the Bannock Indians, and Leighton against the United States and the Ogallalla Sioux trible. These cases, together with the case of Johnson against the United States and the Utes, affect between four and five thousand claims pending against the government at Washington in the court of claims for Indian depredations. They involved the question of what constitutes a state of amity between the United States and an Indian tribe. In the act of 1891 transferring the jurisdiction of all these Indian depredations claims to the court of claims, provision was made for allowed claims to go to judgment unless the claimants or the attorney-general elected to reopen the cases to the same defenses that other cases were subject to. The supreme court declared that the phrase "in amity with the United States" was not the equivalent of treaty relations. In Leighton's case the court held that, as the claimant elected to reopen the case on the facts, he could not qualify his election, and that, when the case was reopened on the facts, the government had the right to consider it reopened on the law. The effect of the decision in Leighton's case is that the same defenses are applicable in other reopened cases, which will now be thrown out. The amount sought to be covered by the 10,000 cases now on file is something over $40,000,000.

RELEASE OF THE BERMUDA.

The Government Abandons Its Claim Against the Alleged Filibuster Steamer.

New York, March 4.—The United States government has abandoned all claim of right to detain the alleged filibustering steamship Bermuda and the lighter J. S. T. Stanahan and their cargoes, excepting in the case of the explosives found upon the latter which, it is alleged, were packed in boxes not marked as required by law. United States District Attorney Macfarlane instructed Marshal McCarthy to this effect and the latter at once took steps to turn over the vessel and other property to the Cubans. The $4,000 in silver taken from the Bermuda was taken on board that vessel and returned to the place from which it had been taken, and charts, instruments and other articles were also put where they were found, the purpose being to restore the vessel and contents to their exact condition at the time of the seizure. So this morning the Bermuda is free from all detention. Lawyer E. R. Olcott, who represents Gen. Garcia and his associates, who are awaiting examination on a charge of having violated the neutrality laws, said to-day that the seizure of the explosives upon the J. S. T. Stranahan would be contested upon the claim that the boxes had been properly marked. The case will come up in the United States court March 17.

EURLINGTON, VT., ELECTION.

The Vote of One Woman Elects a Democratic School Commissioner.

Burlington, Vt., March 4.—In the municipal election yesterday judge H. S. Peck, the republican candidate for mayor, was elected by eight plurality over ex-Minister Hazleton. The republicans elected by a good majority four of the five aldermen while the democrats elected the two school commissioners, giving the democrats control of the school board. In the first ward the democratic candidate for commissioner was elected by one plurality and this vote was cast by the wife of the democratic candidate for alderman, she being the only lady in the city to vote.

Confirmed by the Senate.

Washington, March 4.—The senate in executive session confirmed the following nominations: Samuel H. Keedy of New York to be consul at Greenoble, France. Postmasters—Connecticut—Adam Uhl, Montowese; Charles Harrington, Essex. New York—Mary Kate Cleveland, Waterville; S. Henry Van Dyck, Coxsackie; L. W. Young, Bay Shore; Christopher Whitney, Franklinville.

Your Spring Clothing

Rather early to speak of it, but if it needs cleaning or dyeing, it isn't too early to have us do that work for you. This is our dull season—our employes are here ready for work. We'd like to have your goods now. We can give them better attention than in the rush of the spring season. Then we'll have to have more time or rush them at the expense of good work. Now we can take our time, do the work better than if hurried and you'll have the clothing all ready for warm weather.

Look in the closet or trunk and find your spring wear that needs cleaning and dyeing and bring it to us now, or better still, our wagon will call for it if you will send us word.

TO AID MISSIONARIES

Presbyterian Church Opens Its Campaign in New York.

A VERY LARGELY ATTENDED MEETING

President Cleveland and Rev. Dr. Talmage Among Those Who Addressed the Assemblage—Other Meetings To Be Held at Numerous Cities.

New York, March 4.—The opening gun of a big home mission campaign was fired last night at Carnegie hall by the Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian church. The announcement that President Cleveland was to preside at the meeting brought an immense audience to the hall. The object of the rally is to stir up public interest in the work of home missions and to raise funds for completing payments on the new building of the society in Fifth avenue. The meeting last night is the first of a series of meetings which will be held all over the United States. Shortly after 8 o'clock President Cleveland appeared upon the platform. The moment the president was seen the audience rose up and cheered wildly for a few minutes. The face of the president flushed as he heard the cheering and he bowed his acknowledgments to the audience. There was another burst of applause when the Rev. Dr. John Hall introduced President Cleveland as the presiding officer of the meeting in a brief speech.

The President's Remarks.

President Cleveland then spoke, in part, as follows:

"I desire to express my appreciation of the privilege of participating in this conference and of the opportunity thus afforded me of testifying to the value and usefulness of the work undertaken by the board of home missions of the Presbyterian church. My interest in this subject and my familiarity with home missionary efforts are not newly acquired. They early came to me in the surroundings of a Christian Presbyterian home, and were stimulated by a father's faithful labors in the cause. Not only as your fellow-citizen, but as the chief executive officer of the government, I desire to speak, for I am entirely certain that I serve well our entire people, whose servant I am, when I here testify to the benefit our country has received through the home missionary effort, and when I join you in an attempt to extend and strengthen that effort. No one charged with the duties and responsibilities which necessarily weigh upon your chief executive can fail to appreciate the importance of religious teaching and Christian endeavor in the newly settled portion of our vast domain. If we turn from the objects of home missionary labor to the situation of those actually toiling in distant fields, for God and humanity and a purer, better citizenship, our sympathy with their work must be further quickened and our sense of duty to them and their cause actively stimulated. These are the men and women who have left home and the association of friends under the direction of organized mission boards to teach Christianity in sparsely settled sections and to organize churches where none exist, enduring discomfort, hardship, poverty and danger for the sake of a cause to which in a very comfortable and inexpensive way we profess to be attached. These are our soldiers at the front, fighting our battles, and we who stay at home cannot escape the duty of providing for them and reinforcing them in every way if we are to continue them in our service." The president's remarks were heartily applauded. He was followed by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage and other speakers. The ushers took up the collection, after which President Cleveland introduced Booker T. Washington, principal of Tuskogee institute, Alabama, as the last speaker. The amount of the collection was not announced.

City Elections in New York State.

Albany, March 4.—City and town elections were held yesterday at a number of places in this state. Elmira re-elected a democratic mayor by a reduced majority. The town elections in Dutchess county resulted in republican victories, seventeen out of nineteen towns eleting republican supervisors. Dunkirk elected a democratic mayor by a majority of 157. At Hornellsville the anti-Platt republicans cut their tickets and the result was the election of a democratic mayor. The city is usually republican.

Loss Estimated at $200,000.

New Britain, Conn., March 4.—The loss sustained by the burning of the polishing shop of Russell & Erwin works last night is now estimated at about $300,000. The burned portion is of such great importance in the works that little business can be done until it is restored. In the rooms burned seventy-five hands were thrown out of employment.

New Brighton Woman's Club.

Albany, March 4.—The Woman's club of New Brighton, Richmond county, N. Y., with principal office in New Brighton, has been incorporated. The objects are mutual sympathy and counsel and united efforts in philanthropic and intellectual work, and to assist in developing a higher political and sanitary standard.

Big Hosiery Mill Burned.

Bristol, Pa., March 4.—The loss by the burning of the Providence Hosiery mill yesterday is now estimated at $125,000, but this is fully covered by insurance. About 400 hands are thrown out of work by the fire.

Treasury Gold Reserve.

Washington, March 4.—The treasury gold reserve at the opening of business to-day stood at $124,397,292.

A SENSATIONAL ANSWER.

Wisconsin Central Railroad Claims $45,000,000 Worth of Bonds Null and Void.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 4.—The Wisconsin Central Railroad company late yesterday afternoon filed a sensational answer to the foreclosure suits of the Farmers' Loan & Trust company in the Northern Pacific case, claiming that all of the mortgages on the Northern Pacific property are null and void, and that the bonds issued under them are virtually worthless. The amount of bonds issued under these mortgages is over $45,000,000. This claim is based upon the fact that in the act of congress granting the Northern Pacific its charter, the issuance of mortgages by the company was expressly forbidden unless the consent of congress had been obtained. The company secured consent to issue construction bonds, but the lien created in this way was shortly after satisfied. All the mortgages issued since that time are claimed to have been issued without the consent of congress.

J. B. DAY'S NEW POSITION.

He Will Look After the Interests of the Minor Baseball Leagues.

Washington, March 4.—John B. Day, ex-president of the New York Baseball club, has accepted an offer tendered him by president N. E. Young of the National league to look after the interests of the minor leagues that come under the national agreement, his position being styled agent of the national board. A good salary goes with the position together with expenses incurred in traveling. Mr. Day's duties will be to see that the benefits from protection under the national agreement are strictly understood by all minor leagues, and he will endeavor to ally them with the big league. He will also assist the national board in classifying the minor leagues according to population.

HAS PROBABLY RESIGNED.

The Rumor Regarding Consul General Williams Generally Believed.

Washington, March 4.—The report that Ramon O. Williams had tendered his resignation as United States consul general at Havana cannot be confirmed officially, but it is understood, on excellent authority, that it is true that the letter of resignation was delivered at the state department within the past three days. The desire of Mr. Williams to withdraw from the consular service at this critical aspect of the relations of Spain and the United States is somewhat surprising.

MONEY IN CIRCULATION.

Equally Divided, the Per Capita Amount Would Be $21.59.

Washington, March 4.—The circulation of all kinds of money in the United States decreased during the month of February $60,978,550, of which $53,969,095 was in gold. This large decrease is due to the money having been paid into the treasury on the bond account. The total of all kinds of money in circulation on March 1 is placed at $1,528,742,057, or $21.59 per capita.

GOV. GREENHALGE VERY LOW.

His Death Was Expected This Morning at Any Moment.

Lowell, Mass., March 4.—Early this morning Gov. Greenhalge was reported to be very low. Death may occur at any moment.

Denial by Ambassador Pauncefote.

Washington, March 4.—With reference to the report that the British ambassador and the Venezuelan minister at this capital have entered into direct negotiations for the so-called Uruan incident, Sir Julian Pauncefote is authority for the statement that he has entered into no negotiations with Venezuela's representative on any subject, nor has he had any instructions regarding any Uruan incident. Minister Andrade is also officially unaware of the existence of any so-called Uruan incident, and is at a loss to account for the invention thus set afloat.

Flood at Middletown, Conn.

Middletown, Conn., March 4.—This morning the river was nineteen feet above high water mark and still rising. It is level with the second story of buildings on the river bank and the families had to leave. Mills and factories are closed. The water is freezing, and if the ice continues it will lift houses off their foundations along the river.

Strike Against Reduction of Wages.

Pawtucket, R. I., March 4.—The round-head bolt makers at the Pawtucket company's works have struck on account of a reduction of one cent a thousand. The works are in full blast and the strike makes bad work in filling orders. From wages of $12 to $15 a week, the reduction is to a scale of from $9 to $11.50.

Mayor Strong Will Not Review the Parade.

New York, March 4.—Mayor Strong has refused to review the St. Patrick's day parade on account of ill-health. He also declined an invitation to the banquet, stating that he had a previous engagement. The mayor refused to review the parade last year.

Bill Against Boxing.

Boston, March 4.—The legislative committee on the judiciary has reported a bill to the house, providing for a penalty of $200 or imprisonment for six months, for promoting or engaging in a boxing match where any pecuniary reward is offered.

President Withdraws a Nomination.

Washington, March 4.—The nomination of James H. Mulligan of Kentucky to be consul of the United States at Cape Town, Africa, sent to the senate February 26, has been withdrawn by the president.

AID OFFERED TO SPAIN

Money and Assistance Ready in Case of War.

WILL RESENT YANKEE AGGRESSION

Sympathy from the Outside Largely Influenced by Capitalists Who Hold Securities of No Value If the Cubans Are Successful.

Madrid, March 4.—The government has received a number of offers of pecuniary and other aid in the event of a war with the United States growing out of the attitude of the latter on the Cuban question. The people appear to be determined to uphold the government in its intention to keep Cuba a Spanish colony no matter at what cost. The cabinet is greatly encouraged by the attitude of the continental press, which, generally speaking, expresses much sympathy with Spain in her determination to resent what is termed Yankee aggression. One important factor in the support accorded the government, which is sedulously kept in the background, is that Cuban debentures and other securities depending for their value upon the income derived from Cuba are held to a large amount by foreign capitalists. With a free Cuba these securities would be practically worthless and this accounts in a very great measure for the attitude of many of the foreign newspapers, which speak not so much because they believe that the United States have any ulterior motive in recognizing the Cubans as belligerents as because they are defending the financial interests of capitalists of their own countries.

War Preparations Active.

In Spain itself, however, the support of the government is due to pure patriotism. Among the offers of assistance the government has received is one from the Spanish Transatlantic company, which has offered to place its entire fleet of steamships at the disposal of the government, making no conditions whatever. The offer was accepted, and eight of the steamers will be armed with from nine to twelve centimetre guns. Compressed sawdust will be used as protection for the guns. If events shall necessitate such action these vessels will be used as cruisers and privateers. The government has ordered that large quantities of coal be stored in Cuba for the use of the warships. Military preparations are being hastily but systematically made. Orders have been issued for the dispatch to Cuba of reinforcements from the Balearic, Canary and Philippine islands.

Demonstration of Students.

Three hundred students at the university attempted last night to make a demonstration. A number of workingmen joined them. The rector of the university took prompt action to restore order and caused the arrest of fifty of the more demonstrative of the crowd. They were soon liberated upon promising to behave themselves. The police arrested two of the workingmen. The day was otherwise peaceful. Many of the shops of the city on which were American names have taken the precaution to have them effaced, fearing that in the present unsettled state of the public temper, the names would invite an attack.

Weyler Needs No More Troops.

It is reported that Gen. Weyler has telegraphed to the minister of war stating that he does not require the 25,000 reinforcements that the government has offered to send to him. The report that Weyler had resigned or had been recalled is officially denied.

The Situation in Cuba.

Havana, March 4.—Gen. Aldecoa reports two engagements near the town of Nazareno with fifteen hundred rebels. The latter were put to flight in both battles and left one dead and carried away corpses of many others. The Spaniards' loss was one lieutenant killed and four soldiers wounded. Other light engagements are reported. Milkmen in the province of Havana have been prevented by the rebels from sending supplies to the city. The prices of eggs, fruit and vegetables are also advancing. Rego's band has burned the town of Mandinga in the province of Santa Clara.

Water Subsiding at Nashua.

Nashua, N. H., March 4.—The water in the Merrimac river here is subsiding. Danger to brdges is passed excepting that of the Boston & Maine in the rear of its shops over the Nashua river. There is an immense field of ice at this point and dynamite was exploded yesterday to prevent too great pressure on the bridge. Train service is badly demoralized. The floods have done much damage here.

Protest Against a Butler Statue.

Boston, March 4.—In the house yesterday afternoon remonstrances against the erection of a statue to Gen. B. F. Butler were received signed by fifty or more citizens, including George C. Lee, Henry Lee, Francis W. Lee, John C. Ropes, Francis I. Amory, C. W. Amory, Charles P. Curtis, F. S. Nichols, G. L. Peabody, Gamiel Bradford, William S. Dexter, Henry K. White and A. C. Wheelwright.

Southern States Exposition Company.

Chicago, March 4.—The articles of incorporation of the Southern States Exposition company which is to manage the local end of the exposition of southern resources and manufactures in this city next fall, has been filed in the office of the secretary of state at Springfield.

"Pop" Davis Trial Nearing the End.

Elizabethtown, N. Y., March 4.—The trial of William Howard Davis, alias "Pop" Davis, for the murder of George Tankard, will probably go to the jury this afternoon.

COMING EVENTS.

Announcements of all meetings, etc., will be made in this column, free of charge, if copy is furnished by 10 a. m.

March 6—Lecture of Mrs. Florence Howe Hall at the home of Mrs. E C. Perkins, 723 Central avenue, at 3 p. m.

March 10—Lecture by Miss Elizabeth Yates, of Maine.

The success and enthusiasm of the Board of Trade dinner in Elizabeth the other night, says the New York Press, has caused Plainfield to prick up her ears. Her local organization seems to be in need of progressiveness and her newspapers are digging at it, with Elizabeth as an inspiring example. Both Elizabeth and Plainfield might take Paterson as an example, and Paterson can look on up to Newark.

Irving I. Ross, the local editor of The Union County Standard, and for the past three years, Township Clerk of Westfield, has been promptly renominated by the Democratic party for another term. Mr. Ross is popular with both parties. At the last election he received one of the largest majorities ever given to a candidate for the position, despite the fact that the township had at the time a large Republican majority. He has discharged the duties of his office in an able manner, always supplying information to his fellowtownsmen with an intelligence and impartiality that have earned him general confidence and respect. With the township officers he is highly esteemed as a valuable co-worker, and he will doubtless have their support at the coming election. Mr. Ross is secretary of the Fire Department, and a member of the Hook and Ladder Company, having been foreman of the company for two years; he is also a member of the Odd Fellows, Foresters, Westfield Club and several other organizations. It will be strange if Mr. Ross, with these forces behind him, and in view of his splendid record before the town, does not go in with a whirl. He has the good wishes of The Daily Press, and it trusts that he will be retained in his official relation, as he so well deserves to be.

ENTERTAINED AT WHIST.

Miss Marguerite Yerkes Gives a Party in Honor of a Friend.

An informal whist party was given by Miss Marguerite Yerkes last evening, at her home on Central avenue, in honor of her friend, Miss Karline Ashbridge, of Philadelphia. Whist occupied the attention of the guests for the first part of the evening, after which dainty refreshments were served. The rest of the evening passed pleasantly with music and conversation. Handsome prizes were given to the winners at whist. Miss Lulu Patton and Fred G. Smith won the first prizes. The second prizes were awarded to Miss Lulu French and Frank Randolph. The consolation prizes were won by Miss Martha Covert and Harry Benedict.

Those present besides the prize winners and the hostess were the Misses Delphine Bowers, Sallye Swayze, Karline Ashbridge, Mr. and Mrs. Silas Yerkes, and Messrs. George Fuller, George Stirling, Harry Maxson, Gilmore Drayton and Harry Patton.

A little excitement and lots of fun was caused by the explosion of a tube of ether in the hands of one of the young ladies.

Scotch Plains.

Several alterations are being made in the Scotch Plains Baptist church. The interior partitions are being moved so that the lecture room will be enlarged and the main room of the church made somewhat smaller.

The registry board met yesterday. The residents of Fanwood were in a quandary over the question of registering. Fanwood is not a borough according to a recent decision, and the residents, therefore, have to register and vote here, or not at all.

Was Known in Plainfield.

Mrs. Sarah C. Firman, of Newtown, Pa., was struck by a train and instantly killed last week near her home. She was the first cousin of Robert H. Cook, of Rockview avenue, and Alfred Cook, of East Seventh street, and was well known in North Plainfield. Mrs. Silas Yerkes, of Central avenue, was another first cousin and returned to this city yesterday from Newtown, where she went to attend the funeral.

THEATRICAL.

Of all the works, which Paul M. Potter has been the dramatizer of, his "Trilby" is the greatest. It is great in more senses than one. It is great in that he has outdone Du Maurier, the author of the great novel. He has done his work well. He has never reached a higher plane of excellence. He was in perfect accord with Du-Maurier, caught absolutely the spirit of the book, knew thoroughly the characters and made not a mistake in presenting them in action. His dramatization is unique in the sense that he departs slightly from the author in making "Trilby" leave "Little Billee," not in a self-sacrificing way or because she promised to do so, but because she wants to. He puts the heroine completely under the mesmeric influence of "Svengali," and, if anything, by so doing improves the development of the plot. Considering the fact that A. H. Palmer has put one of his greatest companies in the piece, and that it is superbly staged by William A. Brady, it should prove to be the most memorable production ever seen at Music Hall where it will be presented on Friday night, March 6th, with A. M. Palmer's great company, under the direction of William A. Brady.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

The undersigned hereby gives notice that he has sold the Drug Business so long conducted by him under the style of Reynolds' Pharmacy to Mr. Thomas S. Armstrong for many years in his employ as manager of said business. The sale dates from March 1, and comprises stock, fixtures, book accounts and notes—Mr. Armstrong being duly authorized to receive and acknowledge payment of all dues and assuming all outstanding liabilities.

In retiring from a business which he has successfully conducted for twenty eight years the undersigned would very sincerely acknowledge the favor and kindness shown to him by the community in which he has lived; and he asks for his successor—already well known to the public—a continuance of the same favor and kindness.

HOWARD PRESCOTT REYNOLDS.

Plainfield, March 2, 1896.

As above stated, I have purchased the Drug Business known as Reynold's Pharmacy, so long under my management; and I would hereby respectfully ask a continuance of the confidence and patronage of the Plainfield public

CYCLING COMMENT.

Mrs. E. P. Thorn is one of the latest to ride a Crescent.

Among those who will ride the Cleveland racer, model 24, is Fred Hargraves.

The F. L. C. Martin Company yesterday shipped three Cleveland wheels to Lakewood.

J. S. Schoonmaker has purchased a '96 Cleveland model 22, from the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Co.

Charles Grieb is now employed as a machinist for the Keer & Martin Cycle Company, of Newark.

Charles Overbaugh has accepted a position as machinist in the shop of the F. L. C. Martin Company.

It is reported that the Manhattan Beach bicycle track has been badly damaged by the winter weather.

Frank Fulton, the gentlemanly night clerk at Leggett's pharmacy, has ordered a '96 Columbia wheel.

Geo. O. Stevens, Plainfield's popular coal dealer, is riding a Cleveland, model 22, purchased from the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company.

One of the most common parts of a bicycle to be bent or otherwise damaged is the pedal. Every time the safety falls over, no matter how easily, that part is subjected to a severe strain. The pedal spindle or crank usually suffers and is bent, preventing the pedal from revolving easily or not at all, and a tool to straighten it fills a long felt want. A patent for such a tool has been applied for by E. C. Higgins, of Bayonne. The instrument is small, and is constructed of malleable iron with brass bearings. It is so made that the bent spindle is self-centred and is forced back into shape by a powerful screw working in a sliding nut which allows the power to be applied to any part of the spindle. The end of the screw, touching the spindle, is provided with a soft steel head attached by a ball and socket joint and does not move when power is applied, thus avoiding injury to the spindle. The tool has been in practical use for several months and has proved very successful.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

Wheaton S. Lowry now holds the record for the head pin game at the Crescent Wheelmen's alleys. Last night he rolled 113 out of a possible 120.

The head-pin game is becoming quite a favorite among the bowlers of the State. The Atlanta Wheelmen, of Newark, have just completed a head-pin tournament.

President C. P. Russ, of the Central Journal League, has instructed Secretary Darvell to issue calls for a meeting of the executive committee of the league on Friday evening next at the E. A. C. club-house. The object of the meeting is to award the several prizes, including the trophy offered by the Elizabeth Journal.

The Catholic Club of this city and the Y. M. C. L. A. of Elizabeth tried conclusions at bowling on the former's alleys last night. The Catholic Club were not in it at any stage of the game. The Catholic Club, however, did not have all of their regular team, the balance being taken from the second team. The game was rather uninteresting, as Elizabeth took the lead in the first frame and held it all through the game, increasing the lead each frame. The individual scores were as follows:

CATHOLIC CLUB.		ELIZABETH.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The N. J. A. C. carnival of sports and the Intercollegiate athletic championships are to be held on the same day this year.

Dr. Cooley has returned from a five-days hunting trip in Virgina, laden down with game. He presented H. N. Spencer with a large wild goose that measured five and one-half feet from tip to tip of its wings.

It is hoped that the coming baseball season will see a team from the High School in the field. Every wide-awake athlete in the school is desirous to see a strong team in the field this year as they wish to make the Plainfield High School as prominent as possible in the Interscholastic League. Material for the team is being looked up at the present time and as soon as the weather permits the boys will get to work and prepare to play good ball during the coming season. If the team is formed a series of games will be scheduled with the other schools of the league, each school team playing as many games at home as abroad.

"Bright Eyes," the colored pugilist, who is booked to fight Walcott, another colored pugilist, has made a hotel near this city his headquarters for training. "Bright Eyes" is accompanied by J. J. Bates of Texas, as backer and manager. This is Mr. Bates' first trip east, and he expressed himself as greatly pleased with the attractiveness of this city. Another of the party is Bob Marshall, the heavyweight pugilist of England, who is the trainer of "Bright Eyes." Marshall and Bates have been looking over territory near New York, but found nothing to suit them until they reached this city. The party were unanimous in declaring that the roads in and about this city were the best that they had ever seen. Gabe Brown, of this city, who formerly resided in Pittsburg, and who is known in sporting circles as "The Pittsburg Kid," has been engaged as the sparring partner of "Bright Eyes."

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., will work the first rank on Friday night.

—Handsome new chandeliers add greatly to the appearance of Randolph's pharmacy.

—Will Angleman, of North Plainfield, took charge of Baker's grocery at Fanwood last Monday.

—Old Glory Council, Daughters of Liberty, elected ten new members at their meeting last evening.

—It is rumored that a number of new and fine dwellings will be erected on Prospect avenue this spring.

—Portions of the borough were in darkness last night, owing to the strong wind breaking the electric wires.

—Contractor J. W. Mundy, of Somerset street, will move tomorrow to his new home recently built by him on Summit avenue.

—Street Commissioner R. A. Meeker and his men have been busily engaged in cleaning out the North and Watchung avenues sewers.

—Mrs. Phyllis Brown, of West Third street, went to Rahway yesterday to organize a missionary circle in the colored Baptist church there.

—Paugh-Caugh-Naugh-Sinque tribe of Red Men will give a dance at the Columbia Cycle Academy some day during the latter part of the month.

—A district meeting of Knights of Pythias will be held at Goodwill Lodge No. 101, of Scotch Plains, on March 12th. Grand Chancellor Hickok will preside.

—A horse belonging to Peter Seader, of the borough, stepped on Mr. Seader's foot a few days ago. In consequence that important member is very troublesome.

—A special Christian Endeavor service will be held at the Trinity Reformed church next Monday evening, when Rev. Mr. VanDyke, a returned missionary, will speak.

—A. H. Enander, the plumber, has placed his business card in the advertising columns of The Press. Mr. Enander is a practical plumber and gives a general satisfaction wherever his work is seen.

—A sociable was held at the home of Mrs. Hoffman, of Annandale, last evening. There were thirty-five couples present, including friends from Flemington and White House. Prof. S. D. Frazee, of this city, furnished the music for dancing.

A high liver with a torpid liver will not be a long liver. Correct that liver with DeWitt's Little Early Risers, little pills that cure dyspepsia and constipation. L. W. Randolph, 143 W. Front St.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Fenders are being placed on the street railway cars as rapidly as possible. Nos. 1, 2 and 3 are now thus equipped.

—Ex-Councilman V. L. Frazee is today moving into the handsome residence recently purchased by him on West Front street.

—Architect A. L. C. March is today putting out the plans for alterations to the City National Bank building, to contractors for their estimates.

—The funeral of Patrick Lynch, who died at his home on Elizabeth street, yesterday, will be held from St. Mary's church at 10 o'clock Friday morning.

—The Union meat market, of which A. G. Vogeler is the proprietor, is moving into its new quarters on West Front street, the store formerly occupied by W. F. Fulper.

—William Hand & Son moved the household goods belonging to John Weidemeyer from 10 Stone street to the house at the corner of Third street and Central avenue, yesterday.

—Putnam & DeGraw, the popular dry goods firm, are offering some of the best bargains to be found in the city. Read their new adv. and see if they haven't got just what you want.

—Notice is given in the advertising columns of The Press that sealed proposals for the construction of sewage beds and appurtenances for Westfield will be received March 11th. F. A. Dunham is the engineer in charge.

One Bullet Alone Was Fatal.

The Muhlenberg Hospital staff performed an autopsy on the body of the late John M. Richter yesterday afternoon and learned that death was caused by the bullet that entered the stomach. The bullet was found deeply imbedded in the lower part of the abdominal cavity. The other two bullets had nothing whatever to do with his death.

Mr. and Mrs. James Blair have moved from East Sixth street to Jackson avenue.

YOUR SCALP===== Is it irritable? Does it invite an occasional friendly scratch? To wash it is well, but not too often, lest your hair become "brash" and stiff. But treat it twice or thrice a week with REYNOLDS' PETROLEUM HAIR TONIC—a little rubbed in with your finger ends, and you will find the feeling of comfort and coolness truly delightful. Positively nothing equals it as a balm for the woes of your scalp. Sprinkler bottles 50c. Sold only by T. S. Armstrong.

Fads and Fancies for the Fair Daughters of Eve.

A Moral from the Theater Hat Agitation—Smaller Headwear in Vogue—Some of the New Bodices—Leap Year Widows.

[COPYRIGHT, 1896.]

The people who have not yet learned that a woman cannot be driven might get some useful hints from the results of certain attempts of various state legislatures to exterminate large theater hats. All the time that the agitation was going on about the matter, hats kept getting larger and larger, and their fair possessors refused to remove them for anybody's comfort and convenience.

Now, however, since the legislators have given up the fight and have left the matter in our own hands, presto: there is nothing to fight about, and the individual stage curtain is no more. The picture hat is not correct even in the boxes where it does not obstruct. It is reserved for afternoon teas and other daytime events.

Evening bonnets are not such impossible luxuries as many people think. To be sure, if a woman depends entirely upon her milliner for the bit of finery which has been the cause of so many domestic upheavals, she might as well rule it out of her bandbox, and go bareheaded to the opera, unless she is prepared to brave a bill of several guineas. But if one have a little natural taste and deftness, coupled with a faculty of close observation, the milliner's bill need no longer be a source of domestic infelicity. The prettiest bonnets are nearly always the simplest, and when one really settles down to analyze the impertinent little topknots there isn't much of anything to them but fluff and a loop or two of velvet. Whether the bonnet is becoming or not depends upon the angle at which the loops are set.

The easiest bonnet to make is the one with a straight band around the crown of the head. It is the shape of a circle comb set on top of the head. It is wound with satin or ribbon and has two loops of velvet in front with an aigrette standing up between them. Anybody can have a bonnet like this, and therefore it has become so common that it is undesirable. However, it is better than a broad-brimmed hat.

LOUIS XVI. JACKETS WITH COAT TAILS.

Another simply-constructed bonnet that will do very well for an unpretentious mortal is made of four simulated loops of velvet. They look like a pair of miniature, double-bladed canoe paddles, crossed at an angle of thirty degrees, with a jet or jeweled buckle at the point of juncture. This may be set as far back on the head as is becoming, and fastened in place by a couple of hairpins. The velvet loops or paddles are sometimes diamond or leaf-shaped, and are decorated with jet or jewels according to one's patience and length of purse.

So much for the bonnet that is entirely home-made. Not many women would be satisfied with such simple headgear. The best way to begin is to buy a jet or jeweled frame. This will not cost more than $1.50 or two dollars. An aigrette can be bought for $1.75, and velvet enough for a few loops and ends will not cost more than 75 cents, making a total cost of not more than $4.50 for a really handsome bonnet. The velvet loops should be wired and set parallel to the face at about the middle of the crown of the head. The ends of velvet can be stiffened and made to point down each side of the knot of hair. There is always something to define the coiffure, whether the bonnet be a bit of jet or a Tam o' Shanter hat. A flower at each side, or a tiny ostrich tip or a funnel of lace is placed at the back of every bonnet. An aigrette of some kind is almost a necessity. In fact, if the fashionable world continues as it has begun the plumage bird kingdom will shortly be exterminated. For aigrettes are used to trim all kinds of hats, are indispensable to evening bonnets, and are also used alone for hair ornaments.

It is a queer compensation of nature that the feminine portion of one race should claim as their rightful adornment the hide or plumage of the male portion of all the lower races. Has a beautiful bird a crest or a harmless beast a bushy tail, he must die, for her royal highness wants it.

Speaking of plumage, those tiny tips in clumps of three are used, both plain and spangled, for hair ornaments or bonnet trimmings. They can be bought for $1.75.

The favorite bonnet for evening wear has a velvet crown—usually Tam o' Shanter. An ingenious young girl of my acquaintance made herself a bonnet to wear with a green silk waist, and this is the way she did it:

She first made a Tam o' Shanter crown, about six inches across the top, out of stiff black crinoline. This she covered with black velvet which she had previously ornamented with jet "nail-heads." She then gathered on a white lace brim which she wired around the edge to make it "stay put." She stopped the brim in the middle of both front and back, and in its place set a couple of green wings, mercury fashion, to stand out perfectly straight on each side of the face, and some green flowers each side of the coiffure at the back. This bonnet set back two or three inches from the forehead as all bonnets do nowadays.

The new bonnets all have brims, but the crown is so small that the whole hat, brim and all, hardly projects over the side of the head. A charming bonnet, or hat, it was hard to say which, was conspicuous in the Frenchy audience which gathered to worship Bernhardt at her final presentation of "Izeyl." It had a white velvet Tam o' Shanter crown with gold spangles, a white lace brim, two blush roses at each side over the hair, at the back, a spangled ornament under the brim in front, and a big, soft, white ostrich feather at the side.

Velvet bonnets are very fashionable with velvet or satin loops to match. Velvets with fabrics in red tints are a fashionable combination. A red waist and a hat trimmed with violets is considered very French, and that is, of course, the acme of a stylish woman's ambition.

Hats with the flowers piled very high and an aigrette growing out of them are a new fashion. There's one in that picture of evening bodices. It is made of pansies and velvet.

Speaking of bodices, we have here some good samples of the fashion that is coming in. All bodices are short in front, with nothing more than a point at the middle. But they have basques at the back. The ripple back is said to be going out, and in its place we are to have tabs, two long ones and two short ones, but we are still free to choose, thank fortune! Bolero effects are to be much used. A bolero jacket with Persian trimming over a Persian silk waist is all that a reasonable woman ought to expect. Nothing is newer or more stylish.

Among the new things I have seen are grass linen handkerchiefs. They are shown with plain hemstitching and with lace borders, and range in price from 25 to 60 cents. They look well with the grass linen collarettes that are so fashionable, and will harmonize very nicely with the new dress materials that will be worn next summer.

There must be an unusual number of widows in the market just now. Perhaps they wish to proclaim themselves for leap year purposes. There is an unusual lot of mourning goods to be had, anyway. Some of the newest things are high, tight cuffs of white Swiss over black, with three pearl buttons at the apparent fastening. There are collars to match, and they sell for 60 cents a set—but of course that doesn't matter to the rich ones.

TIGER LOOSE IN A DAIRY.

Surprise of a Thirsty Bull When the Big Cat "Woughed" in His Face.

There was considerable excitement at Mysore recently. One of the maharajah's tigers got loose and was not recaptured for over 48 hours. Allowing tigers and other wild animals to escape out of confinement seems a common event in Mysore. During the time of the late maharajah one got out of his cage in the menagerie, and also during his father's reign a tiger loafed all over the fort a whole day, going in and out of people's houses, but strange to say, on none of these occasions has anyone been injured.

The tiger in the present instance is one which is kept by his highness' dairy to keep away the "evil eye" from the cattle. He was netted for Lord Lansdowne to shoot when his excellency visited Mysore a few years ago and is a splendid brute. The dairy is a very large yard, with open sheds all round, in which the cattle are tied, the tiger's cage being close to one end and a fountain near the other. The tiger got out about seven p. m. and calmly strolled around, the place being full of cattle and people at the time; but, fortunately, he had no desire whatever to taste stall-fed beef, or Hindoo either, although he passed within a few feet of the cows and the men, and after examining them all quietly lay down by the fountain.

By nine o'clock a couple of elephants brought down the nets and a cordon was run around the place, preventing the tiger escaping or getting at the cattle, when two rather amusing incidents occurred. A cow managed to get into the yard, and after skipping about for some time rushed into a part of the net closest to the tiger; and for some time struggled frantically to get loose. Every one fully expected that the cow would be killed. Finally, however, a number of men went out and held the wretched animal down and removed the net. Hardly was this over when a splendid stud bull got over a part of the net which had fallen down, and after careening about the yard just as the cow had done, rushed right up to the fountain and dipped his nose into the water. Evidently he had no idea the tiger was there or he would never have gone up in the style he did. However, after drinking, he looked up, when the tiger, who could not have been more than a few feet away, "woughed" in his face, and the way that bull went away after that did one's heart good to see. These were two grand opportunities for witnessing "how the tiger seizes his prey," particularly as there were several sportsmen about, but unfortunately it was not to be.

After worrying the poor brute for two days and two nights, during which time he got into the net once, he quietly walked into his cage and was shut up. The cool and indifferent way in which Bassapali Urs' fossilized hunters, with their fearfully and wonderfully made hundooks, walked up and down past the tiger was most amusing. What they would have done in the event of the tiger making for one of them it is hard to tell. The claws have grown into the pads of the tiger, and the wretched animal seems to be suffering great pain. Had it not been for this there would doubtless have been a very different tale to tell.—Asian.

SOURCES OF CONTAGION.

The Breath of Sick Persons Laden with Deadly Germs.

A little girl, six years of age, was taken by her mother into a street car. The car was crowded, and a delicate-looking man lifted the little one to his knees. She sat there a moment, then slid down and clung to her mother's skirts.

After they had left the car, she said: "Mamma, I couldn't sit there; that man breathed in my face and made me sick."

For days afterward she complained that she could not get that dreadful taste out of her mouth. In due time she was attacked with typhoid fever and died.

There was no question whatever in the mind of the physician that the man who took the child up was in the first stages of typhoid. Believing that this disease could be transmitted by the breath, he took pains to make experiments. A sufferer from typhoid breathed a number of times into a glass vessel containing sterilized water. From this water cultures were made, and the true typhoid bacilli developed in enormous quantities.

It is generally supposed that typhoid is due to contaminated water, but experiments of this sort have made it certain that the breath, especially if thrown out suddenly as by coughing, is likely to be laden with the deadly germs. Indeed, physicians are becoming well satisfied that the lungs are constantly at work trying to extract from the blood and throw out all poisonous ingredients. This being the case, those who inhale the breath of a person suffering from almost any disease are liable to receive the germs and become infected with the same malady.—N. Y. Ledger.

At Least Something.

His highness condescends to take part in a bowling evening of the "Social Brothers." He throws a ball which hits nothing. As the prince is near-sighted, he asks: "Well, how many is it?" Painful silence. At last the president makes a desperate effort and says, with a deep bow: "Your highness, two of the pins—wobbled!"—Fliegende Blatter.

A SUBTERRANEAN METAMORPHOSIS.

When Ringbrand opened his eyes he found himself lying on his back in what appeared to be the bottom of a well; at least, that was his second impression. With the first gleams of returning consciousness there was no recollection of the events immediately preceding his fall, and for a moment he had a vague idea that he had stumbled and hurt himself in the road, and that the clouds had covered all but the small patch of sky directly overhead where the stars were still visible. Then memory came back, and he recalled the details of the capture up to the sudden blank following the plunge into the hole between the bowlders. A sharp twinge of pain bridged the interval and reminded him that there were two present and pressing sources of discomfort in the gnarled log across which he was lying and in the vice-like pressure of the rope which still bound his arms to his sides. To wriggle out of the uncomfortable position was easy, but loosening the rope was another matter. The knot had been drawn tight by the jerk of his fall, and it was an hour or more before he succeeded in working it around where it could be reached; even when this was done, it was only a beginning, and the first faint streaks of dawn were filtering through the aperture overhead when he finally rose stiffly and swung his arms to start the suspended circulation.

In a little while it was light enough to enable him to see his surroundings, and he found that he was imprisoned in a crevice-cave much like the one he had explored two days before. It occurred to him at once that it might be a continuation of the same cavern, or that possibly he might be in the very chamber into which he had tried to penetrate; but this seemed unlikely, for two reasons. One was that he could not make the locality of the McNabb tunnel agree with the general direction of his wanderings of the night previous; and the other was even more convincing, for, while his cell terminated at one extremity in a narrow fissure like the one in which he had lost the pick and the lamp, he could not find the missing articles, though he lost no time in making a careful search for them. In doing this, however, he stumbled upon another discovery which was of much more immediate importance: reaching down into the crannies of the fissure, his hand found a pool of water, and he drank gratefully, dipping up the cool liquid by spoonfuls in his hollowed palm.

After this, he gave an hour to minute examination of the boundaries of his prison, scrutinizing the walls and carefully weighing every possible chance of escape. At the end of this preliminary survey he sat down upon the log, which proved to be the trunk of a small tree hurled by some accident of wind or lightning through the opening above, and began to go over the events of the past few days, in the hope of finding something to account for the mysterious attack and imprisonment. In this effort he racked his brain to little purpose, and, after repeatedly scouting the idea as absurd, he finally accepted the conclusion that the Bynums had in some manner connected him with the fortunes of their enemies, and had taken prompt measures to deprive the Latimers of a possible ally.

"If that's the case," he mused, speaking aloud for the sake of the companionship of his own voice, "what do they mean to do with me? If they had wanted to kill me, they certainly had it all their own way last night; a very small domestic cat would have made a better resistance than I did. No, that isn't it; they don't mean murder; they're only trying to get me out of the way for awhile. And the next thing is, for how long? Keeping in view the comforting conclusion that they don't intend making away with me, the question will answer itself in a few hours at the most, for they haven't given me anything to eat. Which reminds me that I'm pretty hungry, now;" he looked ruefully at his watch. "Tom Ludlow had his breakfast two hours ago, and at the present moment, I suppose, he's sitting in his office with the comfortable under-thought that it'll be dinner-time before long. Lucky fellow, not to know what it is to sit in a crack in the face of the earth, speculating on the doubtful possibilities of future meal times. Well, I presume the next thing is to decide whether or not I'm to sit here and wait for some one to come and pull me out; and if I'm not, what's the alternative? Let's have another look at the resources."

After overhauling the rope and coiling it beside the log, he searched his pockets, but found nothing useful therein, except a small penknife. "There they are—say 40 feet of rope, a piece of wood six or seven feet long, and a toy pocketknife; and this hole is about 30 feet deep, I should judge. There isn't very much to work with, but I've pulled many a hero out of worse scrapes than this with much less."

The humor of the comparison provoked a laugh, and then he wondered what had become of his depression of the previous day. The explanation came suddenly when he ran his soliloquy back to the point where he had concluded that his connection with the Latimers was the reason for the assault upon him. It seemed in a way to bring him nearer to Hester, and for a time there was a cheerful enthusiasm in the thought that other and compelling hands had pushed him over the dividing line between his pusillanimous resolution to run away and an active participation in the quarrel which involved her family. There was little comfort in the contemplation of the part he might be required to take in the feud; the battle was still to be fought with his weakness, and he had the fresh and humiliating example of a few hours before to remind him that he had not yet made a beginning. The recollection of this discouraged him again, and all the arguments that had presented themselves in defense of his plan of retreat came back with redoubled emphasis. He was not sure that Hester loved him; if she did, she would despise him when she found him out; it would be inexcusably wrong for him to win her love under false pretenses; she had told him only last night what she would expect in the man of her choice. He pushed the tormenting thoughts aside, and brought himself down with a jerk to the present and its demands. "I'm not going to dispute with the weak-kneed devil any more," he muttered; "the first thing to do is to get out of here, and then I'll leave it with her; if she honors me enough to make me her defender, I'll make a shift to fight her battles if I have to hire some one to hold me while I do it."

Under the inspiration of this conclusion he went to work patiently and resolutely, trying the first plan that suggested itself. Using his knife for a chisel, he attempted to cut niches for hand and foot holds in the wall, persevering until both blades of the small tool were worn down to useless stumps. When the failure of the knife put an end to the expedient, he examined the narrower part of the crevice to see if he could not climb to the roof by bracing himself from wall to wall. As it was reasonably evident that the cavern had originally been nothing more than an irregular crack in the sandstone, open at the top through its entire length, and afterward gradually covered in by slow accumulations of earth and debris interwoven with twigs and grass roots, he argued that it would be comparatively easy to dig through this thin covering if he could obtain a foothold near enough to the roof to enable him to attack it. To make the most of his strength, he dragged the log to the place selected for the experiment, with the intention of using it for a ladder from which to begin the ascent; and, having braced it against one of the walls, he took off his coat and shoes and made an attempt to work his way up the desired vantage-ground The first trial was a failure. He lost his hold before he had ascended to twice his height, and slid back to the sandy floor of the crevice; but there was enough of a promise of success in the undertaking to make him wear away the remainder of the day in repeated endeavors, and to encourage him to try again and again, even after the long abstinence from food had begur to have its effect on his tired muscles and overstrained nerves. The final attempt, made just at dusk, carried him to within a few feet of the roof; but the darkness baffled him; he again lost his hold, and it was only by the utmost exertion of his failing strength that he saved himself from falling heavily to the bottom of the cavern. As it was, he knocked the log down in his descent, and, realizing that nothing could be done without the help of daylight, he lay down in the sand and tried to go to sleep.

Lying there in the darkness and listening to the microscopic noises sifting through the entrance to the cave, he fancied he heard a sound as of some light object falling upon the sand. He first thought of wild beasts, but, reflecting that no animal large enough to attack him would be likely to enter the trap-like crevice, the incident was soon forgotten in a train of suggestions having the indistinct noises of the day for a starting-point. Now that he recalled them, he remembered hearing sounds like the echoes of dull blows at irregular intervals all through the day, and he speculated over their probable origin until weariness overcame him and he fell into a doze from which the growling of the rising storm awakened him. Since there seemed to be a sort of companionship in the roll of the thunder and the sweep of the wind, he sat up to listen, and in one of the lulls he thought he heard a voice at the mouth of the cavern. Wondering if his captors were coming to liberate him, he got upon his feet and felt his way to the farther end of the cell, standing under the aperture and staring up into the gloom. While he stood there listening and looking, a small star of yellow light made its appearance at the extreme end of the rocky corridor, and he saw the shadows of two faces framed between the walls of the narrow slit in which the chamber terminated. His first impulse was to make his presence known; but before he had taken a step he recoiled in horror at the sight of a gun barrel thrust through the crevice above the wavering star of light.

Under some conditions mental processes are instantaneous. Ringbrand saw and understood the purpose of his enemies as clearly as if his sentence had been pronounced with formal verbiage. With the understanding came a frenzied fit of terror, and he shrunk with chattering teeth and trembling limbs into the deepest recesses of the cave; the wavering light danced in fantastic gyrations before his fascinated gaze; a noise like the beating of a hundred drums filled his ears; and he could feel the cold perspiration pricking from every pore. The suspense was horrible, and for a few moments he thought he should die from the very abjectness of his fear; then suddenly he felt a sharp pang as if something had given way in his brain, and the overpowering nausea of terror vanished as if by magic. In its place came a strange feeling of exaltation that sent the blood tingling to his finger tips; the roaring in his ears ceased, and his sight became once more keen and steady. Springing to his feet, he drew the colonel's revolver from his pocket and took careful and deliberate aim at the face behind the yellow star of light; his finger pressed the trigger, and the crash of a double detonation filled the cavern. With the flash and the report the light disappeared, and he felt a sting of pain in his arm; he knew he was wounded, but the hurt seemed only to augment the violence of the fit of ferocity that had taken complete possession of him. Rushing toward the point where the light had disappeared, he wedged himself into the crevice, grinding his teeth in impotent rage when he found that he could not reach far enough to get the range for a second shot.

After it was all over, he sat down upon the log and examined his arm as well as he could by the sense of touch; the wound was nothing but a severe bruise, and he put his coat on again with a sigh of relief. "I can't afford to be disabled now," he muttered, "not till I've given these villains their deserts; the hardened brutes—to come here and try to kill a man like a rat in a trap!"

Then it suddenly occurred to him that this Hugh Ringbrand, breathing out threatenings against his persecutors, was quite a different person from the miserable wretch who but a few moments before had cowered in terror at the sight of the mountaineer's rifle. "It's the most singular experience I ever heard of," he mused. "It is, indeed; there's nothing in my collection that matches it. I wonder if it was only the instinct of self-preservation? I think after this I shall be able to understand what makes the most inoffensive animal turn and show fight in the last extremity. I wonder, too, if the fine and ferocious enthusiasm will come again when it's needed? I'm afraid it won't—at least, not without a similar provocation; and that isn't exactly what one craves. Anyway, I'm glad I didn't die before I knew what it was to take my courage in both hands, if only for this one time. I suppose I didn't have any such good luck as to hit the fellow, but if they both got away I don't believe they'll make me another visit to-night. Heigh-ho! it's something of a bore to be hungry and tired and sleepy and angry all in one breath. I believe I'll risk it and try to go to sleep; they'd have been after me by this time if they meant to try it again."

He stretched himself out beside the log with the coil of rope for a pillow; in a few minutes weariness again asserted its claims, and this time he did not awaken until the morning sun had once more turned the darkness of the cavern into murky twilight.

IX.

THE EAR OF THE MOUNTAIN.

Ringbrand began the new day with a drink of water scooped up by handfuls from the pool in the crevice, and then walked the length of the cavern to get a glimpse of the sky. Just beneath the well-like opening he stumbled upon a small package wrapped in a piece of dirty paper. Opening it eagerly, as a message from the outer world, he felt like shouting upon finding that it contained a substantial meal of corn pones and fried bacon. Hunger knows no ceremony, and, so it be sharp enough, has little regard for the quality and no curiosity as to the source of that which appeases its cravings. Ringbrand ate ravenously and with the keen relish of one who has labored fasting, but he was thoughtful enough to save a portion of the bread and meat for greater necessities, wrapping it carefully in the paper and concealing it in a niche in the rock.

"Goodness knows where that came from," he said, "and goodness knows when I'll get any more; therefore it befits me to hoard it. I'll never be afraid of making things too opportune in a story after this; nothing short of a miracle could have been more timely than this unaccountable breakfast. And it asks for more guessing. Who brought it? Who knows I'm here? Clearly, no one but these murderous Bynums. And why should they feed a dead man? Ah, I have it! it's the woman—she knows I'm in here, and she doesn't know the rest. And if that's the explanation, I must have been wrong in my reckoning; the hammering yesterday was in the McNabb tunnel, and that crack is the place where I lost the pick; I'll take another look and see if I can't find it."

"Looking" for the implement in question was a mere figure of speech, since the critical search was prosecuted wholly through the sense of touch, projected into the end of a divining rod made of bits of twigs spliced together by threads taken from the rope. It was a trial of patience, but patience was rewarded in the end, as it usually is; and when he had succeeded in locating the coveted object he set about devising some means of securing it. The rope solved this problem, but no wild horse of the prairies was ever harder to lasso than was the inanimate combination of wood and steel lying quietly at the bottom of the fissure. As in the former case, however, patient effort finally conquered, though the afternoon shadows were filling the cavern with warnings of the approach of night before Ringbrand had added the pick to his available resources. He had thought of no definite plan for using it in the struggle for freedom, but the first suggestion was that he might now be able to cut a series of steps up the wall like those in the adjoining chamber. A short half hour of arduous toil convinced him of the futility of this hope, and he stopped to rest his weary arms.

"That's no go," he said, examining the rude notch hewn out with such infinite labor; "I'm not a stonecutter, whatever else I may be; and a dull pick isn't a mallet and chisel, by long odds. If that's the best I can do with a good foothold and both hands to work with, it says itself that I couldn't dig out of here in a week. I wonder if I couldn't tie the rope to the pick and fling it up through that hole?"

There was still daylight enough for the experiment, and he tried it without loss of time. A single attempt to throw the cumbersome anchor up through the hole in the roof answered the question. The short-headed pick used by the miners is much lighter than the common implement of that name, but even with this advantage he could not throw it to the required height, and, in addition, he saw at once that, even if he had the strength, it would take hours of practice to bring the skill necessary to enable him to hurl the thing through the narrow gap in the rocks. Not to weary himself needlessly, he desisted after the first trial, and sat down to eat his scanty supper by the last rays of fading light. After it had been washed down by another drink from the pool, he made his simple arrangements to pass another night in the cavern, and tried to go to sleep; but his brain was too actively at work trying to devise new expedients, and after tossing and rolling upon his sandy couch for awhile he sat up to try to think it out. Since the night was clear and calm, the silence in the cave was profound, and, knowing that the ordinary noises of the upper world could not reach him, he was startled from his revery by a sound like the shuffling of cautious footsteps, followed immediately by the appearance of a dull glow of light in the chamber beyond the crevice. His first thought was that his captors had come to make another attempt to kill him, and it brought with it a fit of terror similar to that which had attacked him on the previous night, but he set his teeth and overcame it, flattening himself against the wall and waiting breathlessly for what should follow. It was a trying moment, and he was surprised to find himself growing calmer and more collected with the passing of the lagging seconds; then the tingling of his nerves told him that he had once more passed the mysterious boundary between helpless fear and courageous resolution, and, drawing his revolver, he waited in grim silence for the appearance of a face at the opening. While he watched, the light began to fade, and the explanation came to him at once. "They've gone into the mine; that's better; perhaps I can catch them as they come out." In a few minutes the dull glow began to return, and he saw the two men as they emerged from the gallery leading to the mine. They were talking in low tones, and Ringbrand listened.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. Death of Mrs. W. H. Griffin.

The entire community will be shocked to learn of the death of Mrs. W. H. Griffin, the artist, of 76 Washington avenue, which occurred this afternoon about 2 o'clock at her home after a short illness. Death was the result of catarrhal pneumonia, with other complications. Mrs. Griffin was an active member of Grace M. E. church, and a teacher in the Sunday-school. She was also interested in the W. C. T. U. She was well known among a large circle of friends, who loved her for her most excellent Christian qualities. A husband survives her.

Collection Must Stay at the Library.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Free Public Library, last night, in reply to a letter from Harold Serrell requesting the loan of the cloisonne collection to the Plainfield Camera Club for use at the exhibition of the club to be held at their rooms in the Babcock building, on Saturday, March 14th, the secretary was directed to inform Mr. Serrell that the Board of Directors have no authority to permit the removal of the above collection from the Library building for the purpose for which it is asked.

A New Pastor Called.

In view of the fact that Rev. Herbert F. Randolph expects to resign the pastorate of Grace M. E. church April 1st, a committee from the church have been considering a man for the position. The result of their deliberation is that a call has been extended to Rev. Harry J. Johnson, of Cranford. The committee have listened to his preaching and are very much pleased with him.

Mr. Johnson has not accepted the call, but it is believed that he will be assigned to Grace M. E. Church when the conferance meets.

Talk by a Missionary.

The Young Ladies Missionary Society of the First Baptist church had an all-day sewing meeting at the church yesterday and the society was largely represented. In the afternoon at 3 o'clock Miss Lorenzen, a missionary among the Germans in New York city, gave an intensely interesting talk about her work both in New York and at Buffalo. She was located at the latter place for some time. The society will meet next Tuesday afternoon, when important business will be transacted.

Books at Work and Play.

The class of '98, of the High School, held a very novel meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of Miss Ellen Osgood, of Myrtle avenue. After a short business session the members present enjoyed a pleasant afternoon. The entertainment was in the form of a book party. The Misses Grace Crane and Clara Long tied for first ladies prize and Bryant Gray Horman received first gentleman's prize.

The Wind Picked Her Up.

In crossing Front street, near Somerset, this afternoon about 2 o'clock, Mrs. McDonald, of Pearl street, was lifted from her feet by the heavy winds and thrown against the curb-stone. The fall almost caused unconsciousness and she was assisted to Lusardi's fruit store by several men standing near. Later she was able to walk home.

May Try to Mulct the Borough.

Miss Anna Ptaskinska, of Duer street, is seriously ill at her home, and has been confined to her bed for the past six weeks from the injuries she received from falling into the old fire well at the corner of Duer street and Linden avenue. Miss Ptaskinska threatens to commence an action against the borough for damages.

All Right Now.

THE CHEMICAL AT WORK.

NEW FIRE DEPARTMENT ACQUISITION GETS IN SOME GOOD WORK.

First Real Test for the New Machine Given at the McNamee Fire This Morning.—Only 200 Gallons of Water Used.

The chemicol engine had a chance to distinguish itself this morning and it worked to perfection. Dominick McNamee and family, of 518 Arlington avenue, corner of West Sixth street, were just sitting to breakfast, about 7.45 o'clock, when a colored woman rushed into the house screaming at the top of her voice. It was finally learned that the house was on fire, and calling to his family to send an alarm, Mr. MacNamee went upstairs to find one of the front bed rooms a mass of flames. In the mean time, Jack Kreitling, who had seen smoke coming from the roof, had found John Naegle and secured a key to box 35, from which an alarm was sent in.

The chemical engine was the first to arrive and the hose was run up into the burning room. Then was the efficiency of the new apparatus manifest. In less than ten minutes the fire in the room was completely extinguished without the use of the floods of water that usually do more damage than the flames themselves. The small attic was burning fiercely but the stream of carbonic acid gas and water soon extinguished that also.

The house was a frame one with slate roof. Under the slate was a layer of wooden shingles and they still continued to burn. The slate was removed and the chemical stream below and the ordinary water above, soon put out all the burning shingles.

A crack was discovered in the chimney, between the roof and the attic floor, and it is supposed that the heat from the stove in the second floor bedroom ignited some of the floor beams. The front bedroom on the second floor caught from those and all the wood-work in the room was badly charred before the firemen reached the scene. All the furniture in the room was destroyed. The fire did not do any other damage on the second floor, while the absence of water, after the fire was over, was especially noticeable.

Chief Doane estimate that the fire had been burning nearly five hours before it was discovered. He says that it would have required 10,000 gallons of ordidary water to put the fire out. As it was, less than 200 gallons was used in the house.

There was another fire in the same house last evening about 7:30 o'clock. The chain that supported the hanging lamp in the sitting room suddenly gave way. The lamp was broken by the fall and the oil that ran out over the carpet ignited. Mr. McNamee extinguished the flames after the carpet and floor was partially burned. No alarm was sent in for this fire. After two fires, about twelve hours apart, Mr. McNamee feels rather tired. He is employed in New York by Harvey Fisk's Sons.

The house was owned by Mr. McNamee and was insured for $2,000 and the furniture for $100. The damage is estimated at $400 to house and $150 to furniture.

Given an Hour to Leave Town.

There was a well-dressed, good-looking young man in the city court this morning charged with being drunk and disorderly in the ladies' room at the North Avenue station last evening. Detective Blackford arrested him. He said that his brother had been moving in Westfield and had given him some money which he drank up. The young fellow, who gave his name as Edward C Cadwell, was thoroughly ashamed of himself. The Judge suspended sentence and gave him an hour to leave town.

Westfield's Borough Projects.

The advocates of a Westfield borough government are making such indifferent progress in securing signers to the petitions, that they are directing their efforts toward inducing the borough of Mountainside to co-operate in procuring a single borough to include the entire township. To this plan the farmers of Mountainside are not altogether agreeable, as they withdrew in order to escape the sewer tax, and are not anxious to incur the liability again.

Simon S. Hartman, of Tunnelton, West Va., has been subject to attacks of colic about once a year, and would have to call a doctor and then suffer for about twelve hours as much as some do when they die. He was taken recently just the same as at other times, and concluded to try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He says: "I took one dose of it and it gave me relief in five minutes. That is more than anything else has ever done for me. For sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

EPWORTH ENTHUSIASM.

Young Christian Workers Get Ready for the Distrirt Conference.

The Epworth League of the Monroe Avenue chapel held a special meeting in the chapel last evening, previous to the District Conference which will be held at Perth Amboy at an early date.

It is the custom of each chapter in the district to hold a meeting just before the conference, for the purpose of arousing an enthusiam and zeal.

Mr. Potter, president of the district, was detained at home for some reason and those present were disappointed in not being able to hear him.

Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, pastor of the chapel, took charge of the service and after singing a few hymns, several earnest prayers were offered. Mr. O'Donnell made a few remarks, in which he urged that each one take a greater interest in the league work, hoping that the coming conference would result in the accomplishment of much good for each chapter and for the district. The remarks were helpful to those present.

Several present also made a few remarks right in line with the subject brought out by Mr. O'Donnell. The date of the conference has not yet been set by the committee having the matter in charge, but it gives promise of being one of the most successful ever held.

Several Plainfield members have been assigned to take part on the programme.

AN EVENING SOCIAL.

A Pleasant Social Event Held at Dunellen Last Night.

A very pleasant evening social was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Jabob Emery, of Dunellen, last evening, and was attended by a number of young people from this city. The evening was passed in dancing, and it was well along towards daylight this morning before the last of the guests departed for home, in the meantime having enjoyed a repast. Music for dancing was furnished by Messrs. Todd, Charles Palmer and Jacob Emery. The committee who had the affair in charge were Harry Todd and Oliver Voorhees.

High Order of Music.

A great treat is promised those who attend Monroe Avenue chapel, Friday evening, March 27th. The Syracuse University Glee, Banjo and Mandolin Clubs will present one of their best programmes. The following is taken from the Cleveland (Ohio) Leader of a recent date: "The entertainments given yesterday by the musical clubs of Syracuse University were well patronized. That the people were pleased was evidenced by the frequent encores. The glee club's work was of a high order. The banjo and mandolin music was admirably rendered and very favorably received.

New Building Proposed.

It is reported that Mrs. E. H. Hanigan, of the borough, has purchased the very valuable building lot on North avenue adjoining Dan S. Roberts' building, and owned by A. D. Thompson. The Press in glad that the lot has fallen into such good hands, as she is financially prepared to build on it, and to put up a building that will be a credit to the street and also to the city. The Press trusts that it is a well-founded rumor.

Fire Gave Burglars a Chance.

The residence of J. J. Willis, at Garwood, was entered by burglars on Monday night. They ransacked the lower part of the house and carried away over $1,000 worth of silverware. The family had gone to a fire at some distance, leaving the house unprotected.

To Bring Appetites and Pocketbooks.

The "Butterfly" sociable of the Christian Endeavor society of the Congregational church will be held tomorrow evening in the church parlors. The congregation is invited to attend and bring with them good appetites and fat pocketbooks.

CRESCENT MINSTRELS.

SONS OF HAM GETTING READY TO GIVE A GREAT ENTERTAINMENT.

It Will Consist of a First Part, Olio, Sketch and Burlesque, Which Will Abound in Funny Actions and Talk.

Plainfield is to have an entertainment worthy of her and, like the Kirmess, it will be something to talk about and recall for many a day. This entertainment will be the minstrel show that the Crescent Wheelmen are to give at Music Hall on March 26th. Of course, only local talent will be present, but in Plainfield's eighteen thousand residents there are not a few who know how to entertain an audience. That has been conclusively proved before in other minstrel shows, but this one is going to excell all previous efforts of the amateur burnt-cork artists.

There will be the regulation first part, with interlocutor, tambo, bones, and a chorus of male voices. The chorus will consist of twenty-five of Plainfield's young men made up with burnt cork and dressed in the conventional evening suit. On one end William N. Runyon and James H. Rogers will make two excellent tambos, while George O. Stevens and Charles W. Runyon will occupy the other end. Solos by Elmer E. Runyon, William Thiers and Alfred E. Holmes will be interspersed with local hits, funny stories and jokes by bones and tambo, while William N. Runyon and George O. Stevens will be ready with several end songs. The overture of the first part will contain many of the popular airs of the day.

In the second part will be introduced the various specialties. George Taggart has been asked to open this part with one of his original monologues. Those who heard him at the minstrel show last year will know what to expect. Singing by a double quartette will follow. Elmer E. Runyon and Prof. W. E. MacClymont, who are in charge of the quartette, have been getting their heads together, and will produce music that has never been surpassed in Plainfield, that is, by a double quartette. The only suggestion of professionalism in the show will be in the mid-air performance, which will include acts on the trapeze and slack wire by Mr. Burke. Mr. Burke is a Plainfielder, but is an expert in his line, having spent some time with several different circuses. The surprise of the evening will be the next to make its appearance, for here the members of the entertainment committee expect to bring before the audience that night a wing dancer. This specialty is excellent, according to the few who know about it, and they say Plainfield people will be greatly surprised to find such an unknown expert amateur performer among their ranks.

Fletcher Hallock will next discourse sweet music on his xylophone and mouthophone. His name is sufficient guarantee for the excellence of his selections.

No minstrel show is complete without a sketch by the "stars" of the company. And the "stars" of this troupe, for they have them and they are of the first magnitude, too, worthy of being called "planets," will give a humorous little act of their own creation. Will Runyon and George Stevens are the "planets" in this case and will dazzle everybody with their brilliancy. What they will say can be told much better after Thursday evening, March 26th.

Of course, the finale will be a grand hurrah by the entire company. It will go under the name of a burlesque bowling match, and the bowling contingent is expected to turn out in full force and cheer the teams of the Park Club and the Union Country Club on to victory in their match for the minstrel championship of Plainfield. That will end the show, but if the roof of Music Hall remains fast, after all is over, it will be surprising.

Answers From Up-to-Date Girls.

Postmaster Tufts, of Rahway, will advertise today half a dozen letters addressed to Daniel Sullivan. Sullivan called at Ellis Island several weeks ago looking for a wife "who was up to date." It was not compulsory that she live on the farm with him, but she could work in New York if she preferred, only she was to be at home early in the evening. These six letters are supposed to be answers.

All last winter Mr. Geo. A. Mills, of Labanon, Conn., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. At times it was so severe that he could not stand up straight, but was drawn over on one side. "I tried different remedies without receiving relief," he says, "until about six months ago I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. After using it for three days my rheumatism was gone and has not returned since. For sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue. T. S Armstrong, Manager.

LONGFELLOW EVENING.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS ENJOY A PLEASANT TIME LAST NIGHT.

The Time Was Occupied With Reading From His Works and Illustrating Them With Tableaux—The Participants.

It takes more than a wind storm to keep the loyal Seventh day Baptists at home when the Ladies' Society for Christian Work of their church invites them to one of their pleasant little evening entertainments in the church parlors. So it was last night, and the sociable was as great a success as any previous one.

The entertainment was called "An Evening with Longfellow," and consisted mainly of readings from his works and tableaux representing them. From 6 to 8 o'clock the guests were served with a light supper in the primary class rooms, and then adjourned to the main school room.

The entertainment then opened with a delightful violin solo by Arthur Mosher. Miss Mabel Maxson accompanied him. An interesting sketch of Longfellow's life was read by its writer, Miss Ernestine Smith, after which Charles Titsworth read Longfellow's first poem, and was followed by a bass solo, "The Bridge," by Robert Gorton. Next came the tableaux while Miss Lulu Lewis read the selections that were illustrated. The first was "Maidenhood," by Miss Ruth Maxson. Hiawatha's wooing was prettily shown by Miss Elizabeth Allis and Nathan Lewis, dressed in appropriate Indian costume. A male quartette composed of Louis H. Bond, Elmer E. Runyon, Robert Gorton and Arthur Titsworth, pleasingly rendered the selection "Stars of a Summer Night." "Evangeline" as a young girl was represented in a very pretty tableau by Miss Ethel Titsworth. As a nun, Miss Lou Clawson made a sweet "Evangeline."

The "Children's Hour" was the next poem and Rev. A. H. Lewis, D. D., was shown with the Misses Hellen Rogers, Ethel Titsworth and Ruth Maxson gathered about him. Another pleasing violin solo by Arthur Mosher was followed by the reading of the "Village Blacksmith." The tableau represented the blacksmith, Robert Gorton, surrounded by his friends, the Misses Mertie Randolph, Flossie Gorton, Eva Rogers and Helen Rogers, and Stanley Mosher. Another short intermission and Robert Gorton, in his blacksmith's clothes, sang the "Armorer's Song" from DeKoven's "Robin Hood" with anvil accompaniment. Two demure young women in old fashioned black gowns and white caps represented the blacksmith's daughter and her companion in the church choir. Miss Bessie Titsworth and Miss Ida Randolph were those that took part in the tableau. That ended the programme and another installment of good things to eat were served. The committee that arranged the delightful programme consisted of Mrs. John P. Mosher, chairman, Mrs. Henry Maxson and Mrs. Robert Gorton. Mrs Gorton acted as accompanist. The refreshments were under the supervision of Mrs. J. P. Allis, Mrs. Charles Randolph and Mrs. L. T. Rogers.

GIVEN A CANE.

Squaws of Iona Council Make a Gift to William Newcorn.

At the regular meeting of Iona Council, Degree of Pocohantas, last evening, there was one adoption, and routine business was transacted. Representative W. A. Westphal made his report which showed that the membership in this State was 1,936; total wealth, $13,000; amount distributed to disabled members, etc., $25,000; number of councils in the State, 31; increase in membership during the year, 600; increase in councils during the past six months, 6. Mr. Westphal, on behalf of the sisters of the council, then presented William Newcorn with a very handsome gold headed cane and a large bouquet, the event being Mr. Newcorn's birthday anniversary. The latter accepted the gift in his usual happy manner, and thanked the ladies for their kindness. A collation was served at this time, and sociability occupied the rest of the evening.

St. Stephen's Church.

The services tomorrow will be: Penitential office, with litany, at 4:30 p.m.; evening prayer at 7:45, with a sermon by the Rev. T. M. Riley, D. D., Adjunct Professor of Homiletics in the General Theological Seminary of New York. Free stages for the church will leave the railroad station at 7 p. m.

Last Meeting of the Year.

The Borough Council will hold their last meeting for the year tomorrow evening, and several important matters will come up.

—Dr. J. H. Lawler, of 171 North avenue, is an expert veterinary surgeon.

THE LEGISLATURE.

House Passes the Bicycle Path Bill for a Path from Trenton to the Sea.

The Republican Assemblymen held a caucus yesterday morning and agreed to resist any attempt to force the Queen equal taxation bill out of committee until after Thomas N. McCarter has had an opportunity to speak upon it next Monday afternoon. The caucus also decided not to hold a session of the House next Tuesday, in order to give the country members an opportunity to vote at the township elections.

The Senate adjourned yesterday afternoon until Friday, when another session will be held in order to show the lower House that it is working for an early final adjournment. The House caucus took no action on the adjournment question.

The Senate killed the bill making it a crime to sell as sterling silver, articles made of silver and alloy, and passed bills giving to a widow the personal estate of her husband after all debts are paid; giving veterans of the war preference as employees on all public works; permitting Asbury Park to raise by taxation moneys to pay for music on the beach, and prohibiting the establishing of new cemetaries in Newark or Jersey City without the permission of the Board of Health.

The House passed Bullock's bill requiring all corporations, excepting railroad companies, to pay their employees semi-monthly, and doing away with the "store order system" in operation in the South Jersey glass manufacturing districts. This is the same bill passed by the Legislature last year, and which was mysteriously mutilated before it reached the Governor, after the Legislature adjourned.

The Francis Bicycle Path bill was also passed. It authorizes townships to raise money to build bicycle paths between three and six feet wide, and is intended to promote the building of a bicycle road between Trenton and the seashore towns. The Reed bill, requiring trolley companies to pay for franchises through cities and towns $4,000 per mile for single track and $5,000 for each mile of double track, was defeated.

THIS TELEPHONE WAS LOADED

William H. Luster, of Elizabeth, Receives a Painful Shock.

William H. Luster, a former secretary of the Board of Education, of Elizabeth, who is employed at the office of T. S. Thompson's coal yard, was knocked senseless yesterday as he was about to use a telephone.

Mr. Luster placed his hand on the receiver and was about to take it from the hook when he received a shock which hurled him against the wall on the opposite side of the room. His hands were badly burned, and he was unable to walk. He was taken to his home on Prospect street, where he now lies in a serious condition. The accident was caused by the telephone wire becoming crossed with an electric light wire.

A Chance to Hear Miss Yates.

Miss Elizabeth Yates, who speaks next Tuesday evening in the Trinity Reformed Church, is national organizer of the Franchise Department of the W. C. T. U. This is probably the only opportunity one will have for hearing Miss Yates in the east for some months, as she has been engaged to lecture in the fifty-seven counties of California, on the amendment to the State Constitution for the franchisement of woman, and she leaves for the Pacific Coast as soon as her engagements with Union County are filled.

Remarkable Low Prices.

W. L. & J. M. Smalley, the progressive meat dealers of 94 Somerset street, today announce in the advertising columns of The Daily Press, a special sale of meats and poultry on Saturday evening from 6 to 10 o'clock. This firm keeps nothing but first quality meats, and give satisfaction to all their customers. The prices they quote are remarkably low and will fill their shop during the four hours they will continue. Look over the ad and give them a visit. It will pay you.

An Endeavorers Social.

A sociable under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Liberty Street mission, will be held this evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Hand, 736 West Front street. A cordial invitation is extended to the members of the various Christian Endeavor societies and their friends to attend. A pleasant and interesting feature of the sociable will be the art gallery, to which a small admission fee will be charged.

James E. Martine to Respond.

James E. Martine will deliver an address at the banquet of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in Quien's hall, Elizabeth, March 17th.

WHITNEY IS HIS CHOICE.

THE FARMER ORATOR PICKS OUT A PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE.

Mr. Martine Declares That William C. Whitney is the Man to Lead the Democracy to Victory in November.

James E. Martine, known all over New Jersey as the "Farmer Orator," was seen by a Daily Press reporter last night and approached as to his opinions of the condition of the Democratic party in the State and Nation. Mr. Martine is recognized as a shrewd political observer and as one of the most staunch and hardest working members of the Democratic party.

"What do you consider the prospects of the Democratic party this fall?" queried the reporter.

"I consider them good," said he with his well-known earnest manner of speech. "The Republican party are hopelessly divided on the money question; and the bosses will demand a high McKinley platform in the coming campaign. On this issue we will meet them. I do not believe that the business interests of this country are ready or willing to come back to McKinleyism; and labor organizations and trades-unions have educated their members that McKinley tariff means but high prices for necessary commodities, and continuing decreasing wages for working men. The fact remains, that under the McKinley tariff wages were reduced, while under the Wilson bill wages in scores of workshops and mills were increased. The Republican party have too long presumed that workmen were ignorant and could be stuffed with 'buncome.'"

"Who do you favor as a Presidential candidate?"

"By all means, William C. Whitney," he replied, with a tone of enthusiasm. "He would be an ideal candidate; his record is clean; he is a man of great personal magnetism and character. With him as a candidate, and tariff for revenue only as the slogan, we would and could make a hustling campaign and would win."

"But what about his views on the silver question?"

"He is all right on that. He favors International Bi-metalism. The grand progress of the United States, in fact, the world, was made on that condition. All Democrats can stand on the platform of International Bi-metalism."

"How about the State of New Jersey?"

"New Jersey is Democratic. The record of this indolent, equivocating Legislature for the people's interest, and the zealousness and effectiveness of Bosses Sewell and Hobart, when corporation interests are at stake, are known, and shall be spread widely on the stump and at meetings this fall."

Preparing for the Convention.

Rev. Titus E. Davis, of Bound Brook, the alert transportation manager for the Washington National Christian Endeavor Convention, has issued a bulletin setting forth the arrangements thus far made. He estimates that the cost of attending the convention need not exceed $22.50 from New York city. Mr. Davis has associated with him Rev. W. E. Davis, Rev. A. J. Martine, of Dunellen, and Messrs. F. N. Voorhees, Geo. Mollison, Thomas C. Whitlock. The committee have progressed in their preparations so far as to print the bill of fare at the N. J. Headquarters Hotel. There are to be three immense tents and ten of the largest churches of the city open to the convention.

Have Been Married Three Months.

A romantic marriage took place in Elizabeth last Thanksgiving Day, but it has only within the last few days been announced. Miss Martha Edgerton was the colored cook at the residence of Dr. Fritts, of Park avenue, and that night she was quietly married at Elizabeth to Joseph Ernest Ulrich Weaver, a young colored man of this city. It is only now that they have gained enough courage to announce the marriage.

Not to be Trifled With.

(From Cincinnati Gazette.)

Will people ever learn that a "cold" is an accident to be dreaded, and that when it occurs treatment should be promptly applied? There is no knowing where the trouble will end; and while complete recovery is the rule, the exceptions are terribly frequent, and thousands upon thousands of fatal illnesses occur every year ushered in by a little injudicious exposure and seemingly trifling systems. Beyond this, there are today countless invalids who can trace their complaints to "colds," which at the time of occurrence gave no concern, and were therefore neglected.—When troubled with a cold use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is prompt and effectual. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue, T. S. Armstrong Manager.

CUBAN RESOLUTIONS

Senate and House Expected To Soon Reach an Agreement.

CONFERENCE COMMITTEES TO MEET

Senate Resolution Not Considered Strong Enough by Some of the Members of the House Committee—Cause of Non-Concurrence.

Washington, March 5.—The action of the senate in voting to non-concur in the Cuban resolution passed by the house was the result of a division of sentiment in the committee on foreign relations of the senate, the majority holding that the house resolutions were not as strong as the senate resolutions, and that the language was in some respects ambiguous. This was charged especially with reference to the second clause of the house resolutions, wherein it is stated that "the only permanent solution of the contest, equally in the interests of Spain, of the people of Cuba, and other nations, would be in the establishment of a government by the choice of the people of Cuba." It was maintained during the argument in committee that under such a resolution this government would be committed to a settlement of the trouble by Cuba on the basis of an agreement of any sort with Spain that permitted Spain to still retain her control and domination of the island. The actual independence of the island was insisted upon as an essential feature of any resolution that may meet the final concurrence of the two houses. The house will probably appoint a conference committee to-day to meet the committee named yesterday by the senate, Messrs. Sherman, Morgan and Lodge, and it is believed that an agreement will soon be reached and that resolutions looking to the freeing of Cuba will be adopted by both houses before the close of the week.

WILL PROCEED CAUTIOUSLY.

The President's Position on the Cuban Belligerency Question No Secret.

Washington, March 5.—What will the president do with the Cuban resolutions should they ever emerge from conference committees and reach him? The fact is, it is an open secret that the president and Secretary Olney are disposed to proceed in a very conservative manner in regard to Cuban recognition. It is well understood in congress that but for a knowledge of this fact, and a consequent indisposition to embarrass the executive, a joint resolution instead of a concurrent resolution would have been adopted by both houses. It is felt by leading members of the house that the president can be depended on to do what is proper, and that the action of the two houses in passing resolutions favorable to the Cuban insurgents gives him the endorsement of those bodies, should he deem it proper to issue a proclamation of belligerency. But will he take such a step? That question was put this morning by a United Press reporter to a number of prominent republicans and democrats in the house. The republicans claimed to have no knowledge of the executive's intentions, and said the only person competent to speak with intelligence upon the subject was Mr. Cleveland himself. The democratic leaders are equally uncertain. They do not believe that, under any circumstances, he will act upon the matter for several weeks, should he do so at all.

Plea of Opponents.

Opponents of the resolutions recall the promptness with which the Spanish government expressed its regret for the outrages in Barcelona on Sunday last; their payment of the celebrated Mora claim some months ago; the protection afforded by them to American property interests in Cuba and other evidences of a desire to placate the United States, and regret that circumstances forced them to take a position which in their opinion places this government in the attitude of embarrassing a friendly nation already impoverished financially and struggling in the throes of a civil war.

ELDUAYEN RESIGNS.

Duke of Tetuan To Succeed Him as Spanish Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Madrid, March 5.—Senor Elduayen, who was recently appointed minister of foreign affairs in succession to the Duke of Tetuan, has resigned. A meeting of the cabinet was held last evening at which Senor Elduayen announced that he had tendered his resignation because it was considered desirable that the same minister who begins negotiations with the United States and other countries in regard to Cuba should complete them. It is understood that the Duke of Tetuan will succeed the retiring foreign minister and that he will take the oath of office to-day.

Universities To Be Closed.

At the meeting it was decided that the universities should be closed for the present. A demonstration was attempted last night by the students of the School of Medicine and a number of citizens who had joined them. They were dispersed by the police, but soon reassembled, whistling at and jeering the officers. The police and gendarmes charged with drawn swords upon the rioters. In the melee which ensued a few persons were injured. All places of business in the neighborhood were closed.

Trampled the American Flag.

A group of university students and citizens who were attempting to make a riotous demonstration yesterday afternoon were charged upon by the police with drawn swords and were driven into near-by cafes and houses. A number of them took refuge in the university, where they trampled upon and afterwards burned an American flag. Sixteen of the rioters were taken into custody and will be severely punished.

FIERCE FIGHT AT BARCELONA.

Students Attack the Police with Sticks and Stones.

Barcelona, March 5.—A large number of students carrying banners assembled yesterday at the doors of the university, where they were addressed by several speakers. The police attempted to disperse the gathering, but were resisted by the students, who met the officers with volleys of stones and other missiles. A charge was ordered and the officers advanced upon the students, who retired and took refuge within the university building, closing the doors in the face of the police. The latter finally forced an entrance in the rear of the building, but were met by the rector of the university, who ordered them to leave the premises at once. The police retired and the students emerged, when they were again attacked by the officers and a fierce fight ensued, at the height of which a party of mounted gendarmes arrived and were greeted with cheers by the students. The commander of the gendarmes ordered the students to disperse, which they did upon his promise that they should be protected against the police. In the encounter with the officers many persons were injured.

The Seizure of the Mallory.

Washington, March 5.—The Spanish authorities do not conceal their disappointment that, in the capture of the arms on the schooner S. R. Mallory near Tampa, Fla, by the U. S. revenue cutter of that district, the men on the other schooner, which escaped, were not also taken, so as to constitute an armed expedition within the terms of the statute, but they are gratified that these needed supplies, which were seized by the United State authorities at Cedar Keys last August, have already been kept from the Cuban insurgents more than six months, and will now have to be shipped in some other way, if at all. The arms captured consist of 300 rifles and about 500,000 cartridges. The Mallory was a portion of the first great Collazo expedition, which set sail some time ago. Gen. Collazo, who was at its head, sailed from Tampa on Monday on the steamer Ardell for Cuba.

Paroled in Custody of Their Attorneys.

New York, March 5.—The three men from the alleged filibustering steamship Bermuda—Thomas Nelson, chief engineer; James Howden, assistant engineer, and C. C. Taylor, chief steward—who were arrested on Tuesday and held as witnesses by the United States authorities, have been paroled in the custody of their counsel.

ITS ACTION CONSIDERED HASTY.

An English Paper Criticizes the New York Yacht Club for Expelling Dunraven.

London, March 5.—In its current issue the Yachting World accuses the New York Yacht club of having shown vindictiveness in the expulsion from membership in the organization of Lord Dunraven, when it was well aware that his lordship had written and mailed his resignation. The Yachting World expects, it says, that the yachting societies of Great Britain will express their opinion of the action of the New York Yacht club in no minced language, and insists that the Royal Yacht squadron, as backer of Lord Dunraven's challenge for the America's cup, is bound to take some action in the matter. The Royal Yacht squadron, the paper declares, cannot afford to have its leading member dealt with in such a summary manner without endorsing his expulsion or loudly protesting against it.

HOLMES TO BE SENTENCED.

His Lawyer Will Appeal to the Pardon Board as a Last Resort.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 5.—Gov. Hastings, now that the supreme court has affirmed the verdict of murder in the first degree in the case of Herman W. Mudget, alias H. H. Holmes, found guilty in the Philadelphia court of oyer and terminer of the murder of Benjamin F. Pietzel, will set a day for the doomed man's execution. This he will do just as soon as the papers in the case arrive from the supreme court, which may probably reach him to-day. The supreme court's opinion, which was delivered by Justice Williams, overrules all the assignments of error and affirms the judgment of the lower court. It holds that no substantial error was pointed out, and that the evidence fully sustains the verdict. His counsel will appeal to the pardon board as a last resort.

Pawtucket Opera House Closed.

Pawtucket, R. I., March 5.—Business complications at the Pawtucket opera house, coupled with poor business, caused the house to close last night. The Ullie Akerstrom company opened March 2 for the week, but has done a poor business and cancelled its performances. The house will be sold March 9 at a mortgagees sale.

B. & O. Receivership.

New York, March 5.—It is authoritatively said that there will be no additional receiverships for subsidiary lines of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. The system will be at once provided with additional equipment. The report of Stephen Little, the expert accountant, on the condition of the company will be ready in a few days.

Crusade Against Tobacco.

Lincoln, Neb., March 5.—The city council has adopted an ordinance prohibiting the use of cigarettes, cigars or tobacco in the city limits by persons under eighteen years of age.

Signed by Gov. Morton.

Albany, March 5.—Gov. Morton has signed Assemblyman Scherer's bill making an emergency appropriation of $75,000 for the continuance of the work on the capitol.

BEATS THE X-RAYS

Prof. Hammond's Experiments with a Common Horseshoe Magnet.

LIGHT AND SHADOW PRODUCED

Perfect Photographs of Hidden Objects, Far Superior to Those Obtained by the Cathode Rays, Secured by an Ordinary Magnet.

Baltimore, March 5.—Prof. Wm. C. A. Hammel of the department of physics of the Maryland State Normal school claims to have secured perfect photographs of hidden objects with the aid of an ordinary horseshoe magnet. The result of his experiments, he claims, are far superior to those attained through the use of the cathode rays, in that he secured a perfect photograph of the objects, light and shade included, instead of the rough outline as produced by the X-ray process. Prof. Hammel says the new photography is not due to cathode rays, but to a new force of a magnetic nature. In speaking of his experiments last evening, he said:

Magnet Did the Work.

"Being interested in the new developments of the so-called X-rays, I tried the experiment reported by Prof. Pratt of Chicago. Working under the most favorable circumstances, I found, after numerous trials with different exposures, that upon developing the plates they showned no signs whatever of having been affected by the magnet. I then conceived the idea that if it were possible to make impressions upon a sensitized photographic plate it would be necessary to direct the force of the magnet toward the plate. I placed four soft iron nails in a heavy pasteboard box, and over the nails an extra rapid sensitive plate, film side up, and placed a double cover on the box. Over this I put a pine board one-half inch thick and upon this an ordinary horse shoe magnet. I left the apparatus for twelve hours in a dark room. So you see there was no possibility whatever of the plate's being acted upon by any force other than that possessed by the magnet. On developing the plate I obtained a sharp impression of the magnet, somewhat larger than the magnet used.

Light and Shadow Produced.

"I have made other experiments with interesting results. I have succeeded in photographing, or more properly, magnetographing, opaque objects, showing distinct contrast of light and shadow upon the negatives. This has never been done by means of the X-rays. Furthermore, I have obtained a perfect positive upon the same plate with negative impressions of a number of opaque objects. These latter experiments were performed with the use of a three-quarter inch board in place of the one-half inch board."

ENGLISH MECHANICS DETAINED.

Efforts To Secure Their Admission To Set Up Foreign Made Machinery.

Washington, March 5.—Secretary Carlisle and Commissioner General Stump gave a hearing yesterday afternoon to several attorneys representing cotton interests as to admitting into this country four machinists from England. These machinists were sent to this country by English manufacturers of cotton machines to set up the machines, which are imported in detached parts. Each man had a contract with the English firm, and they were debarred from landing by the immigrant bureau as contract laborers. The attorneys representing various cotton mill owners contended that only men familiar with the construction of the complicated machines could set them up. The labor organizations contend that to allow these men to perform such work would deprive American workmen of their just deserts. Among the attorneys engaged in the case was ex-Gov. Russell of Massachusetts.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Demonstrates Its Merits.

A scrofulous or catarrhal condition of the intestines is often the prime cause of chronic diarrhœa, and when the tissues are built up and healed by the pure blood made by Hood's Sarsaparilla, a cure is effected. Read this:

"I believe it my duty to tell what benefit I have received from Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was afflicted with chronic diarrhœa for four years, and

BIG FIRES!

Great Fires Are Constantly Burning.

Still They Will Go Out in Time if Not Replenished—Food is Fuel for the Body.

History records the occurrence of most disastrous fires. A few times our own country has been visited in this way with tremendous force. Yet how insignificant they seem when compared to the raging fires of the sun. A recent writer in one of our monthly journals, illustrates the enormous heat which the sun gives out, as follows: he says that if all the coal which exists on this globe could be placed in one mass, and then immediately burned up, it would not produce as much heat as the sun throws off into space in one-tenth of a second. Of course, we cannot comprehend what this means, But there is another fire constantly burning, of which many of us are not aware, although we live very close to it.

We all know that the human body is warmer than the surrounding atmosphere; while during cold weather the difference is very marked. What keeps the body warm? Because it is constantly burning up.

We replenish the fire in the stove by adding more coal or wood. The oxygen of the air unites with this fuel and heat is produced. The fuel for the body is our food; and the oxygen obtained from the air we breathe combines with it and heat is produced. This heat is constantly escaping from the skin. During summer we dress lightly to aid its escape. During winter we put on flannels, because wool is not a good conductor of heat, and will not allow it to escape so freely from the surface of the body.

If a person is plump in flesh, that is, if he has a layer of fat just beneath the skin, he has a medium which holds in the heat of the body, as a layer of wool does when placed on the outside of the skin. Persons who are plump in flesh do not shiver with every cool, invigorating breeze. Neither do they require so much food, for as the heat cannot escape so readily, so it is not necessary to add as much fuel. Plumpness means protection; defense against coughs and colds; shelter for an escape from neuralgia and sciatica; a shield to throw off nervous prostration; better security from the germs of consumption; an escape from a thousand aches and pains which cling to a body that is poorly nourished. Plumpness is prosperity, thrift, good nature, happiness.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites will not make you over-fat, simply plump, just about right. It puts that coat of fat over the body, pushes up the skin, and removes wrinkles and angles.

Scott's Emulsion contains more pure Norwegian Cod-liver Oil than any other emulsion in the world, that will stand the test of time as being a perfect inseparable emulsion. Ask your doctor.

DEATH THE PENALTY

Baratieri Will Be Tried in Rome on a Grave Charge.

DESERTED IN THE FACE OF BATTLE

Italian Troops in Full Retreat Toward Asmara—Baldissera Takes Command—Reports Say the Fighting Was Terrific.

Rome, March 5.—Advices from Massowah received by the government announce that Gen. Baldissera, the newly-appointed commander-in-chief of the Italian forces in Africa assumed command yesterday. The government has instructed the military advocate general to examine into the conduct of the Abyssinian campaign by Gen. Baratieri and determine whether or not the latter shall be arraigned before a council of war.

Conviction Would Mean Death.

It is reported that Gen. Baratieri upon his return to Italy will be tried under articles 72 and 88 of the military code, which fix the punishment for officers who abandon their posts before the enemy at degradation to the ranks followed by death. The charges against Baratieri are based upon his own admission that he left the field while the troops under his command were fighting.

The Fighting Was Terrific.

Long official dispatches from Massowah under the date of March 3, give technical details of the positions and movements of the Italian troops engaged in Sunday's battle with the Abyssinians. According to these advices the troops in the morning occupied two ridges in the vicinity of Adowa, but they were compelled to abandon these positions by immense phalanxes of the enemy. The fighting was evidently of a terrific character and the retreat of most of the battalions was a mere rout. The dispatches conclude that no news has been received of Gen. Deloamida's brigade nor of Gens. Arimondi and Albertone.

Italians in Full Retreat.

London, March 5.—A dispatch to the Central News from Rome says that of the 247 officers under Gen. Baratieri, who took part in the battle against the Abyssinians on Sunday, only forty returned. Among the killed were Gen. Arberton and Col. Galliano, the latter of whom was in command of the Italian garrison which defended Makalle when that place was besieged by the Abyssinians. Gen. Arimondi was seriously wounded. Gen. Dabormida, with the remnant of his brigade, succeeded in rejoining Gen. Baratieri after having fought their way through the enemy's lines. The Italians are in full retreat towards Asmara.

Students Demonstrate at Naples.

Naples, March 5.—A party of students attempted a riotous manifestation here last night against the policy pursued by the government relative to the African campaign. The mob was dispersed by the police, but not until after a severe encounter. Many of the rioters were arrested.

NEW ENGLAND FLOODS.

Traffic Resumed on the Boston & Maine Railroad's Western Division.

Boston, March 5.—Dispatches received from the inundated district of New England at the office of the Boston & Maine railroad in this city are to the effect that traffic has been resumed on the western division and that the southern will be clear within the next twenty-four hours. Advices from General Passenger Agent Boothby of the Maine Central say that his line has re-established communication between Portland and Bangor. It was learned that up to late yesterday afternoon not a bridge on the entire Boston & Maine system had been carried away or had shown any sign of weakening under the pressure of water and ice incident to the freshet.

INDIANS PROTEST.

Washington, March 5.—Indian Commissioner Browning yesterday afternoon heard a delegation of Ogallala Sioux Indians from the Pine Ridge, S. D., reservation, who protested against the disturbance of certain of their lands used for grazing purposes. The commissioner assured the delegation that the government would not touch the lands. Another picturesque delegation of Mexican Kickapoos from Oklahoma territory also addressed the commissioner on matters pertaining to their lands.

La Bourgogne Libeled.

New York, March 5.—The Atlas line Steamship company, owners of the steamship Ailsa, which was sunk by the French line steamer La Bourgogne on Saturday last, have filed a libel in the United States district court against the Bourgogne in the sum of $400,000 for the loss of the Ailsa and her cargo. Security will be furnished by the French line company to-day.

Eastern League Baseball Meeting.

New York, March 5.—The Eastern League baseball delegates will to-day elect a director in the place of John Chapman of Toronto. It was learned at the meeting to-day that Syracuse had obtained the services of Charles Reilly, third baseman of the Philadelphia club, and of Carey, the Baltimore first baseman. Reilly will act as captain and manager of the Syracuse club.

Many Applications for Patents.

Washington, March 5.—Last week 1,140 applications for patents were received, the largest in the history of the patent office in any single week, indicating a renewal of business prosperity.

DELAWARE SENATORSHIP.

Senate Enters Upon the Dupont Case—May Last for Weeks.

Washington, March 5.—The senate has entered on the consideration of the question whether Henry A. Dupont has been legally elected United States senator from the state of Delaware or not. Although the facts in the case are conceded on both sides of the chamber, the legal point is one on which the two political parties take opposite views; and on that opposition hinges a dispute which may occupy the time of the senate for weeks to come. It seems that in the Delaware joint assembly on May 9, 1895, Mr. Dupont received fifteen votes of a total of thirty cast. But as to one of the thirty votes, it is contended on the part of Mr. Dupont, that it was illegal and void, it having been cast by Mr. Watson, a senator who had on the death of the governor, succeeded to the office, and who could not, as claimed by the republican members on the committee on privileges and elections, legally or constitutionally act as senator. In that case the total legal vote cast being only twenty-nine, Mr. Dupont would be entitled to a seat in the senate. The contention on the part of the democratic members of the committee is that the exercise of the duties of governor by Mr. Watson did not divest him of his rights as a state senator, and that, at all events, that was a question to be determined by the senate of Delaware, not by the senate of the United States. Mr. Mitchell, rep., Ore., chairman of the committee on privileges and elections, will resume his argument to-day in favor of the right of Mr. Dupont.

GREAT BRITAIN'S CASE.

Venezuelan Minister at Washington Considers It Very Weak.

Washington, March 5.—At the Venezuelan legation the statement of the British case was declared to be pitiably week and easily disposed of. Minister Andrade said it did not contain any attempt which had not already been fully met and disproved in documents furnished to Secretaries Bayard and Gresham by the Venezuelan government. All the arguments now presented by Sir Frederick Pollock, which had not been included in Lord Salisbury's letters of November 26 last, leading to President Cleveland's special message, had already been abandoned by British statesmen. It was preposterous now for Great Britain to attempt to go behind the treaty of Munster to show that the Dutch had settlements in Guiana, for up to that time Holland was a Spanish dependency, just as Guiana was. With the recognition of the independence of the Dutch by the treaty of Munster in 1648 the Essequito became the eastern boundary of Spanish possessions and by the treaty of Utrecht, in 1713, England obligated herself to enforce that boundary. The Dutch colonies did not pass to England until 1796, and from that time until 1836 (forty years) every English map, encyclopaedia, history or other work bearing on Guiana gave either the Essequito or the Pomaron as the western English limit. Barima, at the mouth of the Orinoco may have been occupied by the Dutch when Spain was the sovereign of Holland, as shown by early maps, but Minister Andrade notes that Sir Frederick Pollock has found no map giving the Dutch that point after the treaty of Munster. No fear is expressed by the members of the legation as to the result of the Venezuelan commission's labors. They are confident that the decision will be entirely in conformity with the Venezuelan contention.

Storm Blocks Traffic in Maine.

Monson Junction, Me., March 5.—The storm has blockaded trains on the Moosehead Lake branch of the Bangor & Aroostock, so much ice and snow being on the track that a snow plow was twelve hours in getting to Greenville. The train out of Bangor was stuck at Monson Junction twelve hours when a snow plow came and took it back.

BAY STATE'S GRIEF

Gov. Greenhalge Passes Away Early This Morning.

UNCONSCIOUS FOR SEVERAL HOURS

The Bereaved Family Flooded with Messages of Condolence From All Parts of the Country—Sketch of Mr. Greenhalge's Career.

Lowell, Mass., March 5.—Governor Greenhalge died at his home in this city at 12:44 this morning, surrounded by his family and physicians. He was unconscious from 5:30 o'clock last night, when he suffered a second stroke of paralysis, the first having occurred last Tuesday evening. His condition then was announced by the physicians as that of uraemic poisoning. While the governor's death was not unexpected its announcement was in the nature of a shock to the public and general and near friends and neighbors in particular. They can hardly realize that he, who was so bright and active but a few days ago is now lying cold in death. Men who have been his lifelong friends and neighbors, pay loving tribute to the memory of the dead governor. Judge Hadley of the Lowell municipal court said: "Gov. Greenhalge's death in the zenith of a prosperous career is another illustration of the repeated quotation 'Death loves a shining mark.'" Messages of condolence are pouring in upon the bereaved family to-day from all parts of the country, from governors, congressmen, United States senators and other distinguished persons.

FREDERIC T. GREENHALGE.

Brief Sketch of the Late Governor's Active Career.

Frederic Thomas Greenhalge was born in Clitheree, England, July 10, 1842. He came to this country with his father, William Greenhalge, who went to Lowell, Mass., in 1844. He passed through the grammar and high schools of that city and entered Harvard college. Mr. Greenhalge did not complete his college course. He, however, received his degree in 1870. In March, 1863, he began the study of law. Later he tried to enter the army, but his delicate health was a bar to his enlistment in the regular service. He served in the commissary department, and in 1864 had charge of a company of colored men in defense of the commissary stores at Newberne. After the war he resumed his law studies, and was admitted to the Middlesex bar in 1865. In 1868 he was elected to the common council of Lowell, and re-elected in 1869. In 1871 he was elected to the school committee and served till 1873. In 1874 he was appointed special justice of the Lowell police court. In 1880 and 1881 he was elected mayor of Lowell by large majorities. In 1884 he was sent as a delegate to the republican national convention, and in 1885 he was elected to the legislature in a democratic district.

Congressman and Governor.

In 1888 he was made city solicitor of Lowell, and in the same year was chosen a member of the fifty-first congress. In congress Mr. Greenhalge at once took high rank as a debater and won high praise from his party associates by his conduct of contested election cases. He was elected governor of Massachusetts to succeed Gov. Russell in 1893, and was re-elected in 1894 and 1895. There is a pathetic significance in the fact that the last official act of Gov. Greenhalge was his message to the legislature on the 24th of February announcing the death of ex-Gov. Robinson. Mr. Greenhalge was married in 1873 to Isabel Nesmith, whose father, John Nesmith, was lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts in 1862. He had three children, Frederick, Harriet and Richard. Mr. Greenhalge was one of the founders of the Martin Luther club, which later included many prominent business and professional men of Lowell. He was also president of the People's club, a member of the Central club, president of the Lowell Humane club for three years, and was a trustee of the Rogers Hall school for girls, the Westford academy and the Lowell General hospital.

Kattowitz Mine Horror.

Berlin, March 5.—The latest reports from Kattowitz are to the effect that fifty corpses have just been taken from the pit, three miners have been rescued alive and the fate of ninety-one others who were in the mine at the time of the explosion is unknown.

Rushing the Raines Bill.

Albany, March 5.—It is now the plan of the republicans to pass the Raines bill in the senate on Saturday next. The bill will be discussed to-day in the committee of the whole in the senate, and the debate will be a decidedly interesting and lively one.

The Naval Appropriations.

Washington, March 5.—The members of the naval affairs committee of the house of representatives have found it hard work to "get together" on the naval appropriation bill. The committee was in secret session last evening, but no definite result was reached.

Rev. Noah Hooper Dead.

Exter, N. H., March 5.—Rev. Noah Hooper, with one exception the oldest Baptist minister in New Hamsphire, died here yesterday in his ninetieth year. He was a native of Saco, Me.

Summer Weather at New Orleans.

New Orleans, March 5.—It was hot here yesterday, with a temperature of 80 degrees in the shade at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

March 10—Lecture by Miss Elizabeth Yates, of Maine.

It is reported that Charles Deshler will be appointed Postmaster at New Brunswick. It is understood that he has the recommendation of Senator Smith and Miles Ross.

The Republican Senators have held a conference and decided to adjourn the Legislature on Friday, March 13th, if the House is ready, but it is believed that the date will be changed to a week later, because the House is behind with its work.

In its amateurish and malignant efforts to criticise Mayor Gilbert, The News last night stated that Joseph Galbraith, who was appointed as a special officer by the Mayor, was a resident of Somerset county. This is an untruth. Mr. Galbraith has been a resident of this city for ten years, and for six years he has been a taxpayer. He lives at 508 West Fourth street. He has already served two years as a special officer.

The Press trusts that the Plainfielders who attend the Board of Trade dinner at Elizabeth tonight will return home and inculcate a little spirit of progressiveness in the local organization.—Plainfield Press.

A local Board of Trade can do much good if it has the right kind of men guiding it. For years a handful of Newarkers kept pegging away under discouraging circumstances. Their meetings were slimly attended, but the ideas and opinions enunciated were published in the local newspapers and eventually bore fruit. Today the Newark Board of Trade is one of the most influential bodies in that city. Such has been the history in a lesser degree, perhaps, of the Boards in Jersey City and Paterson.—New York Tribune.

The merchants of Elizabeth are very anxious that the trolley road should be extended from that city to Plainfield, hoping thereby to attract many customers. A trolley line from New Brunswick to Metuchen, Dunellen, Bound Brook and Plainfield would be of immense benefit to local business men.—New Brunswick Home News.

Trolley lines are good things. They help the public and the public helps them. There is a piece of trolley road between Somerville and Bound Brook, and it is a part of the project to connect these two towns with New Brunswick. But it is already tied up with debts and injunctions. When a trolley line is started to connect Elizabeth and Plainfield, it will be completed, and all the towns along the line will be benefitted. But we do not want the famous county roads ruined by trolley roads, now or at any later date. —Elizabeth Journal.

There was a lively time yesterday afternoon in the Assembly over Mr. Reed's trolley bill, No. 86, which provided that no municipality could grant any trolley company a franchise unless such company had first paid the municipality the sum of $2,000 for each single mile of track, and $4,000 for each mile of double track. About a dozen members took part in the discussion of the trolley generally and the bill particularly, and finally, under a call of the House, the bill was lost by a vote of 28 to 26. Mr. Reed thought it was time some restriction should be placed around the trolley roads, many of which have obtained possession of the highways without paying a cent. Mr. Roll, of Union, made a strong fight against the bill. He declared the measure would prevent the extension of the trolley in the agricultural districts. The trolley, he said, was the "poor man's friend," and if the Reed bill became a law the trolley lines would stand still.

In St. Mary's Church.

Rev. Father J. A. Stafford, formerly assistant pastor of St. Mary's church, this city, and now of Seton Hall College, South Orange, was to have delivered the third in the series of Lenten sermons last evening, but was unable to be present. His place, however, was acceptably filled by another clergyman, who delivered a most instructive and impressive sermon. The benediction of the Blessed Sacrament brought to a close the evening's services.

The Colored Revivals Successful.

The revival meetings still continue at the Mt. Olive Baptist church, and will for this week at least. New converts are made every night, and it is estimated that over eighty have begun a new life.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

J. S. Johnson, of Park avenue, is very ill at his home.

Mrs. Mabel Miner, of Newark, is visiting relatives in this city.

Roy Mulford, of East Fifth street, is confined to the house with measles.

Miss Minnie Stiglitz, of Elm street, has returned from a visit to Red Bank.

Mrs. Abel Titsworth, of Dunellen, has returned home after a short visit in town.

W. J. Mundy, of Somerset street, is moving into his new house on Summit avenue.

Fred Ross, of Park place, attended a large social gathering at Westfield last evening.

The condition of Mrs. P. P. VanArsdale is much improved, and she is able to sit up.

Dr. Fred. C. Sutphen, of Liberty Corner, was the guest of Plainfield friends yesterday.

Miss Jennie Simpson, of Craig place, has returned from a short visit out of town with friends.

Miss Lillian Thorn, of East Second street, is home again after a pleasant visit with relatives in Flemington.

Miss Nody Callahan, of Richmond street, who has been very ill with pneumonia, has slightly recovered.

Mrs. Kiederling, of Somerville, has returned home after visiting her son, Charles Kiederling, of East Front street.

After a pleasant visit with New York friends, Miss Nettie Krietling, of West Front street, has returned home.

Miss Daisy Dunn, of Sandford avenue, has returned from New York, where she has been the guest of friends.

James Blair will remain at the Metropolitan livery stables for the present, and look after the business for Mr. Thompson.

John Brooks, of Watchung avenue, is improving under the treatment of Dr. Adams. It was first thought his illness would lead to pneumonia.

Ethel Murray, of West Fourth street, returned to the public school yesterday after over a month's absence on account of scarlet fever.

Miss Thorn, of East Third street, entertained a few friends last evening at her home. The evening passed very pleasantly with singing, games and conversation.

Fred VanEps, of Park avenue, will attend the ninth annual concert to be given by prominent professional and amateur banjoists, at Chickering Hall, New York, this evening.

More Room Needed for Cars.

Contractor Doremus, of Newark, has received the contract for building an addition to the Plainfield street railway car house. The extension will be 65 feet long, and will be made to accommodate the extra cars that will be used when the tracks are extended. The work on the building will probably be started this month, as the extra room will be needed at an early date. Mr. Doremus was in Plainfield yesterday making arrangements to start the work.

Champion Big Baby at Elizabeth.

The wife of Charles Boehm, of Elizabeth, on Saturday gave birth to what is said to be the largest infant ever born in Elizabeth. It tipped the scales at eighteen pounds. It is a boy, and as there will not be any leap year in 1900, it will be eight years, if the child lives, before it will have another birthday.

Thanked by the Women.

The W. C. T. U. have sent the following letter to Councilman George H. Frost:

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union is gratified to learn of the attitude of opposition to the saloon, which your vote at the recent meeting of the Council evinces.

Had the best interests of the community been equally regarded by the other members of the Council, our organization would not contend in vain for the protection of our homes.

A Slight Delay.

Car No. 1 of the street railway jumped the track yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock at the corner of Front street and Watchung avenue. A stone had found its way into the groove of the track thus throwing the wheels out.

To Appear for Scrapping.

John Sloyan has been ordered to appear before City Judge DeMeza Saturday morning on the charge of fighting on West Third street.

MURDER MYSTERY.

Robbery is Supposed to Have Been the Motive for the Crime.

Paterson, March 5th. A mysterious murder, the key to which has yet baffled all the efforts of the local police, occurred late last night. Miss Mabel Sullivan, a well-known and popular young woman, who lives on Park avenue, this city, was found unconscious and bleeding from a wound in the head in a vacant lot at the corner of Park avenue and Eighteenth street shortly before 10 o'clock. The police were notified and an ambulance was summoned by telephone.

The young woman was taken to the general hospital here, and the staff of physicians set to work to restore her to consciousness. Their efforts were fruitless for more than an hour, when finally Miss Sullivan showed signs of returning animation. She rallied from her stupor very gradually.

When she opened her eyes, the doctors say, she tried to spring up from her cot, and cried: "For God's sake let me up!"

The effort seemed to exhaust all the vitality that was remaining in her body, for she sank rapidly afterward and died at 2.30 o'clock this morning without speaking again.

Dunellen.

A union temperance service will be held next Sunday evening in the Methodist church.

T. Milliken, of North avenue, has returned home from his visit with friends in New York.

Mr. Harrington has returned home to Chicago after a week's visit with friends at West Dunellen.

Miss May Henderson, of Elizabeth, is spending a few days with Miss Randolph, of Jefferson avenue.

Rev. Mr. Ryman, of Elizabeth, will occupy the pulpit in the Methodist church next Sunday morning.

Miss May Anderson, of Junction, who has been visiting friends in town, has gone to New York to visit friends.

Mr. and Mrs. John Runyon, of Washington avenue, have been entertaining their daughter, Mrs. Manning, of Trenton.

Mrs. VanDyke and Miss Nellie Smith, of New Brunswick, were the guests Wednesday of relatives on Jackson avenue.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church, will hold their dime sociable sometime this month, which had been postponed on account of the revival services.

Progressive Women to Meet.

The New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs will hold its semi-annual meeting in Trenton, March 20th, at the State House. Mrs. Llewellyn H. Johnson, President of the Orange Woman's Club, is arranging the programme. Each club in the federation will be asked to send a member to discuss the question of the "Altruism of Clubs."

Miss Annie Miller, of Park avenue, has recovered from a ten days sickness with tonsilitis.

BOISTEROUS MARCH.

It is Indeed a Rough Harbinger of Spring.

For One Thing It is the Best Month in the Year.

Everybody Knows, Or Should Know, What This One Thing Is.

It is hard to agree with the calendar and hail March as the first month of spring, for it is so bleak and boisterous and brings in its train so many storms, that only poets connect the idea of "gentle spring" with such a month. But March is the best time of year in which to prepare our systems for the spring.

The indoor life of the winter tells upon us severely There is loss of appetite, confusion and giddiness in the head, sleepless nights or else horrid dreams with waking suddenly in affright. There are noises in the head and ears like a tea kettle singing or beats of a muffled drum, occasional deafness, headaches, black and light spots before the eyes, and sometimes partial loss of memory. The person is weak, tired and languid, is pale and sallow, has poor circulation in feet and limbs the spirits are depressed, gloomy.

All this happens because of poor blood and weakness; the brain and nerves are only supplied with poor blood instead of good rich, red blood. To make good blood and strong nerves it is necessary to restore the general healthy action of the system by the use of a good nerve-strengthening and blood purifying medicine.

Miss Mamie Woodbury, of Belfast, Me., says:

"I regard my improvement simply as wonderful, since using Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. Before using the medicine I had been running down for some time. I had a liver trouble, and was very nervous, and I had such a tired feeling all the time. I had no appetite and was growing poor and losing flesh all the time. I was not able to do any kind of work and had no strength or energy

"After using Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy I had no tired feeling my nerves were strong, and I gained in flesh and now feel like myself again."

You see what this great remedy did for her; it can do the same for you if you will but try it. It is an invigorating tonic for the entire system. Why not take it now in the spring when you feel the need of it? This grand medicine is the discovery of one of the most successful physicians. Dr. Greene of 35 West 14th St., New York City, who can always be consulted, personally or by letter, free of charge.

Fred Endress, the Liberty street butcher, will take possession of his branch store on West Front street, next to Voehl's bakery, on April 1st. The store will be thoroughly renovated and arranged before that time.

J. W. Pierce, Republic, Ia., says: "I have used One Minute Cough Cure in my family and for myself, with results so entirely satisfactory that I can hardly find words to express myself as to its merit. I will never fail to recommend it to others, on every occasion that presents itself." L. W. Randolph, 143 W. Front St.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Dr. M. B. Long, of Park avenue, has purchased a Union wheel. William Walters, of Somerset street, will also be mounted on a Union.

The Kings County Wheelmen have applied for the National Circuit date, June 27th, and the Riverside Wheelmen are planning to hold their meet on July 11th.

Martin & Zimmer, the Somerset street cycle dealers, have placed in front of their building some very handsome signs. They have an excellent line of wheels, and inspection is solicited.

Plainfield, with its miles of macadam streets, has probably more wheelmen and wheelwomen in proportion to its population than any other city in this section of the country. Elizabeth is developing a large force of bicycle riders, despite the pavements of trap-block and those of dirt.—Elizabeth Journal.

The proposition made by Messrs. Whipple at the annual meeting of the Metropolitan Association of Cycling Clubs last Friday evening, to build a cycle path from New York to Philadelphia, at their expense, it is said, will not be accepted by the association, as in the latter's opinion, it seems to be a one-sided arrangement.

The following 1896 wheels have been sold by Charles Lister, of North avenue: Harry VanEmburgh, Geo. Patterson, J. W. VanSickle, Simon Springs, and Lord, Day & Lord, New York, Keatings; Joseph Patterson, Charles Clifton, W. Woodruff, Miss Patterson, Fowlers; W. Waters, Harry Vail, Outings; Israel Jones, Fred Treuleben, S. A. DuFlon, Apollos. Mr. Lister is arranging to put in an electric motor and air tank for the benefit of his patrons.

THEATRICAL.

Paul Potter has woven a play out of Du Maurier's celebrated novel, "Trilby," that fairly bristles with action and dramatic effect. The story is told in a straightforward and comprehensive manner. Every situation is reasonable and natural, and the development of the story is logical and at all times consistent. Most of the characters have been reproduced with wonderful fidelity. "Little Billee," "Taffy," "the Laird" and "Svengali" are Du Maurier's portraits brought to life. "Svengali" is depicted with horrible realism. "Gecko" is the same wierd, pitiable specimen of a musical enthusiast that the book portrays. Mr. Potter has done his work well. He is in perfect accord with the author, caught absolutely the spirit of the book, knew thoroughly the characters, and made no mistakes in presenting them in action. He departs slightly from the novel in making "Trilby" leave "Little Billee," not because she promised to do so, but because "Svengali" wills it by his hypnotic power. On the whole, this change is to be commended. William A. Brady, under whose direction this company is touring, guarantees one of the finest productions seen at Music Halls in years. This great play and excellent company will appear on Friday evening, March 6th.

Just now all New York is curious about the extremely unique entertainment that is being given every half hour, afternoon and evening, in the Casino Chambers, at Broadway and Thirty ninth street. It is called "Cabaret du Neant," and occupies all the chambers upon the ground floor of the far-famed home of comic opera, the Casino. It is an importation from Paris, and is in its every feature so peculiar that no one doubts that it came from that gay city. The audiences are conducted through the various chambers by eloquent orators who are veritable comedians, and for a half hour mystery and fun run riot. The "Cabaret du Neant" has for many years been one of the sights for visitors to the capital of France, and it is rapidly becoming equally popular here in the American metropolis. An exhibition of the cathode ray is also made one of the features.

The biggest melo dramatic hit of the season is "The War of Wealth," a new melodrama by C. T. Dazey, now running at the Star Theatre, New York. The houses have been packed to the doors nightly since the opening, and no such cheering multitudes have been seen in a New York theatre in many a day. The production is described as one of the costliest ever seen on a metropolitan stage. All of the scenery was gotten up especially for this engagement at the Star. The company, too, is an unusually strong one, numbering among its members such well-known actors as Joseph Wheelock, A. S. Lipman, Lawrence Hanley, Madeline Bouton, Fanny McIntyre and others. The New York papers, with scarcely a dissenting voice, pronounce "The War of Wealth" a tremendous popular success, and agree that it will easily run out the season. The great run on the bank scene, in which over 200 people are employed, is said to almost carry the audience off their feet. It should not be forgotten that this big and elaborate production is being presented at the Star at popular prices, 25c., 50c., and 75c.

Wealthy Residents of Morristown Resent Any Invasion.

At least one other place in this country outside of Washington does not welcome trade or manufactures. The opposition to the introduction of factories in Morristown, will perhaps take tangible shape this week. A leading real estate agent said yesterday that he knew of twenty wealthy families who assert that they will leave Morristown as soon as factories come. He told the members of the Board of Trade that this condition existed, and further that factories would kill Morristown as a residence for wealthy people. There are two sides to the prooosition, and citizens are earnestly considering and discussing the matter.

NAPOLEON THE FIFTH.

Romantic Origin of Willie Watkins, the Prince Imperial's Son.

His Candidacy for the Throne First Meeting of the Prince Imperial and Lottie Watkins—Empress Eugenie Enlisted in Watkins' Behalf.

[COPYRIGHT, 1896.]

The Bonapartist leaders who have been opposed to Prince Victor since the death of the prince imperial, are moving heaven and earth to organize a new party. Their chief is already found in the person of Willie Watkins, an illegitimate child of the late prince. The boy will be 16 years old next July, and this is the age recognized by the Napoleonic constitution for the coming of age of the heirs to the imperial throne of France.

The mother of the child had mysteriously disappeared, and her son, who was until recently at the Blackheath seminary, England, is also missing; but it is generally believed that the partisans of the new pretender can produce them when the time comes.

Ex-Empress Eugenie was made aware of her son's liason after the tragedy in Zululand in 1879; she refused at first to acknowledge the evidence, but a package of letters from the young woman in the case, which fell in her possession, soon convinced her that a denial was impossible. To avoid a scandal, she gave to the mother of her grandson a certain amount of money, so as to enable her to leave Europe, the said amount to be paid on the installment plan. A trusted friend took charge of the child.

Many conflicting and sensational stories have been circulated on the subject, but the absolute truth became known only a few weeks ago. The identity of the guardian is yet concealed; he has, however, all the necessary documents in his possession, and he is said to have communicated them to some prominent Bonapartists, among them the Comte d'Herisson,

Paul de Cassagnac and Duque de la Fanconnene.

The following information which has been verified in its minutest details can be considered as altogether reliable. The child is really the son of the prince imperial; there is not a particle of doubt about this. His legal father, however, was Walter Kelly. The mistress of the prince was a married woman who used to live in Jermyn street in London; her husband, who was affected with tuberculosis of the lungs, was very poor, and on account of the deplorable state of his health was compelled to do writing, or rather copying, at home for a scanty livelihood. He died at the Broniton street hospital for consumptives; the dates of his admission and of his death show conclusively that he could not have been the real father of little Willie, although the child is recorded as his posthumous offspring. His wife was a pretty brunette, a good girl, and full of fun—the daughter of a tailor residing near Regent street. Financial embarrassment forced her to look for employment. The skating rink was the rage in London at that time. She secured an engagement as a professional at one of these places in the West End, near the Empire theater. It was there that she met the prince imperial for the first time. She was always seen in the company of the prince, who, during this intimacy, which did not exceed three or four months, ignored always the fact that she was married. Charlotte Kelly was known at the rink under the name of Charlotte, or rather Lottie Watkins. She said, and her statement is not doubted, that her adventure with the prince began at the rink, and she never knew the name of her lover until his picture appeared in the London papers, when he was killed in the Zululand, June 16, 1879. She disappeared mysteriously from England about eight months after the tragic death of the prince was made public, and she left her child in the care of a lady selected by ex-Empress Eugenie, and known as Miss Martin. The persons who took interest in the matter attempted vainly to discover her whereabouts. They wrote to the archbishop of Sydney and to the bishop of Melbourne, as they supposed that she had gone to Australia. They received no satisfactory reply, although Dame Rumor had it that she was an actress in Melbourne. The supposition now is that Charlotte Kelly never left the continent; she has even been allowed to see her child in France and in England. She merely consented to comply with the wishes of ex-Empress Eugenie to live in obscurity on the express condition that she would be provided for, and also that she could enjoy ocasionally the company of the boy, whom she loves dearly. It seems, indeed, that, instead of suppressng her, it has been the policy of those directly interested in the affair to take every possible precaution to provide for her absolute safety.

Another curious feature of the case is that ex-Empress Eugenie is the very one who insisted upon giving the name of Watkins to her natural grandson. Her purpose was self-evident under the circumstances: she intended, undoubtedly, to recognize the rights of the child to a certain extent, and for this reason had the name of Kelly discarded.

Willie Watkins was born in 1880, about seven months after the departure of the prince for Zululand; his mother kept him for about one month and then intrusted him to the care of Miss Martin, in London. When five years old, that is in 1885, his guardian brought him to the "college" of St. Nicolas' Issy, near Paris, where he remained until the last part of the year 1886. According to his teachers, he was very lazy, but exceedingly intelligent and marvelously gifted. He was very fond of Paris, and could speak French and English equally well. He was and is yet the very image of his father, possessing even the large ears of the prince imperial at which Henry Rochefort poked so much fun in his satiric publication, the "Lanterne."

In 1886 the French government learned all the particulars concerning Willie Watkins, and gave positive orders that he should leave France. His guardian sent him, in consequence, to the St. Mary Catholic seminary, Creswell Port, Blackheath.

He was thoroughly educated at that institution until a short time ago, and it is said on good authority that during his vacations he has called upon ex-Empress Eugenie frequently. He is fully aware of his individuality, and furthermore his guardian has taken great care to impress upon his mind the importance of the mission which certain leaders of the Bonapartist party wish him to fulfill. Truly he is a bastard; but for that matter he would not be the only one in the history of the world to have filled the position of the sovereign. Indeed, there were a good many bastards of note who were so little ashamed of their origin that they added the word "bastard" as a title to their name. The "bastard of Orleans" was one of them. The enemies of Prince Victor are very numerous, but they could do nothing without the consent of ex-Empress Eugenie. For years they tried to convince her that Willie Watkins was really her only heir, and she is said to have finally adopted this view of the case. The widow of Napoleon III., it must be remembered, is exceedingly religious; in her old age she is even inclined toward bigotry, which is a peculiarity of her Spanish character. For this reason she has never been on good terms with Prince Napoleon, the father of Prince Victor, who is a free thinker and made himself conspicuous during the empire in providing the celebrated "Friday dinners" at which meat was served as a "defi" to the Catholic church. Prince Napoleon was very unpopular on that account, but he was also looked upon as a coward by the soldiers for his conduct at the battle of Alma in the Crimea. The zouaves gave him on that memorable day the nick name of "Plon-Plon," because he turned his back to the bullets which were made of lead ("plomb"). For these two reasons, without mentioning his scandalous connection with Cosa Pearl, he was compelled to transfer his right to his son. Prince Victor's character is said to resemble that of his father, and since the death of the prince imperial he has vainly attempted to gain the confidence of the ex-empress. He wanted her to supply him with money to subsidize the newspapers devoted to his cause, as he is far from being rich. She refused to do this, and stated further that not a "sou" of her immense fortune will be given to the Bonapartes.

Willie Watkins will inherit it in all probability, and his partisans hope that, under their guidance, he will give to the Napoleonic cause a fresh impulse. The newspapers which were compelled to suspend publication for the want of funds will make their reappearance and once more it will be possible to work the racket of the "appel au peuple" (appeal to the people).

The conduct of ex-Empress Eugenie is not surprising to those who are intimately acquainted with her. She was not a good mother, in the true sense of the word, and she is convinced that if her son met his death in the Zululand, it is her own fault. When the prince imperial was a boy, she is said not to have been very kind to him.

She thinks that the only way she can obtain forgiveness is to do all in her power for the welfare of her grandson. He is her only heir, and in leaving him the bulk of the fortune she believes that she performs only a sacred duty.

Willie Watkins will be 16 years old in a few months, and his partisans, who are said to be quite numerous, have taken every possible precaution to prevent him from being spirited away.

[Copyright, 1895, by J. B. Lippincott Co.]

"I tol' ye hit was too soon," the one who carried the lamp was saying; "we-all 'll jest have to wait yere a spell till them fellers get sleepy."

They passed out of Ringbrand's range of vision, but he could still hear every word that was said, and the reply made him almost sorry that he had held his hand while he had them in sight:

"They'll get sleepy bime-by. Wonder if that thar neighbor of our'n in yonder's still a-snoozin' like he was when ye plugged him?"

"Ye can jest bet on hit, Buddy; I 'low I was some shaky, but I reckon I ain't missin' anything as big as a man at that thar distance."

There was a little silence, and then one of them spoke again: "Whilst we're a-waitin' yere, Jeff, ye mought go over what you-all's a-figurin' on fer to-morrer night. I hain't got hit right clear in my haid yet."

"Jest hol' on a minute. Gimme that thar light, till I see if the city feller's whar he ort to be."

Curiosity to know what was to be explained overcame Ringbrand's desire for vengeance, and he crouched in the shadow while the mountaineer made his investigation.

"Is he thar?" asked the other voice.

"Shore; he's a-layin' right plum whar he did las' night. Don't reckon he ever moved."

Then Ringbrand understood that the dim light had misled them, and that the shot had been fired at the log. He had scarcely time to be thankful that he had not moved the latter during the day, before the light disappeared from the crevice and the conversation was resumed.

"Now, about that thar projec' for to-morrer night, Buddy. I'd figured hit jest this-a-way. Jule she'll light out in the mornin' for McNairville on the mar', an' we'll fetch the rest o' the hosses up on the mounting by the Dunbar road endurin' the day. Then, 'long late in the evenin', when ever'body's gone to baid, we-all 'll jest ride over to the colonel's, leave the hosses with Jed in that thar little patch o' trees front o' the house, an' then you'n me'll go smoke 'em out. When they shows up, you take the young un an' leave the colonel to me. I reckon I'll show him that I don't miss the same man twicet."

"How 'bout the gal?"

"Needn't to mind 'bout her; she'll look out for herself;" and then the same voice added: "I reckon Jed'd be glad enough to take keer o' her, if she'd 'low hit."

Even after the convincing object-lesson of the attempt upon his own life, Ringbrand could scarcely believe the evidence of his senses. Could it be possible that these two men were calmly discussing a plot which pointed to a double murder as its object? They were speaking again, and he strained his ears to catch every word.

"They's only one thing about hit that looks sort o' shaky, Jeff; that's the part about the gal. Course I knows we-all ain't fightin' wee-min' but hit 'll be takin' a right smart mo' chainces if she gets a sight o' we-all."

"She hain't gwine to. When the fire's done started, you'n me can hide in the ivy bushes."

"That 'll fix hit; an' afterwards ye 'low to ride for McNairville?"

"Uh-huh; we can jest 'bout make hit in time for the cyars, if we put out sort o' lively."

"How about the hosses? Y'-all sold 'em with the place, didn't ye?"

"I did so, an' the feller can take 'em wharsomever he's lucky enough to fin' 'em, cayn't he?"

They were silent again, and Ringbrand smelled tobacco smoke. He stood motionless in the darkness, trying to think of some way in which the cold-blooded plot could be frustrated; there seemed to be but one way, and his desire for vengeance cooled a little as he thought of it, but he crept into a position where he could command the widest range of space in the other chamber, and watched for the men to cross the narrow field of vision on their way back to the mine. It seemed hours before they spoke again, and then the gruffer voice said: "I don't believe that thar lamp's gwine out, Buddy."

"I reckon hit air, for shore," was the reply; "but hit don't make no diff'rence; we-all can fin' the way without hit."

A little later the light faded and flickered and then went out, leaving behind it a darkness that was almost tangible, and Ringbrand's heart sank as he realized that one chance of saving Hester's father and brother was gone. It was only a chance, he knew, for the mountaineers were two to one, and he was not enough of a marksman to be sure of disabling even one of them; nevertheless, he had made up his mind to fire upon them when they came again in view, trusting to the shortness of the range to offset his lack of skill with the weapon.

He thought he heard them when they left the chamber, and again, after what seemed an interminable interval, there was a faint rustling such as might have been made by the two men climbing out of the cave. The correctness of this last supposition was confirmed shortly afterward by the dull rumble of a distant explosion, and the listener knew that another of the mysterious attacks had been successfully made on the working in the McNabb mine.

With the certainty that the men had left the cavern, and that with their disappearance his only chance of preventing the terrible conclusion of their plot had taken flight, Ringbrand sat up and strove fiercely to concentrate his mind upon some expedient that would free him in time to enable him to warn the Latimers. For awhile the awful responsibility resting upon him pushed him so near to the edge of distraction that connected thought was an impossibility, and he got up and tramped up and down the familiar limits of his cell in a feverish agony of helplessness. Then his brain cleared again, and one plan after another was considered and rejected. The sandstone was comparatively soft—could he not dig through to the other chamber?—yes, possibly, but it would take too much time. The other end of the cavern was filled with broken rock and earth which had fallen into the crevice from above—could he not dig enough of this down to make it possible to climb out on the heap of debris?—undoubtedly, in time, but the finding in the mass of a single bowlder too large to be loosened might cost the lives of two men. No, there must be no more experiments.

At last, when the travail of suggestion had become well-nigh unbearable in its hopeless insistence, he stumbled over the log; at the same instant, as if the shock had opened the door of his understanding, a possible solution of the problem, clear and distinct in every detail, flashed upon him like an inspiration, and he threw himself down upon the sand to watch for the coming of the daylight, praying with what faith there was in him for strength and dexterity to enable him to earn his freedom quick-'y.

X.

A DIVERSITY OF OPINIONS.

Kind-hearted Mrs. Ludlow, overflowing with the sympathy which is the meed of troubled lovers at the hands of affectionate and disinterested womankind the world over, waited impatiently for her guest to make his appearance on the morning following his excursion with the colonel. Breakfast was ready and waiting, and the small hostess hovered about the table, deftly arranging the china and adding a last touch of artistic negligence to the bowl of roses forming the center-piece, pausing now and then to glance out of the window at the figure of her husband poised contentedly on two legs of his chair and reading the inevitable newspaper. Presently she went to the door. "Tom, I wish you'd call Mr. Ringbrand; Aunt Mima's been up twice, and the breakfast's getting cold."

Ludlow burst his way out of the labyrinth of news and tramped heavily upstairs to the door of the guest's room. "Hugh!" he called. "Oh, Hugh! going to lie abed all day?"

There was no answer, and he opened the door. The bed had not been occupied, and it flashed upon him that Ringbrand had suddenly acted upon the hint that he might find it impossible to endure the ordeal of a formal leave-taking. Ludlow went downstairs, trying to think of some way of telling his wife without reflecting too severely upon his friend's lack of courage.

"You said Ringbrand went up with the colonel yesterday, didn't you?" he asked, hoping to gain time.

"Why, yes; they drove off together about three o'clock."

"Well, he didn't come back. Perhaps the Latimers kept him."

Mrs. Ludlow looked puzzled. "I hardly thought he would stay. I rather expected him back to tea last evening. It isn't like him to stay away without saying something or sending word." She seated herself behind the coffee urn and touched the bell for Aunt Mima.

"Oh, I don't know about that," replied her husband carelessly, taking his place opposite. "A man's liable to do anything when he's a badly hipped as Hugh is."

"Please, Tom, tell me all about it, won't you? I can't get a word out of Hester, and Hugh goes about looking like a man who had lost all his friends in a single night."

"I don't know anything to tell, except what is evident enough to a man up a moderately tall tree. Hugh has about as pronounced a case as I ever saw develop in so short a time, and it'll go hard with him if he doesn't win. If Hester should refuse him, I shouldn't be surprised to have him leave us without a word; it would be very much like him." So much good-natured Tom Ludlow ventured on the chance that Ringbrand had carried out his threat.

"Why should Hester refuse him?"

"Bless my soul! how should I know? I'm not in the young woman's confidence; and, besides, I don't know that she has."

Ludlow hurried through his breakfast, and breathed freely again when he was well out of ear-shot of his home. "I'm a lucky man!" he chuckled; "five minutes more, and she'd have had the whole story out of me, and I really mustn't tell her that—not yet awhile; it 'd be cruelty to animals. I'd like to know if that addle-pated rascal has actually taken French leave. I must try and find out from the colonel if he comes down to-day."

The colonel did come down, but Ludlow learned nothing more than that Ringbrand had left "The Laurels" quite early in the evening, that he had insisted upon walking, and that he had taken the north road instead of turning toward Tregarthen. Ludlow guarded his inquiries carefully, but the colonel's hospitality took the alarm at once.

"Do I understand that youh friend didn't come home las' night?" he asked.

Ludlow admitted it, and hastened to add that Ringbrand was sometimes rather erratic in his movements.

"I reckon it would be something a little mo' than erratic if he camped out on the mountain all night; thah's no house this side of Squire Craven's, an' that's a good ten mile."

"Perhaps he went on down the road to Dunbar," suggested Ludlow; "he's good for a long tramp if he felt like it. He'll turn up all right."

The colonel looked thoughtful. "I hope so; indeed, I do. He's a mighty fine young gentleman, and we-all think a heap of him up on the mountain. He told me yeste'day that he was going back to New York befo' long."

Ludlow took this as a confession of his suspicion, and answered, accordingly: "Yes; he's quite anxious to get back to his work."

Here the matter rested, and the three people who knew of Ringbrand's disappearance held widely different views as to its motive. Mrs. Ludlow, finding the packed valises in the guest's room, reluctantly gave place to the carefully-insinuated suggestion of her husband that the young man had fled because Hester had refused him; Ludlow, somewhat better informed, was quite sure that the unceremonious departure was due to Ringbrand's failure to win in the battle with his weakness; while the colonel went home with a slightly-confused idea of the unaccountability of authors and story writers, whose vagaries led them to refuse the hospitalities of a comfortable mansion for the sake of spending the night in wandering about on the mountain. Imparting his convictions to Hester, together with the information that Ringbrand had not returned to Tregarthen, he awakened an emotion in the heart of that ingenuous young woman which had slept quite peacefully through the unobtrusive wooing of her lover; and her quick intuition, finding a better trajectory than the logic of the others, went nearer the mark, filling her with vague apprehensions for Ringbrand's safety. She immediately recalled the conversation of the previous evening, remembering his abstraction and the abrupt leave-taking. Then she recollected that Henry had been the last one who had seen him, and she quickly obtained all the information that could be gleaned from that source. It contained a grain of comfort in the assurance that he was not unarmed; but she could not help thinking that the mere possession of the revolver promised little for his safety.

The following morning she mounted Pluto and rode straight to Mrs. Ludlow's, in the hope of finding that her undefined premonition of trouble was groundless; but there had been no word from the missing guest, and the small matchmaker made an unsuccessful attemt to conceal her resentment toward the girl who had so ruthlessly demolished her beautiful air castles of domestic felicity.

"Where do you suppose he can be?" asked Hester, when the conversation had been brought around by carefully-guarded approaches to the object which had prompted her early ride down the mountain.

"I'm sure I don't know," replied Mrs. Ludlow, trying to look properly severe. "Perhaps he's lost on the mountain; I'm sure I'm glad we didn't turn him out to—to get lost."

Hester looked mystified and hurt. "Why, Helen, do you mean that we ought to have tried harder to keep him?"

"I think you wouldn't have had to try very hard, if you'd cared anything at all about him."

Hester blushed painfully and hesitated. "It would be foolish to seem not to understand you, Helen, but—but it isn't at all as you think; indeed, it isn't." And her voice quavered a little at the end.

It was Mrs. Ludlow's turn to be astonished, and she gave a little gasp of surprise. "Do you mean that you didn't send him away last night, after all?"

Hester's embarrassment was pitiful, but she made a brave effort at frankness. "Not in the way that you mean; I—I couldn't, very well, when he didn't give me the chance."

There were tears in her eyes, and Mrs. Ludlow crossed over to the sofa and put her arms around her. "Tell me about it, dear," she said, stroking the bowed head tenderly.

"There isn't anything to tell," sobbed the girl; "he's just been good and kind and gentle—as he is to ev—everybody; and last night he told me good-by as if I'd been the m—merest acquaintance."

"Told you good-by? Did he say he was going away?"

"No; father and Henry came up just then, and he didn't get a chance to say anything else."

"I think he menat to, Hester, dear."

"I—I almost know he did; he said he wanted to tell me something about himself; and then he said it was of no consequence."

Mrs. Ludlow thought hard for a moment and then asked: "Wasn't there the least little bit of a quarrel about something, dear?"

Hester sat up and shook her head vehemently. "Indeed, there wasn't—not the smallest word. We had been talking about the feud, and from that we drifted into an argument about courage; I remember we didn't quite agree, but there wasn't anything like a quarrel."

Mrs. Ludlow's mind reverted instantly to what her husband had said about the feud being a possible obstacle to Ringbrand's love-making, and before replying to Hester she made a mental note pointing to further inquiries. "Then, if you haven't quarreled, it's all right, dear," she said, soothingly; "he'll come back; and I happen to know that he doesn't regard you as a mere acquaintance—not by a great deal. But what in the world do you suppose has become of him?"

"I can't imagine, only I'm just weighed down by a dreadful fear that something awful has happened. I know it's foolish, but I can't help it."

"Have you said anything to your father about it?"

"Not yet, but I'm going back right now to ask him to go to Squire Craven's; his is the first house beyond ours, you know. Then I'll get Henry to ride down to Dunbar to ask there."

"That's sensible. If you'll do that, I'll stir Tom up when he comes to dinner, and if we can't find out anything to-day, we'll just make them get up a search party to-morrow."

When Hester had ridden away on her errand, Mrs. Ludlow began to watch for the home coming of her husband, and that much-tired individual saw the light of inquiry in her eyes before she had said a word upon the subject of Ringbrand's disappearance. While Ludlow was quite sure that he held the key to the mystery, he could not rid himself of a certain indefinite responsibility for his friend's safety. During the preceding day he had found comfort in the belief that he would soon get a telegram from the missing man, directing the disposition of his effects, and when the second morning did not bring this he had quietly telegraphed to Dunbar and McNairville to ascertain if Ringbrand had taken the train at either of these places. The negative answers came promptly, and on his way home from the furnace Ludlow met the down train for the purpose of asking the same question of the conductor. The man remembered Ringbrand perfectly, and was quite sure that he had not had him as a passenger since the day when he had ridden to Tregarthen on a fare paid to Kingville. In view of these unsuccessful investigations, Ludlow's well-simulated indifference to his wife's anxiety was worthy of all praise.

"Don't you worry about Hugh," he said; "he'll turn up all right when he gets good and ready. I suppose he and Hester had some little tiff and he's gone off to sulk."

"It isn't anything of the kind," she insisted. "Hester's been here this morning, and she told me all about it. They parted good friends, and she's sure something dreadful has happened to him. Don't you know any of his friends in New York to whom you could telegraph?"

"No; and if I did, they wouldn't know. He hasn't had time to get to New York, unless he went in a balloon."

"I don't care, I think it's perfectly heartless of you to be so indifferent about him; one would think you'd care a little bit about what became of him."

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. A PUPIL OF PADEREWSKI.

Miss Szumowska to Give a Recital at the Choral Concert Tonight.

Reginald DeKoven some time ago published in the New York World the following critism of Miss Antoinette Szumowska, who is to appear at the Choral concert in Music Hall this evening:

"Like master like man, they say, and truly there is much in the playing of Miss Antoinette Szumowska, whose piano recital at Mendelssohn Glee Club Hall I attended yesterday afternoon, which recalls her illustrious teacher, Paderewski. Fortunate pupil to have such a master; fortunate master to have such a pupil, for she does him infinite credit, and in the fluency and finish of her technique, in her command of contrasting effects and variety of tone color, in the clarity and crystalline brilliancy of her tone, recalls him not a little.

"I remember saying of Miss Szumowski last year that she was a Paderewski "en miniature." This year she has stepped into a larger frame, for her style has broadened and matured. Still essentially and delightfully feminine in character, her playing has gained in breadth and authority; she plays with more confidence, and yet has lost nothing of the extreme sensibility and refinement, the fairy-like delicacy, grace, sympathy and genuine romatic feeling and sentiment which give to her as a pianist distinct individuality and decided charm. Here is certainly unusually artistic, unusually enjoyable piano playing. I look upon Miss Szumowska as an artist of decided talent, and most marked promise.

"She played the Schumann "Fantasia" yesterday with much intelligent appreciation and feeling, and, being evidently rather romantic than classic in her sympthies, gave a group of Chopin pieces, F major nocturne, "Berceuse," and B minor scherzo, in the true Chopin vein, with alternating tenderness and brilliancy. The scherzo in particular was played with notable artistic finish and technical fluency. I also liked the character and color of her rendering of "Burlesque," by Paderewski, which she was obliged to repeat. Her reading of Liszt's "Soirees de Vienne" struck me as a trifle monotone and lacking in rhythmic swing and dash, while most finished, but Liszt's Sixth Rhapsody was played with no little force and fire. Other numbers on the programme were an effective "Toccatina," by Dr. Meason; Haendel's "Harmonious Blacksmith," and a "Pastorale" and "Capriccio." Miss Szumowska should allow herself to be heard more frequently. She is distinctly worthyof being so heard.

Richter's Funeral.

The funeral of John M. Richter was held at his former home, 211 Richmond street, this afternoon. The house was filled with the relatives and friends of the deceased, and also members of Miantonomoh Tribe, No. 118, I. O. R. M., Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. O. U. W., and the Gesang and Turn Verein Society.

The remains were then conducted to the German Lutheran church by the members of the different societies where Rev. Mr. Kionka led the funeral services. Richter was interred in Evergreen Cemetery.

The Revival at Dunellen.

HAND-PICKED HUCKLEBERRIES.

Jersey Legislators to Depose the Pinehawker and Coal Scuttle.

The Assembly only was in session yesterday, and spent more time in discussing Farmer Wildes's Hand-picked Huckleberry bill and a Republican caucus bill changing township boundary lines in Hunterdon county so that the Republicans may gain a member of the Board of Freeholders. Both were passed.

Mr. Wildes explained that huckleberry and cranberry picking was the only source of revenue to many families in the Burlington county "pines."

The shipments of huckleberries from New Egypt station to New York in 1894 were sold for $20,000, and at Cookstown 400 bushels a day were shipped for four weeks of the season. The women and children have been doing the picking, and Mr. Wildes said there was one woman down there who had raised fifteen children, all of whom had served their time in the barrens picking berries.

A few years ago a pinehawker invented a machine to do the work. It was fashioned something after the shape of a coal hod or scuttle, and with it the pinehawker would operate on the upland or low bushes, scooping off green, red, and ripe berries, leaves and branches. The huckleberry season in the "pines" lasts about six weeks where hand picking is followed, but the machine destroys the bushes so that the season is shortened to a few days. For picking the swamp or high-bush berries, the machine operator has a large basket-like arrangement fitted about him, and, going under the high bushes, he clubs the berries, leaves and branches off into his basket, besides ruining the bushes and interfering with the work of the hand pickers. The result is that the berries are crushed and dirty, and consequently deleterious to health. The machine pickers were ready to give up their machines if there was a law passed that would compel all to do so. Such a law was passed several years ago protecting cranberry pickers when the industry was threated by the machine operators.

After Mr. Wildes' explanation the Assemblymen offered many ridiculous amendments to the bill, one by Mr. Robertson, suggesting that the hand-pickers be required to undergo an examination by a Board of Huckleberry Commissioners, and be compelled to wear antiseptic gloves in order to protect the health of the consumers. Subsequently all the amendments were withdrawn and the bill was passed.

The House also passed the bill prohibiting the sale of liquor within one mile of Asbury Park, Ocean Grove, or any camp-meeting resort. Bills were introduced prohibiting the giving or selling of cigarettes to any person under 21 years of age, under penalty of $20 fine, and abolishing the distinction between attorneys and counselors at law.

He was taken recently just the same as at other times, and concluded to try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He says: "I took one dose of it and it gave me relief in five minutes. That is more than anything else has ever done for me. For sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

THE SECOND CONCERT.

HARMONIOUS MUSIC BY THE CHORAL SOCIETY LAST NIGHT.

Mr. Fitzhugh Demonstrates His Capacity as a Director—Enthusiastic Reception of Mlle. Szumowski, the Pianist.

Music Hall filled in every corner was the part taken by the Plainfield public in the second concert of the Choral Society given last evening. It was a commendable role, just and inspiring. It expressed tacit approval of what the Choral Society had done in the past and was a tacit confession of faith in what it expected the society to do again.

E. J. Fitzhugh, the musical conductor, at whose entrance the society rose en masse, stands at these concerts like a magician between his performers and the audience. He lifts his wand up, down, right, left, pauses, dashes, pirouettes, and Presto! volumes of music rise and fall, are hushed to a breath of exquisite tenderness or swell into a grand diapason of song and victory.

The first number on the programme rendered was Dudley Buck's. fine composition, "Hymn to Music" It is a grand invocation beginning

O Art! O Art! thou holiest temple of earth:
Upon the threshold kneeleth the Master with hands silent folded.

The transitions from the gentle flute to the thunder's roll were well executed and throughout the concert the society sustained its reputation for force, precision, accuracy and high purpose to realize the best productions possible.

Jack Horner was a bright combination of lullaby music and boyish congratulation, gentle in the lullaby and hearty in the congratulatory parts.

Miss Grace Haskell, the soloist, met with a cordial reception. In the opening solo she won the admiration of her audience by her charming personality, her clear vocalization and her nicely-graded tone of production The Sweetheart notes were like bird calls in their delicious melody and sweetness.

When the Choral Society gave the next number, "How Sweet the Moonlight," Mr. Fitzhugh, the musical artist, suggested to the present scribe (thanks to DuMaurier) the artist with pencil and brush. A skillful touch, up, down, across, this way, that way. a line, a curve, a vigorous stroke, a masterly dash, and there was a picture of moonlight sleeping on the banks with exquisite tone colors and gradations of light and shade, with the real music creeping in our ears.

The moving of the Steinway extra grand piano into place by the Steinway Trio was the signal for the appearance of Mlle. Szumowski, the young Polish pianist, who has received her training from Paderewski, and is a worthy pupil of the famous musician. Her recitals display intelligence, deep feeling and wonderful technique. In her rendering of Variations from Haydn, one sometimes had the feeling that under her fingers the exquisite piano was singing or carrying on a musical discourse, all in harmony and matchless tone. Some critics have pronounced her too young to deal with Schumann's fantasia, but the present scribe (thanks to DuMaurier again!) thinks he doesn't know enough of music to endorse the criticism.

The recitative from Mendelssohn was given in the Society's best manner, as was the "Woodland Chase," a totally different number, with a pace of the break-neck, steeple-chase order.

Miss Haskell's "Villanelle," a country ballad, was full of charming trills and ronlades and won for her an encore that won for the audience a dainty little song of "An April Day."

"The Merry Month" was a charming musical pastelle, to use the artistic figure, from a painter's standpoint.

The ladies chorus. "The Kirmess of Mast'r Andrea" was like a Kirmess, jolly with variations.

Especial interest attached to "The Little Sandman." It was a German folk song harmonized by Mr. Fitzhugh and dedicated to the ladies of the Plainfield Choral Society. The simple bit of folk-lore runs through the composition like an under-current, producing distinctive harmonies unusual, but fascinating. It begins with wooing sleep and ends with the sandman's visit and sleep won. The delight of the audience expressed itself in rounds of applause that compelled its repetition.

Mlle. Szumowski interpreted Chopin and Liszt in her second appearance. Both these composers are ardently loved by Paderewski, and the natural expectation that his pupil would interpret them with refinement, charm and rare excellence was fully gratified. The Rhapsodie Hongroise was followed by a storm of applause and the gifted young pianist was recalled several times, who responded with a bow of acknowledgement.

The songs until this time had been accompanied by Miss Jessie Utter whose rare playing always wins admiration. Now the song, "When the Bright Stars are Gleaming," was given by the Choral Society and Mr. MacClymont assisted Miss Utter as accompanist.

The rippling, melodious commingling of piano tones was charming and there was another picture with the fine tones of the Choral Society in the background and the exquisite accompaniment in the foreground. That was the literal position, but the accompaniment was never obtrusive.

"Alma Virgo, Mater Dei," by Hummel, closed the programme, and Miss Haskell added to the laurels already won, and the Choral Society finished its last Alleluia! in a way that will make the audience wish to hear them again in their final concert, May 14th.

BLASTED HOPES.

Assemblyman Reed Didn't Do What He Claimed He Could.

Assemblyman Reed has lost one prospective vote in Warren township, and this is how it happened:

In the Republican Convention last fall he said he was a farmer and could husk corn as good as any man and if anyone wanted to see him do it just send him word and he would be right there and bring his husking peg with him, all ready for business.

So the Mt. Bethel Old Maid sent him word to call and try his hand at her corn. Then she baked a big apple pie, got a pack of cigarettes and a bottle of soda water, so that Mr. Reed could have some suitable refreshments while he was at it.

Then she waited and waited until the late flood carried her corn down the Dead River, and now she says that if she should ever live to have a son he shall never, no, never vote for Charley Reed! Bound Brook Democrat.

LIBRARY WILL BE ENLARGED.

Governor Griggs Signs the Bill to Make the Improvements.

The bill introduced into the Assembly permitting the proposed enlargement of the Public Library was signed by Governor Griggs yesterday. The pen with which he affixed his signature will probably be sent to the Librarian.

The improvements will be made to accommodate the Babcock scientific library, an acquisition which greatly increases the scope of work of the library.

An Afternoon of Whist.

A very enjoyable informal whist party was given by Miss Etta Blish yesterday afternoon at her home on West Seventh street. The first prize was won by Miss Long. Miss Daisy Elsberg won second prize. The consolation prize was taken by Miss Hasbrouck. After the game had been concluded, dainty refreshments were passed and a friendly chat enjoyed. Those present were the Misses Long, Miss Daisy Elsberg, Mrs. C. R. Thiers, Miss Helen Hasbrouck, Miss Bessie Brower, Mrs. Will Worth, Miss Leonard, Miss Bowers, and Miss Emily Oakley, of Rutherford.

Church Destroyed by Fire.

The Church of the Holy Comforter in Rahway was discovered to be ablaze at midnight of Wednesday, and the high wind prevented the firemen from doing effectual work. The building was burned. A new $1,000 organ in course of construction was burned. The hydrants were frozen, and this also handicapped the firemen in their work. The fire was caused by an overheated stove. The loss will amount to $8,000. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Two Important Reports.

It is expected that at the meeting of the Borough Council this evening a report will be made on the new fire-bell, and also that the Watchung avenue commissioners will make their final report.

Housekeepers.

You never have and never will have another such a chance this year to buy sheeting muslin so cheap. Read VanEmburghs' special for Saturday, March 7th, and Monday, March 9th.

Remarkable

How cheap you will be able to buy sheeting muslin at VanEmburgh & Son's on Saturday, March 7th, and Monday, March 9th. Cut out their ad and take it with you.

All last winter Mr. Geo. A. Mills, of Labanon, Conn., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. At times it was so severe that he could not stand up straight, but was drawn over on one side. "I tried different remedies without receiving relief," he says, "until about six months ago I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. After using it for three days my rheumatism was gone and has not returned since. For sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue. T. S Armstrong, Manager.

RELIGION IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Charges That a Catholic Girl is Discriminated Against in New Brunswick.

A discussion as to the merits of two young women teachers, one a Protestadt and the other a Roman Catholic, caused considerable excitement at a meeting of the Board of Education, of New Brunswick, Wednesday evening. When Dr. A. V. N. Baldwin, chairman of the Teachers Committee, recommended Miss Edith Voorhees, of South Plainfield, as a teacher in one of the public schools of that city. Charles Deshler declared that religion had been made a factor of the recommendation, and offered an amendment to appoint Miss Annie Gerety in stead of Miss Voorhees. Mr. Baldwin protested that Mr. Deshler was in error, and a sharp interchange of words followed.

Mr. Deshler's amendment was lost, and by a vote of 10 to 2 Miss Voorhees was appointed.

LAWYER BEFORE PREACHER.

Novel Claims Made in the Westfield Church Law Suit.

The now celebrated Grace church case from Westfield drew a large representation of Union County Episcopalians to the Court of Errors and Appeals in Trenton yesterday. Rector Jennings was represented by Craig A. Marsh, of this city, and seeks to show that this claim for salary due should have precedence over that of Alfred Mills, who holds first mortgage on the church property. Mr. Mills made the appeal. In either event the church will be sold to satisfy the claims, and the Westfield Episcopalians are desirous that the sale may be pushed, as they desire to get possesson of it. To add to the complication, the rector has transferred his claims to William Davison, who is said to be negotiation a sale with the Catholics if he wins the case.

Elders Selected.

The consistory of the German Reformed church met in the church Wednesday evening, and decided to hold the annual meeting of the congregation, Wednesday evening, April 1st, at which time officers for the ensuing year will be elected. The following persons were nominated for the position of elders: Peter Doeringer, John Becker, Sr., Augustus Wolff and W. Mohwinckel. Their names will be presented for election at the April meeting, when the finance committee will make their annual report. Deacons will also be elected and considerable other important business transacted.

Surprise Party Last Evening.

Mr. and Mrs. David Bush, of 203 East Front street, arranged a very pleasant surprise party last evening in honor of William Scribner, of South avenue. About twenty couple met at the home of Mr. Bush and from there went to the home of Mr. Scribner. The latter knew nothing of the affair and was taken completely by surprise. The evening was passed chiefly in dancing, music for which was furnished by Bert. Naylor. About midnight refreshments were served and it was nearly 3 o'clock this morning when the guests departed.

Selected Plainfield Over All Others.

C. V. Culyer, a New York coffee merchant, has leased the house at 36 Washington avenue and will remove his family from Brooklyn May 1st. Mr. Culyer has spent much time in search of the most healthful suburb of New York. After trying many places he has finally decided upon Plainfield.

To Furnish the Epworth House.

The Young Men's Association, of Monroe Avenue chapel, will hold a meeting this evening when arrangements will be completed for the Syracuse University Glee Club concert, and some action will be taken as to the association's share of furnishing Epworth House.

Big Preparations Being Made.

Great preparations are being made by Paugh Caugh Naugh-Sinque Tribe, No. 193, I. O. R. M., for their second anniversary, which will be celebrated by a masquerade ball, entertainment and peace dance. It will take place at the Columbia Cycle Academy next month.

Festival and Ball Arranged For.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Gesang and Turn Verein Society held last evening, the Turning section decided to hold a festival and ball on Monday evening, April 13th, in their hall. The other business was routine.

Art Gallery the Feature.

A sociable was held at the residence of Rev. B. W. Hand, of West Front street, last evening, by the congregation of the First Church of Christ An art gallery was the attraction of the evening.

A PROSPEROUS SOCIETY

MISSIONARY WOMEN ELECT OFFICERS AND HEAR AN ADDRESS.

Their Work is Confined to the Home Field and In It They Are Accomplishing Much Good Work—Officers.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church, which was held in the chapel yesterday afternoon, was one of the largest and most successful ever held. The president, Mrs. Israel C. Pierson, was in the chair, and the regular order of business was transacted.

The society decided to renew their pledges in support of teachers and schools in the home field for another year. One is for $500, and the others for smaller amounts. These are distributed chiefly among the Mountain Whites, Indians and Mormons of the West. The reports of the officers for the past year gave evidence of a steady growth in every department.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: President, Mrs. I. C. Pierson; vice-president, Mrs. S. R. Struthers; secretary, Miss Mary W. Ketcham; treasurer, Mrs. William Myers; secretary of literature, Mrs. H. R. Halloway. The executive committee will be appointed later by the president.

The feature of the meeting was the address by Miss Jones, of College Settlement, New York. She has been in Plainfield before, and many remembered her excellent addresses. Her remarks yesterday were principally about her experience among the Mountain Whites, Indians and Mormons. In speaking about some of the western schools, she said that the pupils were exceedingly studious and anxious to learn. At one school where there were nine pupils, seven of them had not missed one day during a year. There was a time, she said, when the Indians laughed at the white man's queer mannerisms, but now they are ashamed of themselves, and are very anxious to be educated, and today one-eighth of them wear American clothes and speak English; one-seventh of them read English; one-tenth of them are church members, and one-fifth of them are independently engaged in business. Their development has been symmetrical, and of a most encouraging nature.

Miss Jones then spoke of the Mormons. She said that today there are 300,000 converts to the faith. Utah came into the Union practically as a Mormon State; Idaho was controlled by them, which shows conclusively that it is possible for Mormonism to live on American soil. Recently 100,000 acres of land was purchased for the purpose of erecting a college under that faith. There is much work that we can do, she said, to lead these people from darkness into light, and she urged that each one become more zealous in this grand work for Christ.

The meeting adjourned about 5 o'clock, when tea was served. The table was very prettily decorated and Mrs. Frank S. Martin poured tea and chocolate. She was assisted by Mrs. L. C. Rice, Mrs. G. P. Mellick, Miss Walz, Miss Halloway, Miss Cahoone, Miss Anna Miller, Miss Gertrude Baker, Miss Anna Cook, Miss Clara Frost, Miss Miriam Bowen, Miss Mabel Pierson and Miss May Evans.

A very pleasant social time was enjoyed by all, and everyone extended a vote of thanks to Miss Jones for her interesting talk.

Keeps His Identity Concealed.

Of late several residents of the East End have been greatly annoyed by being followed by an unknown man. Those who were followed have tried, without success, to get near enough to the man to identify him. Not long ago mention was made in The Press of a young lady of the east end being approached by a colored man. The man has not as yet spoken to any of those he followed, but simply dogs their footsteps.

The Final Concert.

The final concert of the season to be given by the Choral Society will take place Thursday evening, May 14th. The society will present a cantata by Goring Thomas, entitled "The Swan and the Skylark," and the new oratorio, "The Transfiguration," by Cowen, (the first presentation in this country,) with orchestra and a full corps of soloists.

Training Amateurs.

Robert Whitaker, the well-known bareback rider and circus manager, who makes his home in this city, is now engaged in arranging the details and training the participants in the amateur circus soon to be given in East Orange.

—Street Commissioner R. A. Meeker and his men are now engaged in fixing up the crosswalks on Liberty street, which is appreciated by the residents on that street.

CLERK MARTIN THANKED.

North Plainfield Township Board Regret H. J. Martin's Retirement.

The North Plainfield Township Committee held their final meeting for the year last evening, to conclude the unfinished business on the table. Two deeds were executed, one for the division of the borough and township, and another for some property on Johnston's Drive, which was sold some time ago. Mr. Fountain offered the following:

Resolved, That the retirement of Horace J Martin from the office of township clerk is a subject of sincere regret to the members of the township committee, and no form of words can adequately express the high regard we entertain for him collectively and individually; that the thanks of the township committee and the public are due to him for the able manner in which he has performed his duties, and we sincerely regret the circumstances that force his retirement; that he carries with him, on leaving the position which he has so satisfactorily filled, the regards and earnest wishes of every member of the township committee.

The resolution was unanimously adopted, after which the meeting adjourned.

Modern Methods in Buying.

Progress is everything in these progressive times, and in nothing is it more apparent than in buying general merchandise for a large department store like the Commercial Palace, of Plainfield. Methods of years ago are entirely discarded and modern ones adopted. The department stores of the present, on account of the great quanities of goods they handle, are treated by manufacturers and importers on altogether a lower schedule of prices than the ordinary store. Edsall says his house is considered of sufficiently large dimensions by manufacturers and importers as to be entitled this "jobber's" price list, and by a comparison of prices in his advertisement in another column, you will see what a saving there is by trading at his place.

He Was Unstable.

The earth appeared to have a very unstable equilibrium for a young man yesterday afternoon and he persisted in trying to lie down in the street at the corner of East Front street and Watchung avenue. Chief Grant and Sergeant Kiely assisted him to the jail and this morning he was arraigned before City Judge De Meza on the charge of being drunk and disorderly. He gave his name as Archie Davis. He presented the city with $3 instead of visiting in Elizabeth for ten days.

The Always Busy Store of White's.

White of Plainfield has had the basement of his store fitted up and is now showing a complete line of baby carriages, children's velocipedes and tricycle, scrap and waste baskets. The above line are all new and will well pay you to look through and examine. The bargains they offer on the main floor in dress goods, hosiery, wrappers and shirt wastes are great, and as a lady remarked: "There is always something new and pleasing to be seen at White's.

Pleasant Church Sociable.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Warren chapel held a sociable in the church parlors last evening. The programme consisted of readings by the Misses Koehler, Searing, Wilson and Shepard, and several selections on the organ by Miss Cortwright. The committee in charge consisted of Henry Seader, Miss C. A. Dunlap and Miss Mamie Wilson. Refreshments were passed at the close.

Ran Into a Trolley Car.

In the rush of carriages at the close of the Choral concert at Music Hall last evening, one of the large coaches ran into the trolley car that was standing in front of Music Hall and broke some of the iron work on the car. The coach narrowly escaped colliding with George Belcher's hack in its efforts to get around the car.

He Still Keeps the Suit.

There promises to be a lively time in the near future for a young man of the West End. One of his companions charges him with wilfully defrauding him and has started to secure his rights. The trouble is about a suit of clothes that was won at a raffle, but not delivered.

Not to be Trifled With.

(From Cincinnati Gazette.)

Will people ever learn that a "cold" is an accident to be dreaded, and that when it occurs treatment should be promptly applied? There is no knowing where the trouble will end; and while complete recovery is the rule, the exceptions are terribly frequent, and thousands upon thousands of fatal illnesses occur every year ushered in by a little injudicious exposure and seemingly trifling systems. Beyond this, there are today countless invalids who can trace their complaints to "colds," which at the time of occurrence gave no concern, and were therefore neglected.—When troubled with a cold use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is prompt and effectual. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue, T. S. Armstrong Manager.

ITALY IN A TURMOIL

Excitement Caused by Reverse in Abyssinia Increasing.

CRISPI IS SEVERELY DENOUNCED

The Cabinet Will Continue in Office Until Their Successors Are Named—Scenes of Disorder in Rome—Universities Closed.

Rome, March 6.—Reports from every city and town of consequence throughout Italy show that the excitement caused by the Italian reverse in Abyssinia displays no sign of waning; on the contrary, in many places it grows greater as the meagre details of the defeat filter through the press from official sources. Prime Minister Crispi and the other members of the cabinet have been compelled to retire from office, that fact having been announced in the chamber of deputies last night amid a scene that can fittingly be described as pandemonium. The situation in Rome is so critical that the troops have been confined to their barracks, a measure of precaution that will enable them to be hastily dispatched to any part of the city should their services be necessary to quell disturbances. The university has been closed, the authorities fearing that the hot-headed students would attempt to make a demonstration, which, in the present condition of the popular temper, might lead to serious rioting. Despite the precautions taken, however, there were several disturbances last night, but the police were able to handle the crowds without calling upon the military for aid. A number of arrests were made for disorderly conduct.

Ministers Are Blamed.

The popular indignation is directed against Signor Crispi and the other ministers, who, rightly or wrongly, are held to be responsible for the disgrace that has befallen the Italian arms. As a matter of fact, however, Signor Crispi did not at first approve of the country's embarking upon the hazardous undertaking of conquering the Abyssinians, and it was only due to the pressure exerted upon him that caused him to support the policy of expanding the Italian possessions in Africa. This fact counts for little now, and the prime minister's enemies, of whom he has a great number, took occasion of the popular feeling to incite the whole Italian people so far as possible to pour out the vials of their wrath upon Signor Crispi and his colleagues in the ministry. Their success was marked, and it is feared now that the storm they have raised will assume such proportions that it will indeed be a hard task for the king to secure any man to undertake the formation of a new cabinet.

Excited Meeting of the Chamber.

The scene in the chamber of deputies last night was one to be long remembered. Long before the hour of opening the chamber enormous crowds of people thronged the vicinity and practically surrounded the building. As time went on the crowds increased and the excitement of the populace grew more intense. The streets in the vicinity of the chamber were patrolled by troops, who experienced difficulty in making their way through the packed thoroughfares. The members of the ministry in proceeding to the chamber evaded the crowd as much as possible. When Signo Baccelli, minister of public instruction, arrived in the chamber he was hissed by the opposition deputies and cheered by those who adhere to the ministry. The sitting of the chamber was of the wildest character, the uproar beginning as soon as the chamber was called to order. Signor Crispi announced the resignation of the cabinet, and stated that the resignations had been accepted by the king. This announcement was received with prolonged and passionate applause.

Shouted Insults to Crispi.

The members of the extreme left shouted insults to Signor Crispi, but the premier preserved his temper and when he was enabled to obtain a hearing, declared with great firmness that the ministry, until the nomination of their successors, would retain office and maintain public order. The members of the extreme left gave notice of their intention to introduce a motion demanding the impeachment of Premier Crispi and members of the ministry. The uproar continued throughout the sitting with more or less volume, and scenes of extreme disorders were renewed when the president declared the sitting ended.

Stoned Newspaper Offices.

Later the crowd marched to the residence of Signor Crispi and made a demonstration before it. Every opprobious term in the Italian language was hurled at him, but no attention was paid to the crowd by those in the house. Then the mob marched to the offices of the newspapers that support the government and shattered the windows with stones, bricks and clubs. In driving the rioters away several policemen were quite severely injured.

Arimondi's Native Troops Stampeded.

Further advices received from the Italian headquarters in Abyssinia show that large bodies of troops who were supposed to have perished in the rout of the Italian forces last Sunday are now coming into the Italian camp. The Shoans did not follow in pursuit of the retreating Italians. The troops attribute their stampede to the fact that the Askaris (native troops) under Gen. Arimondi, turned in the face of the enemy and rushed back upon their supports. The Abyssinians followed them in such hot haste that they became hopelessly mingled with the Italians so that they all became packed in a defile, neither being able to deploy. The consequence was that there was a general panic among the Italians.

WILL NOT LIE IN STATE.

Mrs. Greenhalge Decides on a Private Funeral for Her Late Husband.

Lowell, Mass., March 6.—Mrs. Greenhalge has decided not to have the body of the late governor lie in state either at the state house or at the Memorial hall in Lowell. In making this decision she has been influenced not only by her own feelings, but more particularly by the governor's express objection to such an arrangement.

From the Democratic Chairman.

Hon. John W. Corcoran, chairman of the democratic state central committee, upon learning of the death of Gov. Greenhalge, sent the following telegram of sympathy to the bereaved widow: "The democracy of the commonwealth shares the grief of your bereavement and, in common with the people, bows its head in reverent sorrow." At a meeting of the executive committee of the republican state committee resolutions of sympathy were also adopted.

Tokens of Sympathy.

Among the numerous messages of condolence received by Mrs. Greenhalge were these from Gen. R. Alger, William R. Derby, commander Massachusetts G. A. R.; senator George F. Hoar and Helen A. Brigham, department president Woman's Relief corps.

Sympathy from Gov. Morton.

Boston, March 6.—The following message from Gov. Morton of New York has been received by Hon. Roger Wolcott, lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts: "The people of the Empire state in common with their fellow citizens of Massachusetts deplore the untimely death of Gov. Greenhalge and unite with them in paying tribute to the memory of the high-minded chief magistrate who has fallen at his post of duty."

Official Proclamation.

Lieut.-Gov. Walcott issued an official proclamation announcing the death of Gov. Greenhalge and his assumption, according to the constitution, of the duties and power of governor. He recommended that the people of the commonwealth take steps to properly observe the event of the governor's death. Gov. Greenhalge was the sixth governor of Massachusetts who has died in office. Gov. William Burnet, appointed by the king, died September 7, 1729: Gov. John Hancock died October 8, 1793; Gov. Increase Sumner died June 7, 1799; Gov. James Sullivan died December 10, 1808, and Gov. William Eustis died February 6, 1825.

TO RESUME IN A FEW DAYS.

Foster Bros. Manufacturing Company in Good Financial Condition.

Middletown, Conn., March 6.—The Foster Brothers' Manufacturing company expects to resume the manufacture of locks in a few days. It was forced to assign by the failure of the syndicate of which Charles M Guyon, its president, was the head. The commissioners found a number of claims which Foster Brothers knew nothing of, including a note for $20,000 secured by mortgage on their property here. None of this money had been used on the plant in this city, hence the commissioners threw out the note. This decision leaves the company in excellent financial condition. They will employ fifty hands to commence with.

Her Remains Identified.

Huntington, L. I., March 6.—The body which was washed ashore at Lloyd's Neck on Monday afternoon has been identified as that of Mary Fox, of 716 President street, Brooklyn. Foul play is suspected.

Thousand-Dollar State Job Given Out.

Albany, March 6.—John J. Galvin of Albany has been given a civil service appointment as stenographer to the board of managers of the Manhattan state hospital, at a salary of $1,000 per year.

Hohenlohe Not in London.

London, March 6.—The report circulated in this city last night that the imperial chancellor of Germany, Prince von Hohenlohe, had arrived in this city, turns out to be incorrect.

Ninety Bodies Recovered.

Berlin, March 6.—Ninety bodies have thus far been taken from the Cleophas mine at Kattowitz, Prussian Silesia, the scene of Wednesday's explosion of fire-damp.

JERSEY TRAGEDIES

Supt. Watson of the West Shore Railroad Shot Down.

A DISCHARGED DETECTIVE GUILTY

Edward Clifford, Who Captured Train Robber Perry, Revenges His Dismissal—Reward Offered for Miss Sullivan's Murderers.

Hoboken, N. J., March 5.—Superintendent William G. Watson, of the Hudson division of the West Shore railroad, was shot twice (once in the groin and once in the abdomen) in his private office in the Weehawken depot late yesterday afternoon by detective Edward Clifford, who was discharged yesterday morning. Mr. Watson was taken to the Roosevelt hospital in New York and his condition is said to be critical. The shooting took place at the conclusion of an interview between Watson and Clifford. Watson was sitting at his desk, while Clifford sat at one side of it. According to the story told by the railroad officials there was no quarrel between the men. Clifford arose at the end of the interview and said: "Here are the papers?" The superintendent looked up and found a pistol pointed at him. Clifford fired and the ball took effect in the groin. The superintendent grappled with Clifford, who fired again, the ball entering the abdomen. The wounded man fell to the floor. Clifford walked out of the office into the street, where he surrendered to a policeman, saying: "I'm your prisoner." He was taken to the Union Hill station. Subsequently he was held by Recorder Ryer for the grand jury without bail. Clifford was employed by the West Shore railroad as a yard detective. Among important arrests made by him was that of Oliver Curtis Perry, the notorious train robber.

MAMIE SULLIVAN'S MURDERERS.

A Reward of $500 Offered for Their Capture.

Paterson, N. J., March 6.—Mayor Brown and the police committee of the board of aldermen have offered a reward of $500 for the capture of Mamie E. Sullivan's murderers. She was 28 years old, a music teacher, residing in Park avenue, this city. Wednesday evening she went to visit her sister, who resides in East Twenty-ninth street. Between 9 and 10 o'clock she left there to go to her home in Park avenue. She was unaccompanied. Shortly before 10 o'clock persons returning from the Lenten service held in a neighboring church had their attention attracted by a groan and found Miss Sullivan lying just off the sidewalk in a vacant lot at Park avenue and East Eighteenth street. She was unconscious and bleeding from a wound on the head. An ambulance was called and the young woman was conveyed to the general hospital, where she died. Some time after her arrival she rallied somewhat from the stupor and exclaimed: "For God's sake let me up." The police immediately went to work on the case, but have discovered no clue to the murderer. They have not decided whether the crime was committed for the purpose of assault or robbery.

BISMARCK DISAPPOINTED.

His New Grandchild a Girl Instead of a Male Heir.

Berlin, March 6.—Countess Bismarck, wife of Count Herbert Bismarck, has given birth to a daughter. Prince Bismarck is keenly disappointed because the infant is not a boy. Countess Marguerite Bismarck was formerly Countess Hoyos. She was married to Count Herbert at Vienna in June, 1892, and in November, 1893, gave birth to a daughter who was named Jeanne. Count William Bismarck, the prince's second son, has three daughters. This accounts for the prince's disappointment, for as yet there is no male of the third generation to inherit the Bismarck name and properties.

Archbishop Kenrick's Funeral.

St. Louis, March 6.—Archbishop Kain has received a telegram from Cardinal Satolli, who is now in Denver, which reads: "Under present circumstances my visit will be deferred. Accept my condolence." This is regarded as evidence that Cardinal Satolli will not be present at Archbishop Kenrick's funeral. Archbishop Ryan of Philadelphia will preach the funeral sermon.

Confirmations by the Senate.

Washington, March 6.—The senate in executive session confirmed the following nominations: Samuel Comfort of New York to be consul of the United States at Bombay, India. Arthur P. Greeley of New Hampshire examiner in chief in the patent office. Also various promotions in the navy, including that of Commodore T. O. Selfridge to be rear admiral.

Appointed by Gov. Hastings.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 6.—Gov. Hastings has appointed Chas. B. McMichael to the vacant seat in the common pleas court of Philadelphia caused by the death of Judge Reed.

Your Spring Clothing

Rather early to speak of it, but if it needs cleaning or dyeing, it isn't too early to have us do that work for you. This is our dull season—our employes are here ready for work. We'd like to have your goods now. We can give them better attention than in the rush of the spring season. Then we'll have to have more time or rush them at the expense of good work. Now we can take our time, do the work better than if hurried and you'll have the clothing all ready for warm weather.

Look in the closet or trunk and find your spring wear that needs cleaning and dyeing and bring it to us now, or better still, our wagon will call for it if you will send us word.

SICK-POISON.

What It Is, and Where It Comes From.

Sick-poison is what makes you sick, irritates your nerves, disorders your functions, saps your strength, makes you miserable.

Different diseases have different poisons, some have several, indigestion more than any.

That is, the symptoms of indigestion are caused by the poisons which are created by undigested food.

When you are sick, try to get rid of your poison.

It is often easier than you think, for all nature is helping you. Only the poison is obstinate, but the first step is to go to the root of it.

The poisons of undigested food, which cause lethargy, headache, dizziness, weakness, bad taste, stomachache, fever, flatulence, nausea, constipation, loss of appetite, jaundice, anæmia, neuralgia, rheumatism, etc., these poisons can be swept away and annihilated by the Shaker Digestive Cordial.

Curing the stomach and helping it to digest food when it is too weak to do so by itself, will purify your system of poison and renew your strength and health.

Shaker Digestive Cordial, a pure, vegetable, digestive tonic, made by the Shakers of Mount Lebanon, will cure all disorders caused by the poisons of undigested food when nothing else will give any relief.

Sold by druggists. Ten cents for a trial bottle.

Cienfuegos Merchants Combine Against the United States.

PROTEST AGAINST CUBAN RESOLUTION

Havana Chamber of Commerce Only Prevented from Taking Similar Action Through the Intervention of Gen. Weyler—Progress of the War.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

Havana, March 6.—All the merchants of Cienfuegos have agreed to cancel the orders given to their correspondents in the United States as a protest against the action of the American congress on the Cuban question. The merchants talked of holding a demonstration, but Captain-General Weyler prohibited it. The chamber of commerce here met yesterday to consider the question of taking similar action. General Weyler advised the chamber to be prudent. There is talk of stopping the exportation of tobacco in bales and to permit the export of only the manufactured product. General Weyler has placed restrictions on the sale of petroleum and has prohibited its sale in the interior towns which the insurgents visit.

Towns Burned by Insurgents.

The following towns in the province of Pinar del Rio have been recently burned by the rebels: Cabanas, Bahia Honda, San Diego de Nunez, Santa Cruz de los Pinos, Palacios, Paso Real, San Diego de los Banos, San Juan y Martinez and Quiebra Hacha. The gunboat Lince, which was carrying rations to Jibara on the south coast of Tanaguey, found chains across the entrance of the harbor. The vessel was fired upon by rebels and replied with her guns. News has been received here to the effect that 800 mounted rebels attacked a convoy of ammunition near Gibara, Santiago province. The insurgents were repulsed with a loss of twenty-five killed. The Spanish loss was one lieutenant killed and seven soldiers wounded. Gen. Lechambre reports that troops have reconnoitered in the zone of Jarahueca and destroyed the huts on the farms used by rebels. The troops had an engagement with insurgents. The latter left two dead on the field. The volunteers at Jibacoa surrendered the fort to the insurgents. The insurgents took all their arms and then released the men.

BRIBERY ALLEGED.

Rumor of a Scheme To Defeat the Raines Bill in the Assembly.

Albany, March 6.—There were rumors about the legislative halls this morning that Senator Raines had prepared a resolution calling for an investigation of alleged bribery being attempted to defeat the Raines liquor tax bill and that Senator Higgins would introduce it. Senator Higgins, chairman of the committee which had charge of the bill in the senate, stated that he had seen such a resolution, but had not agreed to introduce it, nor did he think he would. The story went that the proposed investigation was suggested with a view of holding the republican assemblymen in line on the Raines bill, as it was reported that the brewers would attempt to form a combination to defeat the bill in the lower house of the legislature. When the committee of the whole of the senate rose at 12:25 this morning Senator Raines moved that the liquor tax bill to be ordered to a third reading. Senator Cantor demanded a roll call. The motion was adopted, 29 to 19. The senate then, at 12:40 adjourned until 10 a. m. to-day.

AIDED THE UITLANDERS

Gardner Williams, an American, Arrested at Kimberly, Cape Colony.

London, March 6.—A dispatch from Kimberley says that Gardner Williams, an American manager of the De Beers mine, was arrested there yesterday at the instance of the government of Cape Colony on the charge of having supplied arms to the Uitlanders of the Rand to be used in their threatened revolt against the government of the Transvaal. It is said that Williams sent supplies of arms to Johannesburg in trucks, the weapons being placed in the bottom of trucks and then covered with coke.

Shipwrecked Seamen Arrive.

New York, March 6.—On board the Ward line steamer Yucatan, at her dock here, from Havana, were ten shipwrecked seamen of the Swedish bark Engelbrekt, which went ashore at Cayo Confites on the Cuban coast whilst on the voyage from Marseilles for Havana. There were also on board the Yucatan six distressed seamen of the Norwegian bark Skibladner, which put into Havana, December 5, leaking, whilst bound from Belize for Havre.

Flood at Middletown Receding.

Middletown, Conn., March 6.—The freshet has subsided nearly six feet. The river roads are covered with thick ice, skating ponds surround all houses and factory buildings near the river. The Arrawana mills can only operate their hammock sewing room this week. The Omo Rubber company and Wilcox, Crittenden & Co., have all their rooms open to-day.

Steamship Company Libeled.

New York, March 6.—George W. Clyde & Co., owners of the steamship George W. Clyde, which was run into Saturday last in the fog by the steamship Guyandotte of the Old Dominion line, have filed a libel in the United States district court for $75,000 against the Old Dominion company.

Gold Reserve To-day.

Washington, March 6.—The treasury gold reserve at the opening of business to-day stood at $124,803,421. The withdrawals yesterday amounted to $229,200.

KILLED TWO CONSTABLES.

A Desperate Criminal Holds the People at Bay at Woodward, Pa.

Bellefonte, Pa., March 6.—Word has been received here from Woodward, a small hamlet twenty-five miles from here in the eastern end of the county, giving meagre details of a horrible tragedy enacted there. While two constables were endeavoring to arrest a desperate criminal named William Etlinger, he resisted arrest and shot both of the constables, one, John L. Barner, falling dead in his tracks, and the other, Frank Geiswhite, being fatally injured. Etlinger then barricaded himself in his home, and at 1 o'clock this morning reports say, hundreds of armed men surround the house. They seem all at sea as to how to capture the outlaw. They could burn the house but do not want to do so on account of Barner's body being inside and also because of the children in the house. Hundreds of shots have been exchanged. One more man, John Musser, was shot in the neck and there have been a number of close calls. Whenever he gets a man in range Etlinger opens fire and immediately a dozen shots ring out from the crowd. It is believed that Mrs. Etlinger has been shot and mortally wounded, if not killed. She was assisting her husband in resisting arrest by by throwing dynamite fuses from the window.

IN THE EVENT OF WAR.

Collecting Information from the Various States for the Naval College.

Washington, March 6.—With a view of obtaining information for the use of the naval war college in working out its stragetic problems, and, incidentally, for reference in case of war, Assistant Secretary McAdoo of the navy department has sent a circular letter to the adjutant-generals of those states having naval organizations requesting information as to the depth of water, location of rivers and creeks, railway and telegraph lines, fortifications, capability of locating batteries, location of good camping grounds and all other facts with regard to certain localities in which the naval militia will operate. A blank information form for signal and boat reconnoissance parties has been prepared and will be sent to the various naval militia organizations to be filled out. Copies of these will be kept by the adjutant-general of the state, the navy department and the war college, and much excellent practical benefit is expected to be derived.

BURNED THE AMERICAN FLAG.

Spain Severely Punishes the Student Who Insulted Old Glory.

Madrid, March 6.—The student who burned an American flag here Wednesday has been ordered to lose a year's studies. He will also be criminally prosecuted. The other students who were arrested for participation in the disorderly demonstration against the United States will be handed over to the police courts for punishment. The university at Valencia has been closed. Rioters in that city proceeded to the American consulate, hooted the consul and the United States, and smashed the windows of the building with stones and other missiles. The police dispersed the mob, but had much difficulty in doing so.

CORINTO BESIEGED.

Merchandise Detained on the Isthmus of Panama in Consequence.

Colon, March 6.—The steamer Foxhall has taken a detachment of troops to Bocas del Toro, state of Panama. Trouble is feared there. A quantity of cargo destined for Corinto, Nicaragua, is detained on the isthmus in consequence of the state of siege at Corinto.

Honor Systems at Colleges.

New Haven, Conn., March 6.—H. S. White, dean of the Cornell faculty, writes to the Yale News that the honor system in examinations at Cornell has been successful during a test of two years. He says: "That no frauds are committed under the new system would be too much to expect from the frailty of human nature, but I believe the system, when voluntarily suggested by the student body and adopted at their request, will succeed."

Call for Meeting of Miners.

Philipsburg, Pa., March 6.—The long-delayed fulfilment of the promise of the bituminous coal operators to advance the mining rate in this section has led to the issue of a call for a mass meeting of miners to be held near this place on Sunday next. The call is signed by the local assembly of the K. of L.

Central's Tracks Again All Right.

New York, March 6.—The damage to the tracks of the New York Central railroad between East Albany and Hudson, caused by the recent storm, has been entirely repaired and all trains are now running through without detention.

For the America's Cup.

Glasgow, March 6.—The Glasgow Herald declares that the yacht in course of construction in Henderson's shipyards, which is building at the order of Sir George Newnes, the millionaire publisher, is intended to be a challenger for the America's cup.

Zalim Singh Deposed.

London, March 6.—In the house of commons last evening Lord George Hamilton, secretary of state for India, announced that Zalim Singh, maharajah of Jhallawar, had been deposed for abusing his powers.

The Pope Not Ill.

Rome, March 6.—Adverse rumors were in circulation here last night regarding the health of the pope. Inquiries at the vatican elicited the information that the rumors were unfounded.

CORDIALLY RECEIVED

Clara Barton Tells of Her Visit to the Sublime Porte.

PRAISE FOR THE FOREIGN MINISTER

Not Only the Fullest Permission Given for the Relief Work in Armenia, But a Generous Offer of Assistance Extended.

New York, March 6.—A letter just received by a member of the American National Red Cross society from Miss Clara Barton, dated Pera, Constantinople, Feb. 19, tells of the journey of the Red Cross party, which sailed from here on Jan. 22, and also contains the following: "The cablegram sent by Minister Terrell yesterday afternoon to Secretary Olney, and which I trust was made public, was the outcome of a call in the morning upon the sublime porte in the person of its minister of foreign affairs, which was in every way as agreeable, cordial and satisfactory as it could have been made in any country. Not only was the fullest permission given for our entrance into Armenia, but an active and generous effort was displayed toward making our endeavors, our journeys, etc., safe, pleasant, and as easy as possible and also as productive of beneficial results as could be wished for. Mr. Terrell was very much gratified and seems very happy over our success, to which the state department and he contributed so largely. As soon as an outfit can be made and passage secured, our men will start for the desolated regions. It will be cold and terribly hard for them, but that is what they came for. I have met several of the leading missionaries and other American gentlemen here. It is hoped that the massacres are over, but it is, of course, uncertain. The general feeling is that Russia has said 'Enough!'

The Gates of Charity Now Open.

"The distress and suffering through want and sickness are described as being both enormous and terrible. Our stops on the journey at London, Paris, Geneva and Baden-Baden were short, but very pleasant, and full of good feeling, cordiality and usefulness." Miss Barton refers in the beginning of this letter to the message cabled by Minister Terrell on Feb. 18 saying that the Red Cross had been admitted and guaranteed protection, and that the gates of charity were now open. Since then the United Press dispatches have announced that some of the Red Cross party had left for Zeitoun, where relief is most urgent by reason of its recent capture by the Turkish army. Miss Barton took with her many letters of great influence addressed to the Turkish authorities and other persons in close contact with high officials.

Armenian Meeting at Newark.

Newark, N. J., March 6.—A monster mass meeting in protest against the Armenian atrocities, bringing together the representative clergymen and citizens of the state, was held in the First Presbyterian church last night. Every denomination, and all the business and social circles of the city were represented on the platform. Gov. John W. Griggs presided. A substantial fund was raised to further the work of Clara Barton and the Red Cross society in Armenia.

Seeks Admission to the Red Cross.

Berne, March 6.—Emperor Menelek has applied for Abyssinia's admission into the Red Cross society.

BLIZZARD IN NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Snow Piling Into Deep Drifts in the Locality of Hookset.

Hookset, N. H., March 6.—An extreme blizzard for the past two days has been blowing at the rate of sixty miles an hour, piling the snow into drifts six feet deep in the highways, impeding travel and making the second calamity following the freshet, but causing the high water to subside. A review of the damage done in this locality shows that it is enormous. The Hookset mills have shut down and trains on the Suncook Valley railroad cancelled.

DEATH WARRANT SIGNED.

Murderer Holmes To Be Executed on Thursday, May 7.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 6.—The record in the Holmes case was received at the executive department yesterday afternoon and the governor signed the death warrant, and Herman W. Mudgett, alias H. H. Holmes, will be executed on Thursday, May 7.

Schooner Dunmore Safe.

Palm Beach, Fla., March 6.—The schooner Dunmore, which left Daytons, Fla., January 29 with Dr. P. R. Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Vansant, Mrs. A. B. Hardin and Mrs. J. B. Kinney on board for a cruise in the Bahamas and which was reported wrecked with three of the party drowned, has put into Palma Beach with all well.

To Enlarge a Natural-History Museum.

Albany, March 6.—The senate cities committee will decided to report favorably Senator Page's bill authorizing New York city to expend $500,000 to construct an additional building for the American Museum of Natural history.

Mrs. Gresham's Pension.

Washington, March 6.—The house committee on invalid pensions has decided to report favorably the bill passed by the senate granting to the widow of ex-Secretary Gresham a pension of $100 per month.

Li Hung Starts for Russia.

Pekin, March 6.—Li Hung Chang started yesterday to attend the coronation of the czar at Moscow.

The Common Council of New Brunswick have passed on second reading a bill to make the salary of the city collector $3,500 a year. The fees now amount to $5,000 a year.

The complete manner in which the big corporations have this Legislature under their thumbs was emphasized again in the House yesterday afternoon, says the Jersey City News. Mr. Reed's bill forbidding any municipal authorities from giving trolley companies franchises unless the companies pay $2,000 for single track and $4,000 per mile for double track, came up on final passage. Mr. Reed made a masterly speech in favor of his bill. He is one of the most forcible talkers in the House and received the close attention of all the members.

Now is the time to obey the injunction: "Please remain seated in the cars until the train comes to a full stop at the station." A Newarker, who failed to heed that advice, was blown from the car platform twenty feet through the air. That was yesterday. Today's dispatches tell of a similar misfortune of a New York woman, who was hurlled from an express train on the Susquehanna Railroad, this morning. It is best to "lay low" while the wind is scampering through the heavens at the rate of a mile a minute, as it has been doing lately.—Newark Advertiser.

A measure has been introduced in the Assembly providing for the military instruction of all the boys of the public schools of the State over the age of eleven years. The bill contemplates the organization of the schoolboys into an "American Guard," and provides that every organization of the guard shall be furnished by the State with books of instruction, uniforms, arms and such equipments as shall be suitable for the use of boys. Inquiry at the State School Department developed the fact that there are 1,754 public schools in the State, and more than 85,000 school boys between the ages of eleven and eighteen years. It is estimated that one-third of the boys would embrace the opportunity to be instructed in the tactics and wear a uniform. Thus the guard would be composed of about 28,000 school boys, and National Guard officers estimate the cost of equipping them at $616,000. The State authorities are almost unanimously opposed to the measure.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. O. U. W., meets tonight.

—Noah Dove Encampment, No. 28, I. O. O. F., held a meeting last night.

—Car No. 5 of the street railway is the latest to have the fender applied. It came out today.

—Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, will work one candidate in the first rank tonight.

—The work on the new telephone exchange at Westfield is nearly completed under the direction of Manager Chas. W. Runyon.

—Motorman Mowen, of the street railway, caught an opossum yesterday afternoon in the West End. He expects to give a dinner soon and invite his friends.

—Drive out the impurities from your blood and build up your system by creating an appetite and toning the stomach with Hood's Sarsaparilla, if you would keep yourself well.

—Several candidates were initiated at the meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, J. O. U. A. M., last evening, and the Oriental degree was conferred on a number after the regular meeting.

THEATRICAL.

Trilby has been performed 700 times in New York, Chicago and Boston, and in these three great cities it has scored an instantaneous and deserved success, in every instance swelling to the proportions of a triumph. And this triumph as an honest moving play, is as creditable to the art and skill of Paul Potter, as the book from which he drew his inspiration was to George DuMaurier. It is strong enough to stand on its own merits. On its first presentation in Boston there were fourteen curtain calls, and in New York a dozen. The applause did not come from the balcony or gallery, but came spontaneously and enthusiastically from every part of the house, and never was it so well deserved. With surprising skill the playwright has contrived a sterling play of love and hypnotism out of the delighful episodes in DuMaurier's book. In the opening act we find our old acquaintances, the Laird, Taffy and Little Billee, and Mme. Vinard grouped around the two central characters of Trilby and Svengali. Little Billee, broken-hearted at the thought of seeing Trilby posing for the "ensemble," leaves the studio and comes back again ere Trilby has had time to weep for him. The second act concerns the Christmas revelries and the "trois Angliches" and their friends, among whom we are glad to find the lively Zou Zou and his comrade Dedor, not to speak of various more or less alluring ladies of the "quarter Latin," all deeply bent on feteing the betrothal of the admirable Billee and his charming sweetheart. The death of Svengali, in a fit of frenzied rage, supplies the truly tragic and affecting ending of this act, which is by far the finest piece of work ever witnessed as a death scene upon the stage. The last act, in a measure, is devoted to the death of Trilby. She is recovering from the shock produced by Svengali's death and is rejoicing in the thought of her approaching marriage with her sweetheart, Little Billee, when her eyes light on a photograph; the face she sees before her is Svengali's. The evil influence of the hypnotist possesses her again; she wanders; fancies she is being forced to sing again; falls back, and dies. In the hands of inferior actors the scene might fail to move an audience, but there will be no need of failure, for the Trilby is Miss Marion Gray. And A. M. Palmer's great company, under the direction of Wm. A. Brady, will be seen with all the great effects at Music Hall tonight.

Little Katie Rooney in "The Derby Mascot" will be the attraction next week at Music Hall. With an excellent support, and the piece handsomely mounted as it is this season, it should do a grand business. Katie is a universal favorite, and appears to better advantage this season than ever before. Her songs and dances are new and up to date. The story of the play is filled with heart interest and the chances for the display of great effects are numerous. The Derby race between genuine thoroughbred horses, and the leap of the horse King Faro over the railroad gates of a crossing, is a wonderfully thrilling scene, as is the Swamp scene in the third act. There are many of the old favorites of last season with the show. Among the new members of the cast are Fred Summerfield, Della Clarke, Pansey Willard, Mattie Rooney, Robert Bouchier and others. Miss Rooney has certainly got every cause to be proud of her play and her support, and as she, herself is a finished little artist, there is no room left to do ubt a successful engagement.

Rheumatism Cured in a Day.

"Mystic Cure" for rheumatism and neuralgia radically cures in 1 to 3 days. Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. It removes at once the cause and the disease immediately disappears. The first dose greatly benefits; 75c. Sold by H. P. Reynolds, druggist, Park and North avenues. 2 12 y

It not only is so, it must be so, One Minute Cough Cure acts quickly, and that's what makes it go. L. W. Randolph, 143 W. Front S

News Which is Good News to Woman.

It is a fact that our women who suffer from female compliants and are consequently weak, tired, nervous, dragged-out and full of pains and aches, do not have the same opportunity to be cured as do the residents of the great cities where the most successful specialists in female diseases reside. In other words, our women are debarred from seeking a cure by the great and skilled physicians owing to the cost of travel to the large city and the high fees charged by such specialists.

Here, therefore, is the chance for the sick and suffering woman of our community which should not be lost. Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th St., New York City, who has the largest practice in the world and who is without doubt the most successful specialist in curing female complaints, offers to give free consultation by mail to all women suffering from these distressing weaknesses, discharges, pains and irregularities. You have the privilege of consulting Dr. Greene by letter describing your complaints and he will, after carefully considering your condition, send a letter fully explaining all your symptoms, telling you everything about your complaints so plainly that you will understand exactly what ails you. He will also give you his advice, based upon his vast experience and wonderful success in treating such cases, as to just what to do to get cured. All this will cost you nothing and you can thus have consultation with the best-known and acknowledged most successful specialist in the world without leaving home and at no expense whatever. The doctor is the discoverer of that greatest of all known medicines, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and he has discovered many other most valuable remedies. Write to him now about your case for this is a chance to get cured which you may never have again.

Commercial Palace - - Babcock Building.

Modern buying of general merchandise has become an art in trade.

The old rutty methods of twenty years ago are too slow and expensive for the wide-awake buyer of the present.

The Commercial Palace is recognized by the largest manufacturers and importers.

As a leading department store of sufficiently large dimentions to be entitled to the same "jobber's" price list as the New York department stores, which means a great saving to patrons of this class of stores.

Here is a sample of some of the results of "Young America" modern methods of real up-to-date buying.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Charles Patterson is riding a '96 Cleveland.

Roundsman Frederickson has purchased a '96 Columbia wheel.

Roundsman Mattox will soon be going his rounds on a new '96 Crescent wheel.

The Eldridge Bicycle Company has just received a '96 Columbia double diamond-frame tandem.

J. Sorensen has purchased a Crescent racing wheel and is expected to do some fast riding this year.

Mrs. F. S. Green and Miss Ethel Green, of East Fifth street, will both ride Cleveland wheels, model 23.

Frank Bushnell, of Madison avenue, is riding a Cleveland, model 22, purchased of the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company.

The Plainfield Wheeling Club enjoyed another of their regular weekly rides at the Columbia Cycle Academy last evening. There was a good attendance.

At the annual dinner of the Hudson County Wheelmen, held in Jersey City on Monday last, Frederick Keer, F. L. C. Martin's new partner, acted as toastmaster.

Two more of the ministers of Plainfield and the borough have purchased Clevelands from the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company. They are Rev. W. R. Richards, D. D., and Rev. J. O. McKelvey.

Among the guests at the annual banquet of the Essex Bicycle Club, of Newark, the oldest bicycle club in the State, which was held at Newark last night, was F. L. C. Martin, of this city. Mr. Martin is one of the members of that famous organization.

One of Plainfield's best representatives on the track last year was William M. McCutchen, and this year he may be expected to outdo his previous record. Yesterday afternoon he received his new wheel, a twenty-one-pound Cleveland racer, from the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company. He expects to ride under the Crescent Wheelmen's colors this year, although several out-of town clubs have tried to persuade that speedy young cyclist to join their ranks. He will begin training as soon as the track at the Crescent oval is placed in shape for riding, which will be about May 1st. McCutchen will represent Leal's School in the bicycle races at the games of the New Jersey Interscholastic Athletic Association.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The teams from the Y. M. C. A.'s of Westfield and Rahway will roll another match tonight.

The highest score at the Park Club for February was made by William N. Runyon. It was 237. William J. Worth rolled a game last Tuesday which is not likely to be beaten this month. His score was 235.

The head pin tournament at the Crescent Wheelmen's alleys is the cause of an exciting contest every night now. S. P. T Wilbur did not think he would enter at present and Wednesday night he rolled 113, tieing Wheaton S. Lowry's high score. But as Wilbur was not entered it did not count. There are already 20 entries.

AT THE TRAPS.

There will be a live-bird shoot at "Eddie" Earl's grounds, Rahway avenue, Elizabeth, next Saturday. Plenty of good birds will be on hand, and anybody who wants to participate in sweepstakes can be accommodated. There will be two matches, one between N. H. Astfalk and Earl, at 10 birds, for $15, and the other under the same conditions, between Blodget and Earl.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The Yale hockey team, of which Henry Rider, of East Front street, is a member, is arranging a game with the Princeton team.

GOLF.

It is expected that the golf season in Plainfield will open on or about April 1st.

THE WOMAN OF FASHION.

A Farewell Glance at the Opera Girl Before Lent.

The New Women as Escorts on St. Valentine's Day—Pretty Things Seen at the Theaters the Past Week—Pretty Home Dresses.

[COPYRIGHT, 1896.]

Let us take a farewell glance at the opera girl before we leave her. Not that she goes out of existence, but she won't be fashionable any more after February 19. There are plenty of girls who do not keep Lent, but they are well enough pleased with the respite of six weeks to let it be taken for granted that they do; and so, more and more each year, the fashionable world takes it as a matter of course that there will be no social doings between Ash Wednesday and Easter.

Society women made the most of St Valentine's day for one last fling. Some of the Valentine balls were mask parties, and most of them leap year affairs. It was all arranged that the girls should escort their timid charges to their homes; that part of it was dutifully carried out, but when it came to allowing the damsel to depart alone and unattended to her domicile they say he rebelled and went back with her, but of course we cannot expect a man to get used to the new woman all at once, and perhaps we'd just as lief he wouldn't anyway.

Theater waists reached a climax on Friday night, at which they have been aiming for six weeks, and I do not like to leave the subject without just one last word. There was a hint of what we may expect after Lent is over in some of the waists—two of which are pictured here.

If these indications are to be trusted, we shall have small need of gloves, for the sleeves will be long enough to conceal the hands. One sleeve has lace that falls over the back of the hand; the other has a sort of loose cuff that turns down instead of up, and flops over the hand. Another feature of one of these waists which will be characteristic of the summer fashions is the double ruffle over the shoulder. This is to help us in the transition from large sleeves to small ones. We cannot be reconciled to a bare tight sleeve all at once. There must be some sort of fluff to conceal the fact until we get accustomed to it.

Grass linen or linen bastiste waists are made this way with ruffles of embroidery bastiste to match. The tight fitting sleeve with ruffles at the shoulder and elbow will not trouble us very long. It is too graceful to be proper.

A pretty sleeve from a house gown has a loose edge on the upper side, pinked in small scallops running from the shoulder to the hand.

It always seems a waste of shekels to deal them out to the fashionable modiste for a house dress or a lounging gown. This sort of gown which is sacred to the boudoir or the privacy of one's own family, can be made at home at much less cost and the money that is thus saved may be used for something else—for what woman in the world, however wealthy she may be, ever has quite all the pretty things she wants?

Here are a few suggestions for gowns that can be made by the dressmaker who comes to sew by the day.

A perfectly plain wrapper made over a tight lining, loose in front and back from the neck. A velvet collarette can be made separately to simulate a pointed yoke, and when edged yith a flounce of lace gives a very dressy appearance to the gown with which it is worn.

A wrapper with a cream lace yoke makes a pretty house dress. It should fit the figure at the sides—otherwise it is bound to look slouchy.

Some of the prettiest house dresses are tight fitting with only a loose front. One made of green crepon—the kind that is on the bargain counters for 50 cents a yard—has rows of lace around the yoke and sleeves for trimming—three rows running across the yoke in the back and passing around the tops of the sleeves, terminating under a plait in front that starts from the high collar and reaches to the bottom of the dress. The sleeves are made with two stripes of lace sewed around near the hand and about four inches apart. The front and back breadths are full from the yoke down, but the figure is distinctly outlined at the sides.

Another gown very similar to this has a lace collarette—one of those that look like a Chinese cross with a hole in the center for the head to go through. The loose front that starts at the bust is trimmed with three rows of insertion running crosswise.

A wrapper with a cream lace yoke cut in points has straps of ribbon running over the shoulders with bows at the back from which hang long ends to the bottom of the skirt. The yoke has an accordion plaited edging of chiffon, which, by the way, is not so expensive as it used to be.

All the gowns which I have described have sleeves that are tight at the hand, but for a mere lounging gown where comfort is the chief consideration, the best sleeve is the "angel sleeve" which is the same size from shoulders to elbow with a long point that hangs to the bottom of the skirt. This sleeve gives free play to the arm and sometimes falls back to the shoulders when its wearer clasps her hands above her head and stretches herself out in a reclining chair for good, solid comfort.

So much for the gowns that are made at home. Just a word about the spring goods for street wear. The materials are nearly all mixed patterns of the weave known commonly as "pepper and salt." These are the English and Scotch suitings that are to be made tailor fashion.

A FAREWELL GLANCE AT THE OPERA GIRL.

A COLUMN OF VERSE.

Leap Year Forever.

When men propose
Each mortal knows
That all things go awry.
For lovers meek
Oft fail to speak,
Though maidens softly sigh.

They make mistakes,
And cause heartbreaks
In ev'ry walk of life.
They choose, and yet
They often get
The wrong one for a wife.

They lack the nerve
That ought to serve
In trying times like these;
And so, world o'er,
One year in four
The girls do as they please.

They have one year—
The one just here—
In which to prove they're "new;"
When they may court,
Like men disport,
And do all men may do.

In days of old,
As we've been told,
This proved a pleasant plan;
But now, alas!
It's come to pass
They're rather crowding man.

So it is plain
With might and main
To all these "rights" they'll cling,
And leap year'll be,
As you shall see,
A most unending thing
—Chicago Post.

The New Couple.

She was new and was constructed on the latest modern plan,
But she lost her heart, like others, and, of course, 'twas lost to man:
So at last the two were married, and they started married life,
As they thought, equipped and ready, well prepared for any strife.

She was posted on his business quite as thoroughly as he:
She had studied all the details, and, as anyone could see,
She could run his shop or office; and it also seemed quite clear
She could act as his bookkeeper or could serve as his cashier.

She could sell goods on commission, or could buy on thirty days;
She was sharper than most merchants in all proper business ways;
She could "take" from his dictation and dictate to others too;
There was nothing 'round the office that she really couldn't do.

So they thought they were well armored for a life of great success,
But the outcome of their trial was a failure more or less;
They are doomed to boarding houses, and regretfully they roam,
For while they both can run the office, neither one can make a home.
—St. Louis Dry Goods Reporter.

The Bachelor.

He sits alone within his room,
And gazes at the dying fire,
Whose fitful flames bear through the gloom
The burden of his heart's desire.
Sometimes he starts, as if he heard
A woman's footstep on the stair—
'Twas but a creaking board that stirr'd,
Unless a spirit lingered there.
But often, as the smoke wreaths rise,
Sad fancy comes with all her brood,
He sees a face whose dreamy eyes
Rebuke him for his solitude.
A woman's garment rustles low,
His name is murmured by wan lips;
Soft fingers touch his wearied brow,
And in his own a small hand slips.
Thus sits he, lost in wistful dreams
Of what the past may never be,
And all his lonely musing seems
Lit up by fairy phantasy
While in the wide, wide world somewhere
Within a church [illegible]
Soft shadows haunt her eyes and hair,
Some love-lorn woman waits for him.

Ludlow put his arm around her and lifted her face so that he could look into her eyes. "Perhaps I'm not so indifferent, after all," he said. "Tell me what you wish me to do, and I'll go do it, if I have to let the furnace freeze while the men turn out to hunt for him."

"That is what ought to be done—tomorrow, anyway. Hester's go to ask her father to ride along the mountain to see if anyone has heard of him, and Henry will go to Dunbar. If they can't find out anything, I think you ought to get up a search party. Now, Tom, there's one thing more. Tell me why you thought Hugh wouldn't have anything to do with the feud if he knew about it?"

Ludlow saw he was upon the brink, and braced himself for the plunge, but he evasively asked: "When did I say anything like that?"

"Why, you remember—the first time we were talking about him and Hester; you said he'd have to be very much changed from the man you used to know if he consented to assume any such responsibilities."

"Did I say that?"

"Of course you did; and I want to know what it meant, and all about it."

"Why, I didn't mean anything in particular, except that Hugh was always a peaceable fellow—a man who avoids rows as a cat picks her way around a pool of water."

"There's more than that to it, Tom, dear, and you might just as well tell me first as last. Hasn't he been talking to you about this—this idiosyncrasy of his?"

Ludlow dropped into his chair with a "I knew just how it would be," he said; and then he told her what he could remember of the conversation in which Ringbrand had confessed his inability to face danger and the bearing this would have upon his relations with Hester and her family. "He said he was going to try to fight it out with himself, and that if he failed we needn't be surprised if he turned up missing, because he wouldn't have the face to say good-by. Now you know the whole of it, and why I haven't been borrowing any trouble about his disappearance. I concluded at once that he'd made a miss-go of his fight and had decided that discretion was the better part of valor."

Mrs. Ludlow pursed up her lips and walked airily around to her place at the dinner-table. "Tom," she said, smiling serenely across the table at him, "I'm positively ashamed of you. Do you suppose for a moment that Hugh would have stayed here all this time making love to Hester when he knew all along that he wasn't going to have the courage to stand up for her when he got boisterous things, and I don't know which is the more ridiculous—his absurdity in telling you, or yours in believing him."

Ludlow fell back in his chair in an attitude of helpless despair. "Helen, my dear, you'd make an angel weep: you would, indeed! What have I to do with it? How am I responsible for it? Who made me the godfather to this chuckled-headed infant?"

Ludlow fell back in his chair in an attitude of helpless despair.

"Please don't be tragic, Tom," she said, sweetly. "It doesn't become you. You know you aided and abetted him in this foolish notion, and then to think that you'd sit down calmly in the belief that he'd run away without saying a word! It's too perfectly absurd for anything! What you should do is to telegraph everybody you can think of right away, and if you don't hear anything by to-morrow morning you ought to take the men and search every foot of the mountain till you find him."

For reply he handed her the two messages from McNairville and Dunbar, adding that he had questioned the conductor on his way home.

"Then you haven't been quite as hard-hearted as I thought you were. Can't you think of anyone else to telegraph?"

"No."

"Have you suspected the Bynums of having anything to do with it?"

"I'd suspect them quickly enough if there were the slightest grounds for a motive: but there isn't a shadow of reason for thinking that they'd make war on Hugh."

"Perhaps not; only I thought they might have identified him in some way with the Latimers."

Ludlow scouted the idea; and during the afternoon he instructed the mine horses to have their men gather at "The Laurels" early the following morning, prepared to make a thorough search for the missing man.

After supper the colonel's man came down with a note from Hester. Nothing had been heard of Ringbrand, either at the Cravens' house or in Dunbar, and the writer asked if the search party had been arranged for the next day, adding that the colonel and Henry wished to join it. Ludlow sent back word that he would be at "The Laurels" at an early hour in the morning with as many men as he could gather, and Mrs. Ludlow wrote a postscript to his note, asking Hester to spend the day with her.

The third day of Ringbrand's absence dawned hot and clear, and when Ludlow reached "The Laurels" with his men he found the colonel and Henry waiting impatiently. After a short consultation and the arrangement of a definite plan, the quest began; and as soon as the men were out of sight Hester mounted and rode to Tregarthen. The suspense of the previous day had been hard to endure, but it had been mixed with the hope that some of the means employed would bring news of a cheering nature. When her father and brother returned from their fruitless errands, and she had read Ludlow's note, the girl began to realize in dread earnest what the prolonged uncertainty meant for her, and she was glad enough to escape from the ordeal of another lonely day of waiting. Mrs. Ludlow saw her galloping down the road, and met her at the door.

"Did the men get started before you left?" she inquired, putting her arm around the girl's waist and leading her to the cool sitting-room.

"Yes; they had planned to throw a line all the way across the mountain, moving it northward, so as to cover the whole plateau."

"They can hardly fail to find him; that is, if he still on the mountain," replied Mrs. Ludlow.

"Oh, yes, Helen, but just think of it—this is the third day! They can scarcely hope to find him alive if any accident has happened." Hester's voice betrayed her emotion, and Mrs. Ludlow hastened to comfort her.

"You mustn't be discouraged, dear; it'll come out all right—I just feel that it will. All day yesterday I was just as blue as could be, but now I am sure we'll hear good news before long."

"I wish I could be; but I can't; and I've tried so hard. All night long I was haunted by the most dreadful pictures of him lying in some desolate place. Sometimes it seemed as if he were only wounded, but at others his face was livid and ghastly. Oh, it was terrible!"

"Poor dear!" said Mrs. Ludlow, sympathetically, "does it mean so much to you?"

Hester covered her face with her hands, and the compassionate comforter saw a tear trickle down one of the shapely fingers. "There, there, Hester, dear; don't cry: I know you can't talk about it yet, not even to me."

The girl looked up with her cheeks aflame. "And you know why I can't! It's shameful to even think of such a thing!"

"No, it isn't—not from my point of view; you must remember I know some things on the other side, and if Hugh hasn't spoken it's because he has been restrained by a nobler motive than most men could find a place for. Oh, you needn't hide your face again: I'm not going to do his wooing for him; you'll find he can do that for himself, some day, and then he'll tell you all about it."

Hester rose and crossed to the window, commanding the view of the mountain, and Mrs. Ludlow went away to attend to her household duties. When she looked in an hour later, the girl was still standing at the window, looking with wistful eyes at the forest-clad slopes of the great hills, as if seeking to read the secret of the mystery on the fair pages of the landscape. It was a long weary day for the two women, and in the afternoon Hester announced her intention of returning to "The Laurels."

"I shall hear sooner, if I go back," she said, in reply to Mrs. Ludlow's effort to detain her, "and the delay is pitifully hard at best."

"Shan't I have John get out the phaeton, so I can drive you up?"

"No," replied Hester, with her face averted. "I think it will be better for me to go by myself. If—if it should turn out as I fear, I should want to be quite alone for awhile."

Mrs. Ludlow understood, and did not seek to change her plans; and after the girl had disappeared in the windings of the mountain road, the tender-hearted little woman took the vacant place at the window, watching eagerly for the first signs of the returning search-party.

She was standing there yet when the sun went behind the mountain and the first stragglers of the party began to appear in the road; and she was trying so earnestly to distinguish the form of her husband among the men that she did not hear him when he entered the room. A single glance at his face disheartened her, and she could not find words to frame the question that found better speech in her eyes.

"No, we didn't find him," said Ludlow, gravely, answering her thought. "We quartered every foot of the plateau and looked all along under the cliffs on both brows of the mountain. He's not up there, dead or alive. And that isn't all: the McNabb was blown up again last night."

Mrs. Ludlow seemed not to have heard the last sentence, for she put her arms about her husband's neck and hid her face on his bosom, saying, softly: "Oh, poor, poor Hester!"

XI.

THE BUILDING OF A STAIR.

Good resolutions, backed by whatever plea of advisability or necessity, are not always certain to bear fruit after their kind. When Ringbrand flung himself down beside the log to wait for the dawn, he fully intended keeping awake in order to take advantage of the earliest light for the beginning of the new endeavor. So ran the alert determination; but he who watches may not lie quietly with closed eyes, and when Ringbrand sprang to his feet out of a sound sleep the morning was far advanced.

Reproaching himself remorsefully for his want of vigilance, he recalled the details of the plan which had suggested itself in the night, and went immediately to work. He first ascertained half the length of the log by measuring it with the rope, and with the dimension thus obtained he gauged the varying width of the cavern until he found a point where the walls approached each other so nearly as to make the intervening space correspond exactly with his measurement.

The next step was to cut the log into two pieces of equal length, and, dragging it out into the better light under the aperture, he narrowly missed throwing it down upon another package of food similar to the one found in the same spot on the previous morning. It was a welcome surprise, and he stopped work long enough to devour the hard corn-bread and greasy bacon, thinking that the daintiest breakfast ever brought him by the well-trained waiter in the grill-room of his New York club had not been eaten with a keener relish.

"It must be the woman," he soliloquized; "it can't be anyone else; and if these fellows have put their devilish plot in motion I'll get no more rations from that source, because they were to send her away to-day. After all, though, I don't know as it makes much difference; if another night finds me still in this hole I shan't care much what becomes of me."

He hoisted the other piece of wood after him.

Putting the shadow of despondency into words had the effect of defining it, and he shook it off resolutely. "That'll never do; there must be no ifs and ands about it: I've just got to get out of here while this daylight lasts."

He swallowed the last mouthful of bread and fell to work again, beginning to cut a groove around the middle of the log by incessant and careful strokes of the pick. In turning the piece of timber, he saw where the mountaineer's shot had plowed a deep furrow in it, and he knew then that the bruise on his arm had been made by the glancing and half-spent bullet. He scarcely heeded the grim reminder, and as he bent patiently to his work he thought how quickly the school of privation and hardship begins to impress its lessons of indifference upon the mind.

There are many things easier of accomplishment than the cutting in two of a six-inch stick of tough oak with the dull point of a pick as a substitute for an ax; and the muscles of Ringbrand's back and arms were in painful rebellion, and his hands were sore and blistered, long before the thing was done. As a college man, he had been rather fond of athletics, and the training of the university gymnasium, reaching up through the overlying years of sedentary habit, gave him the power of endurance and enabled him to keep steadily at work in spite of the protests of back and arms and hands; but this did not lessen the acuteness of the pain, nor did it dull the keen agony of apprehension that seized upon him as he saw how slowly the cutting progressed. Notwithstanding his preseverance and the feverish energy with which he worked, the hands of his watch marked the hour of noon when the last remaining fibers of the wood gave way under the blows of the pick, and, stopping only long enough to get a drink of water from the pool, he carried the pieces to the point determined by the measurement with the rope, and began to fit one of them breast-high between the vertical walls as the first round of his ladder.

"By Jove! talk about special providence—what chance would I have if this bit of timber hadn't tumbled down here?" It was a comfort to think aloud in the dead silence of the place. "Now, if I can wedge this so it will hold me—" A half-dozen trials went for nothing, and he sat down to worry it out in theory. "It's too long—that's what's the matter with it: but if I cut it off it may be too short for the next place, and that won't do. Let me see; I wonder if I couldn't dig a little step for the lower end."

He was on his feet again in a moment, picking a shallow hole in the soft sandstone. The expedient answered the purpose, and when the log was adjusted he tried it, first by littles and then by climbing up and jumping upon it. It held, and he forgot his aches and pains in the exultant joy of success.

"That demonstrates it: if I can fit one, I can fit the others. And I'll get the bang of it presently, so I can work faster. It oughtn't to take more than six of these to carry me to the top; six, or possibly seven"—scanning the cleft above him—"and I've got five hours or such a matter to do it in. At that rate it'll be dark when I get back to Ludlow's; but that won't matter. An hour will give me all the time I want at Tom's, and we can figure safely up to ten o'clock." Then the folly of planning so far ahead while he was still in a prison that for two days and a half had resisted all his efforts to break it struck him like the rebuke of a taskmaster, and he slid down from the log with a mild imprecation pointed at his own vagaries. "That's just like me," he muttered, "sending my imagination across the river before the bridge is even planned. Work is the word, you speculative idiot! Do you hear that? Work!"

To his great astonishment, the word seemed to bring an answer from the upper world, and he ran to the other end of the cavern to listen. The halloo was repeated, and he answered it with all the strength of his lungs; once again he heard the cry, but this time it was fainter, and after that the silence was undisturbed. Alive to the importance of utilizing every moment of time, Ringbrand returned to his work; but the expiring glimmer of the hope raised by the answering shout left a feeling of depression which would have unmanned him had he known that one of the searching miners had actually looked down into the cavern at the moment when he was climbing down from the first step of his problematical stair.

Fitting the first round of the ladder from the solid standing ground offered by the bottom of the cave was much easier than the adjustment of the second, but Ringbrand had his plans well thought out now, and he worked carefully and methodically, saving the precious moments in every possible way. Climbing to a seat upon the round already placed, he hoisted the other piece of wood after him by means of the rope; and, balancing upon the precarious footing, he succeeded after many cautious trials in hewing out a resting place for the second step in his stairway. With the fixing of this round, however, the difficulties immediately doubled, because the subsequent steps must be fitted each from the slight scaffolding afforded by the other. Making a final trip to the floor of the cavern, Ringbrand tied one end of the rope to the pick, and, carrying the other end with him, he ascended and fastened it to the first piece of wood. Then, climbing to the second, he repeated the former operation, dislodging the lower round by gentle upward blows with the swinging pick and drawing it up until he could grasp and raise it to a point still higher in the cavern. The plan was completely successful, but its slow progress consumed the time remorselessly, and the strain of work and anxiety began to tell upon him. He fought desperately against the rising fever of impatience, knowing well enough that everything now depended upon his ability to go on with persistent determination and with steady hands. As he neared the roof of the cavern, where the shadows were deeper, the difficulty of placing the cross-pieces increased so greatly that he grew faint and dizzy with lifting and reaching; and while he was raising the last step in the stair to its place between the walls, he suddenly became blind and tremulous, the heavy log slipped from his hands and went crashing to the bottom of the chasm, and a second afterward he lost his balance and followed it, catching frantically at the uneven walls as he slid back to the sandy floor.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of sea-bathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. Ask your agents for tickets via this route.

TALMAGE ASSIGNMENT.

A Great Rice Firm's Business in the Hands of Joseph Gillet.

The firm of Dan Talmage's Sons, of New York, made an assignment today. The firm is the biggest in the rice business. The main offices are at 15 Wall street.

The firm was conducted by John F., Daniel and David. The assignment was made in the names of John and Daniel.

In making the assignment the firm mentioned Joseph Gillet as preferred creditor for $147,459, and he was named as assignee. The assignment was made under the advice of the firm's counsel, Strong, Harmon & Mathewson, of 45 William street.

The Talmage concern had always been regarded in financial circles as sound. It had the reputation of doing the most extensive business in the rice trade. The warehouse of the concern is at 50 Columbia street, Brooklyn. The firm are well known in this city.

Mrs. Talmage, of Central avenue, this city, is related to the firm.

Mrs. J. F. Harman and daughter, of West Eighth street, left today for Atlantic City.

POETICAL PICKINGS.

A Song for Every Day.

The weary world's a cheery place
For those with hearts to win it.
Thank God, there's not a human face
But has some laughter in it!
The soul that comes with honest mirth,
Though health and fortune vary,
Brings back the childhood of the earth,
And keeps it sound and merry.

The plodding world's an eager place
For those with wit to use it.
Where all are bidden to the race,
Let him who dares refuse it!
The simplest task the hand can try,
The dullest round of duty,
Knowledge can amply glorify,
And art can crown with beauty.

A busy, bonny, kindly place
Is this rough world of ours,
For those who love and work apace,
And fill the hands with flowers.
To kind and just and grateful hearts
The present grace is given
To find a Heaven in themselves,
And find themselves in Heaven!
—The Congregationalist.

She's All Right Always.

We are often chidin' woman 'cause she's makin' of a stir
For the rights she thinks us men-folks is a-holdin' back from her;
But to tell the truth, we've never felt much different to this—
Whether she jist suits or doesn't,
We
Will Take Her
As She
Is!

She may win the rights she's after, she may make us don her dress,
An' ignore our lusty kickin' an' our rantings of distress:
An' although we swear an' mutter, the result is always this—
Ruther'n we should do without her,
We
Will Take
Her
As She
Is!
—Will T. Hale, in Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

Once and Forever.

Our own are our own forever. God taketh not back His gift.
They may pass beyond our vision, but our souls shall find them out.
When the waiting is all accomplished, and the deathly shadows lift,
And glory is given for grieving, and the surety of God for doubt

We may find the waiting bitter, and count the silence long,
God knoweth we are dust, and He pitieth our pains;
And when faith has grown to fulness, and the silence changed to song,
We shall eat the fruit of patience, and shall hunger not again.

So sorrowing hearts, who dumbly in darkness and all alone
Sit missing a dear lost presence and the joy of a vanished day,
Be comforted with this message that our own are forever our own,
And God, who gave the precious gift, He takes it never away.
—Susan Coolidge, in S. S. Times.

BITS OF VERSE.

A Song of Seasons.

There's joy, my dear, in the youth o' the year,
When the hearts o' the bright buds oreak;
And the skies are blue as the eyes o' you,
And the bloom blows over the lake.
There's joy, my dear, for the world is fair,
And love is the sweetest blossom there!

There's joy, my dear, in the noon o' the year,
When the harvest hints o' gold;
And the soft sun streams with its gleams and dreams
On your beautiful hair unrolled.
There's joy, my dear, for the world is fair,
And love is the blossom that's brightest there.

There's joy, my dear, in the gray o' the year,
When the snows are drifting white;
And the cold winds cry to the starless sky,
And the last rose weeps: "Good night!"
There's joy, my dear, for the world is fair,
While love, like a lily, is blooming there!
—Frank L. Stanton, in Chicago Times-Herald.

The Pine Grove.

With stately sweep, in stately lines,
Like comrades hand in hand,
Thick stretch the host of sturdy pines
Along the slope of land.

They climb aloft, in row on row,
And mingle green with green,
So thick no sparkling shine of snow
Beyond their boughs is seen.

But where their slender trunks below
Stand firm for many a mile,
All dull o'ershadowed lies the snow,
Without its wintry smile.

Tree above tree they higher stand,
Like ladies at a play:
And seem to stir and clap their hands—
The wind their orchestra

The mysteries of night they know—
Of night and winter skies;
And e'en in summer, murmur low
Strange questions and replies.
—Elizabeth French, in Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

To an Infant.

God keep you safe, my little one!
All through the night,
Watch o'er your peaceful slumber,
Until the light.

Guard and guide those little feet
Through life's winding ways,
Fill with His blessings
All your coming days.

God keep those dimpled baby hands
From aught but right;
Teach them to battle for the good
In His dear sight.

That those pure rosy lips of thine
Shall always stay
As sweet and innocent as now
I nightly pray.

God keep you safe, my little one,
Through every hour,
And teach you to pray, each night and day,
Unto a higher power.
—Benton Beverly, in N. O. Times-Democrat.

I Kissed Her.

Her head inclined, I could but catch
(From out a tossed and tangled curl
That like a seaweed whiter made)
A bit of neck that gleamed like pearl.

It was so white, and such a mite
It seemed impossible 'twould hold
The kisses that I showered on
That bit of pearl, half framed in gold.

And she? She never spoke a word
To bid me stop, but gurgled low,
As do the streams whose waters kiss
The pebbles over which they flow.

I murmured sweetest words of love
In her small ear—I will confess;
But 'twas my baby girl, you know,
And I was butt'ning up her dress.
—Mary H. Flanner, in Orange Judd Farmer

Then Now.

He used to come with cheery voice,
His manner made them all rejoice.
But does he now? Well, maybe!
In anxious accents speaks he low,
He comes with softest, faint tiptoe,
For, "Hush, you'll wake the baby!"

With head erect he'd loud decree
His "castle" each man's home should be.
But does he now? Well, maybe!
He's subdued proclaiming for awhile,
To listen with a wan, sad smile
To "Hush, you'll wake the baby!"

Now I leave it you think it's right
[illegible] pity for his plight?
[illegible] maybe."
But as [illegible] in whispers low,
[illegible]
[illegible] "Hush, you'll wake the baby!"
—Judge

Frost and Sun.

O Autumn, hide your gold from sight!
It tempts the thief, it tempts the thief,
The thief that walks the hours of night,
And vanishes at dawn
When all your blush is turned to blight,
There mourns the more when suns are bright,
There will not be one golden leaf
To tell of glories gone

O Spring, put all your frowns away!
And greet the King, and greet the King
The King that through the gate of May
Will come to claim his own.
When every cloud has lost its gray,
And breezes tread a flowery way,
No tear upon your cheek can bring
The thought of sorrow flown.
—Ethelwyn Wetherald, in Youth's Companion.

ONE SUCH ENOUGH.

He (significantly)—I am my father's only child, you know, Miss Blood.

She—Well, you can't blame him, Mr. Sappy.—Brooklyn Life.

Will She?

When the coming woman gets here
Will she offer up her seat?
Will she offer her umbrella
When there's rain or snow or sleet?
Will she help us in the wagon?
Will she bait our fishing hook?
Will she step into the water
That we dry may cross the brook?
Will she seize a rail and rescue
When the bully chases us?
Will she push the wheezy mower
Every eve and make no fuss?
Will she run the locomotive,
Shovel coal, and handle brakes?
Will she level mount and forest,
Carry bitters for the snakes?
Will she march to bloody battles,
Snap her finger at the hurts?
Well, I guess not: she will merely Hide behind her husband's skirts.
—N. Y. Sun.

Her Eyes.

Are the eyes I love black, brown, or blue?
It matters not what is their shade or hue,
So long as they are loving, tender, true.

They may be blue as bluest summer sky,
Or brown and black in deepest shades may vie;
I love the soul which meets mine through the eye.

The eyes which tell me all I care to know,
Whose orbs with sympathetic fervor glow,
And all the heart within on me bestow.

The wide world holdeth none that can excel;
The soul within them doth my soul impel.
Dear eyes, I thank them for the tale they tell
—N. Y. Tribune.

The Secret of Happiness.

There's no excuse for family jars;
'Tis selfishness our pleasure mars;
The wife insists on this or that,
The husband differs—then a spat—
A fickle, foolish falling out—
Some words, some tears, a little pout;
Because they have not learned to share
Each others' wishes, and forbear

My wife and I a plan devised
Whereby all politics are compromised.
Though differences arise, with us,
We settle them without a fuss
And how much better 'tis to find
One to the other's views resigned;
It matters not what I may say,
We compromise—she has her way.
—L. A. W. Bulletin.

The Modern Muse.

I wrote a little poem, twas bright and sweet and gay—
The cleverest and best I'd done for many and many a day
I sent it to an editor—alas! my hopes were vain!
He coldly wrote: "Returned with thanks," and sent it back again

And then I took that poem apart and tried a new invention;
I put it into dialect past human comprehension
Obscured the sense, and spoiled the rhyme, and mailed the shapeless wreck
Back to that self-same editor—who promptly sent a check!
—N. Y. Tribune.

A Good Method.

There was a little schoolma'am
Who had this curious way

Like doleful dumps and pain,
And then," said she, "you'll gladly see
That pleasant things remain."

A BUTTERFLY SOCIABLE.

Endeavorers of Congregational Church Have a Pleasant Time.

A butterfly sociable was given last night by the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the Congregational church. A pleasant little informal entertainment by the Junior Endeavor Society filled the first part of the evening. First was a vocal solo, Mrs. Knapp's "Jesus' Jewels," sung by Miss Agnes LaBoyteaux, with violin obligato by Miss Nella B. Whiton. It was a sweet little song, very sweetly sung, and the little girl was so heartily encored that she was obliged to repeat it.

Miss Eva Wilkins next played a piano solo, "Yale March," by Van Baar, in a very spirited manner.

Then came a vocal duet by Harold Nomer and Edwin Weseman, Mrs. Stowe's "When Storms Are Raging," with violin obligato by Miss Whiton. The young voices harmonized very nicely, and their singing showed careful training.

The programme closed with a recitation and Delsarte drill. The recitation, "Star-spangled Battle Flag," was by Miss Amy Emmons, a pupil of Miss Addie Parker Jackson, and Misses Caroline Fuller, Agnes LaBoyteaux, Hattie Messersmith, Ethel Weseman, Miriam Sherwin and Nellie LaRue accomponied it with appropriate motions addressed to the large flag which was draped around a picture of Washington at one end of the room. The pretty little girls, daintily dressed in white, made a very sweet picture.

At the close of the programme the guests became interested in the other attractions of the sociable. Butterflies of every color of the rainbow decorated the room and found ready purchasers. A Scripture cake and its recipe were also on sale, and one of the parlors was arranged as a lunch room, where coffee and buckwheat cakes were served, "making the butter-fly" in a very literal sense.

A large number of guests enjoyed this pleasant sociable, which was arranged by a committee from the Young People's Society, composed of Miss Adeline B. Parsons, chairman, Miss Stella Winckler, Miss Mary E. Robinson, George Fuller and Robert C. LaBoyteaux.

KEEP OFF THE COUNTY ROADS.

A Correspondent Tells of Another Good Route for the Trolley.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—The question of a trolley between Plainfield and Elizabeth has been frequently brought before the public during the last few months by the different papers published along the line, though nothing definite regarding the route to be followed has been suggested.

The opinion, so far as my observation goes, seems nearly unanimous that the system of county roads, of which we are so justly proud and which has cost the county so much money, should not be ruined by having car tracks laid along them.

This can be easily avoided by starting from Elizabeth on the south side of the Central Railroad, following South avenue through Roselle, Cranford and Garwood to Westfield, there crossing the Central tracks below the grade and following North avenue to its intersection with the old bed of the Central, about one mile east of Fanwood, thence over the old Central roadbed, now known as "Midway," into the heart of Plainfield. This route would not in any way interfere with or injure the macadam county road and would be over roads now little used by the public, giving easy access to the inhabitants along the entire line.

The consent of property owners could also be much more easily obtained, which is another point in its favor. Progress.

Progressive Euchre Party.

Yesterday afternoon thirty-six young people enjoyed the charming hospitality of Mrs. S. St. John McCutchen, when she gave a progressive euchre party in honor of Miss Edna Leonard, who is visiting relatives in town. After the games, delicious refreshments were served. Winners of prizes were Miss Laura Long, Miss Daisy Van Boskerck, Miss Bertha Clark, Miss Faber, Miss Alice Thompson, Miss Storms and Miss Helen Philips.

Simon S. Hartman, of Tunnelton, West Va., has been subject to attacks of colic about once a year, and would have to call a doctor and then suffer for about twelve hours as much as some do when they die. He was taken recently just the same as at other times, and concluded to try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He says: "I took one dose of it and it gave me relief in five minutes. That is more than anything else has ever done for me. For sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

THE BOROUGH COUNCIL.

MAYOR HEGEMAN SPEAKS PLEASANTLY OF THE RETIRING OFFICERS.

Contract for Building the Fire Tower Awarded to W. T. Kirk—The Name of Emily Street Changed to Lincoln Avenue

There was little business to occupy the attention of the members of the Borough Council at their meeting last evening. All the members were present except Mr. Valiant.

The minutes of the last regular and adjourned meetings were read and approved.

The clerk's report was as follows:

Borough, balance		$ 4,016.05

E. P. Stevens and other residents of Grandview avenue asked for a crosswalk at the corner of the above street and Watchung avenue. It was referred to the street committee.

H. A. McGee and other residents of Washington Park asked council to lay sidewalks in the vicinity of Rockview Terrace and the Brooks property. This matter was left as unfinished business. On the recommendation of the No. 1 Engine Co., E. J. Smith, of Manning avenue, was confirmed a member of the company.

The usual batch of claims including the salaries of borough officials were presented and ordered paid.

Mr. Peck stated that the contracts for the erection of the fire tower had been been prepared and later offered a resolution that the Mayor and Clerk be authorized to sign such papers with W. T. Kirk, the contractor, forthe erection of the same. It was adopted. He further stated that a little more time was needed in deciding about the bell for the tower. His report was received and filed.

Mr. Smith said that in regard to the council changing the name of Stone street, he had not yet been able to learn whether the street had ever been accepted by the city. The matter was laid over for investigation.

Mr. Howell called up the ordinance changing the name of Emily street to Lincoln place, and on motion it was adopted on third reading. The change will take effect April 1st.

On motion of Mr. Lounsbury, the Council will meet again Monday evening, March 16th.

In conclusion, Mayor Hegeman arose and made a few complimentary remarks in regard to Councilmen Smith and Howell's retiring from the Council. He thought it was the least the Council could do, was to unanimously thank the retiring members. Mr. Smith had only been in the Council one year, but had done efficient work which was heartily appreciated. Mr. Howell, although not having much to do, deserved credit for what he has accomplished. He expressed himself as being regretful that they were about to retire and thanking them for their work, officially bade them good night.

Council then adjourned to meet Monday evening, March 16th.

Why Call Us Windy?

William S. Potter, the Legislative correspondent, has sent us Fitzgerald's Mannual of the New Jersey Legislature, for which we return thanks. It is a most handy and complete volume. By the way, we notice that Plainfield has at last found a place on the State may. We are glad that the "Windy City" has at last been found.—Somerville Democrat.

Come Out Like Men.

There is a prospect of a lively election in the borough on Tuesday next. An element in both parties is popping up that harbors mischief. When an issue is raised, such a one as is being quietly worked among members of secret orders, no good can result therefrom. Gentlemen, come out in the open field and fight your enemy face to face. X.

Failed to File the Registry Lists.

Previous to this year it was the law in the borough that the registry lists should be posted until election day. This year they were not posted and those in charge have failed to file the same with the borough clerk.

OPPORTUNITY TO GET A HOME.

Plainfield Real Estate Company Offers Advantageous and Reasonable Terms.

The Press calls the attention of its readers to the ad of the Plainfield Real Estate Company on another page of this issue. Never before have the people of Plainfield had such an opportunity to buy a home and they should take advantage of this liberal offer. The houses offered for sale are thoroughly well built in every particular by responsible builders in Plainfield and under the supervision of architects who are well-known in this city. The rent asked each month is no more than you pay for the same house and get no credit at the end of each year. It will take four years to pay to the mortgagor and get a deed, when the expenses will be trifling compared to your rent.

In conversation with the officers of the company they say that they are willing to make any reasonable terms possible to afford the community an opportunity to own their own homes. The prices asked are very reasonable, it seems, and you ought to give this your careful attention. It is only five minutes from Grant Avenue station, where you have all the advantages of the express trains to New York. The trolley road bounds the property, affording quick service to the centre of town.

It is only a few minutes from one of the best public schools. The location is one of the healthiest in the city, the soil being dry and porous and protected from the northern winds by the Orange range of mountains.

A SAD CASE.

A Young Girl Becomes Incorrigible and is Sent to Jail.

There was a sad scene in the city court this morning when a young girl, arrested for striking her sister and refusing to obey her parents, appeared before the bar of justice, while her heart-broken father and older sister listened to the trial. The prisoner, herself, did not appear penitent in the least and told her story without the slightest expression of sorrow for the trouble that she had brought on her family.

The young girl's name was Mary Clark and she has been living with her father, stepmother and sister in the flat over Blair's stable on East Second street. She has been employed at the Climax Stopper Works.

The trouble began when she stayed out late at night contrary to the wishes of her father. The crowd that she went with was a reckless one and she continued to go from bad to worse.

Last night her older sister, Julia, met her on West Seventh street in company with another young woman and tried to persuade her to come home. Mary Clark refused and finally Julia took Mary's hat and started home with it.

Mary objected very forcibly and kicked and struck her sister until finally the latter escaped and went home carrying the hat. Mary followed and came as far as the door of her home but refused to come in. Roundsman Frederickson was passing by, and at Julia's request, arrested Mary.

After listening to both sides of the case, Judge DeMeza committed the prisoner to jail for thirty days without fine. Mary Clark is a short, slightly built girl of about sixteen years of age.

TOWNSHIP NOMINATIONS.

Republicans Select Candidates for Next Tuesday's Election.

About forty Republicans of the township met at Demler's Hotel yesterday afternoon, and nominated a ticket for the coming election. Geo. Bullman was selected as chairman and W. H. Morris, secretary. The following nominations were then made:

Township Committeeman, A. P. Voorhees; justice of the peace, Henry A. Spear; constable, George N. Stewart; surveyor of highways, David Lowry; commissioners of appeal, P. H. Acker, Charles Mooney, Amos Vail; poundkeepers, Oscar Lebby, Thomas McGaun; appropriation for repair of roads, $1,000; support of poor, $150; incidental fund, $800.

The salary of the committeemen was fixed at $25 each.

Coulter Gets Off With a Fine.

Sometime ago Thomas Coulter, of this city, attended a party at the residence of William Casey, of Manson place, and while there engaged in a free fight. As a result he stabbed Mr. Casey. He was arrested, committed to jail, and tried for the charge.

W. A. Coddington of the law firm of Reed & Coddington, took his case. After the trial he presented a petition signed by 200 reputable citizens asking that the court be lenient with him. Today the case came up and Coulter was fined $20, after which he was released upon the payment of it.

AN UPROAR AT TRENTON.

Speaker Derousse's Peculiar Decision on a Railroad Bill.

The House of Assembly was thrown into an uproar yesterday morning by a decision of Speaker Derousse, who attempted to decide in the affirmative a motion upon which the House had voted at least four to one in the negative. An appeal was taken, the Speaker's ruling overturned, and in the confusion that resulted the Speaker adjourned the House. The fight was over the bill introduced by Mr. Queen, of Hudson, the Democratic leader, which permits juries in suits for damages to take into consideration in making up their verdict the mental sufferings of the widow, widower, or next of kin, as well as their financial loss.

The bill was championed by Messrs. Queen and Walling, Democrats, and Skinner and Codington, Republicans, and was opposed by representatives who spoke for the railroad and trolley companies. Mr. Skinner referred to the grade-crossing accident at Avondale a few years ago, in which two women and three children were killed. The husband and father was permitted only to show the loss of services of his wife and the estimated loss of services of the children, and the jury returned a verdict of $1,400. After a long discussion, the bill passed by a vote of 36 to 6.

Mr. Robertson, the Republican leader, changed his vote to the affirmative and moved to reconsider, and a motion to table was made and put. The vote was almost unanimously in the negative, but the Speaker declared it carried. A derisive chorus greeted the decision, and an appeal was taken and sustained by a vote of four to one, and the House was adjourned.

During the noon recess the friends of the bill discovered that it removed the limitation which requires all damage suits to be brought within twelve months after the accident, and at the afternoon session they consented to a reconsideration of the vote and the bill was sent back to committee.

The Senate passed Williams' bill making ten hours a legal day's work for bakers. The Deficiency Appropriation bill has been completed. It carries $246,000, of which amount $50,000 is for the new reformatory, $45,000 for the Camden armory, $38,700 for the Morristown asylum extension, $10,000 for the State prison enlargement, and $9,200 for the naval reserves.

WOMEN OF NERVE.

They Went About Town Telling a Plaintive Tale to Get Money.

Among the strangers visiting in this city is William Brace, a cowboy from Buffalo Bill's famous troupe. Last Saturday two women came up to him with a plausible story of how a friend was very ill at New Brooklyn, and they had no money to pay for their stage ride. The kind hearted Westerner gave them the required amount, twenty cents, then he watched them. After a long walk they ended up in a saloon, and Brace returned with his faith in human nature lowered several degrees. He spoke of the incident to Percy C. Ohl.

Later in the day, the two women appeared in the neighborhood of the Babcock building and worked their game on a number of prominent Plainfielders. Mr. Ohl happened to come along and they stopped him with a piteous tale. They wanted Mr. Hubbard, whom one of them claimed to know, and said that he would lend them the money. But, as it was Saturday, Mr. Hubbard was, of course, not visible. They asked Mr. Ohl for the money. In a quiet way he related the experience of his friend, Mr. Brace, but before he could finish it, two women with very frightened expressions on their faces fled in the opposite direction. Nothing more has been heard of them.

Entering His Ninety-First Year.

Dr. H. G. Stephenson, of West Fourth street, who had a serious fall about a month ago, injuring his hip bone, and the sciatic nerve on the left side is still very lame. The doctor will enter the ninety first year of his age on Monday next, and everyone of his many friends extend their hearty congratulations to him in his advanced age.

All last winter Mr. Geo. A. Mills, of Labanon, Conn., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. At times it was so severe that he could not stand up straight, but was drawn over on one side. "I tried different remedies without receiving relief," he says, "until about six months ago I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. After using it for three days my rheumatism was gone and has not returned since. For sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue. T. S Armstrong, Manager.

TO GO BY THEMSELVES.

PLAINFIELD SALVATIONISTS WITHDRAW FROM THE MAIN ARMY.

The Action Taken by the Soldiers Last Night—Treasurer VanNest Give the Reasons for this Radical Movement.

The trouble in the Salvation Army over the recalling of Commander and Mrs. Booth has been becoming more and more general, until last night most of the members of the Plainfield Corps of the Army which has hitherto pursued "the even tenor of its way," declared their independence of the main organization.

At the close of the regular Salvation Army meeting last night twenty five of the members of the corps, all those that were present, gathered together at the call of Sergeant-Major Grant to to talk over the question of secession. Treasurer G. H. VanNest acted as chairman of the meeting. Acting-Lieutenant Banker was present, but the commanding officer, Captain Saunders, was out of town. After a long discussion it was decided that they should declare their independence which it did almost unanimously. They will not follow any special man

A Daily Press reporter made inquiries at the Salvation Army headquarters this morning but found the soldiers there unwilling to talk. He was told, however, that Captain Saunders had been telegraphed for and would probably be present at a meeting that is to be held tonight.

Treasurer Van Ness was willing to talk on the subject and said that the reason for the secession, putting aside all prejudice on account of Commander Booth's recall, was that the International Headquarters wished to bind them to things that they could not do.

Mr. VanNest stated they would not go under the lead of ex-Commander Booth for the present, but it is generally understood that later on they will unite with the American side of the Salvation Army when the plans become more fully known.

To disabuse the minds of those who think that the corps seceded to identify themselves with Commander Booth the following declaration, unanimously adopted last evening, will explain itself:

We, the undersigned, as soldiers of the Plainfield Corps, do hereby withdraw and declare our independence, still holding our vows to God that we will follow where He may lead.

The above is signed by the following: Alex. Grant, sergeant major; G. H. Van Nest, treasurer; W. L. Sharkey, penitent form sergeant; Sister Banker, lieutenant; Sister Grant, junior sergeant; and the following as soldiers: Sisters Sharkey, Van Nest, Van Horn, May Christofferson, Nellie Christofferson, Coriell, Billett, Herlich, Weigman, and Brothers Martin Cronce, J. K. Miles, R. Coriell, Herman, Agene; Sister Myrix, and Brothers Pangborn and Thomas, recruits.

Brigadier-General Evans, who is a prominent Army official in the Eastern States and who resides on East Second street, did not know about the action of the local members this morning.

The independents will meet in Reform hall tomorrow at 2:30 and 8 p. m. Captain Mimms, formerly in command of the Plainfield corps, has been invited and will address the soldiers in the afternoon.

In the Borough Court.

The case of the Borough Board of Health against Mrs. Kate Kennedy for maintaining a nuisance on her property on Grove street, came up before Justice Crosley this morning, and the defendant was fined $10 and costs. The landlord and tenant case of P. Eagany against Godfried Hoenan, was tried and judgment for the plaintiff rendered. Josephine Davis, colored, appeared before Justice Crosley this morning, and made a complaint against Wm. Cox, also colored, charging him with using indecent language, but owing to a lack of evidence the case was dismissed.

Driven to Robbery.

Another of the multitute of trespassers on the railroad property was brought before City Judge DeMeza this morning charged with stealing coal from the cars. He was a colored man and gave his name as Richard Calwell. He admitted his guilt, but said he was driven to it as he could obtain no work, and had no money. His lack of funds led him to take the twenty days in jail that the Judge imposed, instead of paying the $5 fine.

Charged With Libel.

John Max Reiner, editor of the Elizabeth Herald, who has been making such savage attacks on Mayor Rankin in reference to the enforcement of the excise laws in Elizabeth, was this morning arrested on 26 charges of criminal libel preferred by the Mayor. He was held in $500 bail on each charge, and being unable to furnish it was taken to the county jail.

FINELY RENDERED MUSIC.

A Programme in Which Plainfield's Best Talent Participated.

The springlike weather of yesterday tempted many out last night, and the delightful programme that was offered at the musical entertainment, held in the lecture room of the Trinity Reformed church, drew many in that direction.

The entertainment was a complete success in all ways, for the different numbers were excellently rendered and the lecture room was crowded to overflowing with an appreciative audience. The entertainment opened with a well rendered selection by an orchestra composed of Charles Davis and Clarence Mills, first violins; William McKillop and Gilbert Lovell, second violins; Walter Serrell, flute; Walter Raynolds, piano; P. Ludwig Conde, leader. Then followed a pleasing vocal solo, "Adieu, Marie," by Elmer E. Runyon. William N. Runyon was unable to sing on account of a seyere sore throat, but he kindly volunteered to play the piano accompaniments for the singers. Henry M. Western artistically played a piano solo, after which came another vocal solo, by Mrs. H. E. Rider, which called forth loud applause. "The Elopement of 1775" was a recitation given by Miss Mary A. Luckey. The spirit of the selection was admirably portrayed by every word and gesture, and that her listeners were pleased, was plainly shown by the loud and prolonged applause that followed. A violin solo was rendered with all the skill of a master by P. Ludwig Conde, and then J. VanEps showed his mastery of the zither with a solo. Another charming little song was sung by Mrs. Rider, and a zither duett was pleasingly given by J. VanEps and Albert Sampson, and then Miss Mary Luckey recited "How Jimmy Tended the Baby." It abounded with humor, and Miss Luckey kept her audience in roars of laughter about the exploits of poor "Jimmy." H. M. Western next rendered on the piano one of his own compositions, "Plainfield's Two Step." The programme was concluded with another of E. E. Runyon's delightful tenor solos and a pleasing selection by the orchestra.

The object of the entertainment was to raise enough funds to procure Easter music, and the financial result was eminently satisfactory, although the exact amount of the gain can not be given at present. The entertainment was given by the music committee of the church, which consists of Fred S. Cutter, chairman, George L. VanEmburgh and Robert Clark, Jr. The programme was almost entirely arranged by Mr. Cutter, assisted by Harry L. VanEmburgh.

A GREAT CHARACTER.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall's Lecture on General Francis Marion.

The last lecture of the course arranged by Mrs. Florence Howe Hall took place yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. C. Perkins, on Central avenue. About seventy ladies were present, who listened with interest to Mrs. Hall's lecture, which comprised a sketch of the French Huguenots and their early settlements in this country, together with a description of the career of the famous partisan leader of the Revolutionary War, General Francis Marion. This brave and noble-minded descendant of the Huguenots organized a band of devoted followers during the darkest days of the Revolution in South Carolina. They lived in the inaccessible swamps and struck terror to the hearts of the British by their rapid movements and sudden disappearance. His career was full of romantic incidents, while his unvarying clemency was only equalled by his bravery. The war in South Carolina was very bloody, and conducted by the British with great cruelty. Many inhabitants of the State were Tories, thus adding bitterness to the strife. Marion was of a most merciful disposition, full of resource and ingenuity. He armed his men, (who were all mounted,) with saws, which were taken from the saw mills, and made into swords, so great was the scarcity of weapons. Their privations and those of their leader, were extreme; cold sweet potatoes were often their only food, while their garments were worn and tattered from exposure to the elements. The name of General Marion is greatly beloved and revered in the South at the present time. His tomb in South Carolina was lately restored with appropriate ceremonies.

Entertained At Whist.

Miss Daisy Elsberg entertained a number of friends at whist last evening at her home on Prospect place. Miss Ethel Green won first prize, Percy Long secured second, while the consolation prize was taken by John Brower. A very pleasant evening was spent.

...D 2,000 AT BAY

...rado Etlinger Driven Out at Last by Fire.

SHOT HIMSELF TO PREVENT CAPTURE

His Wife and Children Escape Safely from the Burning House—The Former Shot at by Her Husband—End of a Bloody Siege.

Bellefonte, Pa., March 7. — After holding the sheriff of Centre county and 2,000 armed citizens at bay for twenty-four hours, the desperado, Wm. Etlinger, was only driven from his house when the burning embers of the structure were falling about his head, and then, desperate to the last, and preferring death by his own hands to surrender, he blew out his brains upon the threshold of his dwelling. All efforts to dislodge the man had been in vain and as every one who approached the house exposed himself to death from Etlinger's rifle, Sheriff Condo found a man to risk his life in setting fire to the structure. Then it was that Etlinger allowed his two little children to leave the burning building, but his wife only escaped death by breaking away from her husband's grasp, as he had intended to kill her as well as himself. As it was Etlinger fired four shots after the woman as she fled from the building and then stepped outside and killed himself.

Barricaded in His House.

Etlinger lived in the little village of Woodward, in the eastern part of this county. He was about 25 years of age, and among his neighbors had the reputation of being a man whom it was not best to provoke. Several months ago he assaulted his father-in-law, Benjamin Henner, and nearly scalped him with a piece of cord-wood. Etlinger was arrested at the time and brought here. He secured bail, but when the case was called for trial Etlinger failed to appear. A bench warrant was issued for his arrest, but the man had taken refuge in the mountains that surrounded the hamlet in which he lived. He was occasionally seen, but no one was venturesome enough to attempt his arrest. Thursday afternoon Constable Barner heard that Etlinger was at home. There had been a feud between Eiinger and Barner and the constable determined upon the arrest of his enemy. He deputized C. G. Motz and John Hesterman to assist him in arresting Etlinger. The three went to the house of Etlinger and found that the latter, with his wife and three-year-old daughter and two-year-old son, had barricaded himself in the second story of the frame dwelling.

Killed One of the Officers.

The officers entered and Barner kicked in one of the panels of the door on the second floor. Evidently reckoning on no desperate resistance, the constable started to crawl into the room in which Etlinger had taken refuge, through the broken door. As Barner's head and shoulders appeared in the room, Etlinger fired a rifle ball through his head, killing him instantly. Etlinger then fired through the door at the other two men and Motz was struck and badly hurt. The two deputized constables beat a hasty retreat from the house. They aroused the town and men gathered up their firearms and hastened to the Etlinger dwelling.

Two Men Dangerously Wounded.

A shot from the house quickly warned every man that came within range that Etlinger was preparing to do further murder in the defense of his person. Sheriff Condo was telegraphed for here, and with sixteen armed deputies went to Woodward on a special train. During the siege Etlinger sent a shot through the window of a house next door to his and Frank Geyswhite, who was lying ill therein, was hit and dangerously wounded. A little later Etlinger fired into the house of Mrs. Robert Miller and the bullet just missed that lady. John Musser, who was watching Etlinger's house was shot in the neck and severely wounded Upon the arrival of the sheriff on the scene that official took charge of the siege. The two thousand men around the house kept up a fusilade of shots until the ammunition of the little town was exhausted. The only way that seemed possible to dislodge Etlinger without sacrificing the lives of several men was to fire the house, but, on account of the children and Mrs. Etlinger, the sheriff determined not to resort to this except as a last measure.

The Building Fired.

The house was guarded throughout the night and, as the news of the siege had spread, by daylight there were fully 2,000 armed men about the house. In the morning Sheriff Condo determined upon attempting to carry the house by storm. With a number of deputies he made a rush for the building, but the whistle of the bullets from Etlinger's winchester speedily took the courage out of the storming party and drove them back under cover. Then the sheriff decided to fire the building. James Cornelly, a Bellefonte deputy, volunteered to apply the match. Under cover of a fierce fire directed against the house by the crowd, Cornelly made his way to the building, applied the torch and returned in safety. The flames made slow headway and it was fully an hours before the building was fairly ablaze.

Children and Mother Escape.

The heat of the fire drove Etlinger and his family to the cellar. When the building had become too hot for habitation the cellear door was stealthily opened and the two babies pushed through into the street. Closely following the children, Mrs. Etlinger burst through the cellar door and staggered out. The crowd was hot in anger against the woman, as they believed she had assisted her husband in defending the house, and as she made her appearance a cry went up: "Shoot the witch." Cooler heads raised a shout and prevented any firing at the woman. As she fled from the house her husband fired four times after her, but each shot went wide of the mark.

Etlinger Kills Himself.

By this time the building was ablaze from cellar to roof, and, with the choice of death by cremation or at the hands of the mob, Etlinger decided to kill himself. He suddenly stepped from the cellar way with a rifle in one hand a revolver in the other. On a demand to surrender the outlaw threw down his gun and undauntedly facing the mob, cried out: "I don't want to kill any other man but myself, but I'll not be taken alive." With these words he put the revolver to his head and fired two bullets into his brain, falling dead in the street.

The Officer's Body Recovered.

A rush was made for the door and the dead body of Barner was dragged from the burning building just as the roof fell in. The crowd was horrified to find that not only had the entire top of Barner's head been shot away, but that his throat had been cut. When Mrs. Etlinger had somewhat recovered her composure she told them that she was not a willing defender of the house with her husband, but that she had been detained there by him.

PATERSON MURDER MYSTERY.

Police Still Without a Clue as to Miss Sullivan's Murderer.

Paterson, N. J., March 7.—Although the police are looking for the "man in the gray overcoat" there is absolutely no proof against him that he killed Miss Sullivan. Chief of Police Graul was as much at sea this morning in the case as ever. "We have not a clue on which to work," he said. "I have no doubt that the man in the gray overcoat, whom Olaf Peterson passed about a hundred yards from where he found the body, was the man who committed the murder. We have not a sufficient description of the fellow to find him. Peterson paid little attention and did not see his face. I do not believe that the same man attacked Miss Lynch and Mrs. Graves. I believe that the murderer was a tramp. There are scores of tramps coming through the city every day. Then the fact that the girl was killed so near the railroad and with a car coupling pin bears out this conclusion. What mystifies me is, what motive was there for the crime." County Physician Johnson said that the murder seemed to be devoid of any motive, and he was inclined to place the case in the category of the "Jack the Ripper" class. The inquest has been adjourned to give the police an opportunity to work on the case. The funeral of the unfortunate woman took place this morning at 10 o'clock from St. Joseph's church, and was very largely attended.

BRITISH BLUE BOOK

England's Case in the Venezuelan Matter Made Public.

IT IS A VERY LENGTHY DOCUMENT

The History of the Disputed Territory Dealt With from 1520 to the Present Time—Comment of the London Newspapers.

London, March 7.—The expected Venezuelan Blue Book, which is entitled "Documents and Correspondence Relating to the Question of the Boundary of Guiana and Venezuela," has just been issued by the government. The volume consists of 443 folio pages, with a separate book containing nine maps. The book opens with forty pages comprising a preliminary statement dealing with the history of the territories from 1520 until the issuance of her majesty's memorandum to Venezuela in March, 1890. The book is divided into historical periods, from the earliest time to 1648, from 1648 to 1796, and from 1796 to 1840. After that period references are made to various claims and dispatches, and the report closes with a brief summary.

BRITISH PRESS VIEWS.

What the English Newspapers Have To Say About the Blue Book.

London, March 7. — The Daily Graphic, in its comments to-day on the Venezuelan Blue Book, says that the British case is simply overwhelming. Why, with such a case, Great Britain ever allowed the dispute to reach the present pass is a mystery. The Daily News says that the case is impressively if not irrefragably strong, but the stronger it is the less reason Lord Salisbury can urge against unconditional arbitration. The conduct of Venenzuela in 1887 was in every way outrageous and fully justified our subsequent refusal to negotiate with her, but since December, 1895, the question has assumed a totally new aspect. We are no longer dealing with a backward refractor state, unable if not unwilling, to give proper security for its contracts. A great friendly power has interposed in the interests of peace. What will be the next step? We must have either a court acknowledged by both parties or a joint commission. The latter is probably the most hopeful course. The Chronicle says we must confess that we are dissatisfied with the presentation of the case. We are compelled to conclude that in this as in other high concerns that have been committed to Lord Salisbury's care he has shown himself not too skillful, tactful or well-informed defender of the honor and interests of the empire. The Telegraph comes to the conclusion that Great Britain seems to have reached an impasse, from which arbitration is apparently the only practicable issue.

How to be Well and Strong.

Take Dr. Greene's Nervura Blood and Nerve Remedy.

Guaranteed Purely Vegetable and Harmless.

The Best Spring Medicine in the World.

It is the Discovery and Prescription of a Physician.

Read what Mrs. Jordan says:

I was in bad shape when I began to take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I could not sleep nights, many times had to get up and walk the floor; had no appetite and what little I did eat soured in a few moments. I was nervous, weak, and trembling, and got up in the morning more tired than when I went to bed, and felt all down — in fact, could not see anything worth living for. After taking one bottle of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy I could sleep all night and feel rested in the morning, my appetite was better, food did not sour, and I felt better all over. Now I have taken four bottles and I feel like a new being.

MRS. MARTHA JORDAN, New Vineyard, Me.

Now read what Mrs. Bogart says:

Mrs. E. S. Bogart, of the Baptist Home, 68th Street, New York City, says:

"For eight years I have been constantly under the care of doctors, but found no relief, nor, from what the doctors told me, did I expect to get any better. I was convinced that they did not understand my case, so I thought I would try Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and the result has been truly wonderful. I now feel in better health than for the last twenty years.

"During all this time I had been suffering with malaria, heart disease, kidney and liver complaints, nervous prostration and sleeplessness. For the three months before taking this wonderful remedy, I had been confined to my room and most of the time to the bed. I feel with the blessing of God, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy has given me a new lease of life and health, and that I am cured of all my troubles. I have a great desire that others may be benefited as I have been, and take every opportunity to recommend it to the sick."

A Well-Known Business Man's Advice

GEO. W. ATKINS, ESQ.

In the spring many persons have weak nerves, tired feeling, poor blood, indigestion, kidney and liver complaint, headache, and innumerable other troubles. They are not sick with any particular disease, but are out of order, have weak nerves and tired bodies. Geo. W. Atkins, Esq., of Waterbury, Vt., is a leading business man, well known throughout New England. He says:

"I was in a very feeble condition, not being able to attend to my business for some time. I had become all run down and did not know what to do.

"I was nervous and exhausted and worried over my condition. I took many remedies, but did not seem to get any better.

"At last I decided to take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, having always heard it very highly spoken of. I had not taken it but a very short time when I began to notice decided improvement. I continued using it, and the benefit derived was marvellous.

"I was cured by this wonderful medicine and recommend it to everybody. I have no hesitation in saying it is the best medicine I have ever seen."

A Chapter from Life.

How many people there are who grow weak and tired in the spring without knowing why, do not sleep well nights, and get up mornings tired and unrefreshed; their head often aches or feels badly, their stomach, liver, or kidneys are affected, they have constipated bowels, and they feel nervous, depressed in mind and generally run down. Then it is that they realize the value of their lost health.

So it was with Charles H. Stevens, Esq., of South Effingham, N. H., a man well known and highly honored in the Granite State.

"The facts are these," said Mr. Stevens. "I was about prostrated in health, extremely nervous, limbs stiff in the joints, my bowels were bloated badly, and my breathing was terrible. I could not stoop without almost losing my breath.

"In fact I was almost a complete wreck, and could do but little work of any kind.

"I commenced to take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and at the end of one week I had lessened in girth about my bowels two inches and now my girth is five inches less, and I am able to do a full day's labor.

CHARLES H. STEVENS, ESQ.

"I tell you, if it had not been for Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy I should have been dead before this time, and I can therefore give this wonderful remedy the highest praise."

RIOTING IN ITALY

"Long Live Menelik!" "Long Live Anarchy!" Shouted in Rome.

LEAD BY MEMBERS OF THE CHAMBER

Windows Smashed and Police Stoned—Officers Fire on the Disturbers at Pavia and Many Are Wounded—The Disorder Widespread.

Rome, March 7.—There was a renewal last night of the riotous demonstrations here against the government. The mob smashed the windows of several buildings and stoned the police. During the melee revolvers were fired and thirteen soldiers and policemen and two rioters were wounded. At Pavia a mob tore up the railway, preventing the departure of trains. They also cut a number of telegraph wires. The rioters then proceeded to the prefecture of police and smashed all the windows in the building. The police fired into the mob, and it is reported that many were wounded. The greatest excitement prevails everywhere, and reports of disorders come in from all directions. Excited radical, socialist and republican socialist members of the chamber of deputies were seen in Rome last evening amid crowds of people crying "Long live Menelik!" "Long live anarchy!" The socialist deputies have issued a manifesto, urging the people to insist upon the government's recalling the troops from Abyssinia, and granting amnesty to those persons imprisoned for taking part in the recent socialist riots in Sicily.

Crispi Not Assassinated.

Dispatches received here from the United States inquiring as to the truth or falsity of a rumor that had been circulated by certain newspapers to the effect that Prime Minister Crispi had been assissinated, like much of the alleged cable news of certain enterprising concerns, the rumor had no foundation in fact, and could have been disproved had the slightest effort been made to ascertain the fasts. Signor Crispi is enjoying his usual health, but is, of course, greatly harassed by the troubles that have overthrown his cabinet. That he is a much hated man is generally conceded, and this fact is the only thing that adds the slightest air of probability to the sensational and false story furnished to some American newspapers.

Italian Loan Predicted.

London, March 7.—The Pall Mall Gazette says it has the best reason to believe that Italy, in a few days, will raise a loan of many millions of pounds sterling.

OFFICIAL POSTAGE STAMPS.

Why Postal Receipts Do Not Cover Expenses of the Department.

Washington, March 7.—The postoffice department has prepared a statement of the aggregate number of official postage stamps furnished the executive department during the whole period of their issue from May 29, 1873, to June 16, 1884. This statement is interesting as it discloses the fact that the postoffice department cannot make its receipts cover its expenditures for the reason that it carries the expenses of other departments. The denomination of stamps used range from one cent to twenty dollars. With the exception of the postoffice department the treasury department is the most extravagant in its mailing matter, averaging over $1,000,000 in the period mentioned. The war department follows with nearly one million. The department of the interior comes next, with one-half million dollars.

MAJ. MERRITT'S MISSION.

Reported That He Will Go to Cuba To Make an Investigation for the President.

Washington, March 7.—Major-Gen. Wesley Merritt, commanding the military department of Missouri, is in Washington, and his presence here is the basis for gossip that he is to be sent to Cuba to investigate the condition of affairs there with a view to enabling the president to determine whether the insurgents are entitled to recognition as belligerents. Secretary Lamont said that Gen. Merritt was in Washington on department business exclusively, and Gen. Merritt himself says that the report of any Cuban detail was news to him.

To Wind Up Their Business.

New Haven, Conn., March 7.—The stockholders of the Barnhard & Sons' company of Waterbury recently voted to wind up its affairs, and yesterday Judge Shumway of the superior court issued an order to that effect. A hearing will be held Friday next when a receiver will be appointed. The concern manufactured shears and had a capital stock of $30,000.

Receptions at the White House.

Washington, March 7.—After a suspension of such functions for nearly two years, President Cleveland has decided to resume his regular tri-weekly public receptions, beginning on Monday next. The receptions will be held in the east room and will be informally social in character.

To Contest Rathbun's Election.

Hornellsville, N. Y., March 7.—The democrats of Hornellsville, N. Y., are preparing to contest the election of Mayor Rathbun, who was declared elected by thirteen plurality.

Morton Endorsed for President.

Riverhead, L. I., March 7.—At the republican first congressional district convention held here yesterday afternoon, Levi P. Morton was endorsed for the presidency.

St. Louis in Port at New York.

New York, March 7.—The American line steamer St. Louis from Southampton arrived at her dock this morning.

GOV. GREENHALGE'S FUNERAL.

To Take Place Monday with as Simple Ceremonies as Possible.

Boston, March 7.—The arrangements for the funeral of Gov. Greenhalge were completed at the Greenhalge residence in Lowell late last evening. Mayor Courtenay of Lowell, Col. Winslow and Col. Henry A. Thomas were in consultation with F. B. Greenhalge, the deceased governor's son, and Mrs. Geenhalge for some time. It was finally decided that there should be private services at the governor's late residence at 10:30 a. m. on Monday, at which only the members of the family and immediate friends will be present. At 2:30 p. m. the body will be taken to the church where Rev. George W. Batchelder, pastor of the Lowell Unitarian church, will officiate. The pall bearers will be eight sergeants from the Lowell militia companies. It is the expressed wish of the family of the deceased chief magistrate that as few as possible follow the body to the cemetery and none of the visiting delegations from cities outside Lowell will do so.

To Attend Gov. Greenhalge's Funeral.

Washington, March 7.—Senator Lodge and Representatives Knox, Ansley, Barrett and Atwood will leave for Boston this evening to attend the funeral services of the late Gov. Greenhalge. Messrs. Draper, Morse and Hoar are already in Massachusetts and it is believed they will there join their congressional associates.

COLLINS' AWFUL DEED.

Killed His Mother and Himself While Temporarily Insane.

St. Albans, Vt., March 7.—That Chester H. Collins, the Swanton farmer who killed his mother yesterday morning and then cut his own throat, was insane at the time is the belief of all who knew him. A few days ago Collins moved to his father-in-law's farm and rented his own place. He took with him his mother, aged 73, and his son Leon, aged 13, besides a hired man and hired girl, leaving his wife at the old home to care for his 16-year-old daughter, who was ill. He worried considerably about the change. Yesterday he held family prayers and read a portion of the Scriptures. Then he took his mother by the hand and led her into the dining room. He had a hammer in his hand at the time. He sat down on the sofa and his mother sat opposite him on a chair. Then he called to his son to come in and sit down beside him, saying: "You and grandma and I are all going home together this morning." He still held his mother's hand. His actions frightened his son who ran for assistance. When neighbors entered the house they found Collins and his mother lying in a pool of blood on the floor. Both had their throats cut from ear to ear and Mrs. Collins' skull was crushed.

PHILIP J. A. HARPER DEAD.

Senior Member of the Large Publishing House in New York.

Hempstead, L. I., March 7.—Philip J. A. Harper, retired, senior member of the firm of Harper Brothers, New York city, and the most widely known man on Long Island, died at his residence in Hempstead last evening from a complication of heart and kidney troubles. He had been sick for the past two years. At his bedside were his only child, James Harper; a niece, Miss Harper; Mr. Harper's wife and Dr. Lanehart.

CIVIL COURT TRIAL.

El Inglesito Escapes a Hearing Before a Military Tribunal.

Havana, Feb. 28, via Tampa, Fla., March 7.—Madrid cablegrams published here give the decision of the cabinet regarding the rebel chief El Inglesito (the little Englishman). It is to the effect that he cannot be tried by a military tribunal, as when captured he had no arms. The matter has been referred to a civil court. Upon being arrested he claimed American citizenship.

FOR MARCH, APRIL AND MAY!

Paine's Celery Compound the Best Spring Remedy Today in All the World.

It Purifies the Blood as Nothing Else Can Do---It is Food for the Tired Brain---It Makes Strong Nerves!

Publicly Recommended as No Remedy of Any Kind Ever Was Before by Thousands Whom It Has Made Well.

Endorsed and Prescribed by the Ablest Physicians in Every City in America.

Where every other remedy has failed Paine's celery compound has made people well!

It cures disease! It has saved the lives of thousands of sufferers. It has made the weak strong.

Paine's celery compound purifies the blood as nothing else can do; it is nature's brain food; it builds up shattered nerves; it is preeminently the one great health-maker known to medicine.

First discovered after laborious, studious, scientific research by the ablest physician America has produced, Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., of Dartmouth college, it is prescribed and publicly indorsed by the best practitioners in every city of America. It has been so enthusiastically recommended by grateful men and women in every walk of life that it is today in every sense the most popular remedy in the world.

It has proven itself so easily the greatest of all spring medicines, making the weak strong and the infirm well, that in the big cities, New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, St. Louis and the rest, the leading newspapers, making their own canvasses again this year, have found that the demand for Paine's celery compound as far surpasses that of all other remedies as the curative power of this great compound surpasses that of all others together!

Paine's celery compoud, taken during the early spring days, has even more than its usual remarkable efficacy in making people well. It makes short work of all diseases of debility and nervous exhaustion. It rapidly drives out neuralgia, sleeplessness, dyspepsia and rheumatism from the system. It removes that lassitude, or "tired feeling," which betokens weakened nerves and poor blood.

Overworked and tired women are but one class of persons who are in urgent need of this wonderful remedy to make and keep them well. Business men who are not sleeping soundly, shop girls made pale and sickly by long hours of indoor work, and the countless sufferers from dyspepsia, kidney and liver trouble, need the invigorating effect of Paine's celery compound now that spring, with all its dangers, is at hand. Its preeminence as a health-maker comes from its extraordinary powers of supplying appropriate nutriment to the blood, nerves and brain.

Just as the great lawyer studies each one of his cases till he knows it on every side, and in every possible aspect, so Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL., D., of Dartmouth College, the discoverer of Paine's celery compound, had studied the nerves in health and disease, when well nourished and when under-nourished, in men and women and children years before he looked for the remedy. Paine's celery compound was the outcome of his entire professional life. A fitting memorial to a life of hard study and close observation—a remedy that the world could not lose today, at any price!

Take advantage of the remarkable power of this greatest of all remedies for restoring vigor to the blood and strength to the nervous system. In these first days of spring one has every chance for getting well. Don't neglect it.

Paine's celery compound calms and equalizes all the nervous tissues and induces the body to take on solid flesh. It purifies the blood, as is so clearly shown by the rapid clearing of the skin of all evidences of bad humors within. It is an infallible relief for salt rheum, eczema, and all blood diseases.

Physicians recognize Paine's celery compound as the one scientific spring remedy, and it is universally prescribed by them wherever there is great need of a vigorous and prompt restoring of health and strength to the worn-out system.

March 9--Lunch box sociable of Odd Ladies.
March 10—Lecture by Miss Elizabeth Yates, of Maine.

A frigid cyclone one day and a thunder storm the next reminds one to repeat the hackneyed phrase that "Jersey is a great State."

Gov. Griggs has signed the Palisades bill. New York and New Jersey have now acted for the salvation of the grand old rocks. Congress can follow promptly without fear of committing itself to a dangerous policy, says The World.

Freeholder in his column of political gossip in the New York Press this morning says that John Kean was not beaten for the Gubernatorial nomination last fall, but was simply balked, and that he will be a candidate again for the next term.

A Parlor Meeting.

A parlor meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held at the home of Mrs. Truell, 326 Central avenue, next Monday at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, at which time Miss E. U. Yates will deliver an address. The committee in charge is Mrs. M. I. Cooley, Mrs. J. D. McNaughton, Mrs. D. E. Titsworth, Mrs. J. Middledeth and Miss Anna Boice. A silver collection will be taken.

Said He Was Not Fighting.

John Sloan was arrested yesterday for fighting in Sullivan's saloon on West Third street. In the city court this morning Sloan claimed that he was not fighting and, as his complainants did not appear, Judge DeMeza suspended sentence.

No Election Can Be Held at Demler's.

Owing to a new law just passed, which provides that elections shall not be held in a hotel, the place of holding the North Plainfield Township election will be changed from Demler's Hotel to another place which will be announced later.

A Winter Thunder Storm.

Plainfield had another exhibition of thunder in the winter this morning about 8 o'clock, when the thunder rolled with old-time vigor and the lightning flashed quite brightly.

Not to be Trifled With.

(From Cincinnati Gazette.)

Will people ever learn that a "cold" is an accident to be dreaded, and that when it occurs treatment should be promptly applied? There is no knowing where the trouble will end; and while complete recovery is the rule, the exceptions are terribly frequent, and thousands upon thousands of fatal illnesses occur every year ushered in by a little injudicious exposure and seemingly trifling systems. Beyond this, there are today countless invalids who can trace their complaints to "colds," which at the time of occurrence gave no concern, and were therefore neglected. When troubled with a cold use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is prompt and effectual. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue. T. S. Armstrong Manager.

SPORTS

CYCLING COMMENT.

George Taggart has a new '96 Columbia combination tandem.

The Associated Cycling Clubs of New Jersey have been asked to recognize the plan for building a cyle path from Elizabeth to Philadelphia, but will probably decline.

Charles Lister, the popular North avenue cycle dealer, has sold a boy's wheel to Frank Linke, a lady's wheel to Donald McInnes, a Waynewood to Chris Hansen, and an Eagle to Fred Hand.

Among the sales made by the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company during the last two days were a Crescent to Mrs. E. P. Thorn, a Crescent to George S. Teller, a Cleveland to J. E. Dederick, a Crescent to Miss Sorensen, and a Cleveland to John L. Warner, of Roselle.

The suggestion to change the course of the 25-mile Milburn road race from the Irvington-Milburn road to the Hudson County Boulevard is now under consideration by the Race Committee of the Metropolitan Association of Cycling Clubs, and it is likely that a report favoring the change will be submitted to the association.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The I. O. S. bowling team of Westfield, which is composed of the same young men that bowl on the Westfield Y. M. C. A. team, will meet the first team of the Westfield Athletic Club. The young men have secured a big reputation as bowlers after rolling their famous high score, and the victors of the Standard League wish to try their skill.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The New Jersey Whist League will hold its annual convention at Jersey City on Thursday evening, when the State trophy will be played for. The Park Club four will be present.

The New Jersey Athletic Club has offered the use of its grounds to the New Jersey Interscholastic Athletic Association for their field day to be held on the first Saturday in June.

Among those that will put the shot at the Berheley School games at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory, New York, this afternoon, will be Geo. P. Smith, of the Plainfield High School.

Dunellen.

Mrs. Miner, of Newark, is visiting her sister, Mrs. David Runyon, of North avenue.

Mrs. John Marion, of Jersey City, is spending a few days with friends on North avenue.

The Borough Council will meet in Dr. Brakeley's drug store on Tuesday evening, March 17th.

Mrs. VanZandt, of New Rochelle, has returned home from a visit with friends on Dunellen avenue.

Rev. Mr. Chadwick, of Westfield, occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian church Thursday evening.

Mrs. VanMiddlesworth and daughter, Miss Minnie, spent Thursday with Mrs. J. VanMiddlesworth, of Elizabeth.

HER SEVENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY.

Relatives of Mrs. Agnes Pangborn Give Her a Pleasant Surprise.

Mrs. Agnes Pangborn, of 27 Jackson avenue, celebrated the seventy-fifth anniversary of her birthday yesterday, and last evening her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren met at the home of her son-in-law, Fred Slater, and surprised her completely. She had not the slightest intimation of the affair, and when the guests walked in she did not know what to say.

The evening was passed in a very pleasant social manner, during which excellent music was furnished. About 11 o'clock refreshments were served after which the guests left for home.

Mrs. Pangborn received the hearty congratulations of all, as well as many handsome presents.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Morse, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hedden, Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Pangborn, Mrs. Irene MacDonald, of Newark, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Pangborn, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Pangborn, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Demarest, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Demarest, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schutt, of Bayonne, James E. Pangborn, and the Misses Lida Pangborn, Ella Hedden, Agnes Morse and Carrie Pangborn.

THEATRICAL.

Little Katie Rooney heads her own company this season in "The Derby Mascot," one of the big successes of last season. She is under the management of the author, Chas. A. Taylor, who has rewritten the part of Clem Johnson to afford Miss Rooney ample chance to display her versatility. In one of the new scenes, she disguises as a girl, and here little Katie displays the real art of acting, the novelty of the scene is that she plays it as a boy would impersonate a girl—her wardrobe is very striking and caused a sensation in New York at the Casino. She makes a lightning charge in this act which is really wonderful and never fails to bring down the gods of the gallery in tremendous applause. She is supported by an excellent cast, including her sister, Mattie Rooney, little Pansy Willard, Della Clark, Viola Raymore, Fred Summerfield, Robert Bouchier, Fred Milville, Billy Raymore, Edwin Ames and many other old time favorites. The scenery is bright and new. She carries her own trained horses, Jockeys, colored quartette and dancers, and a working force of sixteen adults. Taking it on a whole, "The Derby Mascot" is an up-to-date winner. At Music Hall next Tuesday evening.

Full of Business.

The Young Men's Association of Monroe Avenue chapel held a business meeting last night which was well attended. The entertainment and programme committees reported progress. Walter Douglass, Alfred Harold and Victor Christofferson were elected members. Committees were appointed to decorate the chapel for the concert on March 27th and to purchase printed stationary for the president and secretary. The treasurer reported a good balance in the treasury. The tickets for the concert of the Syracuse University Glee Club were distributed among the members.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. is on every wrapper.

BUSINESS STILL DULL

Situation This Week Not as Satisfactory as Might Be Expected.

SEVERAL BRIGHT SIGNS, HOWEVER

Strength of Securities One of the Encouraging Features—Industrials Weak and Mill Operations Retarded—Few Business Failures.

New York, March 7.—The general trade situation as summarized by Dun in the weekly bulletin issued today is not as encouraging as might be hoped for. The Cuban resolutions and the receivers for the Baltimore & Ohio were events of sufficient importance to affect almost any genuine market, especially for securities. It, therefore, argues either remarkable strength of conditions or an entire want of life and genuineness in the market that the prices of the sixty most active railroad stocks, which averaged $49.74 per share February 1, have never fallen since that date lower than $49.36, nor risen above $50.85 per share. The market is largely under the control of operators who cannot afford to see it decline much, but it is also true that the vote on Cuba and the receivership had both been discounted. While the Baltimore & Ohio and its feeder operated 2,417 miles of railway, had $43,500,000 stock, and about $123,000,000 funded and floating debt, it has not been a strong corporation for a long time, nor so managed as to win confidence. Yet the transaction seems to have caused surprise abroad, and large selling of American stocks by London, the net transactions having been about 20,000 shares. The strength of the market is largely due to more satisfactory reports of railway earnings, which amounted in February on roads within the United States only to $22,822,384, showing a gain of 12.2 per cent. over last year.

Prices of Industrials Still Low.

The industries all report a slightly lower range of prices, except for iron and steel products, and it is noteworthy that while combinations in structural beams and wire and cut nails are advancing prices, the quotation for Bessemer pig has fallen to $12.40 at Pittsburg, and southern No. 2 is offered at $7.75 deliverable at Birmingham, and billets have sold at $17 at Pittsburg. The bar combination which raised prices not long ago finds an increasing part of the business absorbed by outside works. The demand for no class of iron products is at this time brisk, but large structural business is expected in the spring and there is still much hopefulness about railroad orders, as earnings continue to improve.

Cottons and Woolens.

Prices of wool have declined an average of 2.4 per cent. within the month of February, presumably because of the failure of the proposed tariff bill, which included duties on wool. At present the sales are the smallest recorded for years. But domestic holders are still somewhat obstinate, because prices abroad have been raised by the London sales, and it is believed that the stocks of domestic wool held here awaiting transactions are unusually large. There is no improvement whatever in the demand for woolen goods, and a number of establishments have closed, or reduced working force. There is also a retarding effect from the strikes in the clothing trade in several cities. Some further reductions have been made in prices of cotton goods, although it does not appear that the concessions thus far have been successful in calling out new business. Reports are frequent that many of the largest mills are about to stop production for a time, in order to give the market an opportunity to clear itself.

Boot and Shoe Trade Quiet.

The reports of the boot and shoe interest are not on the whole more encouraging this week, shipments from the east being still nearly 20 per cent. less than last year, but there was no further decline in prices. It is felt that the manufacturers cannot afford to reduce figures further, with the present cost of materials, and yet the condition of the trade and the recent considerable reductions, have led jobbers to believe that delay in buying will be to their advantage. No important change appears in the leather market, and hides are somewhat weaker.

Decrease in Business Failures.

The full statement given this week of failures by various branches of business for the months of January and February in 1896, 1895 and 1894, will attract the more attention because it exhibits really remarkable improvement in the month of February in most of the important trades. It is not unusual to find a considerable decrease in the number and magnitude of failures in that month, but this year the decrease is greater than in other years reported. Failures for the week have been 285 in the United States, against 234 last year and 68 in Canada against 58 last year.

Natchaug Silk Company Trouble.

Willimantic, Conn., March 7.—Judge Prentice of the superior court, by agreement of parties, has ordered an extension of the time for presenting claims against the Natchaug Silk company to April 7. The claim of the First National bank, probably amounting to about $300,000, the principal claim against the Natchaug, has not yet been presented.

A County Judge Stricken.

Rochester, N. Y., March 7.—Andrew J. Parish, county judge of Wyoming county, suffered a stroke of paralysis yesterday on a railroad train between Warsaw and Attica. He is in a critical condition at his sisters home in Attica.

MANY THINGS.

We Are Prone to Concentrate on One Idea.

Products of Nature That Are Manifold Blessings to Man.

Whenever you see a glass of bright, clear, sparkling water, you at once think what delightful drinking water that is. You never think of it as being especially useful for boiling potatoes or for bathing the face. You only think of its power to quench the thirst. And yet this is only one of its many desirable properties.

When you see a bright, hot fire in winter, you think at once how easily you could keep warm by remaining near it. The thought does not occur to you that a fire has a hundred other uses.

Whenever cod-liver oil is mentioned, many people think at once of consumption, as if this was the only disease to which this valuable remedy was adapted. Perhaps this is not strange when we consider the fact that cod-liver oil stands out as the most prominent remedy in this terrible affection. In fact, as water quenches the thirst, and as fire gives warmth, so does cod-liver oil bring health and prosperity to those just beginning to fade from serious lung trouble.

Of late years, however, it has been known that consumption is caused by a germ. It is also known that cod-liver oil does not kill this germ. And there is also the fact that this same oil will cure consumption in its early stages. If it does not kill the germ of the disease, how does it affect a cure?

This is easily explained. Cod-liver oil has a wonderful power to build up and invigorate the whole body. When the body is in this prosperous condition, it can take care of the germs of consumption; that is, it destroys the germs, and thus removes the cause of the disease. For this reason cod-liver oil is called a powerful tonic and reconstructive; while it is also known to be a most valuable food.

From this we can see the value of such a remedy in a number of ailments. There are many persons who begin the work of each day in a thoroughly exhausted condition. They have tried quantities of tonics and iron preparations of all kinds, but without relief. There is no appetite; bowels are constipated; circulation is poor; the lips are pale; the ears are colorless; and the whole body is in a debilitated and most uncomfortable state. Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites changes all this. Soon the blood becomes richer; the heart beats stronger; color returns to the face; digestion is improved; and good health is once more at hand.

Scott's Emulsion contains more pure Norwegian Cod-liver Oil than any other emulsion in the world, that will stand the test of time as being a perfect inseparable emulsion. Ask your doctor.

[Copyright, 1895, by J. B. Lippincott Co.]

The sharpest discouragement is sometimes a blessing in disguise. The shock of the fall and the apparent failure of his carefully laid plan seemed to inspire Ringbrand with an energy born of despair. Struggling to his feet, and gathering new courage from the thought that the other end of the rope was still fastened to the remaining round in the upper shadows, he lashed the stick that had fallen to the end to which the pick was attached, and climbed once more to the perch in the twilight under the roof. Fired with an enthusiasm which banished all thought of fatigue, he soon had the swaying log in his grasp again, and after a moment of critical poising the last step was wedged into its place and driven securely home by a few blows with the pick. Without waiting to test its stability, he swung up to the frail staging, drew the pick up after him, and balanced himself for the attack upon the roof. Just at this juncture the thought suddenly came to him that he had built his ladder upon the mere supposition that the roof was assailable, and an awful fear that instead of yielding earth he might encounter a huge bowlder almost unnerved him. There was no time for hesitation, however, and, summoning all his strength, he swung the pick upward, giving a glad cry of relief and a hearty "Thank God!" when the iron tore a great hole through the thin covering, bringing down a shower of earth and pebbles upon him, and letting the blessed light of day into the gloomy shadows of the pit.

A minute later he was standing, begrimed and breathless, but heart whole and thankful, upon the firm turf of the mountain top; and, pausing only long enough to get his bearings, he set off at a quick trot toward Tregarthen, taking a straight course through the forest and keeping the direction by the red glow of the sunset.

XII.

A VALOROUS COWARD.

The leader of the unsuccessful party of searchers was just finishing his supper, in the intervals of which delayed meal he had been giving his wife a detailed narration of the events of the day. "And now I suppose I've got to go and put in the night at the McNabb," he added. "These raids have got to be stopped, if—"

Mrs. Ludlow held up a warning finger. "I thought that was our gate," she said, and presently they both heard the quick nervous tread of some one coming up the graveled walk. Then there was a step on the veranda, and before either of them could rise a grimy apparition appeared at the door of the dining-room. Ludlow sprang to his feet with an exclamation of glad surprise.

"By Jove, old fellow, but you did give me a turn!" he exclaimed, grasping the apparition's hand and wringing it heartily. "I thought it was your ghost—I did, for a fact; and I believe the small madam thinks so yet.—Helen, dear, wake up and allow me to introduce Mr. Ringbrand."

Mrs. Ludlow rose unsteadily and ran up, laughing and crying in the same breath. "You foolish man!" she said, pushing her husband aside impetuously, "can't you see that Hugh's nearly dead?—and you stand there making your miserable jokes! Why don't you run for the doctor, quick?"

In spite of the dreadful secret which was weighing him down like a nightmare, Ringbrand dropped into the nearest chair and laughed till the tears cut little channels through the grime on his cheeks. "You mustn't mind me," he said, as soon as he could speak; "I haven't laughed for three whole days, and it sounds so good and homelike to hear you talk again. I don't want a doctor, Tom,"—Ludlow was edging toward the hatrack—"I need soap and water and something to eat. Mrs. Ludlow, I'm your guest, and I've lost ten consecutive meals. Please have Aunt Mima put the whole ten of them on the table, and I'll devour them when I've washed off a little of this warpaint."

Mrs. Ludlow vanished in the direction of the kitchen, and Ringbrand rose and grasped his friend's arm. "Tom, you come upstairs with me while I clean up a bit, and I'll tell you what I can. There's work cut out for both of us to-night, with not any too much time to spare."

Ludlow followed him upstairs, asking: "Shall I turn on the water in the bathroom for you?"

"No; there isn't time for that; but you may open those valises and get me a whole clean outfit—the black suit with the cutaway will do."

He got out of his soiled clothing hurriedly, throwing the different articles all about the trim room and hastily recounting the story of his capture, imprisonment and escape, and concluded by giving an outline of the plot against the Latimers as set forth in the conversation between the two men in the cave.

"Great heavens! but it's lucky you overheard that talk," ejaculated Ludlow, pausing in his aimless search among the contents of the traveling-bags.

"It's something more than luck, Tom," replied Ringbrand, sluicing his face in the basin; "it's Providence, or else I shouldn't be here to tell about it."

"Have you thought of any plan to checkmate the scoundrels?"

"I have, and it needs your help. As soon as I've had something to eat we'll drive up to 'The Laurels,' and then you can take the first opportunity that offers to get the colonel by himself while you tell him about it. He can tell Henry quietly, and there'll be no need of alarming Miss Hester. After she has gone to bed we'll hold a council of war, put out the lights, and dispose our forces so as to give the Bynums a warm welcome when they come; they'll not make the attempt much before midnight, and we will have plenty of time to get ready for them."

"Hadn't we better take a few of the men with us—the Bynum boys'll fight like devils when they find themselves cornered."

"I think it won't be necessary—can't you find that suit? You see, there'll be four of us, and if you can manage to capture the one who is to hold the horses, I think the colonel and Henry and myself will be good for the other two. I had thought of suggesting something like this: They will leave the horses in the grove at the left of the avenue, and you can post yourself where you can slip up and surprise your man. Then the others will proceed to fire the house—probably at the front, retreating to the cover of the clump of laurels to await developments. For the sake of having a clear case of arson against them, I thought it would be best to wait until they had actually started the fire, and while they are doing this I can get behind the laurels and the colonel and Henry can prepare to cover the men with their rifles as they retreat. At the proper moment I can show myself and demand a surrender, and we'll have them pretty well surrounded."

Ludlow rose from his knees and proceeded to dump the contents of the valises upon the bed, whistling softly to himself as he did so. "The scheme's as clear as diluted daylight, and it's worthy of a graduate of Scotland Yard," he said. "There's only one point that's a little misty; you've given yourself a part that'll ask for a heap of downright cold-blooded nerve, Hugh. What have you done with your respected traditions of inherent cowardice, and the like?"

"Left them in the hole up on the mountain, I hope," replied Ringbrand, struggling into the clothing handed him by Ludlow. "Anyway, that's just what I want to find out. On two occasions within the last three days I have managed to scare up courage enough to stand up to danger like a man, but the conditions were such as would have made a rabbit turn and fight. What I want to know now is if the inspiration were merely an exaggeration of the instinct of self-defense, or if I really did gain a victory."

"Well, you're certainly in a fair way to settle the question if you carry out your programme. Has it occurred to you that your calm demand will probably be answered with a couple of rifle balls?"

"I've thought of that, but I mean to take the chances—if I don't weaken and make a failure of the whole affair."

Ringbrand completed his hasty toilet, and they went down to the dining-room, where Mrs. Ludlow was waiting to serve the returned wanderer. He took his accustomed place and made a ravenous onslaught upon the hastily prepared supper that astonished and gratified the sympathizing hostess. "How dreadfully hungry you were!" she said, calling Aunt Mima to replenish the empty bread-plate. "Haven't you had anything to eat all these days?"

"Not very much. I'll tell you all about it the first chance I get."

"Are you going away to-night?" she asked, when Ludlow went out to hitch up the horse.

"Yes; we are going up to 'The Laurels,' and it may be late before we get back."

"I'm so glad! If you're going there, I'll be good and not ask a single question—until to-morrow."

"Why are you glad?"

"Because Hester is worried, and I want her to know you are alive and well."

They heard Ludlow drive out to the gate, and Ringbrand pushed back his chair. "Have you anything else to tell me?" he asked.

She shook her head with precise energy. "Not a single, solitary word—except that you're to give my love to Hester."

"I'll certainly do that," he promised. "Good night." And he ran down the walk and sprang into the phaeton beside Ludlow, who drove off rapidly up the mountain road.

The colonel and his son were sitting on the veranda when the phaeton turned into the avenue, and Hester, grieving silently in the darkness of her room, heard Ringbrand's voice answering the hearty welcome of her father. She ran to the stairway, stopped a moment to regain her self-control, and then went down to meet him. They had all gone into the parlor, and when she followed them Hester felt for a swift instant that the whole world might read her secret in her face. Ringbrand rose to meet her, and took her extended hand in both of his. "I told you good-by for some purpose after all, didn't I, Miss Hester?" he said, smiling.

"I should think you did," she answered, reproachfully. "Where in the world have you been? And what makes you look so thin and pale?"

GIVEN UP TO DIE.

Had Bright's Disease (Consumption of the Kidneys) for Five Years—Saved by a Neighbor's Timely Advice.

Experience of a Distinguished Physician a Graduate of Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, in 1859, and an ex-President and Present Member of the Delaware State Medical Society.

For a quarter of a century death has claimed amongst its victims many of America's most brilliant public men, together with thousands of private citizens, by reason of that hitherto supposedly incurable malady Bright's Disease.

Dreaded as this insidious disease is, and has been considered, it is a source of great satisfaction to know the claims of Dr. Hobbs, that Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills have the power to cure Bright's Disease, have been so ably substantiated by such competent authority as is shown in the following voluntary testimonial.

Coming, as it does, from the pen of one whose honored career as a reputable and candid physician covers a period of thirty-sixth years, this testimonial is invuleuerable and well worth perusal.

Milford, Del., Jan., 28, 1896.
Hobbs Medicine Co., Chicago:

Gentlemen—I feel that I would not be doing my duty to my fellow men if I should not give my testimony as to the curative qualities of Dr Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills in the following case, as anyone in Milford can testify. No one expected him to live. He was the sickest man I ever saw not to die. After an experience of thirty-six years in the practice of medicine, I can say that his case was most miraculous. You are at liberty to refer to me in regard to this case, and I will gladly answer any question desired.

About a year ago I was called to see J. F. Kimball, who had been troubled with kidney disease for five ycars. Before he came into my hands to be treated, he had been under the care of several physicians. They all pronounced his disease as incurable. On examination I found the following symptoms to be present: Urine high color and scanty. a brick dust deposit on standing. By an anylsis 40 per cent of albumen and full of tube cast showing a destruction of the kidneys going on. Circulation effected, palpitation of the heart, swelling and puffiness under the eyes; also a swelling around the ankles, hands and abdomen. Pain of great severity in the small of the back, cramps in the legs, specks or motes before the eyes, ringing noises in the head, furred tongue, bowels constipated, loss of appetite sick stomach and indigestion. All of the above symptoms showing Bright's Disease in its very worst form. I told him that I considered his case hopeless, and that he was beyond the aid of medicine. His friends and neighbors were daily expecting his death. His life became a burden to him. At this time, a neighbor reading your advertisement of Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills persuaded him to try them. From the use of the first box he began to improve. It would consume the time needlessly to follow the whole course of his convalescence. After using six boxes of Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills, he was entirely cured, and is today a well and sound man, and is able to follow his avocation without any return of his trouble.

I am a regular graduate of thirty-six years' experience in the practice of medicine. This man's cure was little short of a miracle. After demonstrating the curative power of your pills in two cases, I shall prescribe them in all kidney and urinary troubles. I am independent enough to use any remedy that will relieve and benefit my patients. I am willing to acknowledge and commend thus frankly the value of Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.

Robert Frame, M. D.

How timely the advice of Mr. Kimballs neighbor. If you are sick, take heed of your kidneys. Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills will not only cure Bright's Disease, but all kidney troubles, diabetas, pain in the back, sleeplessness, rheumatism, gout, neurrigia, nervousness, etc. They give new energy, new blood, new vigor and health. They have cured thousands. They will cure you. Endorsed by physicians, druggists and patients.

Take a pill. Take the best. Take Hobbs, Dr. Hobb's Little Liver Pills don't gripe. Price 10c.

Sentence Postponed.

The case of the indicted liquor dealers at Elizabeth, were brought up in County Court this morning, and owing to the Heitzel case, on which the others depended, being appealed, sentence was postponed till next December.

Settled Out of Court.

The case of Wm. Bohl against Peter Burnett, in tort, which was to have come before Justice Crosley this morning, was settled out of court. Some time ago the men traded horses. After Bohl had received Burnett's horse he was not satisfied and wanted his own back again. So he sued for damages, returning Burnett's horse. Burnett finally decided that his own horse was the best, and the case was amicably settled.

Death of Mrs. N. W. Conway.

Last evening occurred the death of Margaret A., wife of Nicholas W. Conway, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Tisch, of 10 Monmouth street, Newark. She leaves a husband and two sons to mourn her loss. Her death was the result of a complication of diseases, following an attack of the grip. She and her husband have resided in this city for over twenty-three years.

Two Men Drowned.

Bridgeport, Conn., March 7.—C. B. Smith, aged 35, and Charles W. Renz, aged 25, were drowned by breaking through the ice at Bunnell's pond in North Bridgeport last night. A spaniel dog which accompanied the men was noticed acting peculiarly by Thomas Bradford, an iceman. He went to the place and saw two hats lying on the ice. Later he fished the bodies out. Smith was married and his wife lives in Union City, Conn.

Guns for New Battleships.

Washington, March 7.—The Bethlehem Iron works of Bethlehem, Pa., has contracted with the navy department to supply eight sets of forgings for the 13-inch guns for the new battleships Kentucky and Kearsarge. A contract for supplying the forgings for the 8-inch guns for these vessels will be signed with the Midvale Steel company, another Pennsylvania concern.

The "Scarlet Letter" Well Received.

New York, March 7.—The American Grand Opera, "The Scarlet Letter," by Walter Damrosch, was given for the first time in New York, at the Academy of Music, last night, and was a decided success. Fraulein Gadski was charming as Esther Prymme. Berthald, as Arthur Dimmersdale, shared with her the honors of the evening.

Admiral Walker's Visit To Newport.

Newport, R. I., March 7.—Rear-Admiral John W. Walker, chief of the lighthouse board, arrived here yesterday on the steamer Rogers, and is in consultation with the war college officials. Further than this the nature of his visit has not been announced.

LOYAL TO THE ARMY.

A LARGE CROWD ATTEND THE SERVICES OF THE SALVATIONISTS.

Adjutant Damon Gives His Version of the Trouble and Says That Commander Booth is Not in the Right.

Yesterday will be known in Salvation Army circles in this city as a memorable one. The announcement made Saturday that a large number had seceded from the regulars caused a good deal of talk among all classes, who at once became interested in the movement of the two local armies.

The seceders met yesterday afternoon at 2:30 at Reform Hall, as announced, and when the meeting was called by Capt. Mimms there was a large audience present. Nearly all of those whose names appeared in Saturday's Press were there and there was an expression of jubiliancy on their faces. The meeting was led by Capt. Mimms in the usual way and no one present alluded in any way to the division of the army. A spirit of love was manifested and pervaded at the meeting. Afterward several were heard to remark that they were now working under the American flag and would not be dictated to by the English. The meeting throughout was successful.

A Daily Press representative called at Salvation Army hall later, and found an equally large crowd there and Adjutant Damon, of New York, in charge. There was fully as much interest as at the other meeting, and a large number of the old stand-bys were present. At the close of the meeting the reporter had an interview with Adjutant Damon, and found that he was perfectly willing to talk. In part he said:

"When the people and press of this country become acquainted with the facts in this recent unpleasentness they will not be quite so ready to side with Commander Booth. The trouble is that those who have seceded have not been willing to hear both sides of the story. On the 31st of January, Commander Booth wrote a letter to his father stating that he could not see his way clear to take another command.

"This was virtually a resignation His father then sent Miss Eva Booth here to try if possible to persuade her brother to reconsider his words. His brother, Bramwell Booth, also pleaded with him, but to no avail. He did not even answer his brother's letter. Then it was that Gen. Booth sent for him to come home, and placed Miss Booth in command of the American army. This action displeased her brother and he refused to return home."

"Why did Commander Booth refuse to obey?" was asked of him.

"That is something of which we have no knowledge, and the Commander will never tell," was the reply.

"Those who have seceded have not fulfilled their promise, when they took the oath of a soldier, but I believe that the army will be stronger than ever, and if there are ten corps that follow Commander Booth, the number will exceed my expectations. From all over the United States letters and telegrams are coming in at headquarters from the various corps, stating that they will be true to the army. If Gen. Booth's counsel and guidance has been wise since the formation of army, why not trust him at this time and believe that he is right? I was a supporter of Commander Booth until I heard the true facts of the case on both sides, and now I am thoroughly convinced that he is in the wrong. It is exceedingly unfortunate that such a thing should happen, but I believe that we will be doubly strong from this time forth.

"I don't think the Plainfield Corps did right in holding a meeeting while Capt. Saunders away. Previous to her departure for New York Thursday night a meeting was held in which they declared their allegiance to the Army, and after she left they held a secret session and decided to secede. Captain Saunders was in New York getting the true facts to present to the Plainfield Corps and she knew nothing of their action until she read it in a Newark paper while on her way to Plainfield. Of course, she was helpless and could do nothing. It hardly seems right that they should take advantage of her absence to transact such business."

Capt. Damon led the meeting at Salvation Army Hall last evening and gave a talk on the matter, out of which the above is an abstract.

The seceders have laid aside their red garments and now wear dark uniforms.

The meeting at Reform Hall last evening was largely attended as was also the one in the Salvation Army Hall. At the former the local soldiers were in charge.

Capt. Saunders will remain at the latter place till Wednesday night when Capt. Mabel Wilson, of London, will take her place.

Adjutant Damon and wife will take charge of Corps No. 1 at Newark.

The meeting at Reform Hall was conducted last evening by Seely Edsall, who entered heartily into the spirit of the Salvationists.

FORMER PLAINFIELDER DEAD.

Randolph Waldron Succumbs to a Week's Illness in Brooklyn.

Randolph Waldron, formerly of this city, but late of Brooklyn, died at the latter place Saturday night, after an illness of one week with pneumonia. He is a brother of Craig Waldron, of this city.

Several years ago he was employed by Mr. Swain in the picture frame business, and later started in for himself. About nine years ago he removed to Brooklyn where he continued the same business.

A week ago he was taken with a severe chill, and at once went to bed for treatment, and did not get up again.

He was well known in this city. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 from the home of his sister on West Fourth street. The Royal Arcanum, of which he was a member, will hold a service this evening in Brooklyn and tomorrow morning the body will be brought to Plainfield. A wife and three children survive him.

A Chance to Bid for Cake.

Mizpah Lodge No1, U. O. of I. O. L., will hold a regular meeting tonight in Red Men's Hall, West Front street, and after the meeting a lunch box sociable will be held. Each lady who attends will take a box of lunch along inside of which will be placed a slip of paper bearing the owner's name. These boxes of lunch will be auctioned off to the gentlemen, and if enough money is obtained from this sale to clear expenses, the gentlemen will not be assessed. The admission will be free. As soon as the sale of lunch boxes has concluded, dancing will begin and continue until three o'clock. Naylor will furnish the music. The committee in charge consists of Mrs. Cox, chairman; Mrs. H. W. Angleman, Mrs. Page, Mrs. Perry and Mrs. Randolph.

Fanwood Republicans Nominate.

The Republicans of Fanwood township made the following nominations last Saturday: For Chosen Freeholder, John Robison; for Township Committeeman, Charles N. Flanders, three years; for Township Clerk, Edward L. Hand; for Collector, (unexpired term), Norman Dunn, one year; for Overseer of the Poor, Wm. Van Valkenburg; for Constable, August Klemser, two years; for Commissioners of Appeal, Wm. H. Lake, three years, Henry Cook, two years; Alfred D. Beeken, one year; for Surveyors of Highways, Edward M. Johnston, James E. Goodman; for Pound Keepers, Edward Terry, John G. Cook, Louis Morel, Joseph Thys; appropriations—for repair of roads, $1,250; for repair of sidewalks, $250; for support of poor, $150. The election will be held at Excelsior Hall.

Property Transfers.

The following transfers of property have been recorded in the Union County Clerk's office from February 27th to March 4th, inclusive:

Guttridge, lot, Leland and South avenues, Plainfield, $4,500

A Returned Missionary to Speak.

Rev. Mr. Van Dyke, a returned missionary from China, will speak at the meeting of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor in the Trinity Reformed church tonight and the male quartette, who pleased all with their singing at a recent meeting of the society, will again be present and sing. Everybody will be welcome.

—The will of the late Joel Coddington has been settled. The executors were Hon. W. R. Codington and Israel J. Coon.

Simon S. Hartman, of Tunnelton, West Va., has been subject to attacks of colic about once a year, and would have to call a doctor and then suffer for about twelve hours as much as some do when they die. He was taken recently just the same as at other times, and concluded to try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He says: "I took one dose of it and it gave me relief in five minutes. That is more than anything else has ever done for me. For sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

SMOTHERED TO DEATH.

THREE-MONTHS-OLD BABY SUFFOCATED THIS MORNING.

The Dead Child Was Found by its Horrified Mother at 7:30 This Morning—Was Alive Four Hours Before This.

The little three-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Hall, of 13 Steiger's alley, was found dead in bed this morning at about 7:30 o'clock by her mother. The baby, whose name was Ethel K. Hall, was found apparently peacefully sleeping and the only reason for the death seems to be that the child was accidentally smothered or strangled in bed.

Mrs. Hall nursed her baby at about 3 o'clock and then fell asleep. When found the baby's body was cold and its lips were blue. Mrs. Hall called her father-in-law, H. E. Forester, who lives near-by, at once.

Mr. Hall is employed by George O. Stevens as driver and coal-heaver. Mr. and Mrs. Hall have lived in their present home since September. The baby was born there and has always been in good health. They have another child, Roy, who is three years of age.

Dr. Simpson, city physician, was sent for, and will examine the child this afternoon to ascertain the cause of the death.

The parents are greatly shocked over the death and the manner in which it occurred.

The funeral be held on Wednesday.

A High-Handed Action.

The most high-handed and outrageous pervertion of trust and confidence was displayed in the decision of Speaker Derousse of the New Jersey Assembly on Friday last when he presumed to set aside by his flat a vote largely in majority to the contrary. The bill under consideration would affect the railroad and trolley companies, and it was to their advantage to defeat the measure. Truly the organization of the present Republican Legislature is in the interest of the corporations of this State, Statistics of the Red Men.

At the Council fire of Miantonomoh Tribe, No 118, I. O. R. M., held Friday evening, Representative D. C. Allen made a report of the proceedings of the Great Council of New Jersey. Several pertinent facts of interest to Red Men were given as follows: Total membership in New Jersey, 18,000; amount disbursed for relief during the year, $100,000; amount of receipts, $175,000; total wealth, $279,000. During the year six tribes were instituted, and all the tribes are in a healthy flourishing condition.

Finest in the World.

Three prominent Newark men, City Councilor Chandler W. Riker, Uzal McCarter and Mr. Tailor, visited the site of French & Vail's new hotel on the mountain Friday and all expressed themselves as delighted with the situation. Mr. McCarter even went so far as to call Johnston's Drive "the finest drive in the world." The three visitors will each take one of the six cottages which Messrs. French & Vail will erect on the drive.

Want to Secure Equipments.

The Boys' Brigade of the First Baptist church is growing and the members are becoming proficient in their drills which are held every Saturday evening Last Saturday night there were twenty five boys present, and their work was highly satisfactory. They are now arranging to give an entertainment March 24th, for the purpose of raising money to secure equipments.

In City Court.

Two offenders, both charged with being drunk, were arraigned before City Judge DeMeza this morning, Harry Moncton was given his choice between a fine of $3 or ten days in jail, and Wm. Roantree was requested to contribute $5 to the city or visit the jail for twenty days.

Death of Mrs. Agans.

Mrs. Mary Agans died at the home of her son-in-law, John Wyman, 309 West Seventh street, Saturday. There will be a short funeral service at Mr. Wyman's residence tomorrow morning at 11:45 o'clock and at the North Branch church at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Another Freight House Talked Of.

The Central Railroad Company have under consideration many important changes which they intend making at the Grant Avenue station, among which is the erection of a freight house. This is done with the idea of having one at each end of the town, easy of access to all.

A Cottage for Chauncy Depew.

It is reported on good authority that a very handsome cottage is to be erected on Johnston's drive, which will be occupied by Chauncy M. Depew, of New York.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

ACTING UPON THE AMENDMENT CREATING A COURT OF APPEALS.

Adjournment Will Probably Take Place Next Week, Friday—The License Question to be Left Well Enough Alone.

This evening the committee of nine lawyers will report the Judiciary and Assembly district amendments to the Senate. The lawyers have been unable to agree on some points, and there will probably be two reports. There is an agreement on the point of creating a Court of Appeal, the members of which will not sit in any other court, but differences exist as to the means of getting it. There will be an amendment providing for Assembly districts in the counties having more than one Assemblyman, and the Court of Appeals will be authorized to intervene and review the apportionment law in order to prevent gerrymanders.

The anxiety of the lawyer Senators to agree on these amendments is all that has been keeping the Legislature together so long. It is practically agreed that final adjournment will take place a week from next Friday. Tomorrow the House will take a holiday because of the township elections, but will hold night sessions later in the week if necessary to hurry along the work.

To-day the Joint Committee to revise the borough laws is in session to consider the work done by the sub committee. Recent decisions by the Court of Errors and Appeals have upset the governments of nearly all the boroughs in the State, particularly of those organized during the past ten years. Senator Voorhees says many of them were organized only to permit the issue of bonds for local improvements. Legislation for the relief of these is imperative, and will be in the form of a general law dividing the boroughs into classes based on population. Those having a voting population of not over fifty, will be wiped out, and provision will be made for taking care of their obligations.

The Republican Senate caucus decided that it was dangerous to fool with the license question this year, and Senator Roger's bill compelling applicants for licenses to secure the endorsement of twelve property owners is to be held up in committee. An attempt was made to compromise on six endorsers instead of twelve, but the saloon keepers would make no concession. They were reinforced by the Republican Assemblymen, who were afraid to go on record.

Gov. Griggs is expected to send in another batch of nominations tonight. He has seventeen appointments yet to make, including a clerk in chancery, keeper of the State prison, chief inspector of factories and workshops, a superintendent of public itstruction and a Judge of the Court of Errors and Appeals.

POLICE DETAIL.

The Officers Will Alternate at Doing Night and Day Duty.

Chairman Barrows, of the City Police Board, has permanently settled upon the detail of the police force for day and night duty, and the plan will go into effect immediately. Captain Grant, of course will be on duty at day time, and Sergeant Kiely will have charge of the men at night. The day men will be Roundsman Fredrickson and Officers Saunders and Van derweg. The night men will be, in addition to Sergeant Kiely, Officers McCue, Flannigan, Cooney, Post, Lunger, Myers, Hartpence, Flynn, Totten and the new man to be appointed. Roundsmen Fredrickson and Mattox will do duty on bicycles a part of the time. Both the roundsmen and patrolmen will take turns at doing day duty.

Was Too Active.

While practicing basket ball at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Saturday evening, C. W. Nichols, acting physical director, fell against one of the iron radirtors, cutting a severe gash in the top of his head. It was necessary to take two stitches in it.

A Change in the Choir.

Owing to the scarcity of boys that sing soprano and alto, a change will be made in the Grace P. E. church choir next Sunday. A number of the girls and young women of the church will hereafter wear the surplice and sing in the choir.

All last winter Mr. Geo. A. Mills, of Labanon, Conn., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. At times it was so severe that he could not stand up straight, but was drawn over on one side. "I tried different remedies without receiving relief," he says, "until about six months ago I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. After using it for three days my rheumatism was gone and has not returned since. For sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue. T. S Armstrong, Manager.

AN INDOOR FIRE.

The Chemical Engine Again Demonstrates Its Efficiency for Quick Work.

Another indoor fire this morning gave the chemical engine a chance to show its efficiency and those who before had doubted its usefullness, were speedily convinced that it is a good thing.

The fire occurred in the house occupied by James Martin, colored, on West Second street, a few minutes before eight o'clock this morning. It was caused by hot ashes in a wooden pail. The pail was set against the side of the house, which is a frame one. A hole was burned through the pail and then through the clapboarding. The air spaces in the wall acted as flues and the interior framework was ignited along the first and second stories up to the small attic.

The stream from the chemical engine was turned into the burning space and the flames were soon extinguished, by the combined efforts of water and carbonic acid gas. The fire in the attic was entirely put out by the gas. The fire was a hard one to get at as it was in the wall There was scarcely any water in the house.

The house was a frame two story one, owned by John French. The damage is estimated at about $100. There was no insurance.

The alarm was sent in from box 45 with the Potter Press works key.

A Salamagundi Party.

Miss Edith Pruden entertained a few friends at her home on East Second street Friday evening. The first part of the evening was spent in unraveling the mysteries of a giant cobweb and then a salamagundi party occupied the attention of the guests. In the latter, Miss Alice Jenkins won first prize while Miss Eva Jenkins secured the booby prize. Refreshments and conversation concluded the evening's pleasure.

Sir Knights to Visit Metuchen.

The Sir Knights of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, Knights Templar, have been invited to visit Temple Commandery at Metuchen on Wednesday evening and witness the exemplification of work in the presence of the officers of the Grand Commandery. The invitation has been accepted and the Plainfield Sir Knights will leave here at 6:30 o'clock that evening.

Enlarging the Bridge.

The bridge on the P. & R. railroad over the Raritan River, just west of Bound Brook, which was partially wrecked by the recent floods at that place, is being rebuilt. The river span is being lengthened by fifteen feet and is now 75 feet long. Work is being continued night and day and an electric plant, rigged up in a freight car, furnishes current for electric lights that make the place light as day.

A Plucky Woman.

There came very near being a runaway at the corner of Somerset and Front streets Saturday afternoon. A horse attached to a farm wagon became frightened at a trolley car and started to run. There was a woman in the wagon and she jumped out and tried to stop the horse. The lost her footing but pluckily clung to the reins until the driver appeared on the scene and quieted the horse.

An Assemblyman In Danger.

While on Somerset street yesterday afternoon a horse attached to a hack driven by John E. Goodwin became frightened at a trolley car and ran into one of the trolley posts, throwing the driver over the dashboard and breaking one of the shafts. Assemblyman and Mrs. W. R. Codington were in the hack at the time.

Settling a Church Insurance.

The Presbyterian church at Bound Brook, which was burned in the large fire last month, is to be rebuilt at once. The insurance companies offered to settle for $8,000, but the trustees were not suited and turned the matter over to the appraisers who settled the amount of insurance at $4,750.

Not to be Trifled With.

(From Cincinnati Gazette.)

Will people ever learn that a "cold" is an accident to be dreaded, and that when it occurs treatment should be promptly applied? There is no knowing where the trouble will end; and while complete recovery is the rule, the exceptions are terribly frequent, and thousands upon thousands of fatal illnesses occur every year ushered in by a little injudicious exposure and seemingly trifling systems. Beyond this, there are today countless invalids who can trace their complaints to "colds," which at the time of occurrence gave no concern, and were therefore neglected.—When troubled with a cold use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is prompt and effectual. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue, T. S. Armstrong Manager.

BATTLE OF THE BALLOTS.

ELECTION WILL BE HELD IN BOROUGH AND TOWNSHIP TOMORROW.

In the Township the Contest is Between the Greenbrookers and the Mountaineers—Candidates of the Parties.

The borough and township election takes place tomorrow. The polls will open at 6 a. m. and close at 7 p. m. There is no struggle perceptible and the election will undoubtedly be a very quiet one. There are over 1,000 voters in the borough, and it is almost safe to say that one-half will refrain from voting. The following are the nominees of both parties in the borough:

Republican ticket—For Councilmen, John G. McLaughlin, Lemuel B. Woolston; for Justices of the Peace, H. S. Thomas, J. A. Karet; for Constable, Peter Hansen; for Surveyors of Highways, John H. Worth, J. S. Lunger; for Commissioners of Appeal, Robert Carson 3 years John P. Emmons, 2 years, Isaiah Coriell, 1 year; for borough purposes, $3,000; for roads, $3 000; for support of poor, $1,500; for Board of Health, $500

The Democratic ticket has no nominees for Surveyors of Highways nor for Pound Keepers, and only one for Commissioner of Appeals. The appropriations are the same as on the Republican ticket.

Democratic ticket—For Councilmen, George Kirch, Joseph A. Blatz; for Justice of the Peace, D. D. Smalley; for Constable, Thomas Melcher; for Commissioners of Appeal, A. F. Marsh, 1 year.

In the First district of the borough the Board of Registry will meet in Powlison's store, 85 Somerset street, and the Second in the Council Chamber over Spencer's store.

The polls in North Plainfield township for tomorrow's election will be located at Wm. Demler's grocery store, Washingtonville.

The Democratic voters of North Plainfield township met in Demler's hotel on Saturday evening and organized by electing Thomas House Taylor, chairman, and George Mobus, secretary Mr. Taylor thanked those present in a few words for selecting him to preside, and the following gentlemen were named as candidates to be voted for tomorrow: For Town Clerk, three years, William N. Demler; for Town Committee, three years, William H Smith; for Justice of the Peace, five years, Henry A. Speer; for Constable, three years, George N. Stewart; for Commisioners of Appeal, one year, George Demler, Jr.; two years, Thomas H. Taylor; three years, Thomas McGann; Surveyors of Highways, Theodore Leurssen, George Mobus, one year each; Pound Keepers, Thomas McGann and Oscar Libby, one year each. For Repairs on Roads, $1,000; Poor Fund, $150; Incidental Expenses, $300. No amount was voted as salary for town committeemen, as it was overlooked by the meeting, but it is thought the committee on tickets will put the same amount as is placed on the Republican ticket, namely, $25. The meeting was well attended and the ticket named is considered a good one.

The election in the township is a pitched battle between the Greenbrookers and the Mountaineers. The former gobbled all the offices in the Republican caucus on Friday last, and the caucus of the Democrats on Saturday was made up exclusively of the residents of Washington Valley, who in turn nominated their neighbors for all the offices. It is expected that every old farm and bolster wagon from Seeley's paper mill up in the mountains near Feltville, back of Scotch Plains, to Sebring's mills, just back of Bound Brook, will move from sunrise to sunset in the interests of their favorites. It will be a battle for supremacy, and the chances are about even. Watch old Greenbrook in the round-up! Look out for the mountaineers! They're all hustlers from wayback when voters are wanted. Pick your winners.

A MORNING RUNAWAY.

A Horse Creates Excitement After Being Frightened at a Trolley Car.

A trolley car frightened a horse on Somerset street this morning and the animal finally ran away, breaking one of the shafts and cutting himself. Peter C. Johnson, who lives on Plainfield avenue, near New Brooklyn, drove to town this morning and after stopping at several places pulled up in front of Homan's carriage repository on Somerset street to allow a trolley car to pass. The horse became frightened and tried to jump over the shafts, Mr. Johnson held on to the reins until the horse became too free with his wheels and then let go. The equine ran as far as Front street and then stopped. During the excitement a shaft had been broken and the rough end had cut a gash on the hindquarters of the horse.

BOOTH'S NEW SOCIETY

Inaugurated at a Monster Mass Meeting in New York.

COOPER UNION HALL OVERCROWDED

Name of the New Movement Not Chosen. Eva Booth Speaks Tenderly of Her Brother at Buffalo, But Counsels Obedience.

New York, March 9.—Mr. and Mrs. Ballington Booth addressed an immense audience at Cooper Union last night. It was one of the largest gatherings ever held in the historic building. A few minutes after the doors were opened there was not an unoccupied seat in the hall, and it was estimated that 5,000 men, women and children were turned away. The stage was decorated with the national flags, many of them having pictures of Washington on them. A large crayon portrait of Washington occupied the center of the stage. At precisely 8 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Booth appeared on the stage and the immense audience fairly went wild with enthusiasm. Hats, handkerchiefs, flags, canes and bonnets were waved and those present cheered and shouted for fully fifteen minutes without ceasing. During this time Mr. Booth stood with bowed head, while Mrs. Booth knelt in prayer. Someone shouted "Three cheers for our American commander." The cheers were given for another interval of ten minutes and the crowd went fairly wild with entnusiasm. Cheer after cheer was given for Mr. and Mrs. Booth. Major Peter Glen then addressed the audience as follows: "This is not a meeting where we have come together to talk about that which seems uppermost in everyone's mind. We are here to have a purely spiritual meeting."

Ballington Booth's Address.

Mr. Booth then led in prayer, and at its conclusion spoke as follows: "Mrs. Booth and myself have not come to this gathering for the purpose of alluding to the recent sad events in our experience. It is true that after deliberate thought we have decided to inaugurate a new movement. (Cheers.)

To Convert the Middle Classes.

"Could it have been avoided, it would not have been thought of. Mrs. Booth and I received assurances from the people of the United States, fighting on behalf of Jesus Christ, that we had done a work for which they were grateful and would not quietly submit that we should retire to private life and relinquish a field which is the largest of any on the globe; where there is not only work for one Salvation Army, but for a hundred. We have resolved to the best of our ability to do something to bring over the middle or artisan classes to God. We do not intend to enter into any battle or strife with the Salvation Army. We want no fight, neither ritual or verbal. We want to have a mission to reach the masses. We have resolved that the consecration we shall make shall be lasting."

New Movement's Name Not Chosen.

Mr. Booth then spoke of the heart and mind in religion, and closed by saying: "I want to assure Mrs. Booth and those officers who have taken a stand by me that by faith I see in the distant future a movement that we will not regret having linked our names with." Mrs. Booth spoke briefly and was cheered enthusiastically. She made no reference to the troubles in the ranks of the army. Mr. Booth said in an interview that the name of the new movement had not been chosen, and that the name of the auxiliary league would be "The Defenders' League." A monster mass meeting will be held, he said, at Carnegie hall at some near date.

EVA BOOTH IN BUFFALO.

She Speaks Tenderly of Her Brother, But Counsels Obedience to the Army.

Buffalo, March 9.—Commissioner Eva Booth addressed crowded audiences in Music hall yesterday afternoon and last evening in which she spoke tenderly of her brother, Ballington Booth, while making an impassioned plea for the principles on which the Salvation Army is founded. "My position as your leader," she said, "my position as a sister of your late commander, with the strong love of sisterhood still burning in my bosom, may fain cause me to refrain from speaking one word on the painful subject except those I could breathe in the breath of prayer when I kneel down at my Master's feet." She then went on to refer to similar crises through which the army movement had safely passed and contended that the principles of the army were dearer to them all than the dearest of human ties, even the ties of flesh and blood. Commissioner John A. Carleton also spoke, upholding obedience to army rules and regulations. Eva Booth will address another meeting this evening in Asbury M. E. church.

Both Legs Cut Off.

Springfield, Mass., March 9.—Charles Deslourey, a brakesman on the Boston & Albany road, was probably fatally injured yesterday afternoon by falling under the wheels of a freight train. Both legs were cut off, one at the ankle and the other at the knee, and his head was severely cut.

Ministerial Call Accepted.

New Haven, Conn., March 9.—The Rev. William F. Dickerson resigned the pastorate of the First Universalist church last night to accept a call to Long Ridge, Conn.

Raines Bill Denounced.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 9.—The United Trade and Labor council yesterday afternoon adopted resolutions submitted by the Brewers' union condemning the Raines liquor tax bill.

WHITE MEN TO BLAME.

The Taunting of a Negro Caused Philadelphia's Fearful Tragedy.

Philadelphia, March 9.—From all that can be learned, the fight here Saturday night between George Queen, colored, and a number of white men, during which Queen stabbed and killed John O'Brien, fatally cut Joseph Sweeney and quite seriously wounded Thomas Reaney and Charles Fisher, all white, it would seem that the white men were largely to blame. Earlier in the evening they had taunted Queen as he passed them on the street and a little later they became involved in a quarrel with another colored man and chased him for some distance to beat him. After his first encounter with the whites Queen returned home and armed himself with a large butcher knife and returned to the street. An eyewitness says that the white men assaulted Queen and that he used the knife against a crowd of six assailants. Whether Queen was assaulted or whether he made the attack with the knife will probably not develop until the coroner's inquest. Queen made no attempt to escape after the fight, and was arrested and locked up. He was committed to jail without bail to await the action of the coroner. In his antemortem statement taken at the hospital Sweeney says that he had nothing to do with the fight and was attracted to the scene by the struggling men in the street and that the assault upon him was entirely unprovoked. Fisher made a similar statement.

BRUTALLY ASSAULTED A GIRL.

Nicholas Cole, Arrested in Paterson, May Be Mary Sullivan's Murderer.

Paterson, N. J., March 9.—Nicholas Cole, 40 years old, of the silk throwing firm of Nightingale & Cole, was arrested last night charged with having committed a brutal assault on Miss Lizzie Van Riper, aged 18 years, near the corner of East Eighteenth and Ellison streets, which is two blocks from the place where Mary E. Sullivan was murdered on Wednesday evening. It is alleged that he followed the girl for about one hundred yards, and when at a lonesome spot, caught her by the neck. She cried for help, but had scarcely screamed when he seized her by the throat and struck her twice in the mouth with his fist, causing blood to flow. Cole, seeing someone approaching, ran away, but was soon overtaken by a policeman. A crowd of nearly one thousand persons surrounded the prisoner and followed him to the station and threats to lynch him were heard on every side. The police to-day think that Cole possibly is connected with the Sullivan murder and have begun an investigation on that line.

SCALDED BY BOILING TAR.

Five Workmen Injured at the Standard Oil Works, Bayonne, N. J.

New York, March 9.—Boiling hot crude tar overflowed one of the Standard Oil company's big tanks soon after midnight in the company's yard at Bayonne, N. J. A gang of men at work about the tank ran for their lives, but five of them were overtaken and severely scalded. No one was fatally injured. The men were at work at stills from which the tar oil was being pumped into the tank. The tar boiled over the side of the tank in a torrent. It covered the pipes so that the men who tried to close them were burned on their hands. It flooded about their feet and burned through their heavy shoes. They ran, uttering shouts of pain and alarm. In a minute the neighborhood of the tank was deserted. The engine was stopped and the pumps ceased working. The frozen ground cooled the tar, but its progress did not stop until an acre had been covered.

WORK OF THE RED CROSS.

Relief Supplies and Money Sent to the Interior of Armenia.

Westerly, R. I., March 9.—Stephen E. Barton of this city has received a cable dispatch from Miss Clara Barton, dated at Constantinople, stating that the Red Cross has shipped large quantities of relief supplies to the interior of Armenia, to go by caravan via Alexandretta, on the Mediterranean. The dispatch also stated that Miss Barton has forwarded funds to Harpoot, Sevas and Marash, and that reports from the interior indicate that the needs of the suffering Armenians are increasing.

RECEIVERS APPOINTED.

Pittsburg & Belle Vernon Coal Company In Financial Difficulty.

Pittsburg, March 9.—On petition of the National bank of Western Pennsylvania and the Citizens' National bank G. W. Darr and S. N. McElvoy have been appointed receivers for the Pittsburg & Belle Vernon Coal company. The capital stock of the company is $200,000, but it is charged with debts of $140,000 and a contingent liability of $46,000, over $105,000 of the entire indebtedness being discounted paper held by several banks.

Miners Want Increased Wages.

Phillipsburg, Pa., March 9.—At a miners' mass meeting held at Cuba Switch, near this place, yesterday resolutions were adopted providing that a demand be made on the operators for an advance of ten cents a ton on and after April 1. A committee was appointed to confer with the miners in adjoining districts, so that a general demand could be made as soon as possible.

Consul Savage's Remains Arrive.

New York, March 9.—The body of Reavel Savage, U. S. consul at Nantes, France, was brought here on the French line steamer Gascogne, which arrived yesterday from Havre. The body was accompanied here by Mrs. Reavel Savage, the wife of the deceased, and a cousin.

AFFAIRS IN CONGRESS

Matters of Importance Before the National Legislature.

THE CUBAN RESOLUTION TO-DAY

Conference Report To Be Called Up—Debate on the Dupont Case May End in a Few Days—Appropriation Bills in the House.

Washington, March 9.—The conference report on the Cuban resolution will be called up in the senate this afternoon. When the report was presented on Thursday last by Mr. Sherman, wherein the senate receded from its own resolutions and agreed to those passed by the house, objection to present consideration was made by Mr. Hale of Maine. Mr. Sherman then gave notice that he would call the report up this afternoon. A conference report being privileged, it has the right of way. Mr. Hale, it is understood, will take the opportunity thus offered to explain why he voted against the resolutions when they were before the senate for consideration. Mr. Chandler, who did not participate in the debate at the time, but who voted for the resolutions, may also make a short speech, in which he will state his views, which are more extreme than those of his colleagues. Mr. Chandler holds that this government should not only declare the independence of the island of Cuba, but that the United States should set up that independence and notify Spain and the whole world that she was ready and able to maintain it.

The Dupont Case.

The Dupont case, involving the legality of the alleged election in Delaware, still holds its place as the unfinished business. Mr. Turpie of Indiana has the floor for to-day. His speech will be replied to by Mr. Pritchard, of North Carolina, a member of the committee. Mr. Gray of Delaware and Mr. Burrows of Michigan will also speak on this subject during the week. There is a general belief that the debate will end this week, for there is no disposition on the part of the democrats to delay the vote. Mr. Gray, representing the democrats, says there is a plain case against the legality of the claim of Mr. Dupont, and that if the senate votes according to the facts as they are presented, Mr. Dupont will not be seated. Mr. Mitchell is equally firm in his belief that there can be but one side to the case, and that Mr. Dupont will be seated. The impression among republicans is that Mr. Dupont will get the solid vote of the republicans, together with one and, perhaps, two populist votes. This, of course, would give him his seat. The silver men appear to have been carefully sounded on the subject and those interested in the case say that silver will not figure in the matter at all, but that the case will be decided on its merits entirely, even though the seating of Dupont does mean one more anti-silver vote in the senate.

The Fur Seal Bill.

The bill to prevent the extermination of the fur seals of Alaska, which seeks to prevent such extermination by exterminating them under the authority of the United States and thereby preventing the further exercise of cruelty by pelagic sealers, has been made the special order for Thursday. This measure will cause some debate, at least on the part of Senator Morgan, who is bitterly opposed to its provisions, and was defeated in committee by a majority of only one.

In the House.

It is the expectation of the house managers to devote almost all this week to the consideration of appropriation bills and the contested election case of Aldrich vs. Robbins, from the fourth Alabama district. The postoffice appropriation bill is the pending business, and when it has been disposed of the election case will be taken up, unless the illness of Mr. Turner, dem., Ga., a member of the committee reporting the case, should necessitate a postponement. The naval appropriation bill is the next in line for consideration.

TO AID THE ARMENIANS.

Gov. Hastings Presides at a Meeting at Lancaster, Pa., To Raise Funds.

Lancaster, Pa., March 9.—A large mass meeting in behalf of the Armenian sufferers was held here yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Ministerial union. Gov. Hastings presided and addresses were delivered by Congressman Brosius and ex-attorney-general W. U. Hensel. A large sum was subscribed for the relief fund.

His Body Half Eaten by Buzzards.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 9.—Joseph McGowan, a contractor who has worked here some time, has been found in the woods near town half eaten by buzzards. He had not been seen around town for ten days, when he was trying to sell a Parker shotgun. The gun was found lying beside him and the entire top of his head shot off. His wife, it is reported, had left him to institute divorce proceedings.

To Wind Up Its Affairs.

Hartford, March 9.—The directors of the Charter Oak Driving Park association have decided to sell its property at auction, Saturday, April 4, and wind up its affairs. The property consists of the driving park of seventy acres with grand stands, barns, etc., and about thirty-five acres of land adjoining.

German Ironclad Waterlogged.

Berlin, March 9.—The German ironclad Weissenburg is aground and waterbound in the Baltic-North sea canal.

MARTIAL LAW DECLARED IN VALENCIA

Hostile Demonstrations Against the United States in Barcelona, Saragossa, Tarragona, Bilboa and Vittoria—U. S. Consulate in Danger.

Barcelona, March 9. — This city was the scene yesterday of further demonstrations against the United States. The bands in the places of public resort played patriotic airs, and were encored again and again. People on the boulevard sang patriotic airs and there was much cheering for Spain and shouting of "Death to the Yankees!" It was very evident from the conversations everywhere heard that a war with the United States would meet with popular approval, but the government is not paying much attention to the populace beyond preventing it, so far as possible, from acting in a disorderly manner. It being Sunday the authorities feared that the demonstrations might become riotous, and extra precautions were taken to quell disorders in their incipiency. As the day wore on the crowds in the streets rapidly increased in numbers. The gendarmes were active in their efforts to prevent any too large an assemblage. When a large crowd would gather in the main streets the mounted gendarmes would charge into it and drive the people into the side streets. Many persons gathered about the French consulate and enthusiastically cheered for France, which country, according to popular belief, would surely be an ally of Spain in the event of a war with the United States.

American Consulate Again in Danger.

The strong guard that was placed some days ago about the American consulate was strengthened yesterday and it was well that this was done, as the crowd attempted several times to approach the building with the undoubted purpose of again attacking it. The guards were very vigilant in repelling the mob and finally the latter, seeing that a more determined attempt to attack the consulate would result in bloodshed, sullenly withdrew to give vent to their patriotism in other directions.

Martial Law in Valencia.

The action of the mob element in Valencia became so threatening yesterday that martial law was proclaimed in that city last night. A crowd numbering fully ten thousand persons met outside the bull ring and attempted to enter that place for the purpose of holding a meeting to express anti-American sentiments. The authorities had issued an order forbidding the holding of such meetings, but no attention was paid to it. The gendarmes at the bull ring refused to allow the mob to enter and were told that they were traitors to Spain. Then several persons in the crowd cried "long live the republic," whereupon the gendarmes charged the mob. The crowd answered with several shots, and one of the gendarmes was seriously wounded in the chest. The situation had assumed such a menacing aspect that orders were given to the gendarmes to fire upon the mob. A volley was fired from the carbines carried by the gendarmes, and the crowd scurried for shelter.

Hurled Insults at Americans.

It is not known positively whether anybody was shot or not, but it is believed that the volley was fired over the heads of the rioters. Later the courage of the crowd returned and with augmented numbers the mob marched through the streets shouting: "Long live Spain!" "Death to the Yankees!" The police and gendarmes repeatedly opposed the crowd, but their efforts to restore order were of not the slightest avail. The governor of the province proclaimed martial law, and any further rioting will be dealt with sternly by the military power. The governor, acting under imperative orders from Madrid, had concentrated a strong force around the American consulate. The crowd attempted to pass these guards, but were unable to do so. Then they, with a volubility and scope possessed only by low-class Spaniards, hurled insults at the American government and American people. To-day the city is quiet, the mob not having the courage to face the troops who are awaiting orders to deal with rioters.

Disturbances at Other Towns.

There were several small disturbances at Saragossa, but the authorities were alert and very determined and the rioters were easily dispersed. At Tarragona a meeting attended by two thousand persons was held. A number of fiery speeches were made, the speakers glorifying Spain and holding the United States and its people up to derision and contempt. The meeting broke up amid cries of "Long live Spain!" "Death to the United States!" At Bilboa a crowd of five hundred persons attempted to make an attack upon the American consulate, but were prevented by the police. At Vittoria posters were put upon walls declaring that Spain must go to war with the United States and put a curb on Yankee arrogance.

TO AID THE GOVERNMENT.

Seville Ship Owners Offer Fifty Steamers for Any Use Desired.

Seville, March 9.—The ship-owners of Seville have offered to the government fifty steamers to be put to any use the authorities may deem expedient. Some of these steamers are trading to England. The chamber of commerce of Granada has issued a circular note inviting all Spanish merchants to break their commercial relations with the United States, and to cancel their policies of insurance issued by American companies. Many of the merchants have already done so. Several more Spanish subjects who were acting as American consular agents have resigned as a protest against the attitude of the United States towards Spain. Indignation meetings were held yesterday in many places in the provinces.

ALFONSO HUNG IN EFFIGY.

Those Who Performed the Job in Chicago Escape Identification.

Chicago, March 9.—His royal highness Alfonso King of Spain, was hanged in effigy in the vicinity of Madison street and Campbell avenue. The crowd of enthusiastic young persons who performed the job escaped identification. The figure was found suspended from a rope which was thrown over a telephone wire. The effigy hung fifteen feet in the air and attracted a crowd of persons. Upon that part of the effigy's anatomy which would ordinarily be called the breast was the following inscriptions: "Alfonso XIII, king of Spain. Sic semper tyranus." The figure was first discovered by a woman. The effigy seemed so real, hanging in a dark street as it did, that she fainted and had to be carried to a neighboring store.

Demonstration at Evanston.

Chicago, March 9.—At the close of a class party which was given by the students of the Northwestern university at Evanston, one of the boys mounted a chair, tore a big Spanish flag in two, and there was an instant rush for the pieces. Before the flag was allowed to fall to the floor, it was torn into a number of pieces so that every person present might have had one as a memento of the occasion had he so desired. The young men worked themselves up to quite a frenzy and their warlike manifestations were vigorously applauded by the girls, who were interested spectators. The disturbance was finally quelled by some of the older members of the class and the warlike young men contented themselves with marching up and down the streets singing various patriotic songs and giving three groans for the flag.

ANOTHER CUBAN EXPEDITION.

Friends of the Insurgents Said To Have Sent a Vessel from Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, March 9.—Undismayed by the failure of several expeditions sent from this country to aid their struggling compatriots, the resident Cubans of the United States are said to have fitted out and despatched from here another vessel for Cuba. She took no munitions of war aboard at this port, but it is said that the arms and ammunition were transferred to her after she got to sea and beyond the three-mile limit. Nothing definite in relation to the vessel can be learned here. The local Cuban leaders will not talk about the expedition.

MURDERED FOR A SMALL SUM.

One of the Wealthiest Men on Long Island Foully Assassinated.

Hempstead, N. Y., March 8.—Steven Powell, one of wealthiest and most prominent men on Long Island, who was murdered in a most brutal manner late Saturday night as he was returning from his place of business on Main street to his home on Fulton street, was in the habit of carrying large sums of money upon his person. It is supposed that his murderer or murderers learned of this fact and awaited an opportunity to waylay him. The murder occurred in front of Mr. Powell's home. Directly opposite the gate an electric light was brightly shining. Although Mr. Powell had over $200 with him, it was overlooked by the murderers, who secured only $2.60. Three negroes have been arrested for the crime, and others are being watched.

IN HONOR OF FRANKLIN.

Hundreds of People Attend the Unveiling of a Memorial Tablet.

Paris, March 9.—Several hundred persons yesterday attended the unveiling of a memorial tablet that has been erected on the site of the villa at Passy occupied by Benjamin Franklin from 1777 to 1785. It was at this villa that Franklin erected his first lightning conductor. The dramatist, M. Manuel, president of the Passy Historical society, presented the tablet. M. Faye, a member of the French academy, spoke of Franklin's scientific researches. The Hon. J. B. Eustis, the American ambassador, acknowledged the gift of the tablet. M. Roujon, director of the Society of Fine Arts; Moncure Conway, Henry Bacon, the artist; Meredith Read and many ladies were present at the ceremony.

THE DRIEBUND'S FUTURE.

Emperor William To Confer with Austria's Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Berlin, March 9.—The emperor will receive Count Goluchowski, the Austrian minister of foreign affairs, this afternoon, with unusually great state ceremony, and this is accepted as marking the importance of the Austrian minister's visit to Berlin, which it is generally believed has for its object a conference upon the subject of the future of driebund, in view of the recent events in Italy.

Emperor William's Mediterranean Cruise.

Berlin, March 9.—The emperor will leave Berlin on the 23d of March for Genoa, from which port he will make a cruise of the Mediterranean, ending at Abazzia, which is his objective point. It is said that the kaiser will have an interview at Genoa with King Humbert.

Britannia Won by Thirty-five Seconds.

Hyeres, March 9.—In the regatta yesterday, although the Satanita and the Ailsa started some minutes before the Britannia, the latter yacht won by thirty-five seconds.

A NEW ITALIAN LOAN

Germans Unwilling To Relieve the Country's Financial Distress.

BETTER GUARANTEES DEMANDED

Italy's Foreign Creditors To Be Paid in Paper Currency, Depreciated to the Extent of 14 Per Cent.—Our Action in Regard to Cuba.

Berlin, March 9.—It is believed and indeed almost desired in official circles here that King Humbert will be unable to find an Italian statesman to form a ministry who will be willing to construct a cabinet on the basis of a continuance of the war in Abyssinia and will consequently, after an interregnum of a week, be obliged to recall Signor Crispi, who, after strengthening the cabinet, will order Gen. Baldissera to seize the first chance to fight a successful battle with the Shoans and then terminate the African campaign. In the course of current discussion in financial circles upon the possibility of Italy's concluding a loan in Germany, the report got abroad and became generally credited that this view had been commended to King Humbert by a personage high in German official circles.

Must Pledge All Her Resources.

In regard to the floating of such a loan, however, there is only one opinion. Germany already holds more than enough of Italian securities and nothing that Italy has to offer could induce the open operation of a new Italian loan in Germany. With a crushing national debt, her banks of issue practically insolvent, and her rate of taxation at the maximum figure, the Italian government in order to obtain the sinews of war it needs must secure them through private arrangements outside of the ordinary principles upon which financial houses work. There are still resources in Italy, which, if they were pledged, a loan syndicate could give the government a substantial loan, but in no other event could it be negotiated in this country.

Italy's Political Corruption.

German financiers consider that the corruption in the administration of the Italian government and the absolute corruption prevailing in the civil service have been potent factors in the decline of the country, and that if any more German money goes to Italy it must have much better guarantees than the existing ones. Only within the last few days advices from Rome have reported it as probable that the government would pay its foreign creditors in paper currency, which is now at a discount of fourteen per cent. The Italian rentes and Italian railway securities which have been thrown upon the market by general holders have been partly taken upon speculative account.

Our Action in Regard to Cuba.

As representatives of the official and popular views in Germany of the attitude of the United States house of congress in regard to Cuba, the expressions of the Vorwaerts, the principal socialist organ, and the Coiogne Gazette, the leading national liberal organ, may be contrasted. The latter journal, affecting national impartiality, accuses the Americans of pursuing schemes of trade and conquest under the guise of a feeling for oppressed and suffering humanity. Spain, according to the Gazette, ought to repel the intervention of the United States between herself and the Cuban rebels upon lines similar to those upon which the United States rejected the intervention of France and England in behalf of the secessionists of the southern states of America.

The Alliance Against the United States.

The Vorwaerts, on the other hand, holds that the vote of the United States favoring the recognition of the belligerent rights of the insurgents in Cuba, was of such enormous moral import that Spain will henceforth be unable by any possible successes in the field to accomplish the subjection of Cuba. This utterance of the Vorwaerts may mean to imply that a revolution in Spain is among the probabilities, but it must be accepted as referring to the reports now current of an alliance between France and Spain against the United States. The Vorwaerts adds: "Such an idea as a Franco-Spanish alliance against the United States is fantastic. The great republic was founded with the aid of the French, who have ever since looked toward the sister republic."

New York State and Prussia.

Baron von der Becke von der Horst, Prussian minister for the interior, has forwarded a communication to Washington through the regular diplomatic channels stating that he is astonished to find that a certain state of the American union is seeking to negotiate directly with the Prussian government through a special envoy, thus ignoring the established usage. The minister says he has taken cognizance of the fact that Gov. Morton has not yet acted upon the proceedsngs of the Albany senate and assembly and in turn admits that there was a chance that the decrees cancelling the licenses of two New York insurance companies might be repealed. But, he adds, since the interference of the amateur special envoy from New York state to Berlin, the situation has been so completely altered that the Prussian government cannot repeal the decree, as it might now be represented to the public that the influence of an amateur diplomat had caused Prussia to yield. Even at the risk of Gov. Morton's application of the recent resolution of the Albany legislature refusing to renew the license of the Prussian insurance companies doing business in the state of New York, this decision, he says, will in the meantime be adhered to.

The borough election tomorrow gives indication of being a lively one.

The plight in which the Salvation Army has become involved in not a pleasant one for its admirers to contemplate.

From observation at a distance, it is evident that the feeling in Elizabeth is very bitter against J. Max Renier, editor of the New Jersey Herald, who was arrested last Saturday on twenty-six charges of criminal libel prefered by Mayor Rankin.

There will be no session of the Legislature tomorrow on account of the elections in most of the second-class counties. Both Houses will work hard the rest of the week, and it is possible that Wednesday a night session will be held to make up the time lost Tuesday. There is now every probability of final adjournment on Friday, March 20th.

Although the States of New York and New Jersey have willingly surrendered all claim to the Palisades of the Hudson, the House Military Committee has not been convinced of the necessity for expending several millions of dollars for a military park along the romantic river front. The sentimental considerations which have induced the appeal to the Federal Government to preserve the natural grandeur of the rocky wall have been apparently ineffective when addressed to the Committee on Military Affairs, which is naturally dominated by Chairman Hull, a representative from the State of Iowa. To secure the slope and not the top area, is the present idea of the committee, a notion which leads readily to the suggestion already made in the House, that such matters should be looked after by the States directly interested.—Newark News.

A sentence of unusual, and apparently uncalled for, severity was meted out by City Judge De Meza on Mamie Clark last Saturday morning. Thirty days in the county jail—the institution where the scum of the community are harbored when they transgress the law—for a seventeen-year-old girl, who is headstrong rather than criminally bad, is not justice. While this young girl doubtless needed discipline more severe than her parents could visit on her to arrest her from a career not to be regarded as the best yet her faults were not such as to prompt the City Judge to incarcerate her in the county jail for the same length of time, and perhaps longer, than he would a hardened criminal for a breach of peace. What saluatry effect a period of association with the class that are quartered in this institution can have on a girl still in her teens, is something that, perhaps, the City Judge is alone able to realize.

DEATH CLAIMS AN OLD RESIDENT.

Augustus DeGraw Passed Over the Great Divide Yesterday Afternoon.

In the death of Augustus DeGraw, which occurred yesterday afternoon at his home, 321 Park avenue, Plainfield loses a highly respected and valued citizen, and the home has lost a loving and kind husband and father.

A little over a week ago he was taken ill and owing to his advanced age, eighty-three years, it was hardly expected that he would recover, and from that time he gradually grew weaker until the end came yesterday.

Mr. DeGraw was born in New Brunswick, and for many years was proprietor of the Nelson House. About twenty-five years ago he came to this city and purchased the soda-water establishment owned by John Harris on West Second street. He continued in the business for ten years, when he sold out to a Mr. Strauss of New York. Since that time he has lived a life of retirement. He was well-known all through this section and everyone knew him only to love and respect him for his true worth. He was an attendant at Trinity Reformed church whenever it was possible. He was married about sixty years ago and a wife and five children survive him. They are Mrs. A. D. Cook, Mrs. B. B. Force, James DeGraw, Charles DeGraw, of this city, and Edward DeGraw, of Philadelphia.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from the house at 3 o'clock, and will be private. Rev Cornelius Schenck will officiate.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Emmons, of Prospect place, visited in Metuchen yesterday.

Hezekiah Hand, ex-postmaster at Scotch Plains, moves to Elizabeth tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. David Angerbauer, of West Third street, are the proud parents of a daughter born yesterday.

Mrs. Isaac Taynor, of East Third street, is slowly improving from a stroke of paralysis, which occurred several weeks ago.

Miss Clara L. Williams, of Madison avenue, returned yesterday afternoon from a six weeks visit in Orange county, New York.

Miss Tinsman, who has been visiting the Misses Livesey, of Park avenue, returned to her home at Lumberville, this State, today.

Miss Belle Lewis, of Somerset street, is able to resume her duties as stenographer in the offices of City Judge DeMeza, after a short illness.

Fractured His Arm.

—F. Stover opened a grocery at Oaktree Saturday.

—E. A. Canfield and daughter, Miss Vera Canfield, of Brooklyn, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Townsend, of Coddington avenue, yesterday.

—The subject of Mr. Murray's Bible talk at the Y. M. C. A. this evening will be "Office Work of the Holy Spirit." Ladies as well as men are invited.

—A gang of laborers are today removing one of the boilers in the old electric light station in Race street to the Bound Brook and Dunellen works at Sebring's Mills.

—Miss Marguerite E. Lindley will deliver a lecture on bicycling for the benefit of the Grace P. E. Church Guild at the Casino on Saturday afternoon next at 4 o'clock.

—The annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church will be held in Vincent chapel on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at which time the officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

THEATRICAL.

Katie Rooney, the bright little star of "The Derby Mascot," will make her first appearance at Music Hall tomorrow night. The play has been rewritten for Miss Rooney and is said to be stronger than ever. The cast is certainly excellent and includes such well-known people as Fred Summerfield, Edwin Ames, Robert Bouchier, Della Clarke, Mattie Rooney, Pansy Willard and many others. Fred Melville, Billy and Viola Ruynore, the old favorites of last season, are still with the piece. The scegery is new and bright. The horses well broke and altogether the show is a genuine novelty and should prove a winner.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of Calfornia, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of sea-bathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. "Raise You a $100"

That sounds like a bluff, doesn't it. But when we say that are $100 wheels which have been listed at $85.00. When we say that you cannot buy a better wheel at any price, it is no bluff. We have the cards. Have you any curiosity?

Commercial Palace - - Babcock Building.

Modern buying of general merchandise has become an art in trade.

The old rutty methods of twenty years ago are too slow and expensive for the wide-awake buyer of the present.

The Commercial Palace is recognized by the largest manufacturers and importers.

As a leading department store of sufficiently large dimentions to be entitled to the same "jobber's" price list as the New York department stores, which means a great saving to patrons of this class of stores.

Here is a sample of some of the results of "Young America" modern methods of real up-to-date buying.

A BIG DEAL IN HOUSEHOLD HARDWARE.

In order to more thoroughly bring this matter before the public and prove by practical demonstration the above statement, we ask your special attention to the following extremely —The Ladies' Aid Society of the Congregational church will hold a meeting tomorrow afternoon.

—George Egel, the Somerset street butcher, is building a barn on his property in the rear of his shop.

—The Young Ladies' Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will hold an important meeting tomorrow afternoon.

—At the meeting of Queen City Lodge, No. 226, I. O. O. F., this evening, the initiatory degree will be conferred on four candidates.

—Putnam & DeGraw, of West Front street, are offering bargains in day goods that will require no x rays to determine their quality or price.

—The Woman's Home Missionary Society will hold its regular meeting for sewing Friday afternoon in the parlor of the Crescent Avenue church.

—The anniversary of the Gold Dust Band of the First Baptist church will be held at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the lecture room of that church.

—Some of the street railway cars were equipped with fenders at both ends yesterday, owing to the fact that only two cars are run on Sundays on the main line.

—The second annual session of the State Council of the Daughters of Libertey of this State will convene tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the W. C. T. U. rooms, Newark.

—An important business meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church will be held next Friday evening, when officers will be elected for the ensuing year.

—Rev. Charles E. Scudder, of Newark, gave an interesting talk at the East Third Street miisson last evening. There was a large attendance and the meeting was very helful.

—F. S. Cutter was so unfortunate as to have two fingers of his right hand quite badly cut and bruised in assisting to move a piano at the musical entertainment held in the lecture room of the Trinity Reformed church last Friday evening.

—The Sunday-school teachers of the First Baptist church will meet in annual session, Thursday evening, March 12th, for the purpose of electing officers and transacting such other business as may come before them. A full attendance is desired.

—"Truth Lord," an utterance of faith of the women of Canaan, as recorded in the fifteenth chapter of Matthew, was the foundation text of a most excellent sermon delivered by Rev. Charles E. Herring last evening in the Trinity Reformed church.

—The annual meeting of the Woman's Foreign Mission Society will be held in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church on Wednesday, March 11th, at 3:30 p. m. Reports of the work of the year will be read and the election of officers for the ensuing year made.

—L. W. Randolph, the prescription druggist, of West Front street, has just completed the improvements to his store. The walls, ceiling and wood-work have been artistically painted and decorated, and handsome chandeliers with the gas and electric light fixtures makes the place one of the most attractive in town.

—In these hard times do not think of going out of town to buy your spring clothing. Remember Harry M. Jaquett has taken special care to select one of the finest lines of clothing ever exhibited this city, and can save you the price and trouble of going out of town. Now don't over look this fact and see what you can do at home before looking elsewhere.

—The March meeting of the study class connected with the Alliance of Unitarian and Other Liberal Christian Women will be held in the lecture room of All Souls church on Thursday afternoon, March 12th, at 3 o'clock, instead of Tuesday, March 10th, as originally announced. Uncle Sam Has Several on Hand Just Now.

An Argument for the Introduction of Reforms in the Country's Diplomatic Service—America's Sympathy with the Persecuted Armenians.

[Written for This Paper.]

Recent events in the history of the United States have impressed upon the people the necessity of establishing a regular diplomatic service. As long as the Washington government was able to keep out of foreign entaglements, it was well enough to honor prominent citizens by appointing them ministers and ambassadors to foreign capitals, but the development of American trade and American enterprise has thrown upon us responsibilities of which our forefathers never dreamed. Many of the diplomatic entanglements of recent years, of which, by force of circumstances, the congress had to take official notice, could have been straightened out by ambassadors trained in the arts of diplomacy and possessing a true sense of the dignity of their government. The idea here advanced may be a new one, but as soon as properly presented to the people of the country it will be a popular one. For, say what critics will, diplomacy is an intricate profession, and its mastery requires years of experience and contact with the representatives of other nations. We demand that a common country lawyer should pass an examination—and then we do not employ him until he has had years of practice—and yet we intrust state affairs of importance to rich merchants and retired capitalists, whose only claim to preferment is that they can spend money lavishly without expense to the government. This state of affairs has been as amusing to foreigners as it has been humiliating to thoughtful people here; and had it not been for the sound common sense of our presidents and secretaries of state the conduct of our foreign affairs would, long ago, have become the laughing stock of the world.

Had it not been for our untrained diplomatic service, Lord Salisbury would never have dared to address his insulting communication concerning the Venezuela boundary dispute to Secretary Olney. It is true, in this instance, he received a Roland for his Oliver, but that was due entirely to the patriotic message of President Cleveland and the patriotic response of the congress; the American representatives at London and Caracas had absolutely nothing to do with it. Whenever the United States asserts its dignity, foreign powers are quick to heed its warnings; and had we had an ambassador with real plenipotentiary powers stationed at London, Great Britain would never have pressed the Venezuelan claims. Ever since President Cleveland's message has been digested by Salisbury and Chamberlain, they have tried to crawl out of the hole in which their insulting impetuosity has placed them; and the new governor of British Guiana, Sir Augustus Lawson Hemming, has done everything in his power to preserve order in the disputed Venezuelan territory. Meanwhile the Venezuelan commission has begun its impartial task of fixing the boundary, according to law, history and equity; and no one, either here or in England, doubts that its findings will be recognized by Lord Salisbury, no matter what the London papers may say to the contrary. That there will be no war with Great Britain over the Venezuela squabble is further emphasized by the fact that President Cleveland has written a vigorous note to President Crespo, urging him to preserve order in Venezuela on pain of losing the friendship of this country.

As regards the slaughter of Armenians, the United States senate has put itself on record on the side of humanity. Senator Cullom's resolution, which demands decisive action by Great Britain, Russia, France, Germany, Austria and Italy to stop the Armenian massacres and pledges the president the support of congress for the most vigorous action he may take in protecting American missionaries and naturalized American citizens as well as in securing redress for injuries inflicted upon American property, is a bugle-blast for freedom and the emancipation of a downtrodden race. The Cullom resolution is a document worthy of praise; but had our minister at Constantinople possessed discretionary power he could have done much more to alleviate the sufferings of American missionaries than he was able to do in the existing condition of our diplomatic service.

Unless the partition of the Turkish empire is undertaken without delay by the treaty powers, the United States may yet be called upon to seize a Turkish harbor for the purpose of collecting damages incurred by American missionaries and terminating the slaughter of thousands of helpless men, women and children. Reliable data recently received at Washington place the number of Armenians slain by the Turks at 35,000, and nearly 400,000, out of a population of 600,000, are reduced to the verge of starvation. To these unfortunates Clara Barton has undertaken to carry relief; and should one hair of this noble woman's head, or that of any of her self-sacrificing assistants, be violated, the people of the United States would insist upon the demolition of the Turkish ruin. And what a glorious thing it would be if the Stars and Stripes should wave above the Crescent and the Star, twin insignia of Moslem barbarism and cruelty!

Joseph Chamberlain, British secretary of state for the colonies, would like to see the United States act in concert with Great Britain in the case of Turkey; but his proposition, suggested in a speech at Birmingham, does not meet with American approval. We have the power and the means to fight our own battles, and no amount of "soft soap" can make us forget the Venezuelan dispute. If Mr. Chamberlain thinks that stale platitudes can lessen our devotion to the Monroe doctrine, he confesses a wrong conception of American character.

The six great powers of Europe have looked on—and smiled—while thousands of poor creatures, whose protection was guaranteed by Turkey in the Berlin treaty, were being murdered or outraged. Russia, in whose dominions lives Magrditch Khrimian, the spiritual head of the Armenian church, has refused to heed the appeals of this venerable patriarch. Great Britain has sulked, and Austria has played a waiting game. The three of them, together with Germany, France and Italy, afraid of doing anything because—may Heaven forgive them—they cannot agree upon a division of the "sick man's" estate!

Archbishop Khrimian was born at Van, one of the towns recently destroyed by the Kurds. In 1870 he was elected patriarch of Constantinople, but ten years later was exiled to Jerusalem by the sultan, because he spoke too freely about the outrages committed by the porte against his people. In 1885 he was elected head, or catholicos, of the Armenian church, and established his residence at Etchmiadzin, in Russian Armenia. He has journeyed repeatedly to St. Petersburg to press the cause of his spiritual subjects, but owing to political conditions his missions have always proven futile. He has great admiration for the United States, and would not be surprised to see the day when relief shall come to his oppressed brethren from across the Atlantic.

Another diplomatic game, which we are now engaged in, is not quite as creditable to the United States as it might be. I have reference to the imprisonment of American citizens by the Boer government. Instead of placing this cause in the hands of a disinterested government, Secretary Olney requested the British colonial office to protect their interests. This was an affront to President Kruger, more particularly because that official had dismissed all Americans from custody on parole, with the exception of John Hays Hammond, a California mining engineer, who took a most active part in the Jameson raid against the Boers. What disposition may be made of him depends probably upon the punishment the British government may mete out to Dr. Jameson. The attorney general of Great Britain will attempt to have Jameson indicted under the foreign enlistment act of 1870, section 11, which makes it a misdemeanor to prepare or fit out any naval or military expedition to proceed against the dominions of a friendly state. The penalty, upon conviction, is a fine not exceeding $2,000 and imprisonment at hard labor for a term not exceeding two years. It is questionable whether a jury can be found in England which will find an indictment against Jameson, who is quite a popular hero. This may anger the Boer government and cause it to proceed vigorously against the conspirators in its power.

In this necessarily brief account of current diplomatic questions I have shown, I think, that whenever our country has gained glory it has been through the president or congress. Our diplomatic service has, in every instance, proved inadequate and insufficient. Therefore, while the congress is in session, why not have a discussion of needed reforms?

out in the rain

A good drenching in a cold rain is often the beginning of consumption. Yet no one claims that the germs of this disease exist in the rainwater. Then how was this brought about? The exposure was followed by a cold; the vitality was lowered; the cough continued for some weeks; the throat and lungs became congested; and thus all the conditions were favorable for the consumption germs.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, does not directly attack these germs and kill them. But it does tone up the whole system and restores the body to health before serious harm is done. The germs of consumption thrive best when the system is weakened and the throat and lungs congested. Do not delay until it is too late, but treat your cough early. Cod-liver oil and the hypophosphites, in the form of Scott's Emulsion, are the very best remedies.

A QUESTION OF COURAGE

By CHARLES LOOMIS

[Copyright, 1895, by J. B. Lippincott Co.]

"I tumbled into a hole on the mountain," he explained, and, leading her to a chair, he seated himself beside her and recounted his adventures, carefully suppressing all mention of the Bynums, and leaving her to suppose that he had simply met with an accident.

"I should think you would have been starved almost to death," she said, pityingly. "How was it that some of the men didn't find you?"

Ringbrand had heard nothing of the search party, and she told him of the efforts that had been made to find out what had become of him. When she told how the men had scoured the plateau, shouting, he remembered the cry that had reached him just as he had placed the first round of the ladder, and he held her attention with a graphic description of the sudden hope and its disappointment, while Ludlow took the colonel aside and told him of the intended attack. Ringbrand saw the look of grim determination come into the eyes of the elder Latimer, and a moment later Ludlow came over and began to talk to Hester, while the colonel and his son left the room. When they came back the conversation became general, and Ringbrand was glad of this, for he felt that the one thing impossible under the circumstances was a tete-a-tete with Hester.

After a little, the colonel suggested to his daughter that she retire, adding that they had a little matter of business to talk about that would keep them up awhile longer. She went willingly enough, being in a beatific frame of mind which would have made her obedient to a much more unreasonable request, and when they heard the door of her room close behind her they drew their chairs together, and Ringbrand gave a rapid outline of his plan for the capture of the marauders.

Upon hearing it, Col. Latimer demurred at once because of the danger attending Ringbrand's part in the undertaking; but he acquiesced finally when Ludlow added the weight of his advice, and the young man glanced gratefully at his friend for the timely assistance. When the details were arranged, and Ringbrand had appealed to Henry not to fire unless it became plainly necessary, the colonel spoke again: "In that conve'sation in the cave, Mr. Ringbrand, did you happen to heah any thing that might th'ow any light on this?"—handing a soiled and greasy note to the young man.

Ringbrand unfolded it and spelled out the contents penciled in crabbed characters scrawled irregularly across the sheet.

"dere Mis ester," it ran, "hit mout be a heep beter ef you loud not to stay on the mounting two nite spose you go down T ludlos fer a spel yure friend."

"Where did this come from?" he asked.

"That's what's n-puzzlin' us. Hester found it wrapped round a piece of flint rock lyin' on the floor of her room this afte'noon, and she reckoned somebody'd th'own it in at the window."

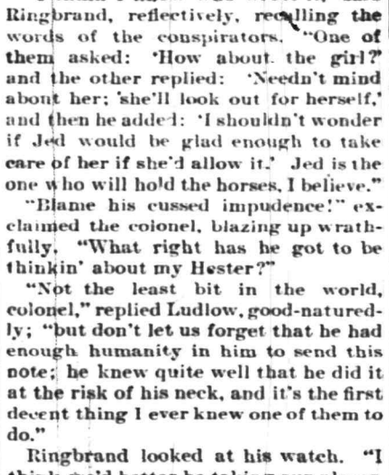
"I think I know who wrote it," said Ringbrand, reflectively, recalling the words of the conspirators. "One of them asked: 'How about the girl?' and the other replied: 'Needn't mind about her; she'll look out for herself,' and then he added: 'I shouldn't wonder if Jed would be glad enough to take care of her if she'd allow it.' Jed is the one who will hold the horses, I believe."

"Blame his cussed impudence!" exclaimed the colonel, blazing up wrathfully. "What right has he got to be thinkin' about my Hester?"

"Not the least bit in the world, colonel," replied Ludlow, good-naturedly; "but don't let us forget that he had enough humanity in him to send this note; he knew quite well that he did it at the risk of his neck, and it's the first decent thing I ever knew one of them to do."

Ringbrand looked at his watch. "I think we'd better be taking our places, gentlemen," he said. "They set no time, but we had best be ready for them."

Henry extinguished the light, and the four men filed noiselessly out of the house to their several stations. The colonel and Henry, armed with repeating rifles and provided with buckets of water for use in case the fire spread too rapidly, concealed themselves in the shrubbery to the right and left of the small clump of laurel-bushes; Ludlow went down the avenue and crouched in the black shadow of a low-branched pine; and Ringbrand, armed only with the revolver which had been his companion in the cavern, took his stand against the trunk of a great oak, whose spreading limbs overshadowed the ambush selected by the mountaineers.



Ringbrand unfolded it and spelled out the contents.

Up to the moment when the completion of the arrangements for the capture of the conspirators had begun to cancel the factor of excitement, Ringbrand had not reflected upon the peculiarly trying nature of the test he had proposed for himself. When the plan had suggested itself, he had welcomed it gladly, hurrying forward to its culmination with the eager impatience of one who imagines he sees the turning-point of his life in the perspective and runs impetuously to double it. After he had taken his position under the oak, however, the suspense, and the darkness and silence of the night, began to dampen the fire of enthusiasm; the flood-tide of excitement turned and ebbed slowly away; and the heroic requirements of the part he had volunteered to take in the approaching drama stood out in vivid and disconcerting relief. Common sense awoke and demanded a reason for the hazardous plan, pointing the finger of ridicule at the melodramatic stage setting, and suggesting that nothing had been omitted save a calcium light to be flashed upon the scene at the critical moment. He saw the absurdity of it all, and how much more sensible it would have been to take Ludlow's suggestion, surrounding the house with a posse of armed men whose numbers would have made resistance on the part of the mountaineers useless and hence improbable.

And what was there to be urged against such a safe and practical plan of procedure? Nothing, or less than nothing; merely the demonstration of an abstruse metaphysical problem within himself; the application of a heroic test which had no place outside the realm of fiction. And with this thought it occurred to him that he had unconsciously planned the whole thing upon the lines that would have made it most effective in a story! And then the suggestion of the calcium light and the alarmed young woman looking down upon the theatrical tableau from her window came again, making him sick with disgust.

Looking at it from any point of view, the romantic project, which was more than likely to cost him his life in the executing, was merely a fantastic idea of proving himself in some way a knight without fear—a modern type of gortesque mediaeval personage who went about slaying impossible dragons and disemb owelling mythological giants. It was absurd—ridiculous—preposterous! and from this point in the argument the descent to the Avernus of terror was easy. At the end of a half-hour he felt the premonitory spinal chill heralding a return of the well-known symptoms; in five minutes more the paroxysm was upon him, and he was struggling furiously in the grasp of his familiar demon, blind, deaf and helpless, with every fiber of his being straining itself for flight in an impulse so real that he turned and grasped at the rough bark of the tree to keep himself from being carried bodily away by the whirlwind of terror.

The attack did not last long, and about the time the blood began to tingle in his veins again he heard the muffled trampling of horses approaching along the dusty road. At the signal the very recollection of his late discomposure seemed somehow to vanish into the limbo of a remote past; his pulses quickened and his muscles thrilled wiith the vibrations of an accumulating energy that sang joyously as it leaped through the tense nerves and the throbbing arteries. His sharpened senses were unnaturally acute; he heard the woody clink of the rails as the men made a breach in the zigzag fence, then the smothered hoof-beats of the horses coming across the soft turf of the lawn; a moment later, in an interval of silence, he fancied he could almost hear the whispered instructions given to Jed. When the two men emerged from the deeper shadows of the grove he saw them quite distinctly in the starlight; they came directly toward his hiding place, and when they paused within a few feet of the trees he could scarcely restrain the eager ferocity that prompted him to rush out upon them. In the instant of hesitation he had time to note that one of them carried an armful of kindling wood; the man gathered it into a firmer hold while they paused, and there was a smothered tinkle of breaking glass, and the pungent odor of kerosene filled the air.

"What was that thar noise?" asked the other.

"Hit's that thar blame' bottle o' coal-oil, that's what hit is; hit's done bu'sted an' run all down into my boots," replied the first; and they moved forward and disappeared behind the corner of the house.

Ringbrand kept them in sight as long as he could, and then ran across to the clump of laurels, going down on his hands and knees and staring intently into the gloom until he found them again, two darker blots of shadow crouching in the angle formed by the bay window in the parlor. While he was straining his eyes to catch the gleam of the match which would be the signal for their return, he did not hear the stealthy steps of a man who was approached him from behind, nor did he know of its presence when the gliding figure came quite close and stood with clubbed gun waiting for him to rise.

The appearance of the third brother upon the scene was due to the fact that Ludlow had chosen his position unfortunately and so was unable to see the men when they dismounted. For this reason, he waited until he was sure that the two incendiaries had started for the house, and the delay gave the holder of horses time to yield to a sudden impulse born of a desire to know if his warning to Hester had accomplished its purpose. Looping the horses' bridles together and throwing them over the branch of a tree, he followed noiselessly in the footsteps of his brothers; and coming out on the open lawn in time to catch a glimpse of Ringbrand as he ran across to the laurels, he crept forward until he stood with uplifted gun behind the unsuspecting sentinel. When Ringbrand rose at the flash of the match, the poised rifle cut a quick circle in the air and descended with a blow that sent him back to his knees with a thousand scintillating motes dancing before his eyes; for a single confused instant he thought the end had come, and then he felt the revivifying breath of the spirit of battle which seemed to inspire him with the reckless and invincible courage of his warlike ancestors. Leaping to his feet, he fell upon his assailant with irresistible fury; there was a sharp, breathless struggle, a fierce clutching for under-holds, and then Ringbrand swung the slight form of his antagonist over his head and dashed it, limp and helpless, against the bole of the oak.

While this bit of by-play was going on behind the laurels, another incident occured which further disarranged Ringbrand's plans and left Col. Latimer and Henry in doubt as to what they should do. When the elder Bynum stooped to light the pile of kindlings, Bud started back toward the ambush alone; and as the first match went out, the younger brother had time to reach the clump of laurels before Jeff could find and light another. Seeing but one of the men appear, the colonel and his son both hesitated, and Bud confronted Ringbrand just as the latter recovered himself from the grapple with Jed. There was no time for deliberation, and, realizing that the mountaineer could not use his rifle at close quarters, he flung himself upon the newcomer, taking him unawares and throwing him heavily just as a bright blaze sprang up beside the house and a howl of agony rang out on the still air of the night. A single glance revealed the cause of both. There was a terrible picture of a man wrapped in a winding sheet of flame and running toward him—a yelling human torch blazing from head to foot and swinging its fiery arms frantically as it ran.

At such a crisis, thought and action are one. Shaking himself loose from the grasp of the struggling young brother, Ringbrand quieted him with a single deliberate blow with the butt of the pistol; the next instant he had tripped the shrieking firebrand and was rolling it over and over in the damp grass when the colonel and Henry ran up. It was all over quickly, and they were binding Jed and Bud when Ludlow joined them. The colonel sent Henry to arouse the negro servants, with orders to get the horses and the farm wagon ready at once, and then an awed little group gathered around the burned man while Ludlow examined his injuries by the light of the lanterns.

"I guess he's past help," he said, quietly. "How did it happen?"

Ringbrand answered: "It was kerosene. He had a bottle in his pocket, and broke it just as they passed me. He was carrying an armful of wood."

Ludlow glanced at the other two: "I missed my man, but I see you have him. How did you manage it?"

"I didn't manage it: It was managed for me," replied Ringbrand, lowering his voice at the sound of a slight noise at one of the upper windows of the mansion. "When I got upon my feet behind the laurels there, some one knocked me down with a clubbed gun; I tried it again, and threw the fellow just as the other came up. I closed with that one to keep him from using his rifle; and as we fell, I saw the third man in a blaze."

Henry's post had been nearest to the bay window, and he told how Jeff had tried twice to light the kindlings, and you shall never pull them The little lady will have you with them, not without; and unless you stand by me, no one, not I even, will have you at any price. Allons!"

He stood up, but Jean put out her hand. "You have been speaking, now it is my turn. Don't cry, cook till you have the venison home. What is more, I gave my word to Gobel, and I will keep it. I will be captain. No talking! When you've got the kegs in the cellar at Angel Point, good! but now allons, my comrades, I am your captain!"

She had reduced the situation to a cheerful adventure, and the men now swung the kegs on their shoulders and carried them to the boat. In another half-hour they were under way in the gaudy light of an orange sunrise, a simmering wind from the sea lifting them up the river, and the gray-red coast of Labrador shrinking sullenly back.

About this time, also, a government cutter was putting out from under the mountain wall at Quebec, its officer in command having got renewed orders from the minister to go forth and bring in Tarboe, the smuggler. Whether the minister was more adventurous than his predecessors, or whether he was a tetotaller, does not appear, but it was evident he was bent on notoriety. And when Mr. Martin, the inspector in command of the expedition, was ordered to take with him Mr. Orvay Lafarge and five men, "effectively armed," it was supposed by the romantic minister that the matter was as good as accomplished.

"I AM YOUR CAPTAIN."

On a Metropolitan Basis.

Eleven patrolmen, two roundsmen and one sergeant constituting the balance of the Plainfield police force, gathered at the Crescent Cycle Academy on Saturday afternoon for inspection and drill. Councilmen Barrows, of the Police Committee, put the men through some military tactics. Mayor Gilbert was present and witnessed the drill. This is the first time in the history of the department that the men have been brought up for inspection and drill and does a great deal toward placing the force on a metropolitan basis. At the drill on Saturday afternoon, the men presented a fine appearance and went through the movements with much precision. The Mayor expressed himself as well pleased with the way in which the men conducted themselves and upon their general appearance.

A Cocking Main.

The main held on Saturday night between Scotch Plains and Orange birds, at Garwood, was decided in favor of the Orangeites. Poor Scotch Plains quit with only two winners out of nine entered. Sand in the eyes of the Scotch Plains birds beat their owners. Plainfield parties were present.

Fanwood Man to Talk Reform.

The Hon. George McAneny, of Fanwood, with the Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, will address a meeting in the interest of Civil Service Reform, to be held at the residence of the Misses Stokes, 37 Madison avenue, at half past four Saturday, March 14th.

Mr. Smalley's Bright Prospects.

There are bright prospects that David D. Smalley, the Democratic nominee for Justice of the Peace in the borough, will be elected. He will be supported by both parties to a large extent, who believe he is thoroughly capable and well-fitted for the office.

Storage Building Proposed.

It is rumored that a large New York house is soon to erect a storage building, 65x150, on Berckman street, near the railroad.

Looking Over the Routes.

Chandler Riker, of Newark, accompanied by friends, were in town today looking over the routes for the proposed trolley extensions.

—Stone Square Lodge, F. and A.M., will meet this evening, and a full attendance is desired.

—An excellent programme has been arranged for the camp fire to be held by Winfield Scott Post tomorrow evening.

—The musical given at Trinity Reformed church on Friday evening netted a profit of $40. The amount will be devoted to the rendition of the Easter services.

—Crescent Division, No. 12, Uniformed Rank, K. of P., will meet on Wednesday evening and transact special business. The members of the division will attend the district meeting Thursday in uniform.

—J. A. Sturtevant, who formerly conducted a store on Liberty street, has again started in business and has moved his fixtures to the store occupied by F. Westphal & Son, corner of Liberty and West Fourth streets.

Eugene Runyon, of Dunellen, visited friends in town today.

Miss Mattie Hall, of Prospect place, is confined at home with the measles.

Ernest Millard, of East Fourth street, visited friends in Newark yesterday.

Miss Jennie Simpson, of Craig place, is visiting her grandmother at Washingtonville.

Miss Billings, of Deerfield, Mass., is visiting her sister, Miss Louise H. Billings, of East Fifth street.

The local and the Westfield Y. M. C. A. bowling teams have arranged a game for Thursday, March 19th.

Mrs. M. H. Wilson, of Grove street, is planning to give a bowling party in the near future.

SPRING SYMPTOMS.

Soon the bluebird will his ditty
Very vigorously dit,
Till the puleins of the city
Will be twittered with its twit,
And the burden of elation
On his vocalizing hung
Is the storied proclamation
That the spring has surely sprung.
But the echo of his chirrup
Will be little more than checked
Ere frigidity will stir up
And proceed to resurrect,
So this admonition courteous
You should write on mem'ry's scroll,
And from Geo. O. Stevens purchase
Some more antidotal coal.

The Next Best Thing.

The robber presented his glittering pistol.

"Have you a vacancy in your bookkeeping staff?" he demanded.

The president of the bank shook his head.

"Well—" (the outlaw sighed; he was palpably chagrined) "I'll have to be contented, then, with what cash you have on hand."

Stealing $17,413.18, he left the place.—Detroit Tribune.

Not the Answer She Wanted.

Hostess (who has made unusual preparations for a fine dinner)—I tell John that if he will bring people home unexpectedly to dinner, they must take just what we have.

The Last Straw.

He bore each passing fad or whim,
No wish met his denial,
Her lightest word was law to him,
He stood all test and trial.
E'en whispers of her broken oath
He scorned as idle rumors;
But he gave her back her plighted troth
The day she put on bloomers.

REGULAR AND SECEDING SALVATIONISTS ARE ACTIVELY AT WORK.

The Leaders of the New Movement Refute the Statements of Adjutant Damon—Announcements Made for This Evening

The strife and split in the Salvation Army circles has stirred both the regulars and seceders to unusual activity and each side is endeavoring to draw the biggest crowd. The regulars still hold their quarters in the Elkwood building and the new movement are holding meetings in Reform Hall. The seceders have become known as the Independent Corps of Salvationists. The leaders of this movement furnished The Press the following today for publication:

Independent Corps of Salvationists.

Capt. Mimms, formerly in command of Salvation Army Corps of this city, has been temporarily appointed to command the Independents pending the culmination of the permanent organization of the new movement by Commander Ballington Booth. Meetings every evening this week at Reform Hall at 8 o'clock. Come tonight. God bless you.

The regular corps also furnished a notice for publication, which is as follows:

Ensign Taylor, better known as the Golden Minstrel, with his wife, takes charge of the Salvation Army Corps today. They will make their first public appearance tonight. They are no strangers to Plainfield audiences. Don't fail to come. Big Ben will be on hand.

The following communication has also been received in reply to the statements made in the interview of Adjutant Damon published in The Press yesterday:

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Please permit the use of your columns to refute some statements made to your reporter by Adjutant Damon of the Salvation Army, detrimental to the character and principles of those who, after long and earnest searching for the entire truth in the matter, have acted in accordance with their convictions.

The subject of withdrawal from the Salvation Army was never discussed in any meeting, public or private, but was the outcome of earnest and faithful prayer. Feeling ourselves led by God (without whose guidance we should have refused to act in the matter) we called for an after meeting to follow our regular one of last Friday evening. In response, twenty-three or twenty-four members remained. The object of the meeting was then made known. After the matter had in turn by nearly all present been laid before the Throne of Grace we were led to withdraw from the Salvation Army.

A telegraphic despatch was sent to Capt. Saunders notifying her of said action at 7 o'clock Saturday morning. So undoubtedly she was notified, and did not, therefore, get her first information from a Newark paper for these two reasons: First, dispatches are invariably promptly delivered, and second, no Newark papers were notified, nor could have been in time for the morning publication.

The question was asked in our soldiers' meeting last night if any comrade remembered having "declared their allegiance to the Army," and not one can recall such a declaration, or any subject or remark that could have led to such a statement, at that or any other meeting.

It is imputed to us that we have violated our oath to the Army. We fail to see how in any manner we have done so. We sincerely regret to have been so falsely represented, but the character and integrity of our members is an open book to the citizens of this city. We are led to this action on our part by the heartfelt belief and assurance from God that it will redound to His honor and glory and to the Salvation of souls, which after all is the one and only object we have in view. Led by the Spirit of God and upheld by the prayers of the Christians of Plainfield, we are with brotherly love to all, yours in Christ.

Alexander Grant,
G. H. VanNest, Sergeant Major.
Treasurer.

Little Edith Hall Was Smothered.

City Physician M. S. Simpson examined the remains of Little Ethel K. Hall, who was found dead in bed yesterday morning by her mother, and issued a burial certificate. He was of the opinion that the baby was accidentally smothered while asleep with its parents.

Another Runaway.

A horse belonging to P. M. Demarest, the grocer, ran away on Washington avenue yesterday noon. The horse turned into West Front street and had almost reached Madison avenue when he was stopped by Will DeMeza. No damage was done.

Miss Arleen Crane, of West Eighth street, left yesterday for Branchport, to visit friends.

Miss Mamie French, of West Seventh street, will give a whist party to a number of friends Friday afternoon.

VOTING IS SLOW.

Not a Great Deal of Interest is Shown in the Election Today.

The voting in the borough is very slow and all the election boards are either playing pinochle or are asleep. The fight in the townships is raging. Pool Voorhees' milk wagons are doing noble work. All the farmers from Greenbrook way underneath Wasington Rock to the dividing line down near Bound Brook, are stirring and carrying Voorhees' banners. The The vote is being gotten out in one, two, three order. Up in Warren township at Mt. Bethel the voting is slow. No election in recent years has been held with so slight interest.

D. D. Smalley will in all probability be elected one of the Justices of the Peace in the borough. He is on the Democratic ticket and the Republicans are cutting J. A. Karet, who he is running against on the Republican ticket.

At noon about 80 votes were polled in the first district of the borough and about 70 in the second district.

The registry in the borough this year was 173, which is 13 more than that of last year. There were no erasures.

SELLING GOOD THINGS TO EAT.

The Lunch box Sociable of the Odd Ladies Was a Success.

A meeting of the Odd Ladies was held last evening in Red Men's Hall, West Front street, which was fairly well attended. The meeting was a short one, and at the conclusion a number of visitors arrived and then dancing was begun. After dancing had been going on for considerable time, the auction of lunch boxes began. Genial Bob Mattox, whose fame for this kind of business has extended far over the land, was the noisy auctioneer. But he kept business on the move, and his witty and timely remarks kept all in a roar of laughter. In fact, he made business so good that the Odd Ladies cleared expenses off the sale of lunch boxes alone. As soon as the contents of the boxes had been partaken of dancing was resumed to the music furnished by Naylor. Mrs. James Radin was floor manager.

The committee in charge, to whom the success of the affair is due, consisted of Mrs. Cox, chairman; Mrs. H. W. Angleman, Mrs. Page, Mrs. Perry and Mrs. Randolph.

An Opportune Lecture.

The lecture which the Grace P. E. Church Guild is arranging for next Saturday afternoon will be an interesting event. Miss Marguerite Lindley will talk on bicycling, illustrating her remarks with life-size posture drawings, skeleton, wheel and rider. Music will be one of the features and the room will be elaborately trimmed with college colors. The patronesses are as follows: Mrs. Marion Ackerman, Mrs. Charles Buell, Mrs. Bronson, Miss Baxton, Miss Lizzie Cook, Mrs. Rowland Cox, Mrs. Charles S. Case, Mrs. Simeon A. Cruickshank, Mrs. Harry Depew, Mrs. Edgerton, Mrs. Eaton, Mrs. Erick Erickson, Mrs. E. L. Finch, Mrs. Howard Fleming, Mrs. Hastings, Mrs. Louis Howard, Mrs. Charles Huntington, Mrs. Kleincke, Mrs. Lawson, Mrs. Lapsley, Mrs. W. E. Lowe, Miss Morris, Mrs. Mayer, Mrs. Minford, Miss Newton, Mrs. W. T. Pelletier, Mrs. J. W. Reinhart, Mrs. C. E. Ryder, Mrs. E. M. Rodman, Mrs. Randall, Mrs. R. M. Stover, Mrs. James Scott, Miss Tweedy, Mrs. L. G. Timpson, Mrs. D. T. Van Buren, Mrs. George W. Van Boskerck, Mrs. A. J. Woodruff, Mrs. Henry Wheeler, Mrs. Wills, Mrs. O. T. Waring.

Mrs. Chapman's At Home.

A pleasant "at home" was given yesterday afernoon and evening by Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Chapman at the home of L. W. Serrell on West Front street. A large number of guests were present both afternoon and evening, and the event was a charming one in every respect. Mrs. Chapman was assisted in receiving by Miss Ella Serrell, while Mrs. Harold Serrell and Mrs. H. R. Phillips presided at the table. They were assisted by Miss Margaret Harold, Misses Phillips, Miss Florence Serrell, and Mrs. Chapin, of Brooklyn.

Simon S. Hartman, of Tunnelton, West Va., has been subject to attacks of colic about once a year, and would have to call a doctor and then suffer for about twelve hours as much as some do when they die. He was taken recently just the same as at other times, and concluded to try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He says: "I took one dose of it and it gave me relief in five minutes. OBSERVATION ON CHINA.

A Retired Missionary Talks, Interestingly to Trinity's Endeavorers.

Every seat was occupied in the Sunday School room at Trinity Reformed Church last evening, when a special Christian Endeavor service was held. Miss Ella C. Benedict presided and after the hearty singing of two favorite hymns, all joined in the responsive reading of Second Corinthians, Eleventh Chapter, 22-28 verses inclusive. A quartette consisting of L. A. Hummer, Charles Hummer, Horace J. Martin and Ezra Loomis, then rendered a pleasing vocal selection. This was followed with prayer by Rev. Cornelius Schenck, after which Miss Benedict in a few well chosen words introduced Rev. Mr. VanDyke, a returned missionary from China. She said the event was of peculiar interest from the fact that the speaker was a classmate of the pastor, Mr. Schenck. Mr. VanDyke is a thoroughly interesting speaker and held closely the attention of every one present. His text was taken from the Second Chapter of the Gospel of John, the fifth verse: "Whatsoever He saith unto you, do it." He then spoke in part as follows: "I hope you will take this text and keep it close to your hearts. All missionaries feel that this command is a personal one. If the power of Christ can overcome the troubles in China, it can overcome your troubles here. The peculiarities of the Chinese language are not easy to overcome. In fact, it will almost knock you off your feet.

There are two distinct parts, the reading and the speaking. In the latter there are 40,000 characters. The hieroglphics used by the Chinese are especially odd. To represent peace they draw the roof of a house with a woman under it. For discord, the drawing is the same, only an additional woman is placed under the roof. The same picture is used to express home, with a woman and a pig under the roof. One beautiful symbol is their representation of glory and beauty, for which they use the sun and moon, and another of of especial note is their expression of love, which is done by using the characters for heart and perfect. And surely love proceeds from a perfect heart. The spoken language is very difficult owing to the many different dialects. There are eight different tones in a word. A missionary once made a grave mistake by telling her cook that four dead men were going to dine with her, instead of saying that four men were going to dine with her. They dread death very much and escape any expression of its meaning."

Mr. Van Dyke then briefly related some of the peculiarities regarding superstition and the position of woman. He told many interesting facts concerning these two important subjects in the Empire. Women are of no account and in some districts one-third of them are killed in babyhood. One woman very proudly said that she had killed five babies.

He said that the Empress-Dowager was now reading a Bible which had been presented to her, and that the Emperor was also reading a Bible which he had purchased. These things were very encouraging.

He said that the letters C. E. stood for China Evangelized and all should strive to that end."

At the close, Miss Benedict thanked Mr. VanDyke for the society for his interesting address. The quartette gave another excellent selection. Rev. Mr. Todd pronounced the benediction and the meeting closed. A short time was then spent socially, when all became better acquainted with each other.

Mail Carriers on Bicycles.

The bicycle has already entered one department of municipal government in the form of the mounted policemen, and now another innovation is announced along the same line. Post master Hetfield has made arrangements with Frank L. C. Martin, whereby he will furnish the whole post office staff with Cleveland Swell Specials. All through the summer and when the weather is good the city mail will be delivered by the flying wheelmen.

Miss Lewis' Engagement Announced.

The engagement of Miss Grace Edna Lewis, daughter of Rev Dr. Lewis, of Central avenue, to J. H. Parsons, of Chicago, is announced. Mr. Parsons is a graduate of Michigan University; a practical chemist, and president of the "J. H. Parsons Chemical Company," Masonic Temple, Chicago.

An Approaching Marriage.

The marriage of Miss Agnes Ecke and George W. Springer will take place on Monday evening, March 16th, at 7:30 o'clock, in the German Lutheran church. Rev. Mr. Kionka will perform the ceremony.

MR. REED STIRS THEM UP.

HIS RESOLUTION IN THE ASSEMBLY CAUSED LOTS OF TALK.

Proposition for a Delay in the Equal Taxation Bill—Mr. Reed Says That the Republicans Were Tangled Up

Equal taxation caused a bitter fight in the Assembly last night. There was a hearing in the afternoon at which Thomas N. McCarter, for the Lehigh Valley Railroad; James Buchanan, for the West Shore and Ontario and Western terminal; and Assemblyman Queen and Henry V. Condict, spoke for the bill. Their arguments were in the main the same advanced at the previous hearings.

When the House was called to order last night Mr. Reed, of Somerset, offered a long preamble and resolutions that the Governor be authorized to appoint a commission of five to consider the matter and report at the next or subsequent Legislature.

Mr. Reed, in advocating his resolutions, said that the committee had given hearings every week, at which the people of Hudson county had made statements which had been denied by the railroads and the railroads had made statements which had been denied by the people from Hudson. In the tangle he thought that the best thing that could be done would be to appoint the Commissioners and let them impartially investigate the subject and tell the House what should be done. He declared that there was politics in the bill, and that it was introduced to injure the Republican party

Mr. Queen made a long speech. He said that the gentleman from Somerset did not understand the situation. He said there was politics in it. "There is so much politics in it," he said, "that the committee has held the bill for weeks. Four times the committee has promised me to report this bill, and each time they have postponed the hearing on the pretence that other railroads wished to be heard. I have counted just sixty-two railroad systems in this State which have not yet been heard, and if each is to take a week it will take sixty two weeks more to dispose of the question.

"If the gentleman from Somerset had attended the hearings on this measure he would have become thoroughly acquainted with the subject. He would have learned from the arguments of the attorneys for the railroads all he wants to know. If this committee from which no bills like this ever return will report this bill and it is advanced to third reading and then is killed, I will vote for this Commission."

Mr. Robertson admitted that Hudson and Jersey City need relief, and was willing to go to their aid, but the House should be fair to the other counties of the State as well. He claimed that the commission should be appointed, and that it was fair for Jersey City and fair for the railroads.

Mr. Roll said that the resolution was a good one. He had attended all the hearings and was still at a loss to know what to do. He had heard it stated that Jersey City must have relief or she would be bankrupt. He wanted to know why it was that when the Democrats had the power they did not pass this bill. He claimed that it was a move to injure the Republican party, and he was afraid if it passed it would bring about a State tax in two years.

Speaker Derousse cut off further debate by putting the question. It was lost by a vote of 14 to 41. Messrs. Bullock, of Passaic, and Bowers and Flummerfelt, of Warren, voted with the Hudson men. Mr. Queen changed his vote to aye, and then moved to reconsider. Mr. Cagney moved to lay that upon the table. The Speaker put the motion, and, much to the disgust of the railroad people, declared the motion to table carried, which took the motion for the commission with it.

The Governor sent in his first vetoes last night. One was against the bills extending the operation of the Martin act to all assessments for water rents and improvements, because it was not in accord with the purpose the framers of the Martin act had in mind.

The other permits recognizances for inn and hotel licenses to be taken before a Master in Chancery or Supreme Court Commissioner. This the Governor said afforded a good illustration of that kind of useless legislation to which he referred in his inaugural.

The bill sanctioning the lease of the Greenwich Lake road to the Erie came up. Senator Voorhees moved that it be laid over. The spruce young representative of the Erie road was on the floor directly behind Mr. Voorhees.

"You had no business to make that motion," said the young man. This nettled Senator Voorhees, and he immediately moved that the floor be cleared. The motion was carried, and the floor was cleared of more than one hundred persons. The offending young man was well out of the chamber before the motion was carried.

Senate bills 37 and 60, which repeal the charter of the West Jersey Game and Protective Association, also provides for licensing non-resident gunners, and appoints ten game wardens in each county to see that all game laws are observed, came up on final passage.

The bill was championed by Senator Stokes and Mr. Johnson opposed it. The bill passed.

The House Committee on Corporations yesterday afternoon listened to arguments for and against Assemblyman Roll's bill, which provides that the granting of the right to construct trolley lines on highways shall be taken from the township authorities and vested in the freeholders. It is aimed at Montclair, whose township committee has thus far baffled all efforts of the traction people to get into that town.

CALLS OUT A PROTEST.

A Citizen Makes Pointed Comments on the Mamie Clark Case.

To the Editor of The Daily Press: Kindly accept my thanks for your timely remarks on the action of City Judge Demeza in the Mamie Clark case. If ever a public act needed scoring, this case certainly demands it. The differences of the sisters is reprehensible enough, but the City Court made matters ten fold worse. What in the name of common sense will thirty days in an old bastile do to reclaim a wayward child. If the child is wayward which I greatly doubt, the best and most Christian act the Judge can do is to dispatch the Chief of Police to Elizabeth and return the child to her home. Some one has said:

Be kind to the erring, the meek, [weak
'Tis the coward alone would trample the
Ye know not how deeply the past they deplore
In charity cover their sins evermore.

Return the child to her home.

X Rays.

A Statement From Mr. Clark.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—There seems to be a misconstruction of Judge DeMeza's action in sentencing my daughter to the county jail for thirty days, and many seem to think that he did so without just cause. This is not so. She was sent there by the City Judge upon the earnest solicitation of myself and family in order to detain her from the wrong life she was starting to follow, while arrangements were made to have her placed in some school of correction where she would be subject to the discipline which neither myself nor family were able to administer to her, owing to her willful disposition and the bad influences which she was subject to. I did what I thought was best for her, and it seems to me that the criticism of Judge DeMeza that he was unduly harsh in the sentence, is uncalled for.

Thomas Clark.

WILL OPPOSE THE AMENDMENT.

Rev. A. H. Lewis to Appear Before a Congressional Committee Tomorrow.

Rev. Dr. Lewis went to Washington, D. C., today to take part in a hearing before the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives tomorrow. The hearing is with reference to a proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States which, if adopted, would read as follows:

We, the people of the United States, acknowledging Almighty God as the source of all power and authority in civil government, our Lord Jesus Christ as the ruler of nations, and His revealed will as of supreme authority in civil affairs, * * * do ordain and establish, etc.

Dr. Lewis will speak against the amendment upon the ground that it would bring religious issues into National politics in such a way as to secularize Christianity and lessen its influence for good by securing a practical union of Church and State.

The amendment is in the interest of what is called "National Reform," or, more commonly, "The God in the Constitution Movement."

—Monday evening, March 23d, Mrs. Charles Bilyeu, superintendent of the Jerry McAll Mission, New York, will address the Christian Endeavor society of Trinity Reformed church.

All last winter Mr. Geo. A. Mills, of Labanon, Conn., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. At times it was so severe that he could not stand up straight, but was drawn over on one side. "I tried different remedies without receiving relief," he says, "until about six months ago I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. After using it for three days my rheumatism was gone and has not returned since. For sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue. T. S Armstrong, Manager.

CANDIDATES GALORE!

MANY JERSEY LEADERS WISH TO BE NATIONAL DELEGATES.

Reed in Good Shape and Harrison by No Means Considered as Being Among the "Has Beens"—Other Favorites.

Although it is a month yet before the Republican State Convention will be held to elect delegates-at-large to St. Louis, there is a pronounced activity through all sections of the State, says a despatch from Trenton to the New York Advertiser. Because of the fact that New Jersey has no favorite son of her own, friends of all the candidates have taken the license to come here and campaign. As a consequence it is more than probable that the delegation will be divided, with Morton and Reed in the order named having the call. McKinley has some friends, but not so many among the influential politicians as have his competitors.

The delegates-at-large slated are United States Senator Sewell, Garrett A. Hobart, Franklin Murphy, and John Kean. They are themselves divided. Kean in a sense is a Morton man, for he believes that a sound financial policy is the one great thing that the country needs, and that New York's Governor is the man pre-eminently qualified to inaugurate and sustain it

Mr. Kean is a man of large wealth. He is vice president of the Manhattan Trust Company, and is actively identified with many great financial enterprises He was once an unsuccessful candidate for Governor, but failure did not sour him. What influence he can wield would naturally be for Morton.

Senator Sewell, in his habit of silence, is a first cousin to Matt Quay. He has not yet indicated exactly where he will be found. He has, however, long been a friend of Speaker Reed, and one of his most ardent admirers. At times friendship does not count for much, but, other things being equal, it is perhaps not doing him an injustice to say that he is for Reed.

Garrett Hobart is always a factor. He has said so many pleasant things about all the candidates that the particular direction of his journeying is not plain. The fact probably is that he has not himself come to any conviction. However, he is personally a warm friend of ex-Senator Thomas C. Platt, and all friends of Thomas C. Platt will it is understood, be requested by that gentleman to work for Morton.

McKinley's strength is with the people as a whole. He is signally lacking in the friendship of politicans who are potent, and that is a handicap which will undoubtedly tell against him. Strange as it may seem, a popular vote taken at the present time would demonstrate a remarkable showing for General Harrison. There are thousands who insist that his letter of declination does not in any manner either destroy or impair his availability as a candidate and that his declination to go as a delegate from Indiana may be constructed into the assumption of a position of a position that he wishes in no way to be held responsible for any action of the convention, even if it should nominate him.

Either Morton or Reed, it is believed, could carry this new Republican State in the fall. The administration which Governor Griggs is giving is clean cut, wholesome, efficient and economical and by comparison with those of his predecessors will be no small factor in holding the people to the allegiance which they accepted last autumn. The Legislature, as well, is making a record and is wisely refraining from taking undue partisan advantage.

Benefit for Mrs. Richter.

Keeper of Wampum William A. Westphal, of Miantonomoh Tribe, No. 118, I. O. R. M., yesterday conveyed to Mrs. John Richter, of Richmond street, a check for $119 50. This is the benefit from Miantonomoh Tribe for the recent death of her husband.

Not to be Trifled With.

(From Cincinnati Gazette.)

Will people ever learn that a "cold" is an accident to be dreaded, and that when it occurs treatment should be promptly applied? There is no knowing where the trouble will end; and while complete recovery is the rule, the exeeptions are terribly frequent, and thousands upon thousands of fatal illnesses occur every year ushered in by a little injudicious exposure and seemingly trifling systems. Beyond this, there are today countless invalids who can trace their complaints to "colds," which at the time of occurrence gave no concern, and were therefore neglected.—When troubled with a cold use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is prompt and effectual. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue, T. S. Armstrong Manager.

FOUR FORTS TAKEN

Cuban Insurgents Victorious in Several Engagements.

FOREIGN SUGAR PLANTERS PROTEST

The Order Compelling Them To Abandon Their Estates Received with Dissatisfaction—Patriots Obtain Supplies of Ammunition and Arms.

Santiago de Cuba, Feb. 29, via Tampa, Fla., March 10.—On the 25th inst. the rebel forces under command of Gen. Matias attacked the town of Sagua de Tanamo, seizing, after a three hours' fight, one of the forts which defend the place. The rebels entered the fort and seized the arms, ammunition and provisions, afterward burning the fort and several houses. The rebels had two killed and nine wounded. A rebel force of 100, men under Capt. Dominguez, appeared yesterday in Moron. They burned the two forts of the place and took with them all the arms, ammunition and provisions they found there. There was no Spanish garrison in Moron, as the Spanish troops had left the day before in compliance with the general order of the military governor of the province of Santiago to abandon all the small villages. This order has been harmful to the government, as all the men of those small places have joined the insurgents. The foreign planters have presented a joint protest to their consuls against the order compelling them to abandon their plantations. On the 23 i inst. the rebel forces of Brig.-Gen. Periquito Lorez had an engagement in Ramon de las Saguas with the Spanish column under Col. Recas. The Spaniards retreated, losing eight soldiers killed and twenty wounded. Two mules laden with ammunition were captured by the rebels. The rebels had one killed and seven wounded, among the latter Capt. Vega, who fell into the hands of the troops, and subsequently died from the effects of his wounds.

Fort Blown Up with Dynamite.

Insurgent leaders Salvador Rios and Puyals, with their party, had an encounter with the Spanish column of Lieutenant-Colonel Escudero, 700 strong, on the 24th, in Monte Oscure, Bayamo. The Spanish column retired to Bayamo after half an hour's firing, leaving three soldiers prisoners with the rebels, three killed and eighteen wounded. The insurgents had nine wounded. Day before yesterday a party of rebels compelled the garrison of Fort Escondido, near Caimanera, Guantanamo, to surrender. The insurgents blew up the fort with dynamite bombs. The garrison was composed of one officer and forty soldiers. On the 24th inst. the Spanish Gen. Gonzalez Munoz, with 1,200 men, infantry, cavalry and artillery, had an encounter in La Herradura and Sal, near Manzanillo, with the rebel forces of Mendigta, Vera and Estrada, 2,000 in number. After very hard fighting the Spaniards retreated, leaving in the field twenty-five killed and eighty wounded. Among the former was Lieut.-Col. Lolo Benitez, of the Spanish guerrillas, whose body was taken to Vequita and buried there. Among the latter was Lieut.-Col. Tejarizo, who was very seriously wounded. The sugar estates San Luis and Santa Anna have stopped grinding, all the employes having joined the rebels.

Weyler Modifies His Proclamation.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

Havana, March 7, via Tampa, Fla., March 10.—Arrests of civilians under the sweeping provisions of Gen. Weyler's proclamation of February 16, have been made at such a rate and in many cases with so little evidence of guilt that Gen. Weyler was compelled a week ago to issue instructions to his officers to be more careful, as he required more proof than verbal denunciation. Yesterday he issued a circular in which he stated that absolute proof must be furnished by other than interested parties before accused persons will be deported and warning commanders that they will be held responsible for false answers. Without doubt Gen. Weyler has in view the effect of this order abroad, as well as here, for the manner in which Cubans, who have never borne arms against Spain, have been dragged from their homes, from their families, their stores or their farms and thrown into prisons with felons, and after a few days' delay, placed on board ship for what is probably the vilest penal colony on the face of the earth, has become a shame that cries aloud for redress. Gen. Weyler, upon his arrival, set at liberty a number of these civilian prisoners, whom Gen. Pando had taken from their daily occupation in the eastern end of the island, but hundreds have been sent to Ceuta, Africa, and to the Isle of Pines, and the arrests are increasing in number.

A Pitiful Picture.

The wreck and ruin which is being visited upon this fair island is pitiful to contemplate. But for the warmth of the climate and the ease with which life is sustained in the tropics, thousands would have perished ere this and the island would be a charnel house before the end is reached. People have lived by sucking sugar cane and eating plantains. Families have camped for days upon the ruins of their homes in burned districts, sleeping upon the ground nights and crawling under a thatch during the heat of the sun. J. FRANK CLARK.

Must Live on Sixpence a Week.

London, March 10.—The Constantinople correspondent of the Chronicle telegraphs that the American donations are barely keeping alive six thousand of the Armenian sufferers at Marash. The allotment to each person is only sixpence weekly.

BUILDING PLANS.

Meeting of the Corporation To Be Held This Afternoon.

New Haven, Conn., March 10.—A meeting of the Yale corporation has been called for this afternoon to decide on erecting several buildings. Plans for the new dormitory on York street may be accepted, and it is thought that work will be begun this spring. The building will not be erected at the expense of a donation, but from the general university fund. The matter of a new alumni hall will probably be discussed. Prominent graduates have started a movement to construct one at an expense of nearly a million dollars, and it is said that preliminary plans have been drawn up for such an edifice. Work on it will not be begun for some time, till subscriptions are guaranteed sufficient to assure the fund needed. The site suggested for the building is on the corner of Elm and Orange streets, where the First Methodist Episcopal church now stands.

CAPT. BRABAZON DISCHARGED.

Commander of the Bermuda No Longer Held as a Witness.

New York, March 10.—The discharge of Capt. Brabazon, the commander of the alleged Cuban filibustering steamer Bermuda, who was arrested as a witness, and who is under $1,000 bail, is indicative of the fact that he gave no evidence of value against the so-called filibusters. The engineer, assistant engineer and steward of the Bermuda, who were also arrested as witnesses, were brought before the grand jury and were held until to-morrow. It is intimated that the detention of the engineers and the steward as witnesses was with a view to prevent the departure of the Bermuda, and there is also another rumor to the effect that the Bermuda has been re-equipped and may slip her anchor at any time.

WILL REMAIN LOYAL.

Atlantic Division, Salvation Army, Not To Follow Ballington Booth.

Philadelphia, March 10.—The Salvation Army in this city will probably not cast its lot with the Ballington Booths. Brigadier William Evans, the commander of the Atlantic Coast division of the army, says: "So far as my knowledge extends as commander the Atlantic division is solid for the old flag. There may be some who will prove disloyal, but the great body of the command will remain true." The Atlantic Coast division embraces Pennsylvania, Delaware, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and a portion of New Jersey. The leader of the German branch of the army in this city was also seen, and he said the portion he commanded would remain true also.

NO NEW TRIAL FOR THEM.

Court Equally Divided in the Case of Insane Keepers Brown and Swan.

Wilmington, Del., March 10.—In general sessions court yesterday the motion for a new trial for keepers Brown and Swan of the state insane asylum, who were convicted of manslaughter in causing the death of Leon Pisa, an inmate of the institution, was lost by reason of an equal division of the court. Judge Grubb was about to impose sentence on the prisoners when H. H. Ward, their counsel, interposed with a motion for an arrest of judgment. Argument will be heard on this motion and a decision will be rendered on Saturday.

ITS EMPLOYES' MONEY.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Asked To Account for $400,000.

Baltimore, March 10.—Judge Harlan has signed an order requiring the Baltimore & Ohio railroad company to show cause, by March 23, why it should not pay into court all the funds held in trust for the Baltimore & Ohio Employes' Relief association amounting to something like $400,000, and why a new trustee should not be appointed. It is alleged that the company instead of investing the money for the benefit of the association has turned it into its own coffers and now accounts for it with the floating debt.

HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Over $6,000 Collected at the Recent Carnegie Hall Meeting.

New York, March 10.—At a meeting of the New York presbytery, moderator Jesse F. Forbes presiding, it was announced that the contributions at the Home Missionary meeting in Carnegie hall, which was presided over by President Cleveland, amounted to $6,055.51. It was voted by the presbytery that the money be handed to the treasurer of the home board to be applied to the deficiency or debt fund of the latter body.

THE TAMSEN CHARGES.

New York's Sheriff's Hearing To Begin in Two Weeks.

Albany, March 10.—Deputy Attorney General Hasbrouck, who is to act for the attorney general in the prosecution of the charges against Sheriff Tamsen of New York city, has agreed to the beginning of the investigation before Commissioner Robertson in New York city on Monday, March 23, at 10 o'clock a. m. The place for conducting the examination has not yet been fixed upon.

Postmaster Wilde's Condition.

Quincy, Mass., March 10.—Postmaster Charles F. Wilde of Wollaston, who went to Boston, Saturday, to make his monthly deposit with the sub-treasurer, amounting to $594, and who returned to Wollaston in a dazed condition without money or any receipt for it, has remained in a semi-dazed condition ever since. No explanation is given for his condition.

Treasury Gold Reserve.

Washington, March 10.—The treasury gold reserve to-day at the opening of business stood at $126,411,209.

CUBAN RESOLUTIONS

Dupont Case May Be Used To Defeat or Postpone Them.

IT IS A QUESTION OF PRIVILEGE

Which Ranks Higher, a Conference Report or a Claim to a Seat in the Senate?—May Be Decided This Afternoon.

Washington, March 10.—If there is any desire in the senate to defeat or postpone the Cuban belligerency resolutions, and the events of yesterday would seem to so indicate, the Dupont case may be used as a parliamentary method to secure that result. The question whether the report of a conference committee is not of higher privilege than the claim to a seat in the senate will come up again this afternoon, and the Cuban resolutions will then probably have their fate decided. The Cuban belligerency resolutions, as reported from the conference committee, did not have the plain smooth sailing in the senate which the resolutions of the same general import had when they were reported from the committee on foreign relations. At that time there was practically no obstacle interposed to them; but when the conference report was taken up in the senate, it was attacked by Mr. Hale, rep., Me., in a two hours' speech of great force and earnestness, and then it had to give way to a question of still higher privilege than a conference report; that is, the right of each state to be represented in the senate of the United States. That question is directly involved in the report of the committee on privileges and elections, to the effect that Mr. Dupont is entitled to the vacant seat in the senate from the state of Delaware. The negative of that proposition was asserted in a speech by Mr. Turpie, dem., Ind., one of the minority of the committee on privileges and elections, his contention being that Mr. Watson, while acting governor of Delaware, was still, in law and in fact, a senator in the state legislature and had a right to vote in the general assembly; and that, his vote being counted, Mr. Dupont had not a majority of all the votes cast.

Affairs in the House.

Among the bills passed in the house by unanimous consent were the following: Limiting to ten cents per copy the maximum price for copies of patent specifications, and to print 20,000 copies of the book on agriculture by the department of agriculture. Mr. Hendrick, dem., Ky., was assigned to the banking and currency committee in place of Mr. Cowen, dem., Mo. Chairman Daniels gave notice that he would to-morrow call up the contested election case of Aldrich vs. Robbins from the Fourth district of Alabama. Under the rules District of Columbia business was then taken up and several matters were disposed of. The rest of the session was devoted to further consideration, in committee of the whole, of the post-office appropriation bill. Without disposing of it the committee rose, and the house adjourned.

WORK OF INCENDIARIES.

Six Horses, 300 Chickens and Ten Hogs Burned to Death in a Barn.

Hackensack, N. J., March 10.—A new barn belonging to Peter Van Iderstein of Tea Neck was burned. Six horses, 300 chickens and ten hogs were burned to death. Farming implements, hay, harness and wagons were also destroyed. The loss is about $6,000. It was the work of incendiaries, the barn being set on fire in two places during Van Iderstein's absence.

Noted Abolitionist Dead.

Cleveland, March 10.—Dr. W. H. Little, who was a noted Ohio abolitionist before the war and one of the wealthiest of Cleveland's citizens, died at his home, yesterday, aged 80 years.

Scrofula Breaks Out in Running Sores

The Poison Perfectly Cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"A year ago a sore came on one of my limbs. It spread, and soon four others, which proved to be as bad as the first, broke out. I could not account for them and my physician did not seem to do me any good. The eruptions would spread to the size of a half dollar, and the flesh would become ulcerated nearly to the bone. I finally decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after taking several bottles of the medicine I am glad to say that my limb is now perfectly well, and I am in better health than I have been for some time. Soon after the sores appeared I was compelled to take my bed, but

Creates Strength,

makes new blood, builds new flesh tissue, does Bovinine, that most powerful condensation into the smallest possible bulk of the vital elements of lean, raw beef. Prepared by a special cold process that precludes the waste of any of the desired elements of a complete health-maintaining food. Charles M. Murphy, the well-known champion bicyclist writes concerning

Bovinine

"You have undoubtedly seen by the papers that I have been winning a great deal; it may be Bovinine, however. I have used it continually and find it a great stimulant, with none of the bad after effects that attend the use of alcohol." Bovinine is used wherever it is necessary to maintain strength and life, with the happiest results in every instance is excellent for all throat inflammations and consumption. Consumptives will invariably derive benefit from its use, as it quickly abate the cough, renders expectoration easy, assisting nature in restoring wasted tissues. There is a large percentage of those who suppose their cases to be consumption who are only suffering from a chronic cold or deep seated cough, often aggravated by catarrh. For catarrh use Ely's Cream Balm. Both remedies are pleasant to use. Cream Balm 50c per bottle; Pineola Balsam 25c, at druggists. In quantities of $2.50 will deliver on receipt of amount. Your Spring Clothing

Pineola Cough Balsam

Rather early to speak of it, but if it needs cleaning or dyeing, it isn't too early to have us do that work for you. This is our dull season—our employes are here ready for work. We'd like to have your goods now. We can give them better attention than in the rush of the spring season. Then we'll have to have more time or rush them at the expense of good work. Now we can take our time, do the work better than if hurried and you'll have the clothing all ready for warm weather.

Look in the closet or trunk and find your spring wear that needs cleaning and dyeing and bring it to us now, or better still, our wagon will call for it if you will send us word.

BROCKVILLE MOURNS

Yesterday's Tragedy Causes a Suspension of Business.

THE INSANE MURDERER IN PRISON

One Man Dead, Two Mortally Wounded and Several Others Seriously Injured, the Maniac's Work. He Himself Is Dying.

Brockville, Ont., March 10.—Brockville is still in an intense state of excitement over the tragic events of yesterday. Never in its history has the town been so convulsed. The fearful crime of yesterday will be stamped upon the minds of all while life lasts. It was one of the most awful tragedies ever enacted in the Dominion of Canada. The total result of the tragic affair was one man shot dead on the spot, the chief of police mortally wounded, another member of the force seriously wounded, an Indian hurt and six others suffering more or less from wounds inflicted by a single man armed with a breech-loading shotgun. And the cause of all the terrible destruction and suffering is himself lying at the point of death from wounds inflicted by shots fired at him in order to put a stop to his awful work and effect his capture.

The Excitement Intense.

The town clock had just struck the noon hour and the streets were thronged with people on their way to dinner. Suddenly the sharp crack of a gun was heard in the western end of the town, followed by other reports in quick succession. Soon the news spread that several persons had been shot and the excitement became intense. The cause of all the trouble was a man named Lapont, who resides about six miles north of the town on what is known as the Perth road. He has usually been looked upon as of not very sound mind, but generally inoffensive.

Chief of Police Rose Shot.

Just about noon he made his appearance on the Perth road, walking in the direction of King street, the principal thoroughfare of the town. As he neared King street he suddenly threw his head back and gave vent to several loud yells such as fox-hunters often use in calling their dogs and at the same time fired a couple of shots in the air. When he had got within about twenty yards of the corner of King and Perth streets he took up his position alongside a high bill board on the west side of Perth street. Just at this time Chief of Police Rose happened to come up to the opposite corner, and Lapont, taking deliberate aim, fired, the charge of heavy buckshot lodging in the chief's chest, throat and head. In falling to the ground, Rose pushed an old man named Moore forward past the corner of the building. Lapont fired again and Moore fell dead. An old Indian named Dixon, who was close by, received a portion of the charge in his face and head.

The Murderer Wounded.

As soon as the crowd collected their senses plans were set on foot to capture the murderer. The latter still stood where he had first stationed himself, and at each discharge of his gun could be seen calmly taking loaded cartridges from his pocket and reloading. Constable Tinsley took up a position behind a weigh scale and began firing at Lapont with a revolver, but the range was too long and the shots proved ineffective. Lapont continued firing as fast as he could reload and several persons were more or less injured. Finally Tinsley secured possession of a shot gun and crossed to a grocery store, entering by a side door. In order to get at Lapont Tinsley stepped out to the sidewalk and just as he raised his gun, Lapont fired and the constable had to retreat covered with blood. In the meantime other persons armed with guns and revolvers had got to the upper windows of adjacent buildings and fired at Lapont. All at once Lapont was seen to drop his gun and fall to the ground. One of the shots had struck him in the abdomen and another in the leg. The angry mob made a rush for him the moment he fell, and seizing him, dragged him to the centre of the road, crying "shoot him!" "lynch him!" By the efforts of the more cool-headed, the mob was prevented from carrying the threat into execution. He was taken to the lock-up.

Business Practically Suspended.

When quiet had been somewhat restored, the scene that was presented was agonizing in the extreme. The body of old man Moore lay on the sidewalk cold in death. In a store adjoining Chief of Police Rose lay suffering terribly from his wounds. The old Indian lay on the sidewalk covered with blood. Constable Tinsley and several others were also badly wounded and covered with blood. To-day the town is in mourning, and business is practically suspended.

Fell Headlong Down a Shaft.

New York, March 10.—Last night Ira Kane, the elevator conductor in the envelope factory of Berlin & Jones, fell down the elevator shaft from the fourth floor to the basement, and was so badly injured that he died within an hour. It is thought that he left the elevator for a moment and when he returned, not noticing the car had ascended, fell headlong down the shaft.

Charged with Murderous Assault.

Pembroke, Mass., March 10.—Joseph Trow, who says he belongs in Fall River, was arrested here by request of the chief of police of Oswego, N. Y., for a murderous assault committed in that city last October. He started for Oswego last evening.

H. W. PEABODY'S PLAN.

His Ideas of Money Presented to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

Washington, March 10.—H. W. Peabody of Boston yesterday addressed the house committee on banking and currency regarding existing conditions of the currency. First he would protect the redemption fund by a complete separation from the general treasury cash and provide that the re-issue of notes redeemed with gold should be only in exchange for gold. He would have gold certificates discontinued when there were any notes in the redemption fund. He would retire the treasury notes by a low rate bond to be sold for legal tender money for the purpose of enabling banks to replace the retired notes, by issue of national bank notes according to the needs of business. National banks should be relieved of tax on circulation and allowed to issue notes up to the par value of government bonds. These reforms, he thought, would render the present system safe and sound and the retirement of part or all of the greenbacks could be undertaken at a future time.

VALENCIA QUIET TO-DAY.

Demonstrations Against the United States Resumed at Bilboa.

Madrid, March 10.—Quiet prevails in the city of Valencia to-day. More arrests were made of persons who took part in Sunday's riotous demonstrations. At Bilbao the manifestations against the United States were resumed. A large crowd of rioters proceeded to the American consulate and stoned the gendarmes who were guarding the building. Nine of the guards were quite severely injured. Reinforcements were hurriedly dispatched to the consulate and upon their arrival a charge was made upon the mob, which was quickly dispersed. A score of the rioters were wounded by the gendarmes and six were arrested. The Heraldo says that the Hon. Hannis Taylor, the American minister, is about to send his family away from Madrid.

THE ELEANOR RETURNS.

Cruise of the Yacht Around the World Ends at New Haven.

New London, Conn., March 10.—The steam yacht Eleanor of the New York Yacht club, Scott master, William A. Slater owner, arrived in this harbor last evening from a trip around the world, having been absent since Oct. 27, 1894, in which time she traversed 42,406 nautical miles, and did it almost without mishap, only trifling delays having been experienced during the entire voyage. During the trip the yacht visited Fayal, the Azores, Marseilles, Cannes, Leghorn, Naples, Messina, Port Said, Ismalia, Suez, Parem, Aden, Bombay, Columbo, Trinkemalle, Penang, Singapore, Borneo, Manilla, Hong Kong, Amoy, Nagasaki, Yokohama, Honolulu, San Francisco and California ports and British Columbia.

FRENCH SPIES SENTENCED.

Engineer Schoren, Lieut. Pfeiffer and Ringbauer Convicted at Leipsic.

Berlin, March, 10.—The secret trial of Engineer Schoren, Lieut. Pfeiffer and a journalist named Ringbauer, who were arrested at Leipsic on the charge of being spies in the employ of the French government, has ended in the conviction of the accused. Schoren was sentenced to seven years' imprisonment at hard labor, Pfeiffer was sentenced to two years' and Ringbauer to one year's imprisoment.

THE ABYSSINIAN CAMPAIGN.

Italy's New Cabinet Will Probably Prosecute the War.

Rome, March 10.—It now seems probable that the new Italian cabinet will prosecute the war in Abyssinia, Premier di Rudini having, it is said, renounced his own views, favoring the withdrawal of the Italian troops, upon accepting his portfolio. It is said that the Abyssinian losses at the battle of Adowa were enormous, but it is possible that this report has been spread to appease the populace.

James H. McVicker's Funeral.

Chicago, March 10.—The funeral services over the remains of the veteran actor and manager, James H. McVicker, were conducted at his late home this morning.

RETAINS HIS NERVE

Holmes Laughingly Hears His Death Warrant Read.

COOLEST MAN IN THE WHOLE PARTY

A Remarkable Exhibition of Sang-Froid. Joked with the Sheriff—Says He Is Willing To Die—Precautions Taken Against Suicide.

Philadelphia, March 10.—That the remarkable nerve which has upheld the murderer, Holmes, ever since his arrest for the murder of Benjamin F. Pietzel has not yet deserted him was well evidenced yesterday when the death warrant was read to him by Sheriff Clement. He was the coolest man in the party and gave a remarkable exhibition of sang-froid. He was as suave, cheerful and affable as usual. When the sheriff and his party reached the prison they were met by Deputy Anderson and the party was conducted to Holmes' cell. He had been reading and when he arose to greet his visitors he tossed the book upon his cot and smiled a welcome. Lawyer Roton introduced the sheriff and the others, and then, without further ado, Sheriff Clement drew the death warrant from his pocket and proceeded to read it. The spot in the cell where the sheriff stood was not adapted to reading owing to a lack of light. Holmes observed the sheriff's dilemma and remarked in a cheerful tone, "step over to the window, Mr. Sheriff, you will find more light there." Throughout the reading Holmes maintained an affable manner. At the conclusion, Sheriff Clement, who was visibly affected, turned to the condemned man and extending his hand offered his sympathy and implored him to make his peace with God. Holmes thanked the sheriff and expressed himself as willing to die. There was another round of handshaking and the sheriff, the lawyers and the deputy left the cell. As the sheriff was passing out he omitted to bow his head to clear the upper part of the low entrance to the cell. Holmes observed that the house official's hat was in danger of collision with the door and called out: "Be careful, sheriff, or you will bump your head." This caused a ripple of laughter. As the sheriff was moving down the corridor Holmes called after him: "You can, of course, find me here when you want me." Assistant Superintendent Richardson will probably not remove Holmes from his present cell for a week, but the prisoner will be more closely guarded. It is usual to set the regular death watch about a week previous to the day of execution. When that shall be done the condemned man will be taken to a better lighted cell after first being submitted to a change of clothing to prevent his having in his possession anything that would permit suicide. Lawyer Roton had a long conversation with Holmes after the warrant had been read, the subject of which Mr. Roton refused to make known.

RAINES LIQUOR TAX BILL.

It Will Be Made a Party Measure in the New York Assembly.

Albany, March 10.—The republican majority in the senate last night showed its desire to hasten the passage of the Raines liquor tax bill by fixing 10 a. m. as the meeting time of to-day's session instead of 11 o'clock, the usual hour. Speaker Fish of the assembly said this morning that the bill will be made a party measure in the lower house and that a caucus of the republican assemblymen will be held as soon as the bill is received from the senate. The greater New York bill, it is expected, will pass the senate this afternoon.

Erie Railroad Earnings.

New York, March 10.—The gross earnings of the Erie system for January were $2,316,112, an increase of $221,922; working expenses, $1,821,995, an increase of $79,495, and net, $494,117, an increase of $142,496. Included in the expenses of 1896 is one-twelfth of the taxes of the entire year.

Debs Case Nolle Prossed.

Chicago, March 10.—In the United States district court yesterday District Attorney Black entered a nolle prosse in the case of Debs et al. This was the prosecution of Eugene V. Debs and other officers of the American Railway union for interfering with trains carrying the United States mail.

Wholesale Grocers Assign.

Fall River, Mass., March 10.—H. Francis Lawton & Co., wholesale grocers, have made a general assignment to George Grim. The firm desires to continue business if any arrangement can be made. A statement of the assets and liabilities is not given out.

May Be Sold to the N. E. R. R. Co.

Woonsocket, R. I., March 10.—H. G. and E. K. Ray last evening bought all holdings of their fellow stockholders in the Woonsocket & Pascoag Railroad company, preliminary, it is understood, to the sale of the road to the New England Railroad company.

Confirmed by the Senate.

Washington, March 10.—The senate in executive session confirmed the following nominations of postmasters: Maine—H. W. Gould, Skowhegan. Massachusetts—W. J. Greene, Watertown. New York—E. Prentiss Bailey, Utica.

$5,000 Reward Offered.

Paterson, N. J., March 10.—The board of aldermen last night decided to offer a reward of $5,000 for the arrest and coviction of the murderer of Mamie E. Sullivan, who was found near a vacant lot with her skull crushed in a few days ago.

Nothing makes a man feel sillier than to shake hands with a woman who pulls her hand away as though she had struck a snake.—Atchison Globe.

Clark township has the least expenses of any township in Union county. The total amount of their budget of expenses for the ensuing year is $1,200.

Governor Griggs, of New Jersey, has sent through the State Department at Washington, a letter of thanks to the American colony in Berlin for the resolutions passed at a meeting of the colony expressing sorrow and sympathy at the death of the late Hon. Theodore Runyon.

The Union county Republicans count on making a clean sweep in today's township elections for Freeholders, with the possible exception of Summit Township, and there a big fight will be made to defeat Freeholder Swain, Democrat. There are seventeen members in the Board of Freeholders, and of these all but four are Republicans. The Republicans have solid delegations from Elizabeth, Plainfield and Rahway, and control all the townships but Summit, Westfield, Clark and Union.—Newark News.

The trade unions have gradually learned that it is their wisest policy to admit women workers upon the same basis as men engaged in the same trade, and to insist that the women shall receive the same wages as men for the same work. Much remains to be done in this line, and while it is being accomplished let every workingman also use his franchise to that end, insisting that women employed by the public shall receive as high wages as men when their work is equal. Let it apply to schools as to other employment. As long as injustice is done women who work, men need not expect anything better.—Newark Call.

A most ridiculous farce is being perpetrated every week in enforcing the Sunday law in some of our cities. In New York, Sunday, Feb. 16th, the proprietor of a barber shop concluded to shave himself, the shop having been closed to customers, according to the provision of the recent law. He called the boy to lather his face. A keen-eyed policeman discovered this wicked act, and demanding admission, proceeded at once to arrest the boy. After keeping him all night locked up as a criminal, the next morning the court dismissed the case. And this is the valiant service in which our city police and country spies are engaged. Under the inspiration of the promoters of the observance of the "American Sabbath," this beautiful work of legal Christianity is carried forward.—Sabbath Recorder.

ANCIENTS HAD SENSE.

Dated Beginning of Year From Opening of Spring.

When All Things in Nature Start Afresh.

Some Other Things in Which the Ancients Have Given Us Points.

The ancients began their year with the advent of spring. How much more appropriate thus to begin the New Year with the new life of nature in the awakening spring. At this season all processes throughout the natural world start afresh.

The ancients also showed their sagacity and appreciation of the great changes and active processes of the spring time by realizing, that this is also the time for renewed life and energy in the human system. They well knew that the blood should be cleansed from impurities and the nerves reinvigorated at this season. Hence the establishment of the custom of taking a good spring medicine.

The most sensible and healthy custom is followed by almost everybody at the present day, few people of intelligence venturing to go through this trying time of change from winter to summer without taking a spring medicine.

The unanimity on this subject is a settled fact: the only question heretofore has been in regard to what is the best thing to take. The people are now fast becoming unanimous in their decision that as a spring tonic and restorative, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is preeminently the best.

Year after year Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy has proved itself the surest, most positive and reliable remedy. Made from pure vegetable medicines, is invariably cleanses, purifies and enriches the blood, making the blood rich and red, and at the same time, by its invigorating effects, giving strength, power, vitality and energy to the nerves.

In fact, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy has proved itself the most perfect of medicines and just what everybody needs for a spring remedy. Try it this spring.

Mr. Stoughton L. Farnham, of Manchester, N. H., says:

"Some time ago I was troubled with lassitude and a feeling of fatigue. I did not have the ambition to do anything that demanded unusual physical exertion.

"I was recommended by a friend to try Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I took two or three bottles and am prepared to say that it did me good. I can recommend it as a tonic, as I know it helped me."

Remember Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is recommended by physicians, is, in fact, a physician's prescription, the discovery of the well-known specialist in nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th St, New York City, who can be consulted free of charge, personally or by letter.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. Ask your agents for tickets via this route.

CYGLING COMMENT.

Daniel Shay, of the United States postal service, has purchased a Hunter wheel.

George D. Hallock, of Willow avenue, has purchased Crescent wheels for his two sons.

The Eldridge Bicycle Company received a large shipment of model 22 Columbias yesterday.

Frank Eick, formerly of Scott's Press Works, began his duties yesterday as machinest at W. H. Rogers' repair shop.

Among the recent purchasers of Columbia wheels from the Eldridge Bicycle Company are Harry Maxson, P. Marron and George Rockfellow.

Among the recent sales of the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company are a Crescent to Jacob Benner, a Crescent to Lillian Quinn and a Cleveland to Joseph Sandford.

While turning the corner of Front and Somerset streets this morning, Rudolph Spiegel caught the tire of his safety in the car track and pulled it off the rim. He had to walk home.

Lister, the North avenue cycle dealer, shipped two Keating wheels to Long Island yesterday. He has sold two more of the same make to New York parties and one to a man at Chestertown, Md.

A young man with an over-abundance of alcoholic spirits caused quite a sensation Sunday afternoon in his attempts to ride a wheel on Watchung avenue. The gutters seemed to have a special attraction for him while he performed wonderful evolutions on his wheel in his efforts to keep right side up.

WITH ROD AND GUN.

The Fish and Game Commission has its hands full just now in trying to keep the proposed new laws under control. As a game law measure the Commissioners favor their own codification as introduced by Senator Stokes, and see no reason why Mr. Hutchinson's House bill No. 128 should have been drawn up, printed and reprinted. It provides for an open season on woodcock in July and from October 1st to December 10th. Summer woodcock shooting has been abolished, and should stay so. This act would make the quail and rabbit season open on Nov. 10th and last one month, and would open the grouse shooting season on Oct. 1st, to run to Dec. 10th, thus giving pot hunters an opportunity to kill quail and rabbits unlawfully for forty days before decent, law abiding gunners can go out with a gun. It is safe to say that Hutchinson's bill will not pass the Senate.

WHIST.

The New Jersey State Whist Congress will be held in the Jersey City Club house on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. Teams will represent the Elizabeth Athletic Club, Elizabeth Chess and Whist Club, Fanwood Whist Club, Jersey City Club, Long Branch Whist Club, Montclair Athletic Club, New Jersey Athlectic Club, Newark Whist Club, North End Athletic Club, of Newark; Orange Whist Club, Park Club, of Plainfield; Ridgewood Club and the Town and Gown Club, of New Brunswick. Each team will consist of four members. The team winning the greatest number of games will win the prizes and the State championship. Play will begin at 8 o'clock on Thursday night and close on Friday night. On Saturday afternoon at 2:30 a progressive match for pairs will begin and will conclude on Saturday night.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

T. Lyons, who played shortstop on the Crescent baseball nine last year, has signed to play on a Harrisburg team this season. He will join the team in May.

T. O'Gorman, last year's manager of the Crescent baseball nine, will manage a team in Plainfield this year which will be known as the Actives. The team will go to practice in April.

Scott Collins, better known as "Bright Eyes," the southern colored light-weight champion, is in training near this city. "Bright Eyes" is a likely looking fellow, and is decidedly muscular. He is very confident of defeating Joe Walcott when they come together.

AT THE TRAPS.

The club shoot of the Climax Gun Club will be held this afternoon on their grounds.

The March shoot of the New Jersey Trap Shooters League will be held Thursday at the grounds of the Climax Gun Club on Terrill road.

THE MARCH WIND.

I love the wild March winds,
As they roar from the north thro' the pines,
Surging o'er the main, striving to regain
The ice-bound power of their Artic reign:
With fierce blasts fleeting to their wintry homes,
Ere the balmy breath of springtime comes.

Wild and weird wind, in my wood haunt,
Thro' the March night thy dirges chant:
Whisper soft 'neath the pine bough
Of flower and song-bird 'midst thy sough:
Tho' fierce thy blast, more sweet thy plaint,
Than vestal hymn or prayer of saint.

THREE CHICAGO POETS.

Ernest McGaffey, Charles Eugene Banks and Louis Block.

What They Have Done to Merit a Niche in the Temple of Fame—Their Popular Recognition Only a Question of Years.

[Special Chicago Letter.]

Whatever the critics of the east may say, it is nevertheless a fact that Chicago has given to the world of letters three poets whose fame is destined to grow from day to day. They are not magazine rhymesters who deal in mysterious nothings, but true men who sing of nature and life as healthy men and women find them—and have always found them. Neither are they long-haired freaks who pose before the world as prodigies. Every one of them is a busy man of action, capable of holding his own in the workaday struggle for existence. As far as the writer is concerned, he honors these men as much for their clearheadedness in everyday life as for their great abilities as literary leaders.

Take, for instance, Ernest McGaffey, whose volume of "Poems," recently issued by an eastern publishing house, has attracted general attention. He is a young lawyer with a bright future, a man of the world, a companion for judge or preacher. His views on current topics are quoted by the press; his knowledge of affairs political brings to his office the leaders of parties. And yet this same man will retire to his study in the evening and commune with nature with an eloquence that surprises the critics who have repeated from year to year that "nothing of literary merit can come out of Chicago." From beginning to end McGaffey's "Poems" show inspiration and a wonderful perception of the beauties of things. There is not a page which does not contain a new idea or a precious thought dressed in a new form. Opening the little volume at random the other day, I became enchanted with this gem:

Like some lone, wild creature that paces all day
Back and forth behind bars in its dumb, strong wish to be free,
So paces forever, all haggard and gray,
On its earth-bound shores, the mysterious soul of the sea.

If any poet has ever clothed a beautiful sentiment in finer garb I have never seen his works. Equally strong is a poem in another vein, entitled "The Derelict," from which I quote the last verse:

And thus a wraith, a mote, a speck,
In watery solitudes
She sails, and hears the siren song
Of ocean's Circe-moods:
Nor neither home nor harbor bound,
Naught shall her course restrict,
While like men's souls in worlds to come
She wanders, derelict.

And what could be more charming than this picture:

Dear friends, tho' silent, the companion trees
That whisper as I pass, and scatter down
Leaf benedictions on my leaf-strewn path.

Mr. McGaffey's versatility is almost phenomenal. His fancy responds to the call of the moment. His reflective, descriptive and metaphysical moods find ready expression in verse, which, while not always perfect, is never annoyingly halting. It has been stated that he has no rivals in America but Joaquin Miller and James Whitcomb Riley. This is a sweeping assertion, but one which will not be disputed a few years hence. The writer has been familiar with Mr. McGaffey's works for eight years. He has noted his development along various lines, and feels justified in giving the widest circulation to Chicago's faith in a poet whose productions are even now quoted throughout the land. The keystone of Mr. McGaffey's success is his modesty, which constantly reminds him that he has yet to learn many things and that perfection in art must be based on constant observation and unremitting study.

CHARLES EUGENE BANKS.

Charles Eugene Banks has been called a "sweet singer." His work, although not quite as varied as McGaffey's, betrays genius and genuine poetic instinct. While McGaffey is always an optimist, even in his serious metaphysical words, Banks sometimes is mildly pessimistic. Take, for example, his little poem entitled "Clothes Worship:"

The world will crack the devil o'er the pate
If, dressed in rags, he peep above the gate—
But let the velvet hide his cloven hoof
He finds a welcome under every roof.

But these words never last long. The disposition of the poet is too happy to dwell on disagreeable themes, and hence we find on another page of his little book, "Where Brooks Go Softly," this charming tribute to love:

The world is as a clouded sea,
But love is like the sun,
That steals among the murky waves
And brightens every one.
O'er gloom is golden glory flung
While sunbeams sport the waves among.

The gem of Mr. Banks' productions, however, is a verse entitled "March:"

Pale autumn moves, with gentle tread
And quiet air, among the dead:
March whips the sullen sky to tears,
And lo! the violet appears.

Another hopeful verse—and one that should appeal to everybody at this season—he calls "Easter Lilies:"

What though you build cloud-high the wall,
What though the sword you constant wield!
All kingdoms, monarchies shall fall
Because of these—and over all
Shall stand the lilies of the field.

One could quote column after column of equally beautiful sentiments from Mr. Bank's book without exhausting the patience of lovers of nature and of pure poetry. "The gentle writer of gentle verse" is the expression in which I alluded to him several years ago; but, to understand fully the meaning of the phrase, it is necessary to know the poet. His personality is charming, his generosity unbounded. Nothing appeals to him as forcibly as the distress of the oppressed. To know Banks is to love him. And yet, although not in robust health and, at many periods of his life, assailed by care and trouble, he has sturdily fought the battle for existence, asking no favors and complaining to no one. Starting out in life as a commercial man, he drifted into journalism, acted as business manager for trade papers, did reportorial work on Chicago newspapers, wrote advertisements for manufacturing firms, and finally invaded the lecture field, from which he had to withdraw on account of failing health. But neither in prosperity nor adversity did he lose his faith in mankind, as is evidenced by the poems he has given to the world during the past two years. Convinced that the American people—although slow and sometimes churlish—never fail to recognize genuine merit, the prediction is ventured that Mr. Banks' fame will eventually become national. And it is, no doubt, this expectation which encourages him to perform, without grumbling, routine duties in a local newspaper office at Davenport, Ia. After so much darkness light must inevitably break through the clouds of our "gentle poet's" gentle life.

The third of Chicago's noted poets is Louis J. Block, scholar and pedagogue. Mr. Block is essentially a thinker, a lover of liberty and an exhorter. His great poem, "The New World," appeals to thoughtful people. It will never be popular, in the common sense of the term, but it will live and become a classic. From the purely technical view point of the rhymester many improvements might be suggested, but the mystic and the philosopher would deprecate such a course. As the title of the poem indicates, it deals with the discovery of America and its central figure, Christopher Columbus. Incidentally it touches the blessings of free government and free thought—liberty without license. One of the most striking passages, to my mind, is devoted to "Supreme Thought," apostrophized as follows:

Arranger of all life,
And m'stress over strife,
She sets the stars in melody and rhyme,
And makes the periods with each other chime;
Pouring her hopes into the dark recesses,
Threading her way through the vague wilderniesses—
She fashions, rules, designs, and dwells within the light,
Which is the heart of hearts, and very sight of sight.

Mr. Block has been accused of being "antiquated and behind the times," but persons whose vision is narrow enough to make such a charge cannot be considered fair judges of poetry How can a thought like the following be "behind the times?"

He only wins his freedom truly,
Who daily wins it fresh and fair.
He ever rises newly
Into the regions of the purer air
Who falters not for blame nor praise,
But lives in strenuous and victorious days.

And similar gems are to be found on almost every page of "The New World." Literary Chicago, if there is such a thing, should be as proud of Mr. Block as she is of McGaffey and Banks, to say nothing of a crowd of very respectable, and, because respectable presumably able poetesses whose names have from time to time appeared in capital letters at fashionable receptions. Writing poetry is one of Mr. Block's recreations, and it is to be hoped that in the future he may find plenty of leisure hours to devote to it. But the public must not expect too much in this direction, as his duties as principal of a large Chicago school necessarily occupy most of his time.

A RIGHT START.

The Child is Lucky Who Gets the Proper Kind of One.

Not Wealth or Position Alone Means "Starting Right"—Health Counts for Something.

When a child is born to very wealthy parents, we are inclined to say, "what a start in life it has." If it is a girl, the father may give a bridal present of a million dollars. If a boy, the father may take him in partnership, and give him many millions.

But what does all this amount to if the family history shows that there is a marked tendency to the development of serious disease? What comfort, if one expects that every slight cold may terminate in consumption; or every nervous pain indicate approaching nervous prostration, or even insanity? Wealth cannot make happiness when pain is present, and the shadow of approaching disease always hovering near.

Happy is the child who inherits a sound constitution. He laughs at a little cold, and does not mind a darting pain or two. But, alas, many of us inherit a tendency to weak lungs, an inability to endure exposure, or some weakness of the nervous system. Yet, with a perfectly sound ancestry, we may still suffer from all these and other complaints.

It is a great gift to have a strong nervous system. Neuralgia, sciatica, nervous dyspepsia, inability to concentrate the mind, sleeplessness, and nervousness are symptoms of weak nerves. Opiates and other narcotics, do not strengthen nerves; they weaken, debilitate. To be sure they may quiet a temporary pain, but the real cause, which is one of weakness, remains.

Weak nerves call for food and nerve tonics. The hypophosphites are generally acknowledged to be the best nerve tonics. They tone up the whole nervous system, and every part of the body responds. Cod-liver oil supplies a valuable food to all the tissues; while the medicinal agents which naturally exist in this oil exert their good effects also. Scott's Emulsion is a combination of the best cod-liver oil and the purest hypophosphites. It is called an emulsion, because the oil is emulsified or digested. Hence it is more acceptable to invalids, and all those who do not have very strong digestive powers. One dose of Scott's Emulsion may not quiet pain, but one bottle will often so strengthen the nervous system that no pain will be present to quiet.

Nearly twenty-five years ago the proprietors of Scott's Emulsion discovered a process of emulsifying Cod-liver Oil, so as to remove from it almost entirely its obnoxious fishy taste and smell, and at the same time increasing its food and remedial properties. They found also that by combining the Hypophosphites with it that they added still further to its power.

Since that time thousands of imitations have come into the field, but the original has never been equalled.

[Copyright, 1895, by J. B. Lippincott Co.]

Henry's post had been nearest to the bay window, and he told how Jeff had tried twice to light the kindlings, and how the blaze had enveloped him as he was making the third attempt. While he was telling about it, the front door of the house was opened from within, and the colonel left the group and stood for some minutes talking with some one in the hall. Presently he called out: "You-all didn't get hurt, did you, Mr. Ringbrand?"

"Not worth mentioning," was the reply, and Ringbrand was sufficiently human to give place to the hope that Hester had seen something of the struggle, and to rejoice in the thought that her anxiety had prompted the inquiry.

The door closed again when the wagon was driven up, and the colonel helped the others to lift the injured man to the bed of straw in the deep box. When he had been made as comfortable as possible, the two others were swung up behind and tied securely; and the colonel, Ludlow and Ringbrand drove down to Tregarthen with their prisoners.

The colonel said little until the wagon stopped on its return to "The Laurels" to set the two younger men down at Ludlow's gate; then he rose and held out his hand to Ringbrand. "I reckon you 'preciate how I feel, Mr. Ringbrand, an' I'm mighty proud to acknowledge my obligations, an' the obligations of the whole fam'ly, to you, seh. We-all ain't gwine to f'get this heah night the longes' day thah's a Latimer livin'," the colonel's idiom grew stronger under the influence of emotion—"an' I want to say right heah afore Tom Ludlow, seh, that as long as thah is a Latimer livin', he'll be proud to tell his child'en an' his grandchild'en that we-all are beholden to you, seh, for ouh lives an' for ouh property."

Ringbrand saw through the thin mask of grandiloquence, and hastened to assure the colonel that he was only too glad to have been in time. "Only don't call it an obligation, colonel," he added; "the motive was purely selfish—in a way that you'd hardly understand if I tried to explain it."

The colonel said much more to the same purpose, and would not leave them until he had extracted a promise from Ringbrand to extend his visit. When they had finally bidden him good-night, and Ludlow was opening the house door with his latch-key, Ringbrand said: "If you love me, Tom, let me sleep all day to-morrow if I can: I'm about dead on my feet."

XIII.

ANSWERS VARIOUS.

Ringbrand slept next day until afternoon, coming down to a very late dinner feeling as if he had circumnavigated the globe in the wrong direction and so lost a day out of the calendar. Mrs. Ludlow, having slaked the imperative thirst of her curiosity at the well of her husband's information, spared him the task of recounting his adventures at length; but she managed to make him give a very fair description of the battle at "The Laurels" from the point of view of the chief actor therein, ruthlessly ignoring his modest endeavors to dwell lightly upon his own achievements. She listened with lively appreciation, making a comical little grimace of incredulous scorn as he concluded. "And Tom thought—shan't I pour you another cup of tea?"

"Thank you; what were you about to say?"

"I did say it. I asked if you would have another cup of tea."

"No, but about what Tom thought."

"Oh! Tom thought you'd sleep right along till to-morrow morning," she replied, with unblushing effrontery. "And that reminds me: Henry's been down to inquire after you, and I told him you'd pay your respects at 'The Laurels' this afternoon."

"How did you know I would?"

"I knew you'd do anything I promised for you."

"Well (since you've committed yourself,) I suppose I'll have to go."

"Oh, please don't!" she urged, teasingly. "It's a long, long walk, and it's so dreadfully hot: I'd go back to bed again, if I were you."

"And impugn your reputation for truth and veracity?—that would be very unthankful: you see you've made it impossible for me not to go." Then, with diplomatic abruptness: "Haven't you anything to tell me before I start?"

"You asked me that question last night, and I'll make you the same answer: you may give Hester my love."

"Thank you so much. Perhaps I shall go back to New York to-morrow."

"Perhaps you will; and perhaps the world came to an end yesterday. I think one is about as probable as the other."

"Oh! then you know of some good reason why I should stay."

"Yes, the best of reasons: you're not able to travel, yet."

Ringbrand laughed and reached for his hat. "Just watch me climb that hill, and then you may repent at leisure," he said.

An hour later he was comfortably established upon the veranda of the colonel's home, lounging invalid-wise in the library easy-chair which Hester had insisted upon dragging out for him. They had been talking about the feud, his imprisonment in the cave, and all the exciting events of the past few days; and Ringbrand had been trying with a palpable effort at ingenuousness to bring the conversation around by easy and graduated approaches to the subject nearest his heart. On the long walk up the mountain he had forecast the manner of these approaches with such strict fidelity to details that he now found it impossible to break away from the entanglement of set speeches and supposed answers, and every fresh endeavor seemed to involve him more hopelessly. Even the perversity of inanimate objects added to his helplessness. How could one talk upon serious subjects from the lazy rostrum of an easy-chair whose high back took away the last vestige of one's dignity?—and when he sat up the comfortable hollow of the low seat brought his knees and his chin together in an attitude that was pathetically inadequate to the requirements of the case. Once or twice he had tried to rise, but Hester had protested playfully, saying that he must consider himself an invalid, if only for that afternoon. To add to his embarrassment, she left her own chair and began to saunter up and down the veranda in front of him, snipping dead leaves from the ivy on the railing as she talked.

He watched her furtively while the car of idle talk ran smoothly over endless stretches of track wherein there were no crossings or switches, until the subtle intoxication of her beauty began to make his replies irrelevant. At last she stopped just opposite his chair and leaned over the railing to recover a wandering spray of ivy; while she stood there with her back toward him, he broke off in the middle of a sentence and said abruptly: "Miss Hester, I love you very much."

She recovered herself instantly, and he saw the suppressed laughter in her eyes as she turned toward him. He was on his feet in a moment. "Miss Latimer, I beg your pardon—indeed I do—it wasn't at all what I meant—oh, horrors, what am I saying!—I did mean it, only I didn't intend saying it just that way. Please don't laugh at me; it'll break my heart; I'm dreadfully in earnest, if I do talk like an imbecile. Hester, dear, do you love me just a little, and will you be my wife?"

He was holding her hand now, and looking down into her face with an appeal in his eyes that quite atoned for the halting speech, and she hid her face on his shoulder, saying: "Oh, I'm so glad!"

"Glad of what, Hester?" he asked, drawing her closer to him.

Her face was suffused with blushes when she raised it shyly to his, but the merriment still twinkled in her eyes.

"Glad of what, Hester?" he asked, drawing her closer to him.

"Glad that you found it impossible to be quite correct; you don't know—how much it makes me—" the last two words were whispered to the lapel of his coat, but he heard them and folded her in his arms. After the rapturous interval, he asked: "And did you think I was very conventional?"

"I used to; the people in your stories always seem to do just the right thing at the right time. Tell me, did you ever make one of your heroes say anything like—like you did a few minutes ago?"

"Heaven forbid!" he answered fervently; "but then one can always imagine better things than he can do."

There was another eloquent interval, and then she looked up again. "Was that what you meant to tell me the night you went away?"

"Partly: but there was something that prevented me—something that, perhaps, should have made me keep silent to-day. You remember what we were saying about personal courage; I thought then that I was a born coward, and I'm not entirely sure of the contrary yet."

She held him off at arm's length and looked at him with loving pride kindling in her beautiful eyes. "It is like you to talk that way, after what you did last night—father has told me all about it; and, besides, I saw you try to save that man's life at the risk of your own—and after he had tried to kill you, too!"

"That was nothing but common humanity," he answered quietly. "You don't know how I had to cling to that tree there to keep from running away just before the Bynums rode up."

"I don't believe a single word of it," she asserted calmly, as he led her to a seat on the wide rustic settle at the end of the veranda; and then a sudden gleam of common sense came to him in the thought that perhaps it might be wise not to argue the point with her, then or ever.

They were married in the little church in Tregarthen a week after the trial of Jed and Dudd Bynum, and the Ludlows gave them a wedding breakfast in the cozy little dining-room of the house on the hill before they started on their journey northward. Ringbrand was in his room, hurriedly packing his valises, and Ludlow ran up to tell him that there was still plenty of time in which to catch the train.

"When are you coming south again, Hugh?" he asked, pacing the floor of the small apartment with his hands in his pockets.

"Oh, I don't know; whenever Hester gets homesick, I suppose."

"Well, I can't promise you a fight or a wedding the next time you come, but we'll try to keep you interested in some way. By the way, Hugh, it was generous of you not to prefer a charge of murder against those fellows for trying to kill you in the cave."

"It was quite unnecessary; a thirty-year sentence is severe enough to satisfy a more vindictive person than I ever aspire to be. Besides, you forgot that it was Jeff who did the shooting, and his fate was sufficiently horrible."

"It was, indeed; and that makes me think—I saw the sister at the trial. I wonder what has become of her?"

"She has gone to her uncle in Texas."

"Are you sure of that?"

"Yes, for I sent her."

"You?"

"Yes."

"And she didn't try to kill you before she left?"

"Oh, no; she was too sorrowful to think of vengeance. Besides, I think she did me the justice to believe that I acted fairly."

Ludlow pursed his lips and whistled softly, continuing his restless march while Ringbrand fastened the last strap. Suddenly he stopped in his walk and regarded the younger man with a look of quizzical curiosity. "Hugh, what's become of that little fad of yours about personal courage and such things?"

"I told you once that I hoped I had left it in the hole on the mountain. I think it is still there," was the quiet reply, and they went down to the waiting bridal party.

The accommodation train swung slowly around the curve below Tregarthen, and the intervening spur of the mountain shut out the last view of the little village and its smoking furnace. Ringbrand closed the window when the cinders began to blow in, and, looking around the dingy interior of the car, thought of that other eventful journey taken in the same vehicle. He bent toward the small pink ear at his shoulder and whispered: "Do you know where I first began to love you, Hester?"

"No," she answered, drawing her veil down so that she could blush comfortably.

"It was right here; you were sitting in this very seat, only it was turned the other way. I saw you get on the train at Chilwanee, and ran after you like a school-boy. That was the beginning of it."

And the end is not yet.

"Oh, yes," sarcastically assented Gus, "I've got the vacancy, in my mind."

"Yes, that's so," giggled the prettiest girl in the room, and then everybody laughed, and Gus says he can't see what it was that aroused their merriment.—Texas Siftings.

THEATRICAL.

Katie Rooney has certainly proved a mascot to her managers. Her success in "The Derby Mascot" this season has been a grand triumph from the start. The press are unanimous in their praise of both her and her piece, which was one of the successes of last season. She is supported by an able cast and the play is handsomely mounted. Katie has several new and catchy songs and repeats her imitations of her father, the late Pat Rooney, with the same spirit and dash of old. This happy little girl has won her way into the hearts of all theatre goers. She has ascended, round by round, the ladder of fame, until she stands today in the foremost ranks of the popular stars of the day and is unanimously proclaimed America's Ideal Soubrette. She will appear at Music Hall this evening.

Sandow, the marvel of muscle, is the most sensational of the many successes seen at Proctor's Pleasure Palace. He is attracting immense crowds, and his achievements are enthusiastically applauded. The boxes are filled, and the ladiés seem to take special interest in the personality of the athlete. Sandow is graceful and elegant in bearing and in the execution of his feats. The enormous weights are manipulated picturesquely, and there is dash, precision and alertness in every movement. Very interesting indeed is the scene where Sandow poses in a calcium lighted shadow box, the black drapery bringing out in bold relief every expansion ane contraction of the knots and cables of muscle playing beneath a skin as fair and white as a society belle's. Dramatic and realistic in the extreme are the tableaux vivants depicting aythical episodes in the life of the Farnesa Hercules. The effect is that of classic sculpture aglow and throbbing with life and vitality. Nothing could more effectivley illustrate Sandow's physical graces and phenomenal power. The little story depicted is quite theatric. A maiden reaping in a vineyard with her lover, is seized by Hercules and borne away fainting, on horse back. The lover intercepts their flight by cutting away a bridge across a ravine. Hercules poises him high above his head, and hurls him into the rocky abyss. Then he forms a human arch, supporting the bridge, over which horse and captive pass in safety. The artistic effects are so beautiful that one almost loses sight of the strength employed by Sandow in sustaining this terrific weight.

GET APPETITE.

If You Don't, You Will Never Be Strong or Healthy.

Appetite is one thing that you can't afford to be without, for without it your health, strength and comeliness flies out of the window.

Poor appetite means weak stomach, starved body, sick individual. Good appetite the opposite.

Poor appetite is a sign that your stomach is too weak for digestion. You can aid with the Shaker Digestive Cordial.

When your stomach is able to digest all the food that your body needs you will have a good appetite. Not before.

Good food, well digested, means strength and a long, healthy life. Undigested food creates poison which affects the whole body, and may give you headache, dizziness, nausea, constipation, flatulence, languor, weakness, mental depression, stomach ache, fever, nervousness, offensive breath, anæmia, rheumatism, etc.

All these disorders will be relieved if you will take Shaker Digestive Cordial.

It is a pure vegetable digestive and natural invigorator, which aids the stomach, purifies the system of the poisons of indigestion and makes you strong, fat and healthy.

Shaker Digestive Cordial does not act on the liver, but on the undigested food in the stomach. It cures indigestion or biliousness without irritating the liver or any of the internal organs.

What Will Do It?

Medical writers claim that the successful remedy for nasal catarrh must be non-irritating, easy of application, and one that will reach the remote sores and ulcerated surfaces. The history of the efforts to treat catarrh is positive proof that only one remedy has completely met these conditions, and that is Ely's Cream Balm. This safe and pleasant remedy has mastered catarrh as nothing else has ever done, and both physicians and patients freely concede this fact.

Florida—America's Re Vera—"Clyde Line."

Always anxious to give their patrons best possible facilities, the "Clyde Line" have built new, elegant, fast steel steamships to accommodate their continually increasing passenger traffic between New York and Jacksonville, Fla. These ships are the largest, fastest, safest and handsomest on the Atlantic coast, and will reduce the time twenty-four hours between New York and Jacksonville, Fla. The traveling public always appreciate the fact that by taking the "Clyde Line" they do not have to change between New York and Jacksonville, thus avoiding heat, dust and transfers incidental to all rail or other routes. RESULTS OF ELECTION.

BOROUGH REPUBLICANS ELECT ALL BUT ONE CANDIDATE.

A Hard Fight in the Township and Each Party Captures One Good Office—The Vote Polled in Fanwood and Piscataway.

Taken as a whole, the election in the borough yesterday was quiet. What hustling was done was among the Republicans, and there is but little doubt that if the Democrats had stirred themselves to activity, they would have given their opponents a hot chase for victory. The only Democrat elected was David D. Smalley, for justice of peace. Considerable opposition was made against John McLaughlin, one of the Republican candidates for Councilman, because he is engaged in business in New York, and there was disposition on the part of a great many to elect only those who were actively engaged in business in the borough or city. George Kirch, his Democratic opponent, made an especially good run. The Farmer Orator, James E. Martine, could not repress his interest in the cause of Democratic success—even though the election was in Somerset county and he had no direct interest in the result. He was seen around the polls of the borough yesterday afternoon urging voters to sustain the Democratic ticket. Many people wondered if he would ever stop. The Farmer Orator remarks that he will stop when death so decrees. The results of the voting follow:

The election at Scotch Plains was a quiet one, although the fight was rather close especially for the offices of Freeholder and member of Township Committee. The Republican ticket was elected throughout, except in the latter case, where the Democratic candidate secured a majority of 1. The Republicans still retain a majority in the Township Committee, and secured the more important office of Freeholder, Robinson, the Republican candidate, receiving a majority of 36 votes in the whole township.

The Fanwood borough held its election after all under the decision of Judge Whalley given in the Supreme Court Monday night. Robinson was given a majority of 28 over Nichol, the Democratic candidate, while F. W. Westcott, Republican, was the only candidate for the office of Overseer of the Poor. These were the only candidates voted for. The registry list in Fanwood calls for 390, but only 236 visited the poles. The Scotch Plains registry board accepted ten borough votes that were offered by those who thought the election illegal at Fanwood.

The vote follows:

In Bridgewater township the Democratic nominee, William J. Logan, was returned by a large majority as Freeholder. Mr. Logan is one of the ablest officers that has ever represented the County of Somerset in that capacity and it is a credit to the voters of Bridgewater that they recognized Mr. Logan's ability. Mr. Logan would make an able Director of that County's Board of Freeholders.

John H. Sebring, Republican, was elected Town Committeeman of Piscataway township, Middlesex county, and Calvin Drake for Freeholder, with the rest of the Republican ticket.

Director John C. Staats, of Franklin township, was defeated yesterday for re-election in that strong Republican township, which he has so often represented in the Board of Freeholeers, of Somerset county, as a Democrat.

The township election brought out many surprises in Westfield. Addison Clark, the Democrat candidate for Freeholder, who sought a re-election, was elected by nearly fifty majority. Samuel W. Reese, his Republican opponent, was scratched right and left, and his losses were surprisingly severe in the borough of Mountain Side, where he supposed he was very strong.

Irving Ross, the Democratic candidate for Town Clerk, was re-elected by a heavy majority, and Fred Decker, Republican, was elected Overseer of-the-Poor. The town on a normal vote is good for about 100 Republican majority.

George H. Embree, Republican, was elected member of the Township Committee by 62 majority over Mr. Mc Garragh, Democrat.

Wasn't Satisfied With the Check.

The appealed case of Moore against Hughes is being tried at the Circuit Court in Elizabeth today. Moore is suing for the complete payment for a brick wall and concrete foundation to the sash and blind factory at Cranford. Hughes gave Moore a check some time ago that was worded for payment "in full" but the check did not equal the amount due Moore. Moore is now trying to recover the balance. He is represented by ex-Judge W. A. Coddington, of this city, while Hughes' attorney is ex-Prosecutor W. R. Wilson.

WHAT A WOMAN CAN DO.

REMARKABLY BRIGHT OBSERVATIONS BY MISS ELIZABETH U. YATES.

The American Woman is a Favored Person, But in the Affairs of State She is Helpless—Pointed Remarks Made.

One of the best lectures ever given in this city was listened to by a good-sized audience at Trinity Reformed church last evening, when Miss Elizabeth U. Yates, of Maine, presented woman enfranchisement in a clear and forcible manner.

Rev. Cornelius Schenck conducted the devotional exercises, reading the fourth chapter of second Corinthians, after which he offered prayer.

Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson introduced Miss Yates who spoke in part as follows, on the subject "What Are We Coming To?"

"The woman question is more important and is claiming more thought than any other at the present time. Woman is the connecting link between man and angels, and some one has said that she is an angel. The American woman at the present hour is much favored, yet in one place, the affairs of State, she is limited and has at last come face to face with the fact that she is helpless. One class of people object to woman suffrage. They are narrow-minded and close their eyes against the light. They think it will hurt her individually. We find that women are voting in the west. For twenty-one years she ha voted in Colorado and for six years, as a State, they have had full suffrage.

"The simple act of voting won't harm her. We still believe that Blackstone is the foundation of jurisprudence, and considering the element of goodness, women hold the balance of power. She is not perfect She was created as a companion for man. Eve is not the only woman who has raised Cain in the world.

"I never knew one to propose a Panama Canal or a trip to the North Pole, but a woman did give her jewels that America might be discovered.

"In regard to power, she may not be quite as strong as some men, but some of them can carry arms. If power is the desirable element let us have James J. Corbett for President and John L. Sullivan for Vice-President. It's not strength of arm but a mighty brain that counts.

"I have been in politics and know something of them, and both man woman should have equal freedom.

"A man once held a position as a typewriter, but a woman was secured for the place and he was discharged. He sought a place as clerk and another woman finally got that place. He then decided that he would paint church steeples, feeling sure that no woman would get that position.

"We women will let you paint church steeples. If it were not for women there would not be many of them to paint.

"The balloon sleeves, now the style, prevent women from standing shoulder to shoulder with men. The last step of evolution is woman suffrage and may we soon be able to see it taken."

As an offertory, Miss Bessie Blair rendered an excellent vocal solo, accompanied by Howard Case on the organ. The meeting closed with the singing of the Doxology and prayer by Rev. Cornelius Schenck.

John H. Van Winkle, Jr., and William Crawford very kindly acted as ushers.

THE GET-ONES DINE.

Seventeen Members Qualified and Succeeded in Getting One Member.

The banquet of the Get-One Club of the Y. M. C. A., was held last evening in the small hall of the building. Seventeen members of the club were able during the last two months to secure one new member each, thus entitling them to a place at the table. The members present gathered around the table at 7:15 o'clock, and remained seated for over an hour. Curtis M. Thorpe presided, and everyone enjoyed the excellent repast, which was kindly donated and prepared by Mrs. Joseph Gavett, Mrs. E. M. French, Mrs. J. H. Manning, Mrs. F. F. Clawson, and Mrs. R. F. Murray. The Get-One Club will be continued, and at the end of another two months another banquet will be served.

He was taken recently just the same as at other times, and concluded to try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He says: "I took one dose of it and it gave me relief in five minutes. That is more than anything else has ever done for me. For sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

DRAWN IN HARD LINES.

Dr. Riggs Says That the East is Drawn in Dissolving Views.

The University Extension course of lectures on the Eastern Question, which Plainfield people have enjoyed so thoroughly this winter, came to an end last night. The twelfth and last lecture, delivered by Dr. James F. Riggs, was on the subject of Oriental Literature.

The east, said the lecturer, is the culmination of romance. The picture of the Anglo-Saxon is drawn in hard lines; the picture of the east is drawn in dissolving views. Poetic feeling constitutes a large element in all Oriental nations. Their lyric poetry is the most interesting. It breathes an earnest and mystical reverence for the powers of nature. The mind of the Oriental does not move in the same lines as that of the Occidental; in order to be interested in his poetry, you must first learn to think as the Oriental thinks.

Dr. Riggs read a number of selections from Eastern writers, beginning with a poem by Hafiz, a Persian poet, exquisite in sentiment, and so brief as to be epigrammatic. Very different was a proclamation of the Sultan, announcing the beginning of the fast of Ramazan, an inflated and involved piece of writing, laden with bambastic set phrases.

Several quotations from the Roran were very interesting, explained and enlivened as they were by pointed and characteristic comments from Dr. Riggs. One story, taken from the Hebrew Scriptures, was a most curious and absurb mingling of the stories of Abraham Gideon, and the three young men in the burning fiery furnace.

Specimens of Armenian and Bulgarian literature were also given, showing how in these people many of the old heathen superstitions still exist, side by side with Christian tenents.

The monasteries have been the seat of a considerable literary life. The monks, with little to occupy them, had plenty of time for story writing. If they were not quite pleased with some legend, they would make up a new one to suit themselves. For example, there is the extraordinary story of the building of the "true cross," which was evidently written to account for the fact that the specimens of that cross which were exhibited at the various monasteries were all of different kinds of wood.

The spirit of resistence to the Turks has gathered around it a distinct literature of its own. By these stirring war poems the frame of patriotism is kept burning in the hearts of the people.

MR. WHITNEY WRITES.

He Infers to James E. Martine That He is Not a Candidate.

A few days ago James E. Martine addressed a letter to the Honorable William C. Whitney, the text of which was as follows:

Hon. William C. Whitney.

My Dear Sir:—I take the liberty of sending an interview with myself. While thoroughly conversant with your recent letter as to a candidacy for the Presidential nomination at the hands of the Democratic party, I feel that you are too much of a Democrat to decline or refuse a unanimous nomination (as it will be at Chicago). I feel that the interests of our country and party alike demand this much of you.

Very respectfully,
J. E. Martine.

Yesterday Mr. Martine received the following letter from Mr. Whitney, which, while it does not evince a desire to become a candidate since he has already so stated, does not say that he would not accept the nomination if it was offered to him:

New York, N. Y., March 9, 1896.

J. E. Martine, Esq.,
Plainfield, N. J.

My Dear Sir:—I have received your letter of the 5th inst., also a copy of your interview published in the Plainfield Daily Press. Accept my thanks and appreciation of your very friendly expression as contained in both. I have, however, already spoken upon the matter referred to in public.

Very truly yours,
W. C. Whitney.

An Attempted Theft.

Mrs. D. A. MacPhie and her children, who are stopping temporarily on Westervelt avenue, were frightened very much Saturday night, when she thought that an attempt was being made by someone to enter the house with a view to robbery. Mrs. MacPhie heard several strange noises and she called upon E. E. Anthony, a nearby neighbor, and he searched the house, but was unable to find anyone about. A few things in the cellar were found displaced, which gave evidence that someone had certainly been around.

All last winter Mr. Geo. A. Mills, of Labanon, Conn., was badly afflicted with rheumati-m. At times it was so severe that he could not stand up straight, but was drawn over on one side. "I tried different remedies without receiving relief," he says, "until about six months ago I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. After using it for three days my rheumatism was gone and has not returned since. For sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue. T. S Armstrong, Manager.

THE DIFFERENCE.

The Difference Between Two Charitable Organizations Explained.

There seems to be a false idea in the minds of the people regarding the Relief and the Organized Aid Associations and a belief that two charitable organizations in Plainfield are unnecessary. The two societies are distinct in plan, purpose and work, and each does a work the other cannot do.

The Relief Association, as it always has done, gives relief to cases that have been previously carefully investigated. The families are regularly visited after aid is given, by "friendly visitors" to give advice and help and insure the necessity for further assistance. Aid given consists of food, fuel and clothing. Work is given to applicants, payment for which may be taken in food or other articles. Women are taught at the Relief rooms to sew, to make and repair garments, and it is proposed to extend the instruction to cleaning, laundry work and other labor that can be performed by persons desiring assistance.

The Organized Aid gives no relief but carefully investigates cases that have been brought to its notice. Investigation is made not only for its own needs, but for the Relief and all other charitable organizations of Plainfield, of which there are about twenty. When a person asks for assistance the case is investigated, and if members of the family are connected with any of the city churches that church is asked if it will care for them and the same course is followed with the various benefit societies of the city. If these sources decline to give aid, then the applicants become the care of the Relief. This careful investigation often develops unworthy objects, as in a case recently discovered by the agent of the Organized Aid. A woman thinly clad was begging in the streets. Investigation brought out the facts that she had had a ten dollar bill in her possession within a few days and had a daughter willing and able to take care of her The object of the Association being not to make paupers, but to teach the poor to help themselves, it seeks also to find employment for its applicants. The necessity for a paid agent is this very readily seen. No volunteer, no matter how much interested, can be expected to devote time and strength to this work to do it as it should be done, while a paid representative devoting all his time and energy to it can do the work understandingly and systematically.

LIBRARY APPROPRIATION FIXED.

The Board of Directors Fix $3,500 as the Sum Needed.

A special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Public Library was held at the Library last evening. There were present Messrs. M. W. Tyler, J. W. Yates, J. Evarts Tracy, Rowland Cox, Henry P. Talmadge, William H. Larrabee, and William M. Stillman. President Mason W. Tyler, was in the chair. The minutes of the meeting of February 4th, were read and approved, and the minutes of the meeting of the executive committee of March 3d, were read. The following resolutions were then passed:

Resolved, By this Board, and this Board doth hereby determine that the sum or amount of $3,500 will be required in the year 1896, for the maintenance of the library and reading room, established and exisiting in the city of Plainfield under and pursuant to the act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey entitled "An act to authorize cities to establish and maintain free public libraries and reading rooms, approved March 14th, 1879, and the act amending thereof approved March 6th, 1886."

Resolved, That the president of this Board forthwith certify to the Common Council of the city of Plainfield that the amount or sum of $3,500 will be required in the year 1896 for the maintenance of said library and reading room.

On motion, the president was authorized to procure plans and specifications for an addition to the library building, and also estimates on the same and present them to the Board at their adjourned meeting to be held two weeks hence.

The Board adjourned to meet on the evening of March 24th.

Presented With a Pin.

Howell Division, No. 97, Sons of Temperance, held their regular meeting last evening at which time there was a large attendance. The members decided to move into their new quartars on West Second street near Park aveuue, March 31st. at which time an open meeting will be held. Sylvester Scribner and Mrs. Koyer were appointed a committee of two to purchase a new carpet. A very pleasant feature of the meeting was the presentation of a handsome gold and diamond pin to Mrs. W. R. Mattox, as a mark of esteem. It was presented by the division and Mrs. Mattox received it very gracefully with a few appropriate remarks.

—Rev. S. P. Simpson, rector of St. Stephen's church, will preach tomorrow evening at Mattawan and will be the guest of Rev. C. B. Dunham, formerly of this city.

KEEPING UP COURAGE.

REGULAR SALVATIONISTS CRY THEIR HALLEJUAH JUST THE SAME.

Ensign Taylor Converses With a Press Reporter and Says That the Seceders Will Injure the Work of the Regulars.

Despite the loss of most of its members, the Plainfield Corps of the Salvation Army still carries on its work and last night, Ensign Taylor and his wife held their first meeting in the regular army hall. With the few of the faithful soldiers that remained, Ensign Taylor held the regular street parade that usually precedes the meetings.

While waiting for the meeting to begin, the new commander, for such Ensign Taylor is, conversed with a Daily Press reporter on the present situation in Plainfield. "I don't blame them in the slightest," said the Ensign, referring to the seceders, "and I have not the least hard feeling against them. I think they were hasty in making their decision. They should have waited until they learned more about it."

He continued in the same vein but was very positive that there was no ill seeling between the independent corps and the regulars. When asked what effect it would have on the work he said:

"It will hurt the work a great deal. It was a very unfortunate occurance, but the Lord says that all things work together for good, so this must be for our good also."

The work of the Army would, he said, be continued the same as before, and he did not feel discouraged in the slightest. His cheerful manner seemed to second his statement, and, in the meeting that followed, he showed that he had lost none of his enthusiasm. Both the weather and the present circumstances of the corps tended to make the attendance at the meeting small, but the few remaining workers were earnest in their efforts, Ensign Taylor's immense guitar, "Big Ben," which is so well-known in Plainfield, was there, and the Ensign assisted in the music with it. Quite a number of visitors dropped into the meeting every little while to see how the corps got along since the secession of most of its members. They found the meeting conducted as usual, not as large a crowd in attendance, but with the same spirit prevailing.

SECEDERS AT ELIZABETH.

Three-Quarters of the Elizabeth Force Join the New Movement.

There has been a split in the camps of the Salvation Army stationed at Elizabeth by which more than three-quarters of the members have announced their intention of joining the movement started by Ballington Booth.

At a special meeting held in the Army's headquarters Monday night Lieutenant Norcross bid farewell to corps preparatory to leaving Elizabeth to take charge of a corps at Matawan. To this meeting none but Salvationists were admitted, but yesterday the facts were made public that fifteen of the twenty soldiers in the city had revolted and were going to fight hereafter under the new flag.

Lieutenant Norcross yesterday admitted that there were some revolters among the corps, but endeavored to make little of it, refusing to give the number or names of the deserters.

Another Revival.

Rev John Encell, singing evangelist and Gospel story-teller, will begin a series of meeting in the Liberty Street mission tonight. Mr. Encell has just concluded a successful revival service in Troy, Pa., and comes to Plainfield for the same purpose. In the event of the mission room being too small, Reform Hall will be procured. Everybody is welcome, irrespective of denomination, and are asked to help in the service. He is an active Christian Endeavorer, and all Endeavorers are most heartily invited. Do not miss hearing and seeing him The unconverted are earnestly requested to be present.

Not to be Trifled With.

(From Cincinnati Gazette.)

Will people ever learn that a "cold" is an accident to be dreaded, and that when it occurs treatment should be promptly applied? There is no knowing where the trouble will end; and while complete recovery is the rule, the exceptions are terribly frequent, and thousands upon thousands of fatal illnesses occur every year ushered in by a little injudicious exposure and seemingly trifling systems. Beyond this, there are today countless invalids who can trace their complaints to "colds," which at the time of occurrence gave no concern, and were therefore neglected.—When troubled with a cold use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is prompt and effectual. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue, T. S. Armstrong Manager.

UNCLE SAM'S NAVY

Progress of the Appropriation Bill in House Committee.

MORE WARSHIPS ARE CONTEMPLATED

The Number Not Yet Decided Upon, Members of the Committee Differing. Principal Provisions of the Bill as It Now Stands.

Washington, March 11.—The house committee on naval affairs has still under consideration the naval appropriation bill. While the measure has not been completed, enough of its provisions are known to give an abstract of it, approximating the shape in which it will be presented to the house. The important question of increasing the navy has not yet been agreed upon, but it is quite certain that a number of battleships and torpedo boats will be authorized. Members of the committee differ as to what this increase will be. Some favor six battleships and fifteen torpedo boats, while others want four battleships and from twenty to thirty torpedo boats. The bill will carry an appropriation outside of any authorized increase in the navy of about $28,500,000. As the bill now stands its principal provisions are as follows:

Principal Provisions.

For prizes for excellence in gunnery exercises, $6,000; for ocean and lake surveys, $14,000; bounties for naval apprentices, $33,750; expenses of recruiting, $45,000; ordnance and ordnance stores, $180,000; reserve supply of guns for ships of the navy, $25,000; reserve supply of projectiles for ships of the navy, $200,000; reserve guns for auxiliary cruisers, $250,000; for improving the gun plant, Washington navy yard, $50,000; for new brick magazine at Fort Mifflin, Pa., $50,000; for water supply, naval magazine, Dover, N. J., $15,000; maintenance of yards and docks, $265,000; repair and preservation of yards and stations, $400,000; naval home, Philadelphia, $79,800; provisions and commuted rations for seamen and marines, $1,205,000; preservation and completion of vessels on stocks and in ordinary condition, $1,492,509; additional supply of torpedoes, $142,000; completion, repair and preservation of machinery of vessels, $425,000. On account of hulls and outfits of vessels heretofore authorized, and steam machinery for them, $5,395,679 is allowed. Towards armament of these vessels $3,890,204 is allotted and towards completing their equipment an appropriation of $237,000 is made. The bill contemplates placing the old frigate Hartford in condition for active service.

BICYCLE RECORD BROKEN.

Harry D. Elkes, of New York, Covers Ten Miles in 24:58 at Jacksonville.

Jacksonville, Fla., March 11.—The ten mile world's bicycle record, paced, was lowered to 24:58 by Harry D. Elkes of New York in this city at the Villa Maynard track yesterday afternoon. The track is of boards and in poor condition. Elkes was paced every half mile by a fresh team, which gave a hot pace and kept the lad busy. He showed up in fine shape at the close of the race and on the last lap made a spurt that was wonderful. He was apparently as fresh as when he started.

Entertained by the Kaiser.

Berlin, March 11.—At 6 o'clock last evening Emperor William and the empress received Count Goluchowski, the Austrian minister of foreign affairs, at the schloss. A half hour was spent in conversation. Later a banquet was given at the Austrian embassy in honor of Count Goluchowski, at which forty-two covers were laid. Among the guests were the emperor and empress.

Bank President Arrested.

New York, March 11.—Frederick W. Dunton, the promoter and formerly president of the bank of Jamaica, L. I., has been held by Police Magistrate Crane in $2,500 bonds on each of the two charges of grand larceny preferred against him by George E. Hagerman, president of the New York & Brooklyn Suburan Investment company of New York.

Hartford Firm Enjoined.

Hartford, March 11.—Judge Thayer has granted A. H. Rowe & Co., of this city, an injunction restraining the Blodgett & Clapp company of Hartford from selling or offering for sale horseshoe calks under the name of "Rowe's Shoulder Shoe Calks," or from using the name "Rowe" in connection with shoe calks other than those made by Rowe.

No Intention To Arrest Rhodes.

London, March 11.—In the house of commons the Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, secretary of state for the colonies, said in reply to a question on the subject, that there was no truth in the report of the intended arrest of Cecil Rhodes by the authorities of Cape Colony, nor had he any information that any other authorities contemplated such action.

Congratulated on Renomination.

Washington, March 11.—Representatives Broderick, Curtis and Long of Kansas are the recipients of congratulations by their republican and democratic associates upon their renomination. All three are popular members. Mr. Long has the seat in the present house that was formerly filled by Jerry Simpson.

Charged with Embezzlement.

Cincinnati, March 11.—Joseph H. Taylor of Philadelphia, who is charged with embezzling $6,000 from the Biddle Hardware company of that city, was arrested here yesterday afternoon. He says he is willing to go back to Philadelphia.

WILL MAKE NO CHANGES.

Gov. Wolcott Will Retain the Late Gov. Greenhalge's Staff.

Boston, March 11.—Lieut.-Gov. Wolcot was at the state house yesterday. His honor quietly took possession of the little chamber where Gov. Greenhalge transacted the business of the state. Soon after his arrival the lieutenant-governor asked Private Secretary Thomas to continue in office, and he has requested all the members of the staff of the late governor to continue in service the remainder of the term for which they were appointed. His honor has cancelled all engagements of a public nature till Patriot's Day, when the public memorial service of the late governor will be held. He also announced his intention of accepting invitations far more sparingly than has been the custom. Mrs. Greenhalge has received a very touching letter from Hon. Thomas B. Reed, but of so private and personal a character as to precude its publication.

DEATH OF MRS. FILLEY.

Missouri Republican Congressmen Pass Resolutions of Sorrow.

Washington, March 10.—Upon the announcement of Mrs. Chauncey I. Filley's death a meeting was held by the eleven republican members of the Missouri delegation, at which the following resolutions were adopted: Resolved, by the republican members of congress from Missouri, that we have heard with a degree of sadness we are unable to express of the death of Mrs. Chauncey I. Filley, who for more than a quarter of a century has given kindly greetings to the thousands of visitors to her home. Her work in life was that of an unselfish, devoted, Christian woman, and a multitude of people who have been blessed by the kindly ministrations of her charity, mourn her loss. To her bereaved husband we tender our sincere sympathy in this hour of his great affliction. Resolved, That Hon. Richard Bartholdt, Hon. M. A. Mosely and Hon. B. F. Bussell be appointed to represent us at the funeral services.

FOUL PLAY FEARED.

Mysterious Disappearance of a Rhode Island Teamster.

Providence, R. I., March 11.—William Whipple, driver of a six-horse team for Philip Adams of North Scituate, mysteriously disappeared Tuesday night. His team was found on the lonely Hartford pike, six miles from this city. Whipple's overcoat, gloves and hat were on the seat. The horses were standing still when discovered. A fruitless search for Whipple in every direction has been made. It is thought that highway robbers killed Whipple for about $200 which he carried. A big load of groceries and merchandise was not molested. Whipple was single and about 30 years of age.

M. E. Conference at Baltimore.

Baltimore, March 11.—Each incoming train last night added its quota to the number of gentlemen clad in a benignant smile, frock coat, silk hat and white necktie, who will gather at the 112th annual session of the Baltimore conference of the M. E. church to-day. The conference includes all the charges in Maryland (excepting the eastern shore), the District of Columbia and a few churches in Virginia and West Virginia.

Indiana Sails for Port Royal.

Washington, March 11.—Notwithstanding the accident of Monday the battleship Indiana sailed from Fort Monroe, Va., last night for Port Royal, S. C., in order not to disappoint the great crowds expected to assemble there to see the vessel placed in dry dock. The accident is trifling, but may cause the Indiana to proceed slowly.

Against a Greater New York.

Albany, March 11.—The Rev. Richard Storrs of Brooklyn has written a lengthy letter to Lieut.-Gov. Saxton in which he takes a decided stand against the consolidation of Brooklyn with New York city.

Republicans Capture Cooperstown.

Cooperstown, N. Y., March 11.—At the village election here James Austin, republican, was elected president by fifty-five majority. Four republicans and one democrat were elected trustees. The village is usually democratic.

RAINES LIQUOR BILL

New York's Radical Measure Soon To Become a Law.

PASSED THE SENATE LAST NIGHT

All Amendments Voted Down, and None To Be Accepted by the Assembly. May Reach the Governor on Saturday Next.

Albany, March 11.—The success of the advocates of the Raines liquor tax bill in forcing the measure through the senate last night under cloture rule will undoubtedly be followed by its passage in the assembly next Friday, the plan now agreed upon by the republican majority. No amendments, it is understood, are to be allowed, and the bill will probably reach the governor for signature on Saturday, without any change from its present shape. The final discussion on the measure in the senate was very animated at times. When Senator Lexow had closed his speech in defense of the bill Senator Ellsworth said he proposed to move to close the debate. Senators Cantor and Gray sought recognition. Senator Ellsworth said that full debate had been allowed. Amendments were offered by Senator Guy providing that special deputies reside in the locality in which they serve, and that the 23d and 24th wards of New York city be considered a town.

All Amendments Voted Down.

Debate was closed by a vote of 34 to 14, the democrats in the negative. Senator Cantor's amendment that the cities retain the whole tax was lost—18 to 31. A vote was taken on Senator Cantor's amendment that separate beer and wine licenses be issued. Lost, 30 to 17, Coggeshall, G. A. Davis and Pavey with the democrats. Senator Guy's amendment to designate the 23d and 24th wards of New York to come under the town license fees was lost viva voce. Senator Guy's amendment that the deputies be residents of the localities in which they serve, was lost—35 to 15, Senator Pavey with the democrats; Coggeshall not voting. An amendment offered by Senator McCarren, allowing all night licenses for places of amusement at an additional charge of $150, was lost—32 to 14, Siebert voting with the democrats, Coggeshall, Guy and Wiemann not voting. Another amendment of Senator McCarren's providing that clubs be not licensed, was lost—14 to 35. Senator Cantor moved to refer the bill back to the committee with instructions to strike out the enact clause. Lost, 18 to 31.

The Bill Passed.

The final reading of the bill was then had and roll call ordered. The senators each had five minutes to explain their votes. Senator Ahearn said the bill discriminated in favor of the rich against the poor. The people would repay the republicans next fall. Senator McNulty spoke, saying the most obnoxious element of the bill was that 1,200 saloons in Brooklyn would go out of business, causing a loss of much money. At 6.15 p. m., the bill was passed by a vote of 31 to 18. G. A. Davie, Pavey, Coggeshall and Siebert voted with the fourteen democratic senators in the negative. Senator Wieman, republican, of Brooklyn was absent.

Assembly Will Stand Firm.

Albany, March 11.—The republican assemblymen in caucus have decided to stand by the Raines bill as it passed the senate by a vote of 76 to 1. Assemblyman Armstrong of Monroe casting the negative vote. The opposition to the bill did not at any time develop more than nineteen votes which were cast in favor of Assemblymen Bond's proposition that the ale and beer license be cut in half, and that the minimum license in any part of the state should not be less than $100.

Pension for Gen. Gooding.

Washington, March 11.—A bill has been introduced in the house to grant a pension of $100 a month to Gen. H. P. Gooding. Gen. Gooding is a graduate of West Point and at the beginning of the war was detailed as colonel of a Massachusetts regiment and served through the war. He is at present confined in St. Elizabeth's asylum in this district; his insanity, it is claimed, resulting directly from his army service.

May Meredith's Case.

Boston, March 11.—May Meredith was brought before Judge Ely in the municipal criminal court yesterday afternoon charged with being a fugitive from justice in New York city where she is wanted on a charge of larceny of clothing and two rings, all of the value of $500, belonging to Clara Barrett of that city. Her case was continued to March 12, bail being fixed at $1,000

HE IS FOR M'KINLEY

Foraker Comes Out Squarely for Ohio's Ex-Governor.

WANTS ALL TO KNOW HIS POSITION

Speech of the Senator-elect at the Ohio Republican State Convention—Receives a Telegram of Thanks from Col. McKinley.

Columbus, O., March 11.—The most notable feature of the short session of the republican state convention yesterday was the speech of Senator-elect Foraker, in which he declared his allegiance to McKinley with all his characteristic vigor. "I want my speech to be short enough," said he, "for all to read it, and plain enough for all to understand it." And then he passed into praise of ex-Gov. McKinley and a presentation of his qualifications for the presidency that fully made amends for the notable omission of any such sentiment in his speech accepting the office of United States senator two months ago.

McKinley Thanks Foraker.

Columbus, O., March 11.—Senator Foraker has received the following telegram: Canton, O., March 10.—J. B. Foraker, Columbus. Friends have wired me of your great speech at the convention. I beg to convey to you my sincere thanks for your cordial and generous expressions.
WILLIAM M'KINLEY.

McKinley Endorsed in Indiana.

Kokomo, Ind., March 11.—At the Eleventh district republican congressional convention yesterday strong McKinley resolutions were adopted.

GEN. FIELD'S STOLEN JEWELS.

The Thief Says He Was Driven by Want. Offers To Restore Them.

Buffalo, March 11.—Gen. George S. Field, whose house was robbed of $7,000 worth of jewelry on Friday night last, has receivee a postal card stating that the robbery was committed through sheer necessity, the thief being in want and desperate and offering to return them if an arrangement can be made by which the writer will receive the $2,000 reward and be guaranteed immunity from prosecution. Gen. Field has, through the newspapers, signified his willingness to treat with the robber.

RHODE ISLAND CONVENTION.

Ticket Nominated and Reed Endorsed for President.

Providence, March 11.—The republican state convention yesterday nominated the following ticket and endorsed Thomas B. Reed of Maine for the republican presidential nomination: For governor, Charles Warren Lippitt, Providence; lieutenant-governor, Edwin R. Allen, Hopkinton; secretary of state, Charles P. Bennett, Providence; attorney general, Edward C. Dubois, East Providence; general treasurer, Samuel Clark, Lincoln.

The Baltimore Municipal War.

Baltimore, March 11.—The mayor and his friends will look in vain to the state legislature for assistance. The bill introduced in the senate at Annapolis by President Bruce giving to the mayor of Baltimore absolute power by taking from the city council its confirmation perogative, and which was passed by the senate by an almost unanimous vote, was killed in the house yesterday.

Convicted of Murder.

Chester, Pa., March 11.—The jury in the case of James Cook, charged with killing Marshall Jones in South Chester on December 21 last, returned a verdict last evening of murder in the second degree with a recommendation to mercy. A motion for a new trial was overruled. He will be sentenced on Monday. Gook was distressfully affected by the verdict.

Elections at Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, N. J., March 11.—The municipal election here resulted in the election of a full republican ticket with increased majorities over last year, with the exception of a councilman in the third ward, George Cluin, dem., defeating Samuel H. Rose, rep. The city council will remain republican.

Daughters of Liberty.

Newark, N. J., March 11.—The state council Daughters of Liberty met here yesterday afternoon and fifty-nine out of seventy councils were represented. Secretary Hayward reported a growth of 3,700 members and the institution of forty-four councils during the past year, showing a total membership of 5,300.

No Degrees for Women.

London, March 11.—The Oxford congregation has rejected all the proposals substituted for the previously defeated motion to confer degrees of bachelor of arts upon women, including the proposal to make the university the only examining body so far as women are concerned.

Vermont Soldiers' Home.

Bennington, Vt., March 11.—Capt. R. J. Goffrey, superintendent of the Vermont State Soldiers' home, reports that there are ninety-three veterans in the home, twenty-four of whom are in hospital. Seven veterans have been admitted since Jan. 1

4,600 Abyssinians Killed at Adowa.

London, March 11.—A dispatch from Rome to the Central News says that the Abyssinians lost 4,600 men in the battle of Adowa, where a crushing defeat was inflicted on the Italians.

Treasury Gold Reserve.

Washington, March 11.—The treasury gold reserve to-day at the opening of busines stood at $126,265,010. The withdrawals were $192,000.

MUST QUIT TALKING.

Senators Remind the Spanish Minister That His Conduct Is Unbecoming.

Washington, March 11.—One of the principal speeches in the senate today will be delivered by Mr. Hoar, rep., Mass., on his motion to postpone further consideration of the conference report on the Cuban resolutions until April 6 and to direct the committee on foreign relations to report in the meantime the facts on which the resolutions were justified. The action of the Spanish minister in correcting or qualifying, through the public press, statements made in the senate on the subject of the war in Cuba, and particularly on the subject of Gen. Weyler's purposes and character, was made the ground work of a question of personal privilege by Senator Lodge, rep., Mass. The Massachusetts senator protested against any diplomatic representative using the newspapers of the United States to criticise senators for words spoken in debate, and intimated that in any other country a foreign minister, who should be guilty of such a violation of propriety, would be sent home. Mr. De Lome's action was rather palliated by Mr. Gray, dem., Del., although he admitted that it was a technical violation of diplomatic usage. Mr. Teller, rep., Col., was less benignantly inclined. Under the circumstances he would not, if he were president, send the Spanish minister home, but he would suggest to him that a repetition of the offense would necessitate his leaving the country.

Alleged Filibuster.

Charleston, S. C., March 11.—The alleged filibuster Commodore took out clearance papers for Tampa, Fla., at the custom house yesterday and moved out into the stream. A large crowd of people, among whom were two Pinkerton detectives, watched her. As she dropped down the harbor, she was cheered by the people on the docks. Her commander had stated that she was going to sea at once, but she did not do so. She steamed down the Cooper river until off the battery, where she dropped anchor and remained for several hours. Her officers say that she will not go out until tonight, but it is expected she will slip out of the harbor during the afternoon.

BIG BEQUEST TO YALE.

Mrs. Sloan Will Lose $200,000 When She Again Weds.

New Haven, Conn., March 11.—It is announced at Yale that the university would receive $200,000 under peculiar conditions. When Thomas C. Sloan of New York died four years ago he left that amount to his widow on condition that should she marry again the money was to go to Yale. The formal engagement of Mrs. Sloan has just been announced to the New York society man, Mr. Barclay, and it is stated that the wedding will take place in April. This, apparently, leaves Yale a clean title to the $200,000. It is thought that part of the money will be devoted to erecting the new dormitory at Yale. Secretary Dexter of the corporation said last night, relative to the conditional gift, that he understood it would conditionally go to Yale, but he declined to discuss it further.

FOR ABUSING A CHILD.

An Inhuman Wretch Sentenced to One Year in Prison.

New York, March 11.—Luigi Iannicheli, a drug clerk who was arrested on January 18 on the complaint of Wm. H. King of the Gerry society for cruelty to his child, was convicted last night and sentenced to a year in the penitentiary and fined $490, to serve a day for each dollar not paid. Iannicheli's neighbors alleged that he cruelly treated his 7-year-old daughter Emma. Finally they found her asleep in the cellar with nothing but a piece of cloth to cover her and her arms and legs gnawed by rats. Agent King was notified and caused the arrest.

MRS. BARNES HELD IN HIDING.

Declaration in Her Husband's Suit Against Magowan at Trenton.

Trenton, March 11.—Chauncey A. Beasley, counsel for John A. Barnes, has filed a declaration in the supreme court in the suit of Barnes against ex-Mayor Frank A. Magowan for $50,000 for alienating the affections of Mrs. Barnes. Barnes charges that Magowan has kept Mrs. Barnes concealed in Philadelphia, New York and Oklahoma and refused to deliver her up. Magowan recently obtained an Oklahoma divorce from his own wife, and, it has been stated, means to marry Mrs. Barnes if he has not already done so.

Hearing on Reciprocity Bills.

Washington, March 11.—The subcommittee of the committee on ways and means, having under consideration several bills relating to reciprocity and commercial treaties, will have a series of public hearings, commencing Monday March 16 and closing March 21. The committee desires practical information concerning the operations of the reciprocity treatise that were negotiated by the last administration.

Death of Bristol's Oldest Inhabitant.

Providence, March 11.—Robert Keating, a respected citizen of Bristol, died there yesterday afternoon at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. William McCaw, on Bourn street. Deceased was the oldest man in Bristol and was born in Cavan county, Ireland, in 1800.

Etlinger's Body Not Stolen.

Bellefonte, Pa., March 11.—The report that the body of murderer and suicide William Etlinger had been stolen from its grave is not so. Etlinger's body still lies beneath the stones that cover his coffin on the outskirts of Woodward

$3,000 for Good Roads.

Stratford, Conn., March 11.—The town of Stratford has appropriated $3,000 for good roads.

BIG FIGHT EXPECTED

Rebels Reported To Be Advancing on Havana.

COMMANDED BY GOMEZ AND MACEO

Government Generals Announce Two Engagements with Insurgents, Resulting Disastrously to the Latter. Towns Burned by Rebels.

Madrid, March 11.—A dispatch to the Imparcial from Havana says that the rebels under Gomez and Maceo are advancing towards Havana. From the position of the Spanish troops a serious conflict is expected.

Rebel Defeats Reported.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

Havana, March, 11.—Col. Vicuna reports an engagement with insurgents at Pedrosa, province of Matanzas, in which fourteen of the rebels were killed. The loss of the troops was only one wounded. Gen. Barges reports that Gen. Lachambre has returned from extensive operations in the vicinity of Songo and Ramon de las Yaguas, province of Santiago de Cuba. He had constant engagements with the forces of Jose Maceo. He burned an extensive rebel camp, together with a hospital. In one engagement the rebels left twelve dead, and in another seven dead, incuding Capt. Zayas. The troops had one guerrilla killed and an officer and three soldiers seriously and six slightly wounded.

New Yorkers Arrested in Havana.

The police of this city have arrested Jose Montoto and seven others who are said to be here on a mission from the Cuban junta in New York. The police secured papers and bonds of recent date. Generals Mella, Aizpursa and Moreno sailed for Spain last night. Rebels burned the town of Quivican, province of Havana, and Union de los Reyes, province of Matanzas, Monday. They have also burned the town of Martinas, in the province of Pinar del Rio, and a railroad train near Cunanayagua, in the province of Matanzas.
J. FRANK CLARK.

The Address to Gen. Weyler.

Key West, Fla., March 11.—The significance of the address which was presented to Gen. Weyler by the citizens of Havana protesting against the action of congress, and which has just been received here, appears to be greater than has been appreciated, as the signatures give it every appearance of representing citizens of high standing in Cuba. The names include all the representative bodies of Havana, the political and social clubs, including the Union club, the most exclusive social club of Cuba; all the conductors of newspapers of that city, including La Discusion, El Pais, and La Lugha, exclusively Cuban papers of the home rule party and of republican ideas of government, and also the names of Messrs. Galvez and Montoro, generally known and revered by Cubans. The address is as follows: "The greatest indignation has been felt by the inhabitants of the island of Cuba, without distinction of political parties or nationality, on hearing of the resolution of the senate and house of representatives of the United States recognizing and giving, without regard to the law of nations, followed by all the civilized people of the world, the rights of belligerency to indisciplinated hordes composed of adventurers of all races, of foreigners, bandits, and deluded or insane persons that cannot represent without offending even those Cubans who desire the independence from Spain. The people of Cuba wherein all that is intelligent, civilized, laborious and rich protest and condemn an insurrection powerful only to hang peaceful citizens, burn the fields, and destroy undefended villages.

Weyler Unjustly Slandered.

"The undersigned wish to have it emphasized now, before your excellency, the worthy representative of the Spanish fatherland, unjustly slandered at the same time with your excellency, by a congress that probably could not find better arguments to adopt resolutions in which is dealt such a great injustice to a nation to whom this continent owes the benefit of culture and the island of Cuba the state of progress and liberty and the riches that have made her to be envied by the world. We renew to your excellency our loyalty without conditions in order to maintain upright the Spanish flag, and we pledge to maintain it with our lives and our fortunes."

"United States Against Spain."

Madrid, March 11.—The cabinet, in face of Captain-General Weyler's recent dispatch that no more troops were needed in Cuba, has decided to call to the colors 60,000 more reserves, so that they may be in readiness for dispatch to the island if their services should be required. A pamphlet entitled "The United States Against Spain" has been published in this city. Its author is believed to be Senor Valera, sometime Spanish minister at Washington. The work dilates upon the injustice of the American congress toward Spain, and predicts that there will be a revulsion of popular feeling in the United States when the truth becomes known. The writer says he expects a favorable outcome of the trouble. He eulogizes the American women, and declares that he admires the American men, who, he adds, are amiable and hospitable unless they are blinded by self-esteem.

Gov. Griggs Dined.

New York, March 11.—The republican club of this city held its regular monthly subscription dinner last night, about fifty covers being laid. The guest of the evening was Gov. John W. Griggs of New Jersey, who made a brief speech on the outlook in the Garden state of a republican victory this fall.

March 13—Missionary meeting of Christian Endeavorers at Park Avenue Baptist church—Evening.

In the borough and township elections throughout the State yesterday the Republicans and Democrats both seemed to hold their vote pretty well to party lines.

The scene enacted in the Senate Monday night when Senator Voorhees asked to have the floor cleared would seem to indicate that the lobby is quite a live corpse in Trenton this winter.

Governor Griggs yesterday signed the bill fixing the terms of town clerks, town assessors and town collectors to three years. He also signed the bill giving a freeholder to boroughs having 1,200 population.

How easy it is to get signatures to petitions and public papers. A call for a conference of reformers, Populists, free silver advocates, Prohibitionists, Woman Suffragists, Greenbackers and others was signed by 16,000 people. There was just seventeen present at the conference.

The Newark Daily Advertiser predicts that the Governor will appoint as Superintendent of Public Instruction, in place of A. B. Poland, Prof. Edwin Francis, of Westfield, a friend of Senator Voorhees, and a man prominent in educational circles. Prof. Francis is an Englishman and has been superintendent of the public schools of Westfield for many years

Assemblyman J. Martin Roll is a member of the Union County Board of Freeholders. The Board held a meeting the other day, at which Mr. Roll was not present, and in response to popular sentiment it unanimously passed a resolution condemning Mr. Roll's bill, No. 251, giving Freeholders exclusive power as to the granting of franchises to trolley roads.—New York Tribune.

So far no particular comment has been made on the fact that Paterson police have not captured the murderer of Miss Sullivan, but had this crime been enacted in New York how the metropolitan press would be teeming with criticism of the present inefficiency of the police of that city. It is a lucky thing for the Paterson police, so far as their personal feeling goes, that they are not under Roosevelt.

PLAINFIELD TO BE ILLUSTRATED.

The Central Monthly to Devote Several Pages to Local Interests.

The Central Monthly which is established under the auspices of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, in the interests of the towns along its lines, will give in the April number several handsome views, illustrations and descriptions of Plainfield and its surroundings. In order that the city may be most effectively shown both by pen and pencil, Henry Osbourn, the editor, and George C. B. Hartt, the art superintendent, accompanied by their wives, are stopping for a week or ten days at the Revere House.

It is understood that in addition to the centre double page, which will compose a plaza view in fine art work, there will be four or five pages more devoted to picturesque locations, handsome residences, etc. Commercial interests will not be overlooked, and the whole will form an elegant illustration and description, that will tend very materially to advance the best interests of the city.

This move on the part of the railroad company, which is warmly endorsed by many of the leading citizens, will undoubtedly receive unanimous approbation and co operation. That these two gentleman are competent to carry out the intentions of the railroad company is fully proven by the March number of The Central Monthly, which has already been noticed in The Press.

The Misses Etta and Raydell Johnson have returned to this city after visiting a few days in Dunellen.

Miss Lillian Glenn, of Craig place, entertained a few friends at her home last evening. The time was spent very enjoyably.

The Springfield Republican recently published a report of experiments with the X rays made in the Amherst College laboratory by Prof A. L. Kimball, a son of the late Horace Kimball, of this city.

A Lucky Chance for the Sick and Suffering.

We are aware that our people who suffer from nervous, chronic or long-standing complaints do not have the same opportunity to be cured as do the residents of the great cities where the most eminent physicians and specialists reside. In other words, our people are debarred from seeking a cure by the great and skilled physicians owing to the cost of travel to the large city and the high fees charged by such physicians.

Here, therefore, is a chance for the sick of our community which should not be lost. Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th St., New York City, who has the largest practice in the world and who is without doubt the most successful specialist in curing all forms of nervous and chronic diseases, offers to give free consultation by mail to all sufferers whom their local physician has failed to cure. You have the privilege of consulting Dr. Greene by letter, describing your complaints, and he will after carefully considering your condition, send you a letter fully explaining all your symptoms, telling you everything about your complaints so plainly that you will understand exactly what ails you. He will also give you his advice, based upon his vast experience and wonderful success in treating such cases, as to just what to do to get cured. All this will cost you nothing, and you can thus have consultation with the best known physician and acknowledged most successful specialist in the world, without leaving home and at no expense whatever. The doctor is the discoverer of that greatest of all known medicines, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy and he has discovered many other most valuable remedies. Write him now, for this is a chance to get cured which you may never have again.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. Ask your agents for tickets via this route.

Commercial Palace - - Babcock Building.

Modern buying of general merchandise has become an art in trade.

The old rutty methods of twenty years ago are too slow and expensive for the wide-awake buyer of the present.

The Commercial Palace is recognized by the largest manufacturers and importers.

As a leading department store of sufficiently large dimentions to be entitled to the same "jobber's" price list as the New York department stores, which means a great saving to patrons of this class of stores.

Here is a sample of some of the results of "Young America" modern methods of real up-to-date buying.

A BIG DEAL IN HOUSEHOLD HARDWARE.

SPORTS

AT THE TRAPS.

An easterly wind and a leaden sky yesterday were not very favorable for the March club shoot of the Climax Gun Club, but they seemed very appropriate considering the month. The unpromising weather kept many at home but there was a fair aggregation of trap shooting enthusiasts present and the shoot passed off successfully. The handicap club shoot was the event of the afternoon. It was preceded and followed by sweepstakes. The results were as follows:

Event No. 1.

First, Smith, Clark, Astfalk, 10; second, Keller, Schorty, Greiff, Singer, 9; third, A. Hebbard, 8.

Event No. 2.

First, Smith, Keller, Manning, 10; second, Clark, 9; third, Greiff, Singer, Darby, 8.

CYCLING COMMENT.

W. W. Waters has purchased an Union wheel which he will ride this year.

Miss Mabel DuBois is riding a Crescent wheel purchased from the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Co.

Newton H. Saxton, of East Fourth street, has presented his daughter, Miss Jennie Saxton, with a handsome Union wheel.

Letter-carriers Robert H. Loughlin and Daniel Shea have purchased Hunter wheels from Lister, the North avenue cycle dealer.

The letter carries in the local postoffice are purchasing their wheels on which they will deliver mail in pleasant weather not only of F. L. C. Martin, but also of Lister. Postmaster Hetfield has not made any deal as was stated yesterday.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The record in the head pin game, of 113, made by Wheaton S. Lowry, was broken Monday night by Harry L. VanEmburgh, who succeeded in rolling 114.

LITTLE MISSION WORKERS.

They Hear Encouraging Reports and Elect Officers.

The annual meeting of the Gold Dust Band of the First Baptist church was held yesterday afternoon, at which time a large number of members and friends were present.

The reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and gave evidence of a steady growth in these important departments. The treasurer's report showed that during the year about $40 had been collected, of which amount two-thirds goes to foreign missions and one-third to home missions. The report of the secretary was prepared by Miss May Serrell and was exceedingly commendable. The self-denial fund amounted to $3.

Miss May Batchelor made the opening address, which was followed with songs by Ernest Powlison and Marguerite Serrell. A feature was the original paper entitled, "People of Thibet," which was prepared and read by Pauline Denton. It was very commendable.

The following gave excellent recitations: Vaughn McGee, Mabel Cronce, Wallace Pierce, Kathie Rocap, Carrie Bird and Ursula Krewson.

The election of the Senior officers resulted as follows: President, Miss Belle Butler; vice-presidents, Mrs. Powlison, Mrs. Harold Serrell; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Walter McGee.

The present Junior officers are: President, May Batchelor; secretary, May Serrell. The new officers will be elected at the April meeting.

Special mention is made of Madeline Evans, Miriam Sherwin and Ella Serrell, who as collectors have performed commendable work.

Refreshments were served to all at the close and thus ended a most successful annual meeting.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

WITH ROD AND GUN.

The great enemy of the game fish in the pond at New Market is the great number of carp that frequent the deep pools and eat the spawn of the other fish. Some of the carp are very large, and according to the stories of the local fishermen, there are some measuring over five feet in length and weighing from twenty-five to thirty pounds. They are not a game fish, and cannot be caught with baited hook and line. The fish commissioners have decided to drain the water out of the pond, and in that way get at the carp and destroy them.

AROUND THE CAMP FIRE

G. A. R. and Subordinate Organizations Enjoy a Pleasant Time.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., together with the Women's Relief Corps and Sons of Veterans as their guests, held a most enjoyable camp fire in their rooms last evening. The camp fire was lighted and with speeches and song the time passed all too quickly. Commander I. L. McVoy and President Mrs. Brokaw were on the platform, while Past-Commander W. C. Smith had charge of the programme which was given as follows:

Song, W. C. Smith; piano duett, Miss Ida Tallamy, Miss Mary Graves; song, W. C. Smith, Jr.; piano solo, Miss Jennie Smith; remarks, Past-Commander Chas Randolph, Post 109; song, W. C. Smith, Jr.; piano solo, Miss Mary Graves; remarks, N. C. Magne, Post 109; song, W. C. Smith, Jr.; piano solo, Miss Ada Nash; violin and piano duett, M. C. Dobbins, Clifford Braider; recitation, Past Commander W. W. Coriell, Post 73; remarks, President, Mrs. Brokaw; song, W. C. Smith; recitation, Miss Pangborn; recitation, W. R. Mattox. The above numbers were finely rendered and won hearty applause.

Coffee and cake was then abundently served by W. C. Smith and J. N. Bogert, the committee in charge.

HOW LEM ROPED THE B'AR.

LEM CHILDRESS is renowned as the man who wears the biggest pair of spurs in Grant county—a considerable feat. Also as the man who roped the bear. This story is to be about the roping of the bear, which incident made much talk even in this land of daredevil, hard-riding cowpunchers.

The celebrated Lemuel is a long-legged and good-natured Texan. He is foreman of the L. C. ranch and he delights in a bear hunt rather more than anything else. Lemuel was born on the panhandle, and had his early education driving cattle over the big trail and dodging Comanches. He killed his first Comanche at the tender age of seventeen with a double barreled shotgun. He has been riding and sleeping under his saddle blanket these thirty years, and he has a fashion of wearing out three horses a day.

But as to that bear: Thomas Lyons, the manager of the Lyons & Campbell Cattle company, is one of the most enthusiastic bear hunters in New Mexico, and he would as soon think of starting after a grizzly without his Winchester as to leave Lem behind. Last November his outfit was up in the Mogolton mountains on a bear hunt. Near the mouth of Sapillo creek, in a horribly rough country, they found where a huge grizzly had killed a bull, almost taking the beast's head off with one swipe of his fore paw. It is the habit of the grizzly to thus kill a cow, devour as much of the carcass as it wishes, then go away, bedding somewhere in the neighborhood, and returning from time to time to feast again upon the cow. Also it is the habit of bear hunters, knowing all this, to bury a 40-pound steel trap in the sand near the carcass, with the expectation that the bear will step into it and be thereafter considerably hampered in his movements. This is what Mr. Lyons did on this occasion. He set his bear trap near the dead bull, and to the chain of the trap he attached a twenty-foot sapling, of exceeding toughness. This was done in the evening. The next morning men and dogs set out from the camp, expecting to find the trap sprung. It was sprung, but not by the big grizzly. During the night an impudent little four hundred bear, a common black bear no bigger than a yearling heifer, had come along and stuck his foot into the trap. Of course bear, trap, sapling and all had disappeared, but between them all they managed to leave a trail as plain as the stage road. So off went the dogs and after them the hunters, tearing over rocks and through brush that nothing but a New Mexican horse could crawl through at a walk. The bear had taken right down Sapillo creek, which here runs through a deep "box" canyon—that is, a cleft in the mountain side with almost perpendicular walls. The dogs—Tom Lyons has a ferocious pack of bear dogs—overtook the beast three-quarters of a mile from the place where the trap was set and they went at him in fine style. The uproar and scratching of rocks, the snarling of the bear, and the noise of the dogs were something tremendous. There is no use trying to tell about that—description would be wasted on anyone who never saw Tom Lyons' dogs "wooling" an active and somewhat ill-tempered bear. They say it was a right pretty fight.

The situation was this: The wall of the canyon here, rocky and precipitous, ascends in huge steps—"benches," they call them. The bear was twenty or thirty feet up the wall on one of these benches with the dogs worrying him. On the next bench only a few feet away the delighted Childress sat watching the circus—he had dismounted and clambered to this place afoot. In the bed of the creek below was the rest of the party, every man trying to see all of the fun he could. Nobody was in a hurry about shooting the bear, for it was only a cheap black bear—good practice for the dogs.

From here on perhaps I would better let Lem tell the story just as he told it to me the other night while we were squatting by a camp-fire up Davis canyon after a hard day's ride looking for bear sign. Lem was putting in the time sorting frijoles to cook overnight and he told the story with great delight. I report it faithfully word for word—barring of course necessary expurgation where Mr. Childress' language grew too warm for publication. He is apt to grow more or less vivid in his talk when he gets to talking about bear. Especially about this particular bear. Said Lemuel:

"I was settin' up on the bench jist above Mr. B'ar watchin' the dogs goin' at him an' havin' whole lots of fun. Mr. Lyons and the boys down in the creek they couldn't see very well, so Mr. Lyons he yelled to me an' he sez: 'Rope him, Lem, so we kin pull him down an' have some fun with him.'

"'I ain't got no rope,' sez I.' So then Arthur Clark he throwed me his rope an' I made a throw at Mr. B'ar. He shook it right off jes' like this." Lem made a dab like a man trying to kill a mosquito on the back of his neck. "Then I tuk in my rope an' I made a big loop and throwed it all over him. He couldn't get away from that, an' I shore had him.

"'Throw the rope down to us, Lem,' sez Mr. Lyons, 'so's we kin pull him down.'

"Well, I clumb down to do it—that put me on the same bench with Mr. B'ar. The rope was too short for them fellers to reach, though, an' they couldn't pull him down. I yelled fer 'em to throw me another rope. Well, while we wuz a corkussin' aroun' Mr. B'ar moved out. He seed me an' he come right to me. That thar b'ar, he was considerable ir'tated from pullin' that trap aroun' and from the dogs a woolin' of him, an' he looked plenty mad now I tell you. My six-shooter had flopped out of my holster when I clumb down the bench, an' I didn't have no gun nor nothin'. Thar wuz a sycamore tree a growin' out of the creek up agin the canyon wall, an' I jest spread my wings an' inter that thar tree I flopped. Mr. B'ar, trap, saplin', dogs an' all right on top uv me—"

Right here Lem's description grew altogether too lurid for any use. The display of fireworks kept up for several minutes.

"Well," Lem went on, "down we went inter the creek kerflop, Mr. Ba'r an' the trap on top an' me on the bottom. I wuz pushin' an' shovin', tryin' to get out from under him, an' he was goin' to me 'bout right. By an' by one uv the dogs nipped him by the heel, an' he went after the dog an' I got up, an' you bet I run. The minute I put my left fut on the groun' I jes' changed ends. Mr. B'ar had chawed that fut all up, an' I couldn't run none at all. So I tumbled down, feelin' heap sick, an' Mr. Lyons he come up an' shot the b'ar. Then he giv me some whisky out'n his flask, an' you bet I felt better right away. The boys cut my boot off, an' then I needed some more whisky. You bet I wuz a killin' a nerve every now an' then with that thar whisky.

"Well, I wuzn't fit fur no more b'ar huntin' that trip. I done my fut up in a gunny sack an' I put out fer the home ranch. It wuz forty miles, but my hoss he wuz homesick an' he shore traveled. The road crossed the Gila one hundred and twenty-six times between Sapyo an' the ranch, an' ever' time it crossed I jest let my sick fut hang down, an' I drug it through the water. It did me heaps of good, you bet.

"But I didn't do no more ridin' fer six weeks, and that thar leg it pesters me yet, sometimes. It ain't got no strength in it no more. You see, I twisted my ankle and busted a whole lot o' little bones in it somewhar."

Lem still limps from his wound, but he does not seem to mind it, especially as the limp makes his buzz-saw spurs jingle all the more loudly. The next day after he told me this story I saw him ride a dun pony called Badger up among the pinnacles of the big mountain over against Red Rock over an impossible trail—he rode at a stiff gait where one of the most daring cow hands of the L. C. outfit, following him, was fain to get down and tow his horse along by the bridles. Lem rode forty miles that day over the most outrageous country without stopping for food and water, and had time when he came to camp to gallop out of the canyon where camp was, catch a calf, drag the beast down the mountain, butcher it, cook and devour large portions of it, and then sit up half the night telling how thick the buffalo used to be on the Staked plains.

The chances are that if another bear ever gets within throwing distance of Lem Childress it will "sure get roped."

RARIFIED MOUNTAIN AIR.

The Loss of Breath in Climbing Not Altogether Due to Altitude.

The question of loss of breath at great altitudes cannot, however, be taken as a sure test of the height reached. The state of health of the climbers, and whether they are training in proper or not, whether they have had a sufficiency of food, and the different states of the weather, are very large factors in the comforts or discomforts of an ascent. Count Henry Russell, one of the most experienced mountaineers, suffered severely on Mont Blanc (15,800 feet), while Mr. Henry Gale Gotch, after an easy ascent of the same mountain, tried the experiment of jumping a number of times over an alpenstock, which he did without any inconvenience whatever—his guide, Henri Devouassoud, however, confiding to him after a few days his abiding astonishment at so peculiar a mode of resting after an assent. Mr. Whymper and the Carrels suffered severely on Chimborazo (21,424 feet), while on the other hand Dr. Gussfeldt on Aconcagua reached 21.000 feet without suffering any inconvenience; and Mr. Freshfield's party of six did not suffer in any way from the air, though they almost ran up the last rocks of Elbruz (18,526 feet).—Edwin S. Balch, in Popular Science Monthly.

A BUFFALO STAMPEDE.

An Indian Chief Saves a White Boy from Being Crushed to Death.

A number of the bulls began to bellow, and to throw dirt with their hoofs. Their noise and stir started a herd from the nearest hill, and we saw a host of them come tearing down the slope, with long, lunging jumps, some of them flinging their heels and tails high in the air, jumping sidewise and bawling in a mad, freakish way, just as cattle sometimes plunge down a hill half in play, half in a state of nervous excitement. There was now a perfect bedlam of noise, and clouds of dust were rising on all hands. The chief motioned to me to shoot.

I carried a short, thick-barreled buffalo-gun—it was before the days of the breach-loaders—which threw an ounce and a half slug. I aimed at a bull some 50 feet away, who offered a broadside shot in his pawing. The heavy ball knocked him off his feet, and the next moment he was at the last gasp.

The chief also fired his rifle, with what effect I did not see, for our shots did not startle even the nearest animals, so great was the noise of their own bawlings, and so thick the cloud of dust they had raised. A mad craze seemed suddenly to have possessed the whole herd, for a great crowd had pressed down out of the ravine, and hundreds were plunging down the bluffs. The situation had suddenly become startling and dangerous.

The chief, in alarm, sprang to his feet, and threw the wolf-skin from his head. I did the same. He had evidently counted on scattering the buffalo, and frightening them off by our first shots.

Instead, a tumbling mass of them had gathered about the animal which I had shot, and, excited to greater frenzy than ever by the smell of blood, were filling the air with hoarse, deep, quavering roars, which made the ground tremble under us.

The dust from the multiplying numbers which surged in toward us, pervaded as it was with alkali, set me into a paroxysm of sneezing and coughing in spite of my intense alarm. It now enveloped us in so thick a cloud that we could practically see nothing. Suddenly the chief seized me by the arm. "Come," he said, "we go quick!" and we started off at a run. We dodged hither and thither to get out of the way of plunging, bawling animals, many of which lunged past within arm's reach.

The dust had grown continuously thicker, and my eyes, filled with smarting alkali, failed me utterly before we had run 50 yards. I was again seized by a violent fit of coughing and sneezing.

I shouted to Little Bear, between my coughings, that I could not see. He answered only: "We go quick—quick!" and, keeping a tight grip upon my arm, jerked me this way and that, as we rushed ahead.

But, active and powerful as he was he could not save me in my blindness from collision. I was hit by one of the huge animals and knocked over. The creature struck me on the left side and I was wrenched from the chief's grasp and sent rolling over and over in the dust. In fact, I was knocked breathless, half-stunned, and could not have risen at once of my own accord. I should have been run over and crushed but for the chief. As it was, I had just sense enough to know that I was jerked from the ground, tossed upward, and borne forward upon his shoulders.

He ran like a deer, carrying me as if I had been a papoose, jumping and dodging this way and that, among the throng of animals, whose rumbling tread sounded in my ears like the muttering of thunder.

Twice he was run over and thrown, and we both measured our full lengths, but he was on his feet again in an instant, and, lifting me as before, darted ahead, seemingly unhurt. How he managed to keep his eyesight and his bearings in that choking cloud, and among that excited mass of animals is, and always will be, a mystery to me.

But he did it.

He carried me out of that bellowing, crazy crowd of animals, and set me upon my feet upon the hill above them, giving utterance to a huge grunt of satisfaction when he found that I could stand.—Frank Welles Calkins, in St. Nicholas.

They Come to the United States.

It would not be easy to find a family in Canada within 100 miles of Kingston in which there belonged half a dozen children where one or more of the children were not living in the United States. A great portion of those who have left the country are farmers' sons, and they are found filling situations all over the state of New York. But more significant than all this is the record of the graduating classes of the Royal military college, the West Point of Canada, picturesquely located at the foot of the slope between old Fort Henry and the river. The college was opened in 1876. The course of study is four years the same as at West Point, the chief instructors are regular officers detailed from the British army and the curriculum is of a most exacting order. It is a school that Canada is justly proud of, but of its annual graduating class only the four highest are eligible for commissions in the regular army. Over 50 per cent. of all of the graduates are filling positions in the United States, chiefly as civil and mechanical engineers.—Chicago Journal.

SHOES, HOSE AND BELTS.

New Facts About These Accessories to the Feminine Costume.

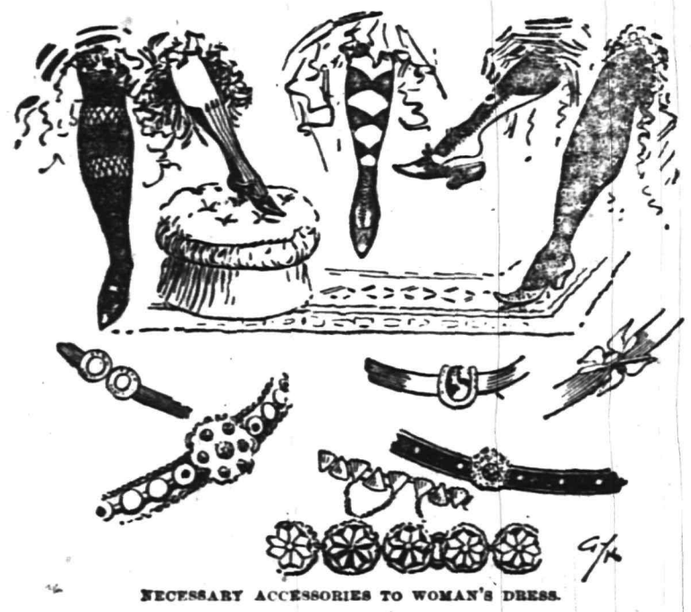
Shoes with Turned-Up Toes—Belts Are Not Meant to Hide Unsightly Skirt Bands—Stockings in Solid Colors Old-Fashioned.

[COPYRIGHT, 1896.]

I will begin with the shoes because they are mentioned first, though they are far from being the most important. For according to present indications a belt is one of woman's most precious possessions—that is when she has one—and the subject of her fondest dreams when she hasn't.

There are a few radical changes in the shape of shoes. Of course that has nothing to do with shape of the feet—it never has; the poor foot has nothing to say in the matter. The new shoes are shaped very much like Turkish slippers with pointed toes turned up inquiringly, as much as to say: "Which way next?" Both high shoes and slippers are made in this fashion, but they are not very graceful, and it is doubtful whether they will become popular.

Many people have discarded high shoes altogether, and have taken to wearing low ties with gaiter tops. This is recommended as a cure or at least as a preventive for corns and bunions. Those who advise the wearing of low shoes say that high shoes retard the circulation and give rise to an unhealthy condition of the feet. The gaiters can be removed in the house, and one can enjoy the comfort of slippers.



NECESSARY ACCESSORIES TO WOMAN'S DRESS.

In this way, ties, which were once confined to the limits of the summer season, have come to be worn all the year round. The prettiest tie is the one with a smooth fitting uncut front that resembles a tongue with straps coming up from each side with only two eyelets for lacing. Sometimes these straps are tied together with a knot of ribbon.

A bronze tie—not a russet, but that shiny leather that children's shoes used to be made of, when some of us were the right age to wear them—makes a comfortable shoe that is as soft as French kid. Some of the new dancing slippers are made of bronze, beaded in the approved style.

A white satin dancing slipper follows the jewel fad in being covered with large rhine stones, with a circlet of pearls about each.

For high shoes, the most comfortable as well as the most sensible and most durable, is a laced shoe with dull finish.

Buttoned shoes have cloth tops and patent leather tips.

Stockings are all in at least two tints. Solid colors are old-fashioned. Evening hose are very elaborate, with open work or embroidered fronts or with the colors woven in fanciful patterns. Many of the stockings are black half way up with light colored tops. One pair has a top of pale green cross stripes on a white ground. Another has diamond-shaped cross stripes, in bands of two or three inches in width, one-half way up the stocking, and the other just below the knee. Plaid tops are very fashionable for both men and women. I saw a pair of plaid socks the other day, which none but a man with the courage of his convictions would wear.

Belts are made of every material under the sun. The market is flooded with them. Time was when we had nothing but leather belts—girdles they call them now, and that is more correct, because the most elegant ones are of gold and silver and are worn loose. Such girdles are not intended to hide an unsightly skirtband, but are meant as an ornament to the new basques that everybody is wearing. They are made in many pieces of intricate design and linked together, fastening with a large buckle of a design similar to that of the separate pieces, but on a larger scale. Nearly all these are either enameled or set with jewels. A handsome belt is made of Russian enamel on oxydized silver. It was marked $13.50.

A cheaper belt, about half an inch wide, is made up of tiny gold discs, about the size of potash lozenges, set with rubies. This was six dollars, but, of course, the girdle was only washed with gold.

A belt, with a flat ring for a buckle, had a rope chain of oxydized silver to go around the waist. The buckle had Greek heads on it, and an inscription in Greek. The girdle was solid silver and was marked $58.50.

Some of the sporting belts have buckles in appropriate designs, such as a horseshoe with a miniature face, or a sailor hat and pair of oars.

Leather belts are very narrow. Some of the New York dealers are cutting their wide belts in two to make the more popular narrow ones.

White leather, with a silver buckle, is pretty with a black or violet or gray gown.

Black velvet on leather makes an elegant belt. A handsome one is set with rubies around the waist and has a gold buckle.

Another black velvet belt has a fleur de lis buckle of black enamel and rhine stones.

People with plenty of money have a girdle to go with every gown, but ordinary mortals must content themselves with one, and even that one is often only a 98-cent imitation gold one.

CHATEAU OF MONTE CRISTO.

The Home Upon Which Dumas Squandered a Fortune.

At his architectural folly of Monte Cristo, near St. Germain-en-Laye, which he built at a cost of upward of 700,000 francs in 1848, Dumas had unenclosed grounds and gardens, which, with the house, afforded lodgings and entertainment not only to a host of Bohemian "sponges," but to all the dogs, cats and donkeys that chose to quarter themselves in the place. It was called by the neighbors "la maison de Bon Dieu." There was a menagerie in the park peopled by three apes: Jugurtha, the vulture, whose transport from Africa, whence Dumas fetched him, cost 40,000 francs (it would be too long to tell why); a big parrot called Duval; a macaw named Papa and an ibin asking Dumas before his face to leave him behind. The pointer set up a howl so piteous that the governor of the prison withdrew the authorization he had given his captive to retain him. Some of the dogs that Pritchard invited in stayed altogether; others remained only for a meal.

One day Michel, the gardener, said other christened Everard; Lucullus, the golden pheasant; Caesar, the gamecock; a pea-fowl and a guinea-fowl; Mysouf II., the Angora cat, and the Scotch pointer Pritchard.

This dog was a character. He was fond of canine society, and used to sit in the road looking out for other dogs to invite them to keep him company at Monte Carlo. He was taken by his master to Ham to visit Louis Napoleon when a prisoner there. The latter wished to keep Pritchard, but counted without the intelligence of the animal to his employer: "Does monsieur know how many dogs there are in his property?" "No, Michel, I don't." "Well, there are 13." "An unlucky number. Take care that they don't all eat together, for if they did one would be sure to die in the year." "Oh, it's not that that troubles me," pursued Michel. "What is it, then?" "I'm thinking that all these brutes are able to devour in one day a whole ox, horns and all." "You don't mean to say that they'd eat the horns?" "Oh, if monsieur takes the matter as a joke, I have nothing more to say." "But I don't see any joke in it." "Well, then, just let me lay the whip on 12 of them, and the house will be rid of them right away." "Wait a bit, Michel. You see that all these dogs, in quartering themselves here, pay a compliment to the house. Give them a grand dinner tomorrow and at the end of the dessert tell them to clear out. If they don't go, show severity." Michel was withdrawing when Dumas relented. "Hold!" he cried. "You see, when the bon Dieu gives us riches, a fine house, and position, he also imposes charges upon us. Since the dogs—which, after all, are His creatures too—are in the house, I prefer that they stay. I don't believe that anyone was yet ruined by what poor brutes ate. However, see that the number of 13 is changed." "Will monsieur let me turn one away, and then there will be only 12?" "No; encourage Pritchard to invite another, which will bring them up to 14." "But it will then be a pack." "With all my heart, provided the dogs don't quarrel and go mad." They never did bark and bite, but lived in fraternal kindness until Monte Cristo was sold. Dumas, before he left it, got 13 friends to take as many dogs, and kept Pritchard, who died with him of old age.—Emily Crawford, in Century.

A Startling Request.

A lady who has just returned from the Randt relates a somewhat gruesome experience which occurred to her in one of the leading Johannesburg hotels during the recent water famine. She happened one day to see two cans of water standing outside a bathroom door, and the temptation to take a bath was too strong to be resisted. While enjoying the luxury so long denied her, the lady was startled by a clamor at the door, and a voice implored her in broken English not to pull up the plug. "Do not use too much zoap, madame; I vant ze vater for ze soup!" The lady did not dine at table d'hote that evening.—London Tit-Bits.

The other new correspondents are Kirchoff, the classical scholar of Berlin, and Benndorf, of Vienna, the archaeologist.

—Sir Frederick Pollock, whom Harvard honored with an LL. D. last commencement, has not forgotten the distinction, and there is much praise of American jurists and American character in general in the article on the Harvard law school which he contributed to the London Times.

—The board of visitors of the University of Wisconsin has just investigated a charge that President Charles K. Adams is "a born and bred aristocrat," and has decided that the charge is unfounded, on the ground that the president was born on a farm, and worked his way through school and college.

—Evangelist Smith, who is conducting a series of successful revival meetings at the People's temple, Boston, is a full-blooded gypsy, and was brought up in New Forest, England. He is described as a most picturesque, forcible and eloquent preacher, although at the time of his conversion he could not read.

A NEW THEORY ABOUT THE HAIR.

Don't Cut It Often and You Save Yourself from Growing Bald.

"You are getting very bald," remarked the barber, cheerfully and with exquisite tact. "It won't be many years now until you'll look a good deal like Bill Nye in your upper regions."

The customer moved uneasily under his tormentor's clutch, and tried ineffectually to get a puff at his fast-expiring cigar.

"Yes," mused the barber as he fondled the customer's few remaining locks and assumed the thoughtful and reposeful mien so often observed in tonsorial artists, "and you would hardly believe it, but I am largely responsible for your baldness."

At this the customer strove to rise, but could not, for he was lying on his back, one hand was locked under an apron, the other held a cigar, and he could secure no leverage.

"Yes, sir, I can tell you the whole truth now," resumed the barber, "because this thing has gone too far to do me any harm. I have been cutting your hair for 15 years, on an average of once a month. If I had cut it only once in six months you would have twice as much hair as you have at the present time. And if I had cut it once a year you would probably have a capillary adornment equal to that of Mr. Buffalo Bill.

"You see, the more the hair is cut the weaker it becomes at the roots, and if the cutting is repeated often enough the roots will become so weak and degenerate that they will no longer be able to afford an anchorage for the hair. As a result, of course, the hair falls out and you become bald.

"There are not many persons outside the medical profession who understand this. Some of the barbers do, but I have never heard of their saying anything about it to their customers. And I only tell you because I feel that you will not want your hair cut very often from now until you die, for the powerful reason that you have none to cut.

"Each little thread of hair contains a slender tube, like the pith cylinder of a plant stem. It is by means of this tube that the hair derives its nourishment. Under natural conditions the hair is allowed to grow to its full length. Then the tubes do their work properly. But when the hair and of course the tubes, too, are cut off, every few weeks, the roots are sure to become weak, and eventually they will lose their grip on the scalp.

"It is often said that cutting the hair will make it stronger, just like cutting grass. So it will for a time. Repeated cutting tends to make the hair coarse, but it is just this sort that falls out easiest and earliest. Women are seldom bald, for they let their hair grow. Did you ever hear of a bald Indian or savage, unless he had been a victim of civilization. I guess not."—N. Y. World.

Warning of the Register.

If your register sends forth a blast of ashes every time the furnace is raked you have proof the most positive that there is a leak in your firebox; otherwise the ashes could not reach the hot-air pipes. This should be remedied at once, since it is not only a frequent cause of the unsatisfactory fire, but it inevitably introduces coal gas and cellar air into the house. Any odor from the combustion of foreign matter in the furnace should not rise through the pipes; if it does, the lesson of the ashes is but repeated in another form.—Philadelphia Ledger.

PROSPECTIVE GROOM ARRESTED.

Henry Phillips Arrested Yesterday on the Charge of Committing a Theft.

The day that should be the happiest in his life, his wedding day, has so far proved a very unenjoyable one for Henry Phillips, the colored waiter at the City Hotel. The cause of all his trouble was a mistake that he made yesterday.

Mrs. Morley, a domestic at the hotel, came to Sergeant Kiely yesterday and said she had been robbed of $10 of her last week's wages, which she had secreted in her room. The money was in two $5 bills. Sergeant Kiely learned that Henry Phillips, one of the waiters at the hotel, had been flourishing a $5 bill about one of the local saloons and purchased some liquor.

The Sergeant interviewed the colored waiter who, at first, denied having any money at all in his possession, but the Sergeant refreshed his memory and then Phillips remembered that he had a $5 bill that his fiance had gave him. Then the officer suggested visiting the young woman when the young colored man broke down and confessed that he and Willis Walker, a porter at the City Hotel, had planned the robbery and carried it out, dividing their ill-gotten gains between them.

Sergeant Kiely, with Patrolman Vanderweg's assistance, arrested the two culprits and lodged them in jail.

This morning they were brought before Justice Newcorn and held for trial at 1:30 o'clock. Ex-Judge W. A. Coddington represented the prisoners.

Phillips was to have been married today to Miss Frances Elder, a recent arrival from Virginia.

The two prisoners came up before Justice Newcorn this afternoon and pleaded not guilty, through their counsel, and waived examination. They were held in $50 bail to appear before the Grand Jury.

For a Gold Standard.

Henry Hentz, chairman of the special committee on sound financial legislation of the New York Chamber of Commerce, recently reported the following:

The Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York believes that the time has now come for a movement on the part of the commercial bodies and all men, whether engaged in farming, manufacture or trade, who are interested in commercial prosperity in the United States to remove from political agitation the question of the permanence of the standard of value upon which all of the business of this country is transacted. It invites co-operation to this end, in an effort to create a strong public opinion in behalf of an unequivocal declaration by the political conventions of both of the great parties in favor of the maintenance of our existing standard and of the elimination of all doubtful expressions in respect to the reopening of the mints of the United States to the free coinage of silver.

The time is past, if it ever existed, for any halting, doubtful phrasing to express the meaning of political parties upon this important subject. We must have no platforms that can be interpreted to mean one thing in one part of the land and another thing in another part of the land.

It is important to every business man, producer and wage earner to put a stop to the enormous cost to the Government and to all of our people resulting from the continuance of the agitation in favor of the free coinage of silver, which stands in the way of a revival of confidence and national business prosperity.

Therefore, we ask all citizens to unite in a vigorous effort to urge the selection of delegates to the political conventions of both great parties who will advocate clear and distinct platform utterances in favor of the maintenance of the present gold standard of value. The time is short and action ought, therefore, to be all the more prompt and determined.

Surprised at Eveningtide.

Thomas Doud, of Duer street, celebrated the anniversary of his birthday yesterday in a very quiet manner, as usual. Last evening his daughter, Mrs. James Blair, of Jackson avenue, invited him to her home to take supper. He thought very little about it until he reached the house and found that he was not the only one present, for the whole family had been invited and were there to do him honor. He was completely surprised, but was also equal to the occasion and a very pleasant time was passed in a social way.

May Visit the Slums.

The Executive Committee of the Christian Endeavor society of Trinity Reformed church, have received an invitation from Mrs. Chas. Bilyeau, superintendent of the Jerry McAll Mission, New York, to visit the various points of interest among the slums in New York. It is probable that they will accept the invitation.

Pleasantly Entertained.

Miss Stelle Swain entertained a few friends at her home on Craig place last night. Games, and music, both instrumental and vocal, occupied the attention of the guests for most of the evening. Dainty refreshments were served toward the close. A very pleasant evening was spent.

One Minute Cough Cure touches the right spot. It also touches it at the right time if you take it when you have a cough or cold. See the point? Then don't cough.

THEATRICAL.

At Music Hall next Wednesday evening William Calders excellent company will present the spectacular melo-drama, "The Span of Life," which is one of the great melo-dramatic successes in five countries, America, England, France, Germany and Holland. It is full of interest and abounds in powerful scenes, excellent sentiments, thrilling situations and the plot fully enlists the sympathy of everyone. It contains matter enough to fill a whole volume of romance and history.

Lecture on Italian Art.

The Monday Afternoon Club together with their friends met at the Casino yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and enjoyed an illustrated lecture by Dr. VanDyke, of New York, on "Italian Art." The pictures were all very fine, and included chiefly frescoes that now adorn the interiors of many old cathedrals. They were by famous Italian painters and artists. The speaker remarked that the main object of the Italians were to secure perfection in their work, and never gave the immoral side of it a thought. The lecture was very attentively listened to, and at the close the speaker was heartily applauded.

Funeral of Mr. DeGraw.

The funeral services of the late Agustus DeGraw, which were held yesterday afternoon fyom the house, 321 Park avenue, were private, only the immediate relatives and friends being present. Rev. Cornelius Schenck officiated and spoke words of comfort and consolation to the bereaved ones. The floral tributes consisted of calla lillies and a sheaf of wheat. The pall bearers were: T. S. Armstrong, Geo. W. Rockfellow, Morgan Bird and Edward Pack. Interment was in Hillside Cemetery.

A Prosperous Concern.

The Hastings Card Company, 28 Beekman street, New York, is enlarging their premises by renting the store on Spruce street, abutting their present store, thus giving them a place of business running through from Beekman to Spruce street. They will enlarge their business by the addition of flat papers, ruled goods, envelopes, etc. F. C. Lounsbury, of Plainfield avenue, this city, is treasurer of the company, and The Press recommends the concern to the fraternity.

Plainfield's New Attorney.

Charles J. McNabb, one of Plainfield's brightest young men, will open his law-offices tomorrow in the rooms formerly occupied by John Ulrich, in the Plainfield Water Company's building on North avenue, Mr. McNabb has been studying law with City Judge DeMeza and recently passed his examinations at Trenton very successfully. He takes with him the good wishes of all his many friends.

Sent in a False Alarm.

Last evening some person secured a fire alarm key which has been hanging in the borough electric light station, and going to the corner of Hudson Lane and Somerset street, sent in a false alarm from box 145. The department responded quickly, but to no purpose. As yet it is not known who sent the alarm in.

A Missionary Service.

On Friday evening at 8 o'clock, the Christian Endeavor Society of the Psrk Avenue Baptist church will hold a missionary meeting. The subject will be "Armenia" and two or three papers will be read upon the various divisions of the subject. All Endeavorers and their friends are cordially invited.

Death of Mrs. Bullock.

Mrs. Bullock, of East Sixth street, died this morning at her late home of appolexy. She was the mother of Miss Bullock, the school teacher, and William Starr Bullock, of the New York Morning Journal. The notice of funeral will be given later.

Court at Dunellen.

The case of Charles W. Griffin against Grace Ising, on contract, came up before Justice Huff at Dunellen on Monday and resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff for full amount and costs.

Contribution to the Hospital.

The Treasurer of Muhlenberg Hospital has received from St. Mary's church its Hospital Sunday collection amounting to $38.

The engagement of Miss Louise Dryden, of West Seventh street, to Francis G. Moore, of Fanwood, is announced.

Death of an Old Plainfielder.

John S. Johnson, a well-known and respected citizen, died at his home, 508 Park avenue, yesterday, after a severe illness. He was born at Rossville, S. I., eighty two years ago, and when a young man moved to Piscataway, this State, where he took up the business of farming. A few years later he was married. About seventeen years ago he came to Plainfield and took charge of a farm, after which he conducted a grocery on Park avenue for many years. His wife died about six years ago, and for the past eight years he has lived a retired life. He leaves three children, Alfred Johnson, who lives in North Plainfield township; Peter C. Johnson, who resides on Plainfield avenue, and J. Wesley Johnson, of LaGrande avenue. He was a member of the Park Avenue Baptist church and a regular attendant. The funeral services will be held from the house Friday afternoon at 2:30.

A Change in the Time Table.

A new time table will take effect on the Jersey Central Railroad Sunday. There will be several important changes, especially in the Blue Line trains.

—The street cars are running double this afternoon on of the storm.

—Dr. Barnes lectured to an interested audience in the Monroe Avenue chapel last evening.

—George W. Springer states that the report that he is to be married to Miss Agnes Ecke is untrue.

—It is not too late for another blizzard. You will need warm underwear. Peck has what you need.

—Miss Lizzie Shay died at her home on Linden avenue this morning from a complication of diseases. She was sixteen years of age.

—The Amphion Ladies' Mandolin and Vocal Quartette of New York will furnish the fifth entertainment in the Y. M. C. A. Star Course next Tuesday evening.

—Twenty of the local Knights Templar will go by stage to Metuchen this evening to visit Temple Commandery and be present at the annual inspection by the grand officers.

—Weather Observer Neagle this afternoon received word that a heavy storm from the south was due along the coast tomorrow. It is said that it will assume the intensity of a hurricane.

—The funeral services of the late Randolph Waldron were held from the home of his sister, West Fourth street, yesterday afternoon and were largely attended. Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes officiated. The floral tributes were numerous and very handsome. Interment was in Evergreen cemetery. The pall-bearers, nephews of the decedent, were Harry and William Milligan, William and George Craig.

Editor Frank W. Runyon and wife returned from the south today.

A young son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Harry V. Borden, of 131 East Ninth street yesterday.

RETURNS FROM THREE COUNTIES.

How the Election Went in Union, Middlesex and Somerset.

The Tribune this morning publishes the following:

Elizabeth, March 11th—Complete returns from the Union County elections show that the next Board of Freeholders will stand 14 Republicans to 3 Democrats, a Republican gain of one. In Union Township, where the Republicans claimed Ogden Woodruff's election, his Democratic opponent, James A. Barnett, won by 12 majority. The Republicans gained on their vote in every township except Westfield and Springfield, and in each of these places a local fight over Freeholders had much to do with reducing the party vote.

Somerville, March 11—The spring elections in Somerset county have resulted in a series of surprises. John C. Staats, the popular Democratic director of the Board of Freeholders, who was believed to be invincible, was defeated in Franklin township by C. G. VanCleef, Republican. James B. Smith, the strong Republican candidate in Bridgewater, was defeated by W. J. Logan, Democrat, by a large majority. The Republican have gained one member in the Board of Freeholders, but the Board is still Democratic by two majority. The townships of Bernards, Bedminister and Warren elect the entire Democratic nominees. In the township of Bridgewater the Republicans elect the justices of the peace and the majority of the township officers. The taxpayers' ticket was elected in the borough of Bound Brook, against the opposition of the independents. One justice of the peace was elected by the Democrats in the borough of North Plainfield, and all other borough officials were elected by the Republicans. Returns from all other townships show a complication of political results, due to a large independent vote, which gives a balance to neither political party.

New Brunswick, March 11—The Democrats made gains in Middlesex county yesterday. Next year's Board will contain nine Democrats and ten Republicans, with one Freeholder to be elected in Perth Amboy in April. If he is a Democrat the Board will be deadlocked.

A Valuable Acquisition.

A collection of "Facsimiles of royal, historical, literary and other autographs in the Department of Manuscripts of the British Museum," has been presented to the Plainfield Public Library by Mrs. Edward D. McCarthy, of this city. It is a really valuable and very interesting collection, containing autographs of Katharine of Aragon, Queen Elizabeth, Mary Stuart, Charles I., Oliver Cromwell, General Gordon, Queen Victoria, John Keats, Charles Dickens, Robert Browning, and many other noted men and women. The collection will be placed in the reference department of the library, where it may be seen during library hours by any who are interested.

WINTER'S CELEBRATION.

COULD NOT RESIST COMMEMORATING THE GREAT BLIZZARD.

The Wind Blew in Frigid Blasts, and the Snow Fell, But the Results Were Not Like Those of Eight Years Ago.

Just eight years ago today the great blizzard arrived and buried all this part of the country under nearly two feet of snow. Old winter could not resist the temptation to celebrate the anniversary of such an event and yesterday we had another blizzard, but of rather minute proportions. The wind blew and the snow drifted, but the cold was at no time severe, the mercury remaining near the freezing point.

The white flakes came slowly at first, but at one time yesterday afternoon the storm became a blinding one, the snow falling rapidly and in large flakes. It gradually turned to hail and frozen mist that continued late at night when the storm was blown off the coast.

In Plainfield the snow fell to a depth of about four inches on the level, but drifted in places to over two feet deep. Of course there is sleighing, but how long it will remain is an unanswerable question. According to the weather bureau another storm is approaching from the west that will bring with it more snow It is predicted to arrive some time tomorrow. There was little damage done by the storm so far as is known. The wind managed to upset a show case or two, blow off blinds, turn umbrellas inside out, and the like. There was no delay on the Jersey Central railroad, and all the trains ran with their accustomed regularity. The trolley cars ran double when the storm grew severe, and the scraper was used during the evening.

MADE A STRONG ARGUMENT.

Dr. Lewis Appeared at a Congressional Hearing in Washington.

Rev. A. H. Lewis, of this city, was one of the prominent speakers at the hearing before the judiciary committee of Congress yesterday at Washington, when the matter of inculcating a portion of the Bible into the Constitution of the United States was brought up. Before going to the committee hearing Dr. Lewis accidentally met Rev. Jenkins Lloyd Jones, of Chicago, who is an old friend of his, and who was in Washington for the same purpose that he was—to oppose the use of the Bible in the Constitution. They made a strong team for the opposition. The proposed amendment is as follows:

We, the people of the United States, (acknowledging Almighty God as the source of all power and authority in civil government, our Lord Jesus Christ as the Ruler of Nations, and His revealed will as of supreme authority in civil affairs,) in order to form a more perfect Union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquillity, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and to our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America.

Dr. Lewis opposed the amendment on the broad ground that he did not wish the question of religion brought into politics and be kicked about as a football from ward primaries to national conventions.

After the hearing was over Dr. Lewis was personally complimented by Congressman Updyke, of Iowa, for the strong points he made. It was generally under stood that the amendment would either be reported adversely or killed by the committee. Dr. Lewis returned home this morning.

To Continue the Lectures.

At the close of Prof. James F. Riggs' lecture on Tuesday night, Prof. Beveer presented the details of the University Extension scheme and explained it. Those present then determined to organize and Isaac L. Miller was elected chairman. A committee was then selected to arrange for the permanent course next year and was given power to enlarge itself. The committee consisted of ex-Mayor L. V. F. Randolph, A. H. Atterbury, Mrs. Struthers, Miss Newton, Miss Scribner and Mrs. Robert Lowry.

Princeton Club Election.

The annual business meeting of the Princeton Club of Plainfield will be held at the Young Men's Christian Association building, Front street and Watchung avenue, on Monday evening next at 8:30 o'clock. The election of officers of the club for the ensuing year will then take place, and final arrangements will be made for the annual dinner to be held April 7th.

Change in Methodist Rules Proposed.

An effort will be made at the M. E. church conference, to be held soon in Newark, to abolish the limit which changes the pastors every two or five years. It is the idea to leave it with each church as to how long they desire their pastor to remain.

A thorough examination is being made of the sewers, but so far they have been found in perfect condition.

ACTIVE MISSION WORKERS.

Annual Meeting of the Foreign Missionary Societies Held.

In spite of the inclement weather there was was a very encouraging attendance of members at the annual meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue and First Presbyterian churches, held in the former church yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Ford, as secretary, prepared and read one of the best reports ever listened to by the society. It gave a detailed account of what had been done during the past year, and showed that the work had progressed favorably. It included the work performed by the Sunshine, Boys, and Young Ladies Mission Bands. Owing to the absence of the treasurer, her report was not read.

By a unanimous vote Mrs. Isaac P. Miller was placed in charge of the Boys' Mission Band, and an effort will be made to accomplish much good.

Under the direction of Mrs. S. R. Struthers, the Misses Demarest and Miss Clawson rendered a very pleasing vocal selection, which all appreciated.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Milliken, Crescent Avenue church; vice-presidents, Mrs. Petrie, First Presbyterian church; Mrs. Yerkes, Crescent Avenue church; secretary, Mrs. Ford, Crescent Avenue church; treasurer, Miss Dietrich, First Presbyterian church; superintendents of collectors, Mrs. Groendyke, Crescent Avenue church; Miss Petrie, First Presbyterian church.

At the conclusion of business, tea was served. Mrs. George Mellick presided at the table, assisted by Mrs. Gibbs, Miss Petrie, Miss Wood. Miss Walz, Miss Hartley and Miss Halloway.

IN ST. MARY'S CHURCH.

Fourth Sermon in the Lenten Series Delivered Last Evening.

Despite the storm which prevailed last night, St. Mary's church held a good-sized congregation, who had assembled to hear Rev. J. J. Synnott, D. D., of Seton Hall College, South Orange, speak on "Satisfaction." He took his text from the fourth chapter of the fiftieth Psalm.

Satisfaction for sins committed, said the speaker, must be made in one way or another. It was not sufficient to be merely sorry. He told of examples in the early ages to illustrate this, especially the cases of David and Moses. The latter, when commanded by Almighty God to strike the rock once and the living waters would gush forth, allowed a momentary doubt to take possession of him, and a thought that God would forsake him and that he would make a failure, thus humiliating himself before his people, he struck the rock twice. Moses was undoubtedly sorry for his want of faith, but God was not satisfied, and Moses was not allowed to set foot on the promised land, for which he had so longed, but only allowed to view it from a distant mountain top. The speaker also told of how in the early ages of the church, people who transgressed were obliged to fast for certain periods of time, according to the extent of sins committed. The preacher spoke on many other truths connected with the church, but suffice it to say that the sermon was delivered in a masterly manner and by one of the most gifted speakers in the Catholic church.

The evening's services closed with the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament with Father Smyth, the rector of the church, as celebrant.

Sir Knights to Meet.

The Knights of Pythias will hold a district meeting at Goodwill Lodge, Scotch Plains, this evening when Grand Chancellor Hitchcock will make his first official visit since his election. His staff will also be present. The meeting will be of especial interest to all knights as new and important business will be discussed.

The Station Will be Moved.

During the year the Central Railroad Company will build a handsome passenger station in Elizabeth near Division street, after which the Spring Street station will be abandoned. This will be a graat accommodation to that section of the city, and the means of stimulating building there.

All last winter Mr. Geo. A. Mills, of Labanon, Conn., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. At times it was so severe that he could not stand up straight, but was drawn over on one side. "I tried different remedies without receiving relief," he says, "until about six months ago I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. After using it for three days my rheumatism was gone and has not returned since. For sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue. T. S Armstrong, Manager.

ELECTRICITY FOR THE AILING.

Dr. Ida Hunt Has an Invention That Will Benefit Mankind.

Electricity has made such rapid strides in the past few years that the limit of its capacity is not calculable. It has been taken into the sick room with wonderful results, which proves that it has another use besides motive power. Dr. Ida Hunt, of 223 East Fifth street, has introduced in this city what is called a static or frictional machine. Its especial use is in the treatment of nervous, neuralgic or rheumatic troubles. It is a massive machine, power for which is furnished by a water motor. The electricity is generated by the friction of revolving brass wheels against stationary glass plates. This machine is used in producing X-rays for shadowgraphs. The administering of a charge has a toning effect on the body, and the sensation is exceedingly pleasant and agreeable.

In nervous diseases the spray or breeze is used. The patient is placed on an insulated platform, connected with a pole to the battery, while the physician holds an electrode and by wave-like motion electrifies particles of air between the electrode and the patient, which gives the latter the sensation of a breeze playing over the diseased part of the body. This mode is called the administering of electricity by convection.

The machine has a great field in rheumatic troubles, especially sciatica, when usually the spark is given. It has twelve separate electrodes which are used for various diseases.

For head troubles the head breeze is used by connecting on the pole to a rod a brass crown suspended over the head some distance, and the patient placed on the platform is connected by a rod with the other pole. In this way electricity is drawn from the patient to the crown.

There are various ways of giving this electricity in different diseases and its efficacy is unlimited.

Dr. Hunt has made a study of electricity and has been very successful in its administration.

She will be pleased to exhibit the machine and show its workings at any time.

ANOTHER FALSE ALARM.

A Young Man Representing Himself to be Marshal Doud Pulled the Box.

About 4 o'clock this morning a young man awakened Mrs. Wilson, who resides at the corner of Grove street and Linden avenue, and asked for her fire alarm key, saying that there was a fire near by. Mrs. Wilson's son came to the door and the young man represented himself to be Marshal Doud. Mrs. Wilson sent her key down to him and he sent in an alarm from Box 152, corner of Linden avenue and Grove street. There was a quick response by the department, but no fire was discovered. It is not known who the young man was, but if he is caught, he will not escape very lightly.

Dr. Parkhurst Disclaims the Letter.

The telegram supposed to have been sent by Rev. Dr. Parkhurst to Editor John M. Reiner, who is in jail at Elizabeth, is now said to have been a hoax. Chief Tenney, of Elizabeth, called on Dr. Parkhurst yesterday and he disclaimed sending any message of sympathy to the imprisoned editor. There was no indication yesterday that Editor Reiner had secured the $13,000 bail.

A Small Blaze Quickly Extinguished.

Horsley Barker, the West Front street druggist, telephoned to Warren Engine Company's house last evening about 6:15 and told Marshal Wilson that there was a fire at the home of Charles H. Smith, at the corner of Grove street and Prospect place. The department responded and discovered that there was a small blaze in the chimney. A hand extinguisher was all that was needed to put it out, and the damage was very slight.

Daughters of Liberty Adjourn.

The State Council, Daughters of Liberty, ended its annual session at Newark, Tuesday, by electing as National representatives Sarah Ried and H. F. Wilcox, of Long Branch, Sarah Burton, B. Yard and A. Woolman, of Newark, and Mrs. Reimann, of Trenton. The next session will be held in Jersey City, March 10th, 1897.

A Prisoner Makes Disparaging Remarks About the City Judge and Receives a Heavey Sentence for His Actions

A man with his face badly cut and bruised wandered down Somerset street yesterday afternoon. He had just left the borough behind him when he met Patrolman McCue. An over supply of liquor was very apparent and the individual felt in an ugly mood. The policeman came in for his share of verbal abuse and he immediately arrested the offender. The language of the prisoner was not the most choice, and he continued to address improper remarks to both Patrolman McCue and Sergeant Kiely. At the jail he gave his name as Patrick Murphy, and two files and an awl were found in his pockets. This morning he was brought before City Judge DeMeza.

He was by occupation, he said, a painter, but had been mending umbrellas, which was his reason for carrying the tools. The police had seen him before and say that he knows more crooks than any other man in this part of the country. He said he had not been here before for five years, and when he left afterwards he declared that he would give Plainfield a wide berth in future travels. He was very impudent in his replies to the Judge, and when led back to his cell after being sentenced to 60 days in jail, he started on a tirade of abuse against the judge, the police, and the city in general. One of the policemen heard him and Judge De Meza increased the sentence to 59 days in jail and a fine of $100.

MARRIED AFTER ALL.

The Court Could Not Prevent Cupid's Little Event.

The marriage of Miss Frances Elder, of 115 Central avenue, to Henry Phillips, formerly a waiter at the City Hotel, was performed at 9:40 last evening at the home of the bride. Rev. Mr. Johnson, pastor of the Filmore Avenue Baptist church, officiated, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends.

The bride wore white silk and the bridemaid, Miss Sarah Phillips, sister of the groom, was gowned in white satin. The best man was James Morris.

A large collection of presents was received by the newly-wedded couple.

Owing to the storm last evening the honeymoon was postponed.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillips will reside on West Third street, near Arlington avenue, in a few days.

A Hungarian's Suicide.

While walking through a wood between Piscataway and Bonhamtown on Tuesday evening John Ferlie, a Hungarian, discovered the body of a fellow-countryman, George Breakoff, suspended from the limb of a tree. The man had been dead for many hours. The body was about one hundred yards from the road. On the ground below was an empty quart whiskey bottle. Breakoff was thirty-seven years of age and worked in the clay banks. He leaves a widow and three children.

A Patriotic Subject.

James E. Martine has been invited to attend the annual banquet of the Friendly Sons of America of Elizabeth on St. Patrick's day and will respond to the toast of "The United States of America." There is but little doubt but what he will do ample justice to the subject.

Young Ladies to Entertain.

A number of young ladies residing on Watchung and LaGrande avenues will give a party in the rooms in the Schepflin building on West Front street this evening. It is the intention of the promoters of the affair to eventually form themselves into a permanent organization.

Told a Plausible Story.

A respectable looking man named Edward Williams was arraigned before Judge DeMeza this morning on the charge of vagrancy. He told a plausible story that hung together and sentence was suspended on condition that he leave Plainfield at once.

Marshal Wilson arrested Frank Conshee on Somerset street last evening for being drunk and disorderly. This morning Justice Crosley committed him to jail for ten days in default of paying a $10 fine.

NEW JERSEY LEGISLATURE.

Erie Track Elavation Gets a Setback in the Senate

The bill confirming the lease of the New York and Greenwood Lake Railroad to the Erie Company, which has been held up in the Senate by friends of track elevation in Jersey City, was released yesterday and passed by a vote of 15 to 2. It had been amended by Senator Voorhees by striking out the name of Erie and inserting in its place the words: "Any foreign corporation owning property along the Hudson River and owning the terminal facilities thereon."

The House spent the greater part of the afternoon considering the repeal of the "Dunn five counselors act," which enables anyone who has served six months in a lawyer's office to take the examination for admission to the bar upon the certification of five counselors at law that he is specially fitted to enter the profession. The law was passed fourteen years ago through the efforts of ex-Congressman John T. Dunn, who was refused by the Supreme Court permission to take the examination because he was a house painter, and was pursuing an occupation that rendered it doubtful that he had a good knowledge of law.

The repealer was supported yesterday by nearly all the lawyers in the House, who said it was creating a lot of inefficient lawyers, who, by reason of their lack of legal training, got their clients in trouble Ex-Judge Walling and several laymen opposed the repealer, and it was defeated by a vote of 17 to 37.

The Equal Taxation bill was not reported yesterday, an agreement having been made between its friends and opponents that it is not to be reported until Mr. Queen, its introducer, is present.

The House passed the bill prohibiting trolley roads from carrying freight or express matter.

The Senate killed the Rogers bill, requiring twelve freeholders to sign all applications for saloon licenses. It was recommitted to the Judiciary Committee, in accordance with the Republicen caucus decision.

SHE PUTS OUT "JOHN L."

A School Teacher Ejects a Troublesome Pupil.

Scudder's School is located between Rahway and Westfield, on the Westfield road, and is presided over by Miss Emma Thompson, daughter of ex-Freeholder William J. Thompson, of Clark township.

Among the pupils is a boy known for his fighting ability as "John L." His name is Walter Thompson, and he is fourteen. He is not related to the teacher.

Young Thompson has been causing trouble of late in school, and Monday afternoon Miss Thompson ordered him to take his hat and coat and go home. He refused to go, and showed fight. She seized him and they struggled until "John L's" head was in contact with an iron foot of one of the desks. Blood soon flowed freely from a scalp wound. Miss Thompson at last got him into the street and then locked the door.

While the scuffle was going on the other pupils stood perfectly quiet. Afterwards they went on with their studies.

A California Curiosity.

In the mail Tuesday morning a small package was delivered to A. D. Findlay, of 123 East Second street, which contained a tarantula mounted on cardboard, that was forwarded to Mr. Findlay by a friend of his who is visiting on the slope. Of course the reptile was dead. 'Tis a large one, and is a curiosity to many persons in this section of the country.

Catch Them.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Would it not be well for the Mayor to investigate in reference to the false alarms of fire in the borough of late. The one of this morning, corner of Linden avenue and Grove street, was caused by parties that are well known, and as a citizen and taxpayer I protest.

Grove Street.

Not to be Trifled With.

(From Cincinnati Gazette.)

Will people ever learn that a "cold" is an accident to be dreaded, and that when it occurs treatment should be promptly applied? There is no knowing where the trouble will end; and while complete recovery is the rule, the exceptions are terribly frequent, and thousands upon thousands of fatal illnesses occur every year ushered in by a little injudicious exposure and seemingly trifling systems. Beyond this, there are today countless invalids who can trace their complaints to "colds," which at the time of occurrence gave no concern, and were therefore neglected.—When troubled with a cold use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is prompt and effectual. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue, T. S. Armstrong Manager.

IN RUSSIAN CONTROL

Corea Now Entirely Under the Protection of the Bear.

JAPAN'S ONLY COURSE IS TO WAIT

Details of the Recent Bloody Revolution in the Hermit Kingdom—Scenes Too Revolting for the Writer To Witness.

Victoria, B. C., March 12.—Letters just received from Japan by the Empress of India relate in detail the exciting incidents of the recent revolution in Corea, since which the king has remained under the protection of the Russian embassy, the government of the country being brought into Russian hands entirely, hands that are actively hostile to the Japanese. Russian troops continue to inforce military law in Seoul and its seaport, and residents of the east are agreed that Russia will remain in charge of affairs till the hermit kingdom is brought absolutely and entirely under the dominion of the bear.

Japan's Only Course.

The Japanese government held long sessions on February 18 and 20 to consider the situation created by the climax at Seoul and came to the conclusion that a joint protectorate was not to be thought of in the present mood of the powers, while the administration of Corea by Japan alone was equally out of the question. It was pointed out in the cabinet that the only course open to Japan was to act in concert with Russia, and, even this being impossible at present, it was agreed that the only policy for Japan to adopt during the next five years was the absolutely negative one of waiting and watching for an opportunity to advance again in Corea, meanwhile, nursing the national power.

Extreme Savagery Displayed.

The story of the overthrow of the pro-Japanese government of Corea is a terrible one, evidencing the extreme savagery of the people for whom the Japanese endeavored to obtain a responsible government. On the night of Feb. 10, having been informed that a plot was ripening to rob him of life and throne, the king applied to the Russian embassy for protection, and steps were taken by the police authorities of Seoul, under Russian military direction, to apprehend the members of the Corean cabinet. Three of the ministers, Kim Hong Chip, Yu Kil Chun and Kim Yum Sik, were in consultation at the cabinet office when the police burst in upon them and arrested them on the royal order. They were placed in sedan chairs and immediately taken to cells, where they were locked up for but half an honr, when the police returned with a formal order dismissing them from the ministry.

Butchered and Shockingly Mutilated.

They were then dragged from their cells by the police, hitherto the servants of their sovereign will, and conducted to the entrance of the police bureau, where their hands were tied behind their backs and the hacking of their necks with the police swords began, no trial or even the pretense of one having occurred. Chun's head was nearly severed from his body. Chip's wound extended from his neck several inches into his shoulder. Sik was neatly decapitated. Then, having mutilated the bodies, after the ancient and horrible Corean custom, Bun, the director general, ordered the police to tie ropes to the hands and feet of the victims and drag the bodies through the streets, taking care to pass in the terrible procession the homes of each of the dead. This was done, the bodies being beaten on the way with stones and clubs. The corpses, minus the hands, were finally left for the inspection of the populace.

Sights Too Revolting To Witness.

The heads were displayed on poles and the public, who a few months before had bowed before the dead leaders, quickly proceeded to crush in the heads, disembowel the bodies and eat of the flesh torn from them. The correspondent who relates the fearful sights of the night, could not, he says, remain to witness the closing scenes of the frightful feast. From scraps of information given in Japanese papers, the conclusion is drawn that the mysterious passenger brought to this port by the steamer Victoria a few days ago was not the brother of the Corean king, as his fellow passengers declared, but the Corean minister of war, the only one of the cabinet who escaped, Cho Heui Yon by name. When his associates were apprehended he had withdrawn from the council for a few moments, and, witnessing the rest from a distance, took to flight, hiding himself on the steamer Sova Mara at Chemulpo, and with Japanese assistance, finally getting on board the northern Pacific liner bound for here. He is said to be well provided with money and in communication with Prince Pak. The last arrived fugitive has not been seen since he disembarked from the steamer here. His friends assert he went east at once.

Lieut. Babcock Dead.

New York, March 12.—Lieut. William Babcock, executive officer of the United States steamship Michigan, died at the University club in this city last evening, after an illness lasting ten days. He contracted pneumonia while doing compass duty at Washington, and came here and put up at the University club, where he gradually grew worse. He was about 44 years of age.

Signed by Hartford's Ball Team.

Hartford, March 12.—Manager Barnie of the Hartford baseball nine has signed nine players, and practice games will be played next month. Among the men engaged are "Reddy" Mack, E. F. Scharf and William Osborne, all of the Baltimores.

THEIR NEW ORGANIZATION.

Ballington and Mrs. Booth Hunting for Halls To Establish Armories.

New York, March 12.—Ballington and Maud Booth decided to-day that they would not reply to the cable message of Gen. William Booth to his American troops. It was intimated, however, that the ex-commander will have something very pertinent to say in the near future. There was very little news given out this morning at the bible house. Ballington and Maud Booth are busily employed in answering letters and they spent a few hours this morning in examining several halls with a view of establishing armories. Their selection will be made known in a few days. Nearly two hundred persons have asked for admission to the Defender's league and that branch of the organization promises to be an important and successful one. The number of soldiers and officers who have voluntarily resigned from the Salvation army and been enrolled in the American army is now about 350, while nearly 1,000 have declared their intention of doing so. No recruit from the old organization will be received unless he first resigns.

Still Another Army.

New York, March 11.—In addition to the English organization and the Ballington Booth revolters, a third salvation army is in process of formation. It is headed by Chaplain Fred Rodgler, a well known rescue mission worker in this city, and will be known as the American Rescue army. The scheme of this new army is broader than that of the Booths' organization, as it proposes not only to bring men and women under religious influences, but to furnish them with food, shelter and work, if needed.

JERSEY MARRIAGE LAW.

Lloyd's Bill Passed on Third Reading in the Assembly at Trenton.

Trenton, March 12.—In the house last night Assemblyman Lloyd's marriage license law was explained on third reading by its introducer. Thirty-eight states, he said, have passed marriage license laws, and the proposed Jersey law embraces the best features of them all. The bill, he said, would break up the practice of Pennsylvanians coming over to Jersey to be married in order to evade the law, of their state. Last year in Camden alone there were 4,000 marriages and only 500 of the contracting parties were residents of that city. The bill, he said, will change that abuse. After a short debate the bill was passed by a vote of 45 to 4.

Albany's Bi-partisan Police Bill.

Albany, March 12.—Mayor John Boyd Thatcher has concurred in the veto by the Albany common council of the bi-partisan police commissioners' bill, the commissioners to be appointed by the common council. In his veto message to the assembly Mayor Thatcher says that the citizens of Albany oppose the bill; that it is in violation of the constitution, and that it gives a minority of the people equal privilege belonging to a majority.

Canadian Indian Battalion.

Montreal, March 12.—The meeting of the Indian council of Tyendinoga reserve, near Desoronto, Ont., the project of the formation of an Indian battalion was approved, and it was agreed to furnish two companies of fifty-six men each. The battalion will be composed of ten companies, with headquarters at the Grand river reserve, near Brantford.

Funeral of Mr. and Mrs. Day.

Binghamton, N. Y., March 12.—The funeral of Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Day, the parents of Rev. S. D. Day, rector of the church of the Good Shepherd in this city, occurred yesterday afternoon at their late home in Waterloo, Ia. Both were past 90 years of age and they had lived together about 65 years. Mr. Day died Saturday and his wife passed away Monday.

Bath Financial Circles Excited.

Bath, N. Y., March 12.—The announcement of the failure of W. W. Allen, late cashier of the First National bank, has caused considerable excitement in financial circles here. Allen was the principal stockholder in the Hammondsport Wine company of which A. L. Underhill was appointed receiver. The liabilities are $103,000 and the assets $60,000.

Rev. H. B. Mason Installed.

North Wilbraham, Mass., March 12.—Rev. Henry B. Mason was installed by a Congregational council over the Grace Union church in this village last evening. Mr. Mason is a graduate of the Hartford Theological seminary, class of '92, and has been the pastor of the Hebron and Gilead (Conn.) churches since that time.

Satolli in Chicago.

Chicago, March 12.—Cardinal Satolli arrived in this city from Omaha yesterday. He was met at the Union depot by Fathers Thone, Merechini and De Baldi of the Italian church and escorted to their parish residence.

Sir Douglass Straight Astor's Editor.

London, March 12.—The Daily News asserts that William Waldorf Astor has definitely appointed Sir Douglass Straight, who had been editor of the Pall Mall Magazine, to be editor of the Pall Mall Gazette.

Seals on Newfoundland Coast.

St. Johns, N. F., March 12.—Five hundred seals were taken yesterday at Gull island and White bay. Seals are reported plentiful all round the Newfoundland coast.

Two of the Crew Drowned.

Northport, L. I., March 12.—A large schooner came ashore at Eaton's Neck last night. Two of the crew in trying to come ashore in a yawl boat were drowned.

McKinley and Foraker Leaders Work in Harmony in Ohio.

DELEGATES TO ST. LOUIS SELECTED

In the Nomination of State Officers a Sharp Fight Occurs and the Foraker Slate Is Broken—Iowa for Allison.

Columbus, O., March 12.—The programme arranged between the McKinley and Foraker leaders as to the delegates at large to the St. Louis convention was carried out in the state convention yesterday, Bushnell, Foraker, Hanna and Grosvenor being chosen. In the selection of these delegates, the alternative delegates and the presidential electors at large, everything was harmonious. In the nomination of the state ticket there was a sharp fight between the Foraker and McKinley factions with the result that the Foraker faction was completely defeated. The slate prepared by the Foraker faction in the room of Senator-elect Foraker, broke, except as to the candidate for state food commissioner. The Foraker candidate for this position, Jos. E. Blackburn of Belmont county, was nominated by the combined strength of the Foraker delegates and the influence of the wholesale grocers trade.

The Work Speedily Accomplished.

The four delegates at large were selected on a single motion made by ex-congressman C. W. Cooper of Mount Vernon, and the alternates on one motion made by Robert Nevin of Dayton. A single motion, made by congressman C. H. Grosvenor, selected the presidential electors at large. This was all done by unanimous acclamation. The platform was adopted as presented by the committee on resolutions without amendment or even discussion. It declared for protection, the Monroe doctrine and a bimetallic currency. The Foraker leaders evidently supposed that Charles Kinney and E. W. Doty, both of whom have been identified with the McKinley faction, would divide the vote of that element of the convention and the Foraker, uniting on Wikoff, would nominate him. In this they were mistaken. Kinney's adherents could not be drawn away from him. Wikoff simply drew from Doty. The presentation of Wikoff's name was coldly received. Kinney's set the convention to cheering. This forecasted the resulted.

Iowa for Allison.

Des Moines, Ia., March 12.—The republican state convention, which met in this city yesterday formally inaugurated the candidacy of senator Wm. B. Allison for president. The resolutions adopted were in a form at variance from the ordinary declarations of state conventions. They were in the nature of an address to the country on the claims of Allison to the presidential nomination. The platform, briefly, is the public record of Allison, with which alone the platform deals. J. S. Clarkson is one of the delegates at large, although there was a move before the convention met to keep him off the delegates.

Pattison Endorsed.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 12.—The democratic county convention adopted resolutions endorsing President Cleveland's administration and ex-Gov. Pattison for the presidency, but voted down resolutions endorsing the leadership of National Chairman Harrity and favoring the unit rule.

Gives Up a Government Job.

Washington, March. 13.—Judge J. I. Hall, assistant attorney-general for the department of the interior, has tendered his resignation to Secretary Smith, to take effect March 15 next. Judge Hall is a Georgian, and will return to that state to take the position of general counsel for the Georgia Southern & Florida railroad.

So They Said and So I Thought

But Hood's Sarsaparilla Did Cure.

"For 7 long years I was a constant sufferer with indigestion, and I tried prescriptions and remedies until I became so low that I had given up all hopes of recovery, and my friends thought also that I could not be cured. The poison in my blood had set in deeply, and my limbs were a Solid Mass of Sores.

I was confined to the house and to my bed most of the time. I happened to read an advertisement of Hood's Sarsaparilla in the paper and I at once prevailed upon my husband to let me try it. I got one bottle and it did me so much good that I kept using it until I had taken twelve bottles and now I am entirely cured. I am a well and hearty woman and can do my work with all ease and comfort." MRS. LOUISA MATLOCK, Bonita, Texas.

Indispensable In Diphtheria

is Bovinine, as has been attested by thousands of physicians. One of the many testimonials we have received is one from Dr. Arthur P. Ginn of Omaha, which reads, "I used Bovinine in several cases of diphtheria, and was successful with the cases. This to me is sufficient evidence of its value, no other food being used during treatment, except the milk used as vehicle for its administration."

Bovinine

being a food product, made by a special cold process from lean beef, is easy to take, quickly assimilated, speedy in its life-promoting properties, is invaluable as a life-giver when it is necessary to maintain strength to carry a patient over the crisis of a disease. In diphtheria and other throat troubles where it has become impossible to take nourishment by the mouth, Bovinine has sustained life for weeks, administered as an injection.

Your Spring Clothing

Rather early to speak of it, but if it needs cleaning or dyeing, it isn't too early to have us do that work for you. This is our dull season—our employes are here ready for work. We'd like to have your goods now. We can give them better attention than in the rush of the spring season. Then we'll have to have more time or rush them at the expense of good work. Now we can take our time, do the work better than if hurried and you'll have the clothing all ready for warm weather.

Look in the closet or trunk and find your spring wear that needs cleaning and dyeing and bring it to us now, or better still, our wagon will call for it if you will send us word.

THEY CANNOT ELECT

Kentucky's Legislature Will Probably Adjourn in Deadlock.

REPUBLICANS MAP OUT A PLAN

Will Carry the Fight for Sound Money into the Fall Elections, Hoping Thus To Divide the Democratic Ranks.

Frankfort, Ky., March 12.—It is the general opinion to-day among prominent politicians that the scenes in the legislature yesterday foreshadow an adjournment without electing a senator This is understood to be the republican programme. It is also thought that in pursuance of this purpose they will carry the fight for sound money into the autumn elections, hoping that the division in the democratic ranks will be so great that the financial issue will enable them to elect the next legislature and the several state officers also to be chosen.

A Scene of Wild Excitement.

The trouble yesterday began when the republicans took up the work of unseating Kauffman. When the vote was taken on the minority report in favor of unseating Kauffman the report was adopted by 49 to 46. The final vote was then taken on the majority report as amended by this minority unseating report. All the democrats left the house. The women withdrew from the lobbies. Poor stayed in and fifty-one members were present. Kauffman was unseated. In a minute the wildest excitement prevailed all over the state house. Senators huddled together in the middle of the senate chamber, while a mob crowded every entrance. The democratic senators yelled their votes unseating Senators James and Walton, republicans.

Revolvers Drawn.

Three minutes later a mob was at the door declaring that James and Walton should never go in. In the mob were several men holding pistols standing at the door daring republicans to bring the two unseated senators through. In the crowd were Jack Chinn, Jim Williams, Senator Bronston, Senator Martin, Walter Sharp and Senate Doorkeeper Tyler. Senator Blackburn was in the crowd counselling coolness. The crowd was furious when it learned that James had already slipped into the house, and had done so while they were unseating him in the senate. Dunlap approached the door, but was waved back. Speaker Blanford of the house refused to recognize the senate, hoping that Dunlap would come in, but Lieut.-Gov. Worthington took the gavel from Blanford almost by force and called the joint session to order.

Ten Votes for Carlisle.

After a discussion, at times exceedingly animated, the roll call was begun. The senate clerk did not call the names of James and Walton. The house clerk did not not call the name of Kauffman. Dr. James sat still and did not demand the call of his name. The republicans refrained from voting. The vote stood: Blackburn, 54; Carlisle, 10; Buckner, 1. The chair announced no quorum voting. The doors were thrown open and the members filed out and mingled with the mob.

No Power To Investigate the Charges.

Albany, March 12.—The capitol commission will do nothing further at present in the matter of the charges against Deputy Superintendent of Construction Stephenson. Deputy Attorney-General Parson informed the board that he did not think the commission could conduct an investigation which would have any standing in law. He further stated that he did not believe the commission could turn the investigation over to the attorney-general.

Movements of Our Warships.

Washington, March 12.—The Essex has arrived at Fort Monroe. She will convey naval apprentices back to Newport, R. I. The Monterey left San Francisco for Port Angeles, Wash., to go into dry dock. The new government dock at Port Orchard, near Port Angeles, is completed and the Monterey will be the first vessel to enter. The Marion left Coquimbo last night for Valparaiso.

For Murdering His Wife.

Boston, March 12.—Joseph Trescott pleaded guilty yesterday afternoon to a charge of murder in the second degree and was sentenced to life imprisonment. Trescott, on February 10, assaulted his wife with a hatchet and the woman died from her wounds on February 21. Trescott is 40 years old.

Bequest to Yale.

New Haven, Conn., March 12.—It is announced that by the provisions of the will of the late George Bliss of New York city Yale university will receive $50,000. It is expected that the amount will be devoted to the general expenses of the university.

Central America's Coffee Crop.

Colon, Colombia, March 12.—One hundred and fifteen thousand bags of coffee, in transit, are due at Panama within a week. The Central American coffee crop, it is estimated, will be a hundred thousand bags less than that of last year.

Masonic Building Burned.

Westfield, Mass., March 12.—The Masonic block, one of the principal buildings of the town, was burned yesterday afternoon. The total loss was about $100,000, with about $70,000 insurance.

Postmaster Nomination Confirmed.

Washington, March 12.—The senate has confirmed the nomination of Chas. D. Deshler to be postmaster at New Brunswick, N. J.

DOINGS IN CONGRESS.

Cuban Resolutions in the Senate; Contested Election Case in the House.

Washington, March 12.—Although Senator Hoar's resolution to postpone the conference report on the Cuban resolutions until April 6 has lost its place in the morning hour and gone to the calendar, the debate in the senate is going on to-day and will continue until all the senators who so desire have spoken, as the conference report is a privileged question, at least until 2 o'clock every day, when it comes in conflict with the resolution for seating Mr. Dupont as senator from the state of Delaware—a question of still higher privilege. Mr. Hoar's speech on his resolution was largely an arraignment of the committee on foreign relations for reporting the concurrent resolutions without having any facts to justify such action. He appealed to Senator Sherman, whom he placed on the same pedestal with Lincoln, Grant, Fish Seward and his own illustrious brother, Gen. Sherman, to recede from the position which he had taken, and the only reason for which was, he intimated, because a presidential election was at hand. Mr. Hoar said some very severe things about the action of the committee on foreign relations, and said that when it wrote the word "concurrent" at the head of the resolution it meant, "it is distinctly understood that this is a Pickwickian resolution." Mr. Turpie, dem., Ind., concluded his three days' speech against the claim of Mr. Dupont to a seat in the senate from Delaware.

Affairs in the House.

In the house this afternoon Mr. Daniels, rep., N. Y., will move for the consideration of the Aldrich-Robbins contested election case from the Fourth district of Alabama. The postoffice appropriation bill was finally disposed of and sent to the senate. A great deal of time was devoted to a consideration of the "spy" system in the postoffice department, as the espionage upon letter carriers in the past year has been called, and it was very vigorously attacked by several members. Upon an amendment offered by Mr. Quigg, rep., N. Y., to strike out the increase of appropriation made in the bill for the pay of postoffice inspectors—the principal speeches were made by Messrs. Quigg, Cummings, dem., N. Y., and Belknap, rep., Ill., in favor of the amendment, and by Messrs. Loud, rep., Cal., in charge of the bill; McMillan, dem., Tenn.; Bingham, rep., Pa., and Kyle, dem., Miss., in opposition. The amendment was agreed to—162 to 63. After the bill had been reported to the house, Mr. Bromwell, rep., Ohio, moved to strike out the appropriation of $196,000 for special facilities on the trunk lines from Boston via New York and Washington to Atlanta and New Orleans. The motion failed—111 yeas to 134 nays. Members from the east and south generally supported the appropriation, and western members opposed it.

ROBBED IN BOSTON.

A Maine Postmaster's Peculiar and Unfortunate Experience in the Hub.

Quincy, Mass., March 12.—Postmaster Wilde of Wollaston, who mysteriously lost $590 in Boston last Saturday, gives the following story of his experience in that city: Arriving in Boston he noticed that his head did not feel right and he started for the residence of a physician on Boylston street. Before he could reach there he became faint and sat in a doorway for a few moments. Reviving, he started to cross the common. Here another fainting spell seized him and he sat down. While there a stranger came along and sat beside him and went through his pockets, he being too feeble to offer any resistance. He recovered from his stupor about twilight and staggered towards the depot and was assisted into the train which brought him here. The doctors think Wilde's mind is unbalanced.

John S. Hoey Dead.

New York, March 12.—John S. Hoey, the well-known sportsman and referee, died at Long Brauch last evening of heart trouble, following a severe attack of the grip Death was sudden and unexpected. Mr. Hoey was 49 years old. He was born in Baltimore, but spent most of his life at the Hollywood estate, which was owned by his father, who was president of the Adams Express company.

ANOTHER FILIBUSTER

Rumored That a Big Expedition Is Fitting Out at Philadelphia.

READY TO SAIL AT ANY MOMENT

Men and Arms To Be Taken on at Some Point on the New Jersey Coast—May Have Started Last Night.

Philadelphia, March 12.—Although the report that another big filibustering expedition is ready to start for Cuba could not be confirmed here this morning with any degree of positiveness, enough was gathered from different sources to put the rumor on a pretty solid foundation. It is said that the steamer which will take the expedition is ready to sail at any moment, and it is possible that the men and the arms and ammunition are even now waiting for the ship at some point on the New Jersey coast. When the steamer arrives off this point, provided that the above supposition is true, she will probably lay to outside the three mile limit and the men and arms will be taken aboard in boats. If the expedition was to have started last night, as rumored, it is likely that the prevailing gale prevented the departure.

THE CUBAN REVOLUTION.

Another Rebel Defeat Reported—More Towns Burned.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

Havana, March 12.—Bands of insurgents under the leaders Oliva and Hernandez are reported to have had an engagement, which lasted five hours, with Spanish troops at Monteguelo, near Mantua, in the western province. The battle resulted in the defeat of the rebels. The government troops are said to have had five wounded, while the rebels lost sixteen killed. The town of Monteguelo was completely destroyed by a fire started by the insurgents. The towns of Macagua, of the province of Mantanzas, and Pilotas, in the western province, were attacked also and partially burned. The American citizen, Walter Grant Dygart, regarding whose arrest and imprisonment United States Consul General Williams requested the authorities to make a report, has been confined in the jail at Guines for about three weeks. He is accused of being El Inglesito, one of the insurgent leaders.

J. FRANK CLARK.

WAR STORES FOR CUBA.

Money and Supplies for Spanish Troops Landed at Havana.

Havana, March 4, via Tamp, Fla., March 12.—The English steamship Cayo Blanco, from Antwerp, arrived yesterday. She is consigned to the government and has a full cargo of war stores. The transatlantje Spanish teamship Alfonso XII. also arrived here yesterday. In addition to a large supply of war stores she brought 334 cases containing $1,000,000 in silver for paying the troops. The steamship Cataluna has landed 339 cases of Spanish silver valued at $1,000,000. The death of the rebel leader Regino Alfonso was confirmed yesterday. For a long time he lead a band in the jurisdiction of Colon and Cardenas. He was a companion of Madruga and Matagas, the latter recently shot. They knew every inch of that part of Cuba.

Alleged Filibusters Indicted.

New York, March 12.—Gen. Calixto Garcia, Capt. Samuel Hughes, John D. Hart, Capt. John Brabozon, Bermurda J. Bueno and Benjamin J. Guerra of the Bermuda expedition, who were yesterday indicted by the federal grand jury for taking part in an armed expedition contrary to the neutrality laws, have been admitted to bail, cash bonds being furnished.

The Paterson Assaults.

Paterson, N. J., March 12.—The police are still without a clue to the murderer of Miss Mary Sullivan. Capt. Bilson to-day said that the clue which the police followed up yesterday in connection with the murder was barren of results. Nicholas Cole, the silk manufacturer, who was arrested on Sunday evening for assaulting Miss Lucy Van Riper on the street, is serving out his sentence of thirty days in the county jail. This prevents his release on bail.

Corbett Signs To Meet Fitzsimmons.

Pittsburg, March 12.—James J. Corbett last night signed the articles of agreement forwarded by the National Sporting club of London to fight Robert J. Fitzsimmons before that organization next June for a purse of $10,000, the winner to take all the money. Each man is allowed $500 for expenses, provides his own gloves and fights under the Marquis of Queensberry rules. The articles will now go to Fitzsimmons for his signature.

The Delgardo Family Released.

New York, March 12.—The Delgardo family of eight Cubans who have been detained on Ellis island as paupers for the last three days have been released. Delgardo's sister, who lives in Brooklyn, having guaranteed to the satisfaction of the board that they will not become charges on the county.

Death of Sister Anatole.

Boston, March 12.—Sister Anatole, one of the best known Little Sisters of the Poor connected with the Dudley street home, died here yesterday. Before entering the home Sister Anatole was known at Marie Rouet. She was born at Murez, France, on September 2, 1823.

Today is the eighth anniversary of the memorable blizzard of 1888.

Charles S. Day received the biggest plurality given to any candidate in Piscataway township on Tuesday.

The thing which will be the most interesting in the National conventions is not who will support the favorite sons but who the favorite sons will support.

Governor Griggs is confident. He says that the Republicans will nominate the next President of the United States. But it would not do for him to say anythings else.

Rhode Island is a little State, and the Democrats, as if to be entirely consistent with its geographical limitations, have nominated a man by the name of Littlefield for Governor.

The overwhelming plurality which Irving I. Ross, local editor of the Westfield Standard, received at the election last Tuesday for township clerk of Westfield, shows the popularity of Mr. Ross.

That astute political prophet, Freeholder, editor of the New Jersey edition of the New York Press, proclaims that Garrett A. Hobart is seriously a possibility for the Vice-Presidential nominations on the Republican ticket.

The Greater New York bill passed the New York State Senate yesterday. Brooklyn people generally are not in favor of the consolidation. The politicians evidently believe that it is better to be big men in a small town than small men in a big town.

To circumvent the Sunday "blue laws" of New Jersey, the barbers of Newark and Jersey City have had a bill passed permitting them to keep their shops open until noon on Sunday. Those failing to close at that time are liable to a fine of $25 for each offence. The law only becomes active in localities where the Governing Boards pass a permissive ordinance. The bill is intended as a protective measure against a class of barbers who in the language of a supporter of the bill, "work day and night, eignt days in the week." The bill will not affect the tonsorial artists in this city or borough as the Councils of both municipalties have decreed that the barber must rest one day in the week.

Ball Nozzle Syringes.

Most Plainfielders are familiar with the wonderful Ball Nozzle Company's fire nozzle and lawn sprinkler, the workings of which are exhibited at the Company's spacious quarters at 837 Broadway, New York. A new application of the ball nozzle principle has been made on a syringe which is the most complete affair of its kind that can be imagined. The company is selling this very valuable article for the preservation of perfect health at the same address. Aside from novelties in external appliances, there has been little, if any, improvement in vaginal syringes since they were first used. It has been the laterally perforated tube, which accomplishes but half the result. Aside from its other valuable uses, the great Ball Nozzle has solved the syringe problem, and will prove itself a God-send to women. It is the only syringe that will thoroughly cleanse. It will, in a short time, be the only vaginal syringe in use.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of Calfornia, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. Ask your agents for tickets via this route.

WITH HEART AND SOUL.

Our Ministers Proclaim a Gospel of Health.

Show to Weak, Tired and Debilitated People.

How Health and Strength Can Be Easily Obtained.

There are no words so strong as these spoken by the true minister of the Gospel. One knows and feels, instinctively, that such words come from the heart, and are uttered only with the earnest purpose of doing good to humanity.

The boundless influence for good for those who are weak, nervous, debilitated and run down in health, of the strong and powerful words of these well-known clergymen is an assurance of cure for sufferers. These great preachers thus proclaim a new Gospel of Health to the sick and discouraged, which means renewed health, hope, happiness. Their good tidings are doubly welcome at this season, for in the spring almost everybody is run down or ailing and needs just such information in regard to what to do.

Rev. F. H. Buffum, of Winchester, N. H., who is Grand Army Chaplain for the state of New Hampshire, says:

"The remedial effect of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy on the weaknesses and nervous prostration of my wife, was so positive and speedy that we can heartily testify to its undoubted merits."

Rev. G. L. Wells, of Hardwick, Vt., writes:

"I have used Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy with most excellent results. It did great good for my wife. We think highly of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and cordially recommend it."

Rev. C. D. R. Meacham, pastor, Baptist Church, Townshend, Vt., states: "I am very glad to say in regard to Dr. Greene's great remedy that when my blood was greatly impoverished and my nervous system greatly impaired, Dr. Greene's remedy gave me wonderful relief. At the present time my health is as good as at any time in my life, and my confidence in Dr. Greene's remedy is constantly increasing."

Rev. Henry Langford, of Weston, W. Va., says: "I became so nervous I was unable to hold my head steady in the pulpit, nor could I hold or handle my books and papers without great trembling and weakness of my hands and arms. I was so nervous that I could scarcely feed myself. In fact, my nervous system was wrecked.

"I took Dr. Greene's Nevura blood and nerve remedy, and am wonderfully improved in health and strength. Dr. Greene's Nevura did it. I can heartily and truthfully recommend it to the sick. Too much cannot be said in praise of this splendid medicine. I say this for the good of other sufferers from nervous and prostrating diseases who can be cured by this remedy."

Clergymen strongly recommend the people to use Dr. Greene's Nevura blood and nerve remedy because they know it cures, and because it is a physician's prescription, the discovery of the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene of 35 West 14th street, New York City, who can be consulted free, personally or by letter.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Miss Helen Stevens is riding a Crescent wheel, model No. 5.

H. S. Thomas, of The News' reportorial staff, has purchased a '96 Cleveland wheel, model 22.

Patrick Marron is riding a blue-rimmed '95 Columbia, purchased from the Eldridge Bicycle Company.

Letter-carrier Bauersach's has purchased a ladies' Crescent from the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company.

W. J. Hartpence, of the United States Express Company, has purchased a Hartford wheel of the Eldridge Cycle Company.

G. W. Endicott, Jr., of East Seventh street, is the proud possessor of a Crescent, model No. 8, bought from the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company.

Geo. E. Burnham, of Brooklyn, has purchased a Keating wheel of Lister, the North avenue cycle dealer. Freeman Shotwell, of the borough, has purchased a Lyndhurst from the same house. Mr. Lister has secured the Plainfield agency for the American Wheelmen's Protective Association of Chicago, and is authorized to register wheels at $2 a year. This association has a capital of $100,000 and last year they recovered and replaced 507 stolen wheels.

AT THE TRAPS.

The monthly shoot of the New Jersey Trap Shooters' League is being held today at the grounds of the Climax Gun Club. Sweepstakes occupied the morning while the team shoot was the principal event of the afternoon. The Climax Gun Club was represented by the following team: Smith, Keller, Schortymeyer, D. Darby, Manning and Apgar.

WHIST.

The annual convention of the New Jersey Whist League begins at Jersey City tonight, when the contest for the State trophy will be held.

Peter Matthews, Charles Lyman, H. B. Reed, and Louis Howard, of this city, were the guests Tuesday evening of Dr. Reed, Aleck Mack, Stewart Hoffman and Calvin McMurtry, of Somerville, at the home of Mr. Mack. Duplicate whist was indulged in, and after twenty hands had been played it was learned that the Plainfield team had won by nine points.

In "The Span of Life," which comes to Music Hall next Wednesday, there is one scene that has never been equalled or attempted on the stage, and that is the bridge of human bodies. Not only is this act a novelty but it is very dangerous. If by any mischance the topmost of the three acrobats who form this living bridge should fail to catch on the opposite side of the chasm all three would fall to the stage fifteen feet below.

Longer Runs for Conductors.

The Jersey Central has issued a new order whereby many of the conductors will have to run through to Mauch Chunk, instead of Easton, which is eighty miles more than the present trips. The conductors are complaining of the extra work put on them.

The holders of the gilt edge interest coupon bonds of the Park Club are now being paid by the First National Bank.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the eustachian tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube be restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Pineola Cough Balsam

is excellent for all throat inflammations and (] asthma. Consumptives will invaribly derive benefit from its use, as it quickly abate the cough, renders expectoration easy, assisting nature in restoring wasted tissues. There is a large percentage of those who suppose their cases to be consumption who are only suffering from a chronic cold or deep seated cough, often aggravated by catarrh. For catarrh use Ely's Cream Balm. Both remedies are pleasant to use. Cream Balm 50c per bottle; Pineola Balsam 25c, at druggists. In quantities of $2.50 will deliver on receipt of amount. DR. BARTON'S PATIENT.

"AND you don't even know her name!" said Mrs. Renwick. "My dear Kenneth, there never was anything so ridiculous."

The captain of artillery shifted his feet to a more comfortable position on the sofa.

"Of course I know her name," said he; "and a very pretty one it is. Perry—Miss Perry."

"But who is it you are talking about?" said pretty Joyce, who had been preparing a mustard paste for her brother's chest.

Capt. Renwick answered promptly: "My sweetheart!"

"Kenneth, don't be ridiculous!" said his mother, somewhat tartly.

"The sweetest, prettiest blossom in all the Adirondack wilderness!" pursued Kenneth. "The fairest of—Catnip tea! I declare, Joyce, I won't drink it. What do you take me for?"

"It's the best thing in the world for a cold on the chest," said Mrs. Renwick. "Oh, if you had only kept away from that camping party!"

"I mistook her for the boatman's daughter the first time," said Capt. Renwick. "She—"

"Kenneth, don't talk—please d'ont talk!" urged his mother. "It's the worst thing you could possibly do, with your lungs all congested, and—"

"But I must talk!" said the captain. "Consider, mother, Joyce hasn't heard a word about it. She only came last night. Fancy, Joyce, my being fool enough to mistake her for a boatman's daughter!"

"Why, aren't boatmen's daughters as nice and ladylike as anyone?" said Joyce, readjusting her apron ribbons.

"Oh, but this boatman lives in a perpetual state of shirt sleeves!" said Renwick; "and he is a living fountain of tobacco juice and talks abominable grammar through his nose. And his wife is a low class of Meg Merrilies, who takes too much bad whisky whenever she has an opportunity. How I ever made such a blunder I can't imagine. But Jenkins sent me up to the lake head to hire a boat, and when I saw her sitting there among the water lilies, I jumped at once to the conclusion that this was the boat to hire. 'My good girl,' says I—fancy my idiocy!—'if you will just row me up to Needle point, and call for me again in the evening, I'll give you a dollar.'"

"And she?" said Joyce.

"Rowed me up, of course. I wish you could have seen the way in which she handled the oars. But it was Dolph, the tobacco-soaked old boatman, who called for me at sunset. 'Why didn't you send your daughter?' says I. 'It wasn't my darter,' says he; 'it was Miss Perry.' Well, then, I met her at the picnic. We talked together half the evening. She is as beautiful as she is graceful, and as intelligent as she is beautiful."

"Did you apologize?" asked Joyce.

"Of course I apologized," said Capt. Kenneth. "And we had a good laugh over it. She had been after water-lillies, she said. She paints 'em in water colors. I am to have one when they are finished. Joyce, you must know her. She is a beauty. And she dances like a sylph, and sings like Patti, and—"

"Nonsense!" said Joyce. "A farmer's daughter, seen through the big end of the opera glass! You were always a victim to delusions, Kenneth."

"My dear Joyce, I assure you—"

"Children, children!" remonstrated Mrs. Renwick, piteously, "do have a little common sense. Kenneth, you know you ought not to talk. Joyce, don't you hear how hoarse your brother is? If pneumonia should set in after this exposure—"

Capt. Renwick made an expressive grimace. Joyce looked a little apprehensive.

"Mamma," said she, "you always were a pessimist. It's only a cold that ails Kenneth."

"But it is settling on his lungs, my dear," said Mrs. Renwick, plaintively. "And out here in the wilderness there isn't even a drug store short of fifteen miles. Oh, dear! Oh, dear! why did I ever allow myself to be persuaded to come to the Adirondacks?"

"The scenery, mamma!" said Joyce, soothingly.

"But one can't eat and drink scenery. And this woman knows absolutely nothing about omeiettes and French coffee, and she never broiled a beefsteak in her life until I showed her how. As for her soups, they are simply uneatable. And the beds are as hard as the nether millstone, and the mosquitoes are unendurable!"

"All these are trivial annoyances," said Capt. Kenwick, skillfully contriving to tip over the catnip tea. "To me, the Adirondacks are the garden of the world! I shall never be willing to go anywhere else in the summer. And she says it is even finer here in the winter, with the trifling exception of a little solitude."

"Kenneth," cried his motner, in agonized accents, "you must not talk!"

"My dearest mother, I am all right if you only won't fret!" declared the prodigal son.

But Capt. Renwick's eyes were unnaturally bright, the hot flush of fever burned on his cheek, and his breathing was alternately hurried and laborious.

It was undoubtedly the fact that he had taken a severe cold during the camping-out expedition from which he had just returned, and that this cold had been proof, so far, at least, against all the remedies Mrs. Renwick had used.

"Oh dear! oh dear!" sighed the mother. "Why doesn't the doctor come? Joyce, look out of the window! See if there are any signs of him."

"The doctor?" ejaculated Capt. Renwick, raising himself on one elbow among his pillows. "You don't say you have sent for a doctor?"

"Why, of course I have!" said Mrs. Renwick—"for Dr. Barton, from Nylesburg."

"A snuff-taking old fiend who will dose me with calomel, and experiment on me with every one of the hundred-year-old drugs in his saddle bags!" cried the captain. "I won't see him!"

"Dear Kenneth!" pleaded Joyce.

"My son!" sobbed Mrs. Renwick.

"No!" ejaculated Kenneth. "I'll be hanged if I do! I despise doctors, anyway! And what sort of a medical man do you imagine would perch himself up here on the boughs of these everlasting pines?"

"Kenneth, you must see him!" said Mrs. Renwick.

"Mother, I won't," stoutly declared the rebel.

"But what will he think?"

"What he pleases. It will matter little to you or me what he thinks," said Kenneth. "All I know is that he shan't cross this threshold. Give him his fee and tell him to go!"

Mrs. Renwick and Joyce looked despairingly at each other. Undoubtedly the captain was master of the situation. If he chose to set the doctor and his gallipots at defiance, what was to be done?

At that moment, however, there was a slight rustle downstairs.

"The doctor has come!" cried Joyce, excitedly, "with such a pretty little horse and phaeton. Oh, Ken, I'm sure he isn't old, and he doesn't take snuff. Oh, I'm so sorry I didn't catch a glimpse of him."

"He has come, has he?" said the captain. "Then tell him to go about his business."

Mrs. Ogden, the fat landlady, put in her head at this juncture.

"Please, mem, the doctor," said she.

"Tell him—" hoarsely shouted Kenneth, flinging the pillows right and left.

But before he could complete his sentence the door opened and a tall young lady, in a blue cloth ulster and a pretty plumed hat, came in, with a flat morocco case in her hand.

"Miss Perry!" he exclaimed, staring at her from the sofa, with a face suddenly lighted into new brightness and enthusiasm. "How kind of you to remember me! You are acquainted with my mother, are you not? Joyce, this is Miss Perry."

The tall young lady looked composedly around her.

"I am sorry to hear of your illness, Capt. Renwick," said she. "We must see what we can do for you."

"But," added Kenneth, stretching his neck to get a look at the door, which was still slightly ajar, "where is the doctor? They told me he was coming up."

The beautiful lady sat down and gently took Kenneth Renwick's wrist in her delicate fingers.

"I am the doctor," said she. "Have the goodness to remain quite still for a few moments while I ascertain the pulse and temperature."

Capt. Renwick was struck dumb. An electric thrill seemed to dart through every pulse and vein. But Jocyce's eyes sparkled, and the dimples came out around her mouth.

"I AM THE DOCTOR."

"You!" she cried. "A doctor?"

Dr. Barton nodded, still intent on the enameled face of her watch.

"Pernella Barton. They call me Perry for short. Capt. Renwick always called me Miss Perry. I don't believe he knew I had any other name."

"And you are really a doctor!" said Joyce. "Oh, Kenneth, how fortunate!"

Dr. Barton examined her patient's tongue, listened at his lungs and made some abstruse hieroglyphics in her note-book. Then she measured out some gray powders in infinitesimal papers, and left her directions in the most business-like way in the world.

"I shall look in again this evening," she said. "It seems to be nothing more than a severe cold. But I do not intend that it shall gain any headway."

"I put myself entirely in your charge," said Capt. Renwick, with a contented air. "I'm perfectly certain that I shall get well."

"I thought you were going to send the doctor about his business," maliciously whispered Joyce.

"But I didn't know what sort of a doctor it was," retorted the captain.

Pneumonia did not set in after all. Dr. Barton proved a true prophet, and soon dispelled the heavy cold. But Capt. Renwick had yet another ailment—in the region of the heart.

"Mother," he said, coaxingly, "wasn't I right? Ain't she lovely?"

"The sweetest girl I ever saw," Mrs. Renwick warmly answered; "and the most talented."

"And if, mother—"

"You will be the most fortunate man in the world," said Mrs. Renwick.

Capt. Renwick made the best use of his time, and, although Dr. Barton's summer vacation was over, she lingered at picnics, and in the pearly shadow of water-lilies he still continued to make many appointments for seeing her; and when he returned to the Seventh artillery he was an engaged man.

"And after the first of November," he says, "Dr. Barton will be my family physician for life."—Saturday Night.

Ready Wit.

A professor was waiting for a train at a railway station, and, having nothing better with which to take up his mind, began chaffing the half-witted fellow who did odd jobs about the place. "I say, Jamy," said the professor, in a tone intended to reach the ears of the bystanders, "were you ever at college?"

"No, sir," answered Jamy, "but I've been at school."

"Indeed!" said the witty professor. "And who had the honor to be your schoolmaster?"

"Maister Black."

"Why," said the wit, "he was my schoolmaster, too!"

"Do tell me!" exclaimed Jamy. "Man, who'd 'a' thought old Black could have turned out two like us?"—Scottish Nights.

How Is It Possible?

You can't see how mince meat, as good as any made at home, can be sold for 10 cents a package (enough for 2 large pies)?

The Reason's Plain.

Many carloads of the materials for None Such Mince Meat are bought at one time, at first hands. All the paring, chopping, seeding, stemming and cleaning are done by perfected machinery. Such immense quantities are sold that a mite of profit on each package of is enough. All grocers sell it. Be sure and get the genuine.

NONE SUCH MINCE MEAT

Send your name and address and mention this paper, and we will mail you free a book, "Mrs. Popkins' Thanksgiving," by one of the most popular humorous authors of the day.

SHOULD THEY FIGHT?

Not England and the United States.

But Children of All Ages and Conditions. Timely Reinforcements in the Battle for Existence.

Perhaps you have an answer for us to this question all ready. And perhaps we may disagree with you. Listen to our side of the story. Is it not a terrible warfare which sweeps from the face of the earth one-third of all children under five years of age? Yet this is the history of the great struggle in which we are all engaged—the battle of life. Some children yield at the first approach of disease, while others make a grand struggle for existence. In this sense, then, we are all agreed that children should be good fighters. They can best fight disease when they are hearty and strong. We do not mean simply when they are fat. Fat is not muscle. They need strong bones, sound nerves and firm muscles. The natural food for all infants is milk. The fat of this food, the cream, exists in the milk as minute globules, resembling in this respect the minute globules of fat found in Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites. There is also mineral matter in milk, and it is in Scott's Emulsion as well. This preparation looks like milk, and children soon become fond of it. So many infants and young children do not appear to derive much benefit from their food. They remain extremely thin, weak, do not increase in weight or height. They seem to have some disease which is actually wasting the body away. Their system calls for food, and yet the food does not nourish them. But food they must have. They also need some remedy which will alter or change the action of the organs of the body to healthy activity. There are remedies which naturally exist in cod-liver oil that are capable of making this change. For this reason they are called "alteratives." The hypophosphites are also of service, as they strengthen the nervous system, which is the great seat of power. The poorly nourished body calls for a fatty food, such as the fat of cod-liver oil. These are the reasons why Scott's Emulsion has proved so valuable to children. It restores healthy action. It feeds. It nourishes. It supplies needed material to the growing body. We cannot state too strongly the importance of these few early years to future health and happiness. Children do not seem to bear raw cod-liver oil well. It is so difficult to digest. But the oil in Scott's Emulsion has already been digested, and is, therefore, in a condition to render prompt aid.

Scott's Emulsion contains more pure Norwegian Cod-liver Oil than any other emulsion in the world, that will stand the test of time as being a perfect inseparable emulsion. Ask your doctor.

PERU A RICH COUNTRY.

Valuable Extracts from a Recent Official Document.

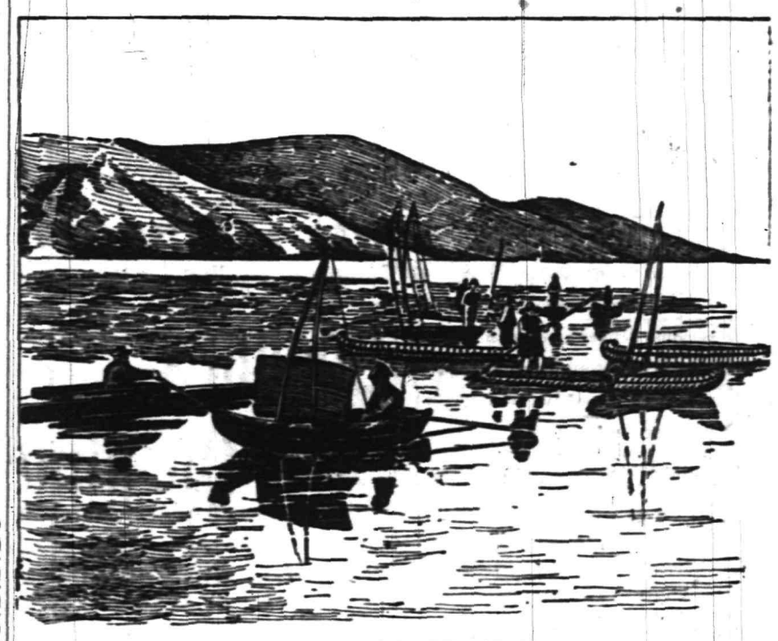
All Climates on the Face of the Earth Are Illustrated in the Climates of the Interesting South American Republic.

[Special Washington Letter.]

Under authority of the department of state, an official bulletin has recently been issued by the bureau of American republics concerning the geography, history, financial condition, agricultural products, minerals, politics and commerce of Peru. It is a small pamphlet and contains very much of interest to the people of our own country.

Although the distance from New York to Lima is 3,200 miles, the Peruvian capital is only 150 miles west of the American metropolis of the coast. The ocean trip is described as a straight run south to the east end of Cuba, where the ship passes so close to land that passengers can see the lighthouse keeper, his wife and children watching the ships that pass. On a clear day, at this point, the peaks of Haiti can easily be seen, although they are 50 miles away. From Cuba to Colon is regarded as an exceedingly uncomfortable trip. The lazy winds blow from the north, but so slowly that they barely keep up with the ship; and there is no breeze felt for fully 600 miles.

After a railroad ride of 50 miles, crossing the Isthmus of Panama, the traveler to Peru must take a ship in the South Pacific ocean and sail over the exact course pursued by Pizarro in 1531 to the Peruvian ports which are due south of Panama. All along the coast of Peru there is a Zona Seca or dry zone, which is singularly sterile, because it adjoins a land of almost boundless fertility. As the ship steams along the bleak and forbidding coast occasional valleys open up to view; and there can be seen the immense plantations of sugar cane, bright fields of maize and alfalfa; a verdure all the more brilliant by reason of its contrast with the arid sterile coast.



BALSAS ON LAKE TITICACA.

The republic of Peru is about 100 miles wide at its southern extremity, but it is 700 miles wide from Cape Blanco to the Amazon river. Although it is only 900 miles in extent, north and south, Peru has a coast line of 2,000 miles. The rainless coast desert is traversed by 50 rivers, but only one of them is navigable. After the mountain rains of February and March these streams become raging torrents; but they gradually sink away into the sands, and in June entirely disappear. There are but few bays forming well protected harbors. The Zona Seca has immunity from storms, and so the coast commerce takes anchorage in open roadsteads. All Peru, except the coast desert, has rainy seasons, but the "Montana," or forest zone, is exceptionally well and equably watered.

There are large lakes in the Sierras, forming sources of rivers; one of them, Lake Titicaca, being of world-wide celebrity. It is 120 miles long and 60 miles wide, and is 12,545 feet above the level of the ocean, which is 150 miles distant. Its waters are navigated by three steel steamboats engaged in traffic between its ports.

The peaks of the Andes rise 22,000 feet above the ocean. There are no volcanoes along the tremendous range, but occasionally vapor is seen to rise from the summit of Illimani and other snow-capped peaks. The snow line is from 16,000 to 17,000 feet above the sea level, according to the latitude.

Geologists have developed considerable matter of interest concerning the formation of the Andes, first by the subsidence of the ocean and then by successive upheavals. The geological and consequent chemical changes which occurred during the ages gave to Peru vast agricultural acreages and also made it the richest of all South American countries in minerals. The coast is rich in petroleum, silver, gold, copper, coal, sulphur, salt, nitrate, lime, borax and magnesia. In the Montana zone there are gold washings and gold minings of great value; while there are also found emeralds, rubies, turquoises and diamonds, the jewels with which the persons of the incas were adorned.

Abundant facts are given in the report to show that all climates on the face of the earth are illustrated in the climates of Peru. The rainless condition of the Zona Seca is explained by the statement that the trade winds, blowing from the east over the Andes, leave in those mountains all of the moisture which they have brought from the Atlantic ocean, the Montana getting the first and most abundant supply. The clouds fly before the wind, leaving their deposits of moisture along the different zones as they climb the mountains; so that when they reach the coast the last vestige of moisture has been wrung from them and they are no longer clouds, but dry parts of the sweeping winds, and the desert plains remain sterile, and must probably remain so forever. Thus the Montana is a tropical forest, which, when clearings have been made, becomes excellent farming country, never in need of irrigation. The next higher zone, the Sierra, is a charming climate and yields readily to the hands of the husbandman. The Puna, as the higher country is called, is a cheerless zone, too cold for vegetation.

The thermometer registers every degree of natural heat. In Lima the mercury goes down to 40 degrees in the mid-winter month of July; and it sometimes rises as high as 90 in the summer month of January. The winter weather is damp and chilly, making overcoats necessary. The old Spaniards oppose the use of artificial heat, but some of the newer houses are being supplied with fireplaces.

Earthquakes are seldom experienced in northern Peru, but suboceanic irruptions have been disastrous, sometimes destroying coast cities. In 1868 Arequipa was damaged by the ripple of a distant earthquake wave, but the damage resulted mainly from the old-time Spanish architecture. The houses were of stone with arched roofs, which speedily tumbled when shaken; while lighter houses of modern architecture were scarcely disturbed by the quake.

The "fauna Peruviana," as catalogued in 1881, contained 40,000 different specimens, including many birds of passage. The waters of the Pacific coast teem with fish; the corbina, not known in the northern temperate zone, being of rare delicacy and weighing from six to ten pounds. There are also skate, sole, place, haddock, cod, flounders, smelts and Spanish mackerel in great abundance. The streams produce shrimps and prawns of enormous size, some of them weighing fully a pound, and all of them of excellent flavor. Wherever the shores are rocky lobsters are found. Upon the desert coast are found the iguana, a large lizard, and many smaller varieties; and also there abound foxes, hares, rabbits, and along the water courses deer and wild hogs dwell in great numbers. All of the domestic animals of the world are found in Peru. Game birds are plentiful, and singing birds are numerous and of beautiful plumage, among them superb orioles and nightingales.

Once in seven years there comes a marvelous change along the desert coast. A shower, sometimes three or four showers, come from the surcharged trade winds, and immediately the desert hills bloom and blossom, so that a wealth of beauty leaps from the arid hills under the wand of nature. From the lifeless earth grasses and flowering plants spring up, growing taller than horse and man, so that the traveler cannot see his way through them. The brilliant life lasts a week or ten days, and then droops, dies and disappears. The flying particles of the desert roll against the granite mountain sides, and in the early morning a mournful cadence of minor music is heard. Countless millions of glassy atoms are beaten by the wind against the rugged surfaces, making minor sighing tomes, like soughing winds through forest trees. But here there are no trees. The simple Peruvians say that it is the music of the departed incas chanting solemn dirges over the lost children of the sun.

When Pizarro brought the religion of love into Peru, and converted the honest people with the sword and worse than Armenian butchery, the Peruvians were enjoying profound peace. They were too gentle to be ambitious, too docile to be vicious. They had attained the highest civilization of which aboriginal Americans were capable, and their religion was perfect communism. Atahualpa, the inca, led his people to welcome the strange visitors. The unarmed followers of Atahualpa were slaughtered. Atahualpa was strangled in the public square, August 29, 1533.

The slaughter was led by the priest Valerde, and upon the slippery blood-soaked ground the cross of Christ was set up. After 3½ centuries of subjugation, that simple race is not yet Christian, but the people yet hold secret meetings for worship after the manner of their fathers. The entire race still wears emblems of mourning for the murdered Atahualpa, and they look longingly and lovingly with undoubted faith for the coming of the Inca messiah who will redeem his people from the domination of the Spanish race.

PERSONAL AND LITERARY.

—Lady William Beresford is said to be busy writing the memoirs of her eventful life.

—Mrs. De Kay, wife of the United States consul general at Berlin, has won great popularity in the upper social circles of the German capital. She is a handsome, vivacious woman, who as Miss Coffee gained an enviable reputation as an amateur actress among the Four Hundred of New York.

—A circular has been sent out from San Francisco in reference to the plan of erecting a drinking fountain in the old plaza in that city as a memorial to Robert Louis Stevenson. "He dwelt for a time with us," it says, "and added a distinction to our cosmopolitanism, to our picturesqueness, by recognizing both."

—Joseph Chamberlain, the most prominent member of the English cabinet since the Transvaal raid by reason of his office of colonial secretary, has a clean-shaven face, a clear, bright eye, and the general appearance of a healthy man of 40, although he was born so long ago as 1836, and is, consequently, 60 years old.

—Prince Bismarck now possesses all the Prussian decorations. He has exhausted all the honors that it is possible for the emperor to confer upon him. This condition of things has been brought about by his election as a member of the Order Pour le Merite for Science and Art. Prince Bismarck continues well and has suffered less severely from facial neuralgia this winter.

—Says Dr. Edward Everett Hale: "When Cannon Farrar left us some years ago—a most charming and intelligent visitor—he told Phillips Brooks that he was going to give a farewell lecture on his impressions of America. Brooks, who was a thorough American and a person of excellent common sense, said to him promptly: 'Don't do any such thing. In the first place, you have no impressions, and in the second place, they are all wrong.'"

—Daniel Chester French, the sculptor, has about completed a figure group and a portrait bust of the late John Poyle O'Reilly, which was to adorn a monument to the memory of the poet that is to be set up in Boston in the coming summer. A flat obelisk in granite, broad and embellished in low relief with certain Celtic designs, forms a background on the one hand for the bust, and on the other for a statuesque group representing Hibernia, with Patriotism and Poetry on either hand.

HUMOROUS.

—"Am so glad you had the doctor: did he relieve you?" "Yes; of $20."—Boston Courier.

—Out of Practice.—She—"Why don't you talk to me as if you loved me?" He (absent-mindedly)—"I'm so horribly out of practice!"—Detroit Free Press.

—"You are the only doctor who advises me to stay at home. All the others say I ought to go to a winter resort." "I suppose they have all the patients they want."—Fliegende Blatter.

—Facetious Whip, to Cyclist—"Don't look as if yer fed that there hanimal o' yours over well!" Cyclist, on Pneumatic—"Quite mistaken! He had a jolly good blow-out only this morning!"—Fun.

—"I am going to propose to Miss Jinkles, said Whykins thoughtfully. "Has she given you any encouragement?" "I should say so. Why, she is afraid I am spending too much money for bouquets and matinee tickets."—Washington Star.

—Actress (angrily)—"Did you write that criticism which said my impersonation of the 'Abandoned Wife' was a miserable failure?" Critic—"Ye-e-e-s; you see you looked so irresistibly beautiful that it was imposible to fancy that any man could abandon you."—Tit-Bits.

—Pendennis—"If I had known that you were going to drop in on us so unexpectedly, we should have had a more elaborate dinner." Warrington (wrestling with a tough piece of steak)—"Don't mention it, old man; but next time I'll be sure to let you know."—Tit-Bits.

—He was proposing to the Boston girl, and in the fervor of his plea he leaned over her anxiously. "Pardon me," she said, "are you not getting a trifle too parsimonious?" "Parsimonious?" he gasped. "Yes," she said; "or as the vulgar would put it, 'close.'"—Philadelphia Press.

—His Suggestion.—"William," she said, "you need a new hat." "Do I?" "Yes. And a new overcoat." "I have suspected that." "And your umbrella is shockingly shabby." "I know it." "What are you going to do about it?" "I haven't any idea," he responded gloomily. And then, with the animation which comes with a happy thought, he added: "You might give a tea."—Washington Star.

Coffee Making.

Many persons who are unable to drink coffee that has been boiled or made by putting the coffee directly in boiling water and cooking at or above the boiling point for a certain number of minutes, are able to drink without any disagreeable consequences, either present or future, coffee made by percolation, that is, by inclosing the coffee in a bag of some kind or in a wire gauze strainer and pouring the boiling water upon it. This method of coffee-making should always be used in households where the members breakfast at different hours, and where only one pot of coffee is made. In France, where chicory is often added to the coffee, percolated or "drip" coffee that is quite strong is often made and tightly bottled or sealed so that its aroma cannot escape and kept in a cool place for several days. As it is wanted it is heated and served with hot milk, and, if you want it absolutely perfect, heat your cup also. Percolated coffee is considered more economical than boiled.—N. Y. Post.

DYNAMITE AND DAGGERS.

Concealed in the Clothing of Workmen Arrested in Barcelona.

Barcelona, March 12th.—Upon the arrival here last night of a train from Aragon two workmen were arrested on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. When a search of their clothing was made thirty dynamite cartridges and two daggers were discovered.

Upon being questioned the men asserted that they found the cartridges upon the road, and declared that they had come to Barcelona in search of work. The police discredit their story.

The United States Consulate is closely guarded. Herbert W. Bowen, formerly of Plainfield, is in charge of this consulate.

Elmore D. Moffett and wife have returned from Jersey City.

—Rev. Father Murphy, assistant pastor of St. Mary's church, will deliver a sermon on Sunday evening next, on temperance.

—The Parliamentary Club met this morning in the Y. M. C. A. building, and Mrs. Ford presided. One new member was elected. The rest of the time was devoted to routine business. The members decided to join the American Institution of Civics.

The City's Pitfalls.

Idle Tim—Phew! Never had sich a narrow escape in all the years I've been trampin'. These ere big cities is full o' pitfalls fer the unwary.

Tattered Tom—What happened ye?

Distinction Without Much Difference.

Johnny—What is the difference between a battle and a duel, mamma?

Mamma—A battle is between a number of people. A duel is between only two.

Johnny—O, I see. You and papa fight duels. But when grandmamma comes here, and Uncle Jim, then it is a battle.—Truth.

One Theory.

He—Great heavens! I've been talking to you for three hours.

She—Oh! It seems only half that time.

He (insinuatingly)—Why is that, I wonder?

A Considerate Husband.

"I read in a medical journal that women need more sleep than men," said Mr. Uptodate to his wife.

"Is that so?"

"Yes, my dear, and as you need more sleep, you needn't stay awake until I come home from the club to-morrow morning."—Texas Siftings.

Unlikely Place to Look for Her.

First Advanced Lady—Why didn't you look me up if you wanted to see me?

Second Advanced Lady—I did hunt for you. I went right to your home.

First Advanced Lady—Stupid! You were trying to evade me, that's what you were doing.—Chicago Record.

An Infallible Sign.

Guest (at rural hotel)—What is the surest sign of spring here?

Landlord—Well, some say it's when the alligator crawls out, but when you wake up in the mornin' an' find a rattlesnake under yer piller, you can jest bet that spring's here fer good!—Atlanta Constitution.

Has She Found Out Her Mistake?

Spratts—Miss Elder is much older than I thought.

Hunker—Impossible!

Spratts—Well, I asked her if she had read "Esop's Fables," and she said she read them when they first came out.—Tit-Bits.

Pretty Tough.

Aunt—You look rather delicate. Are you perfectly well?

Little Nephew—Oh, I'm tough as a pine knot. I can stand anything. You ought to see some of the doctor's doses I've taken and lived through.—Good News.

Are Up to Date.

Little Girl—Oh, mamma, come and look at the beautiful rainbow.

Mamma—Hush, my dear, it is very bad form to admire such a crude combination of red, yellow and blue.—Pick Me Up.

Highly Inflammable.

Mater Dolorosa.

Because of one small low-laid head all crowned
With golden hair,
Forevermore all fair young brows to me
A halo wear;
I kiss them reverently. Alas! I know
The pain I bear.

Because of dear but close-shut holy eyes
Of heaven's own blue
All little eyes do fill my own with tears—
Whate'er their hue;
And motherly I gaze their innocent
Clear depths into.

Because of little pallid lips, which once
My name did call,
No childish voice in vain appeal upon
My ears doth fall;
I count it all my joy their joys to share
And sorrows small.

Because of little death-cold feet for earth's
Rough roads unmeet,
I'd journey leagues to save from sin or harm
Such little feet,
And count the lowliest service done for them
So sacred—sweet!

King Toddle About.

King Toddle About has a wayward will,
And a king of kings is he!
Though coming from Heaven, his little heart
Is grounded in tyranny.
He rules by a kiss or a pursing mouth,
He knoweth the force of a pout;
Yet never a soul is better for him—
King Toddle About!

King Toddle About has a winning mien,
Growing dearer day by day;
And his subjects smile when he gives command,
And they kiss him and go their way.
And "Vive le Roi" from their loving lips
Is in truth a royal shout:
For who would not welcome his reign fore'er—
King Toddle About!
—W. T. Hale, in Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

The Infant Prodigy.

Of all the infant prodigies, he clearly took the lead;
His equal never had been seen, so every one agreed,
And his folks considered him a most precocious child,
Whose wonderful accomplishments would set the nation wild.

At four he had the multiplication table all by heart;
At five he'd mastered language in its every branch and part;
At six he could deliver an oration that was grand;
In after years he helped his wife conduct a peanut stand.
—L. A. W. Bulletin.

The Noble Life.

It is not growing like a tree,
In bulk, doth make man better be:
Or standing long an oak, three hundred year,
To fall a log at last, dry, bald and sere.
A lily of a day
Is fairer far in May;
Although it fall and die that night,
It was the plant and flower of light
In small proportions we just beauties see,
And in short measures life may perfect be —Ben Jonson, in Democratic Review.

HEALTHY KIDNEYS MAKE PURE BLOOD.

"I Think Them a God-Send."

I think it was a God-send in reading your advertisement in one of the daily papers of the curative powers of Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills. I was suffering so much with pain in my kidneys that when I wanted to turn over on my side in bed, I was obliged to move very slowly from the severe pain. I have taken two boxes of your pills, and feel very much relieved from their use, so much so that I can turn over in bed at ease. I am so much impressed with their curing qualities that I would not be without a box of them. I think them a God-send. James G. Weldon, 1628 Vine st., Philadelphia, Pa.

What Will Do It?

Medical writers claim that the successful remedy for nasal catarrh must be non-irritating, easy of application, and one that will reach the remote sores and ulcerated surfaces. The history of the efforts to treat catarrh is positive proof that only one remedy has completely met these conditions, and that is Ely's Cream Balm. This safe and pleasant remedy has mastered catarrh as nothing else has ever done, and both physicians and patients freely concede this fact.

TALK OF CONTEST AT FANWOOD.

The Fanwood Election is Causing a Great Deal of Talk.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—A very important question concerning the election held in Fanwood township on Tuesday, March 10th, is creating a large amount of discussion among the residents, the Borough of Fanwood being the factor of the contention. It appears that after the Supreme Court decision concerning the constitutionality of boroughs, the officials of the borough, upon legal advice, had their registery list sworn in before the township registery board as voters of the township. On March 7th the voters from the borough attended the primary and partiscipated in nominating the township ticket. On March 9th, the borough officials received notice that there had been a decision given in the Supreme Court that their proper place to hold election was in the borough. The polls were opened on election day in the borough and election was held, and no action was taken to withdraw the sworn registery list from the township registry board. About a dozen of the borough voters who had concluded that the borough election was illegal, voted at the township polls, and the township election board deciding that they could not bar them from voting, as they were registered on the township list.

The problems are: Was the township primary legal? Was the borough election legal? Did not the swearing in of their registery list before the township registery board prevent them from holding an election in the borough? Providing the borough election was legal, would not the township election be illegal for permitting non-residents of the township proper to vote for the township officers?

It is admitted that the borough voters were entitled to vote for the freeholder, but no other township official. There is some talk of contesting the election, and it should be done by those who are interested in the welfare and good government of the township, and thereby remove a legal blur on the good name of all concerned. X Rays.

SERVICES APPRECIATED.

C. H. SMITH A SUNDAY-SCHOOL SECRETARY FOR THE 24TH YEAR.

Mr. Smith Has Had Charge of the First Baptist School for Almost a Quarter of a Century—Other Officers.

The teachers of the First Baptist church Sunday-school met last evening in annual session. The attendance was excellent and considerable business was transacted. Superintendent R. K. Case presided, and after the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, which were approved, Treasurer Harold Serrell presented his report for the year. It showed the receipts to be $1,858.19, and the expenditures $1,453.21, leaving a balance of $404.98. Librarian B. J. Shreve reported the library to be in good condition with 720 books on hand. He made several suggestion which would increase the efficiency of the library, and no doubt they will be carried out.

Superintendent M. C. Dobbins, of the Mt. Olive Sunday-school, made a brief report, showing that the attendance and interest was constantly increasing. There are now 136 scholars, but owing to a lack of teachers the efficiency of the work is retarded. He reported the need of Sunday-school books, and they will be supplied. The school, however, is in a very prosperous condition and the work is encouraging.

Herbert Case, chairman of the committee on hymn books for the Sunday-school, stated that $85 had been collected for the same, and C. W. McCutchen, who had in charge the selection of a hymn book, reported that after careful investigation the committee would recommend the purchase of the book "Laudis Domini," recently published. The committee's report was concurred in and 250 copies of that book will be purchased for the exclusive use of the school.

Miss Gussie Runyon, chairman of the missionary committee, reported that $64.68 had been received during the year and there was now $16.97 on hand.

The election of officers resulted as follows: Superintendent, R. K. Case; secretary, C. H. Smith; treasurer, Frank Jones; librarian, B. J. Shreve.

For the Mt. Olive Sunday school M. C. Dobbins was elected superintendent and Charles Conover secretary.

A fact worthy of note is that C. H. Smith was elected last evening for the twenty-fourth consecutive year.

The teachers decided to give an excursion this year as usual and as soon as the arrangements are completed the date will be announced.

Business of minor importance occupied the rest of the evening, after which the meeting adjourned.

WORKS OF SCHUBERT.

The Thursday Evening Musical Club Enjoy a Pleasant Evening.

The meeting of the Thursday Evening Musical Club, which took place last evening, was one of the most enjoyable on record. The main part of the programme was devoted to the works of Schubert, and was as follows:

Trolley to this City.

City Counsel Riker, of Newark, representing several capitalists, has been examining the project of a proposed trolley line to Plainfield, says an Elizabeth despatch to the Newark Advertiser, and says that he is willing to guarantee the securing of the $275,000 of $300,000 it will take to build it. He appears enthusiastic regarding the scheme and says that if the right of way can be obtained and proper franchises secured in Elizabeth, Plainfield and the towns between, he sees no reason why the plan would not eventually prove very profitable to the originators, as well as to the business interests of Elizabeth. The Elizabeth Board of Trade will doubtless do all in its power to further the scheme.

Preparing for the Minstrels.

The day when the Crescent Wheelmen's minstrels will appear on the stage at Music Hall is gradually drawing nearer and the preparations for their appearance are being energetically carried out. A rehearsal was held last night and others will be held on next Monday, Wednesday and Thursday nights.

MUST TAKE THE COMMANDS.

Members Are Not Deserting the Army as Fast as Anticipated.

The wholesale defection from the ranks of the Salvation Army that was threatened when Ballington Booth resigned his command does not seem to have materialized, says the New York Advertiser. As a matter of fact, a revulsion of feeling has set in among soldiers and officers alike. Though they were at first inclined to resent what was presented to them as unwonted interference, they have since realized that their duty as soldiers and officers of an organization controlled by rules and regulations no less stringent than those which prevail in the armies of nations compels them to submit to the orders of their superiors, no matter what their individual opinions may be.

According to the latest statistics, the American Salvation Army consists of about 600 corps. There are 2,100 commissioned officers and 30,000 soldiers. The territory includes all the United States, with the exception of the two Dakotas, the State of Washington and Montana, which were attached to the Canadian Army. From all that can be learned Ballington Booth has succeeded in inducing only 350 soldiers to desert their standard and enroll themselves under his banner. It cannot be learned that an officer of importance has joined forces with him.

Though the organization has remained intact since Commissioner Eva Booth took command, the present arrangement is only a temporary one. A detailed account of the trouble which has occurred, including Ballington Booth's contemplated movement to form an independent organization, has been forwarded by Commissioner Eva to her father, General Booth, in London. As yet nothing but cable dispatches have been received from General Booth, and the Commissioner is anxiously awaiting orders by mail. It is expected that they will be received some time next week.

So far the Independent Corps of Salvationists, as the seceding members of the local Salvation Army Corps are called, have continued their work with their accustomed regularity. They have not held any street parades, but meetings have been held every night so far this week and will be held tonight, tomorrow night and all day Sunday.

The meetings are conducted on the same lines as those of the Salvation Army, but the uniforms are conspicuous in their absence.

GRAND OFFICERS PRESENT.

District Meeting of the Knights of Pythias at Scotch Plains Last Night.

The Knights of Pythias of this district, which includes Plainfield and Scotch Plains, held a meeting last night in the rooms of Goodwill Lodge at Scotch Plains. Members of that lodge, Perseverance Lodge, Unity Lodge and Crescent Division were present. The guests of the evening were Past Grand Chancellor Ralph Donath, of Jersey City, Grand Chancellor Hitchcock, of Jersey City, and Grand Vice-Chancellor Rockfellow, of Somerville. The second rank was conferred on one candidate, and important business of the order was transacted. The evening closed with a bountiful collation and speeches by the grand officers and several of the local Knights.

ENJOYING WINTER.

The Young People Take Advantage of Sleighing and Indulge in Strawrides.

The sleighing was good last night, and a large number of Plainfield's young people took advantage of it and were out in cutters and large sleighs. Several strawrides started from Plainfield, while many more passed through here. The wind died down considerable yesterday until there was a very little at night fall. It was cold, but the roads in the country were excellent, and the tinkle of sleigh bells sounded on every road.

Among ths parties that made Plainfield their starting point, was one that started from the home of Will Woodland, of Grandview avenue.

—Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, will meet tonight and work the second rank on one candidate.

All last winter Mr. Geo. A. Mills, of Labanon, Conn., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. At times it was so severe that he could not stand up straight, but was drawn over on one side. "I tried different remedies without receiving relief," he says, "until about six months ago I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. After using it for three days my rheumatism was gone and has not returned since. For sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue. T. S Armstrong, Manager.

STUDY OF A LIBERAL WOMAN.

Unitarian Women Review the Life and Works of Frances Power Cobbe.

The study of Frances Power Cobbe, as a liberal woman, was taken up yesterday afternoon in the lecture room of All Soul's church by the Plainfield Branch Alliance of Unitarian and Other Liberal Christian Women. There was a good attendance of members and the study was one of much profit.

Mrs. Smith prepared and read an interesting paper on this noted liberal woman. It was an outline of her life as taken from her own biography. It dealt chiefly with her work for woman's rights and her efforts to secure laws against the vivisection of animals. She devoted years of her life to the latter work and though such laws have not as yet been passed, it is hoped they will be before a great while. Frances Power Cobbe was born in Dublin, Ireland, in 1822, but was of English extraction. She is now living in Wales and on account of her advanced age is living in retirement.

She has written many articles that have resulted in incalcuable good.

A feature of her work was among poor children and in charity institutions. After the reading of the paper an informal discussion followed. The chief topic discussed was charity institutions for boys and girls where they can be taken and taught to lead pure and good lives. This was brought up in connection with the recent action of Judge De Meza, in committing a young girl to the county jail.

The members thought there should be a suitable place to send such persons beside one where hardened criminals are confined. The laws to prevent vivisection were also discussed with much good resulting.

GIRL PALLBEARERS.

The Late Miss Shay's Companions Carry Her Remains to the Grave.

The funeral services of the late Miss Mary Elizabeth Shay, were held from her late home, 25 Linden avenue, this morning at 9:30, and from the St. Joseph's R. C. church at 10:30, where requiem mass was said.

Rev. Father Malloy officiated and preached an excellent sermon. There was a very large attendance of relatives and friends, including the Children of Mary. An imposing sight were the six pallbearers chosen from the Children of Mary, who wore the white veils with the ribbons and bonnets. They were: The Misses Kittie Cooley, Nellie Begley, Kittie Egan, Alice Kennedy, Katy K and Katy Duffy.

The floral tributes consisted of a large handsome pillow from the Children of Mary, a wreath and several choice bouquets.

Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

HOT SUPPERS WANTED.

Fire Laddies Anxious for Something to Eat After Active Duty.

The regular monthly meeting of Alert Hose Company was held last evening. The question of uniforms was discussed and it was decided to order six sets of rubber coats and boots, appropriately lettered, to be carried on the hose cart, instead of having any uniforms.

One of the members brought up the question of having a hot supper after the night fires. Some thought the members should pay for it while others favored taking the necessary funds from the company's treasury. One member suggested that meal tickets be provided for a company restaurant to be run in Driver Townley's flat. No definite action was taken.

Habeas Corpus for Reiner.

Joseph A. Beecher, of Newark, with lawyers Steele and Powers, of Elizabeth, obtained a writ of habeas corpus yesterday, commanding the production of John Max Reiner, Editor of "The New Jersey Herald," at Elizabeth, in Trenton on Monday.

The writ is made returnable before Justice VanSyckel, at the State House, and Dr. Reiner will have to be brought to Trenton, his counsel refusing to waive the production of the body of their client, as the statute allows.

To Become Odd Fellows.

The Victor Wheelmen have decided to give up their present organization and form a secret society of Odd Fellows. There will be an outside degree for wheelmen who do not wish to join the lodge. A meeting will be called at an early date to take preliminary steps towards organization.

Miss Lulu Patton entertained a number of her friends at her home yesterday afternoon with a book party. Miss Mattie Covert guessed correctly the greatest number of books, and Miss Marguerite Yerkes took second prize.

A VILLIAN IN THIS PLAY.

SUCCESSFUL MELO-DRAMA TO BE PRESENTED BY LOCAL TALENT.

The Shamrock and Rose to Be Given by the Dramatic Association of the Catholic Club Next Tuesday Evening.

St Patrick's Day will be celebrated in Plainfield this year by another production at Music Hall by the Dramatic Association of the Plainfield Catholic Club. The great success of "Confusion," which was given last January, has encouraged the amateur Thespians to renewed efforts and the new play promises to be even better than the last. Its title is "The Shamrock and Rose," and the play is a very appropriate one for the occasion, the scene being laid in Ireland at the beginning of the revolution of 1798. It differs from "Confusion" in that it is more of the melo-dramatic style than the comedy. There is a strain of humor running through it, however, but pathos is mingled with it while the excitement of the revolutionary spirit pervades the entire play. The cast is as follows:

Squire Fitzgerald, Roses father.....C. J. Guinee
John Desmond, an outlawed patriot.....Mat. J. Cashin
Shaun Carey, a spy.....W. J. O'Brien
Captain Beck, Lieut. Douglass, Thornton, of the King's yeomanry.....W. J. Winn, T. J. Comerford, M. J. Higgins
Barney O'Grady, an Irish Bouchal.....C. J. Ward
Rose Fitzgerald, the "Rose of Wicklow."....Miss Etta Blatz
Nano Desmond, John's sister.....Miss Alice Keeley
Ileen O'Bourke, Barney's "Shrmrock."....Miss Mamie Doorey

The plot is a simple one but very interesting and offers many chances for the actors to display their talents. John Desmond and Captain Beck are both in love with Rose Fitzgerald. Both she and her father, the Squire, favor the suit of Desmond, the hero of the play. Desmond is outlawed but manages to visit his love. Beck looks on with jealous eyes and when he learns of Desmond's visit through his spy, Shaun Carey, tries to capture him. The first act is laid in Squire Fitzgerald's home in Wicklow. Desmond arrives and hides, and then Captain Beck demands that Desmond be turned over as a prisoner. The Squire and Beck quarrel and finally the latter murders the Squire in his own home. Desmond is finally captured and condemned to die, but escapes through the aid of Douglass who is in love with Desmond's sister. Rose is abducted and Captain Beck seems to be successful but Desmond wins at last and Beck is shot by one of his own men by mistake, the shot being meant for Desmond. And, of course, everything ends as it should.

There are four acts, the second including four scenes, and the third, two scenes.

Quite a number of musical selections are happily introduced and include solos, duets and selections by a male quartette, composed of T. J. Comerford, R. Wright, F. W. Wharton and M. J. Cashin. The costumes will be appropriate to the time of the play. The stage director is C. J. Ward and the musical portion of the programme is under the direction of M. J. Cashin.

GETTING ACTIVE.

Board of Trade Talking of Giving a Supscription Dinner.

The directors of the Board of Trade held a meeting last evening and elected one new member. The organization is far from being dead, as some would suppose, for J. A. Smith, J. Fred MacDonald and Harry Coward, were appointed a committee to consider plans for giving a large subscription dinner, something on the order of that given in Elizabeth. If it is given it will be an elaborate affair. Several new members will be elected at the next meeting.

The directors decided to retain their present quarters for another year. There was much enthusiasm at the meeting and something of interest to Plainfielders may be looked for at an early date.

A Young Girl's Death.

Miss Elizabeth Maguire, aged 18 years, daughter of Philip Maguire, died at the home of her father, South Plainfield, yesterday. The funeral services will beheld tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock from St. Mary's church, this city.

Appointment of a Borough Man.

Governor Griggs yesterday sent to the Senate the appointment of Samuel St. John McCutchen to succeed James Deshler in the Third Congressional District.

An Unexpected Trip.

The peace of the household of a prominent Plainfield man was rudely disturbed early this morning by the discovery of the absence of a near relative, who has been slightly demented for some time. Sergeant Kiely was notified and telegraphed to the police of Jersey City who held the woman when she left the train. She was brought home later in the morning.

HER SWEETHEART CALLED.

A Young Man Who Says He Has Not Forgotten Mamie Clark.

Mamie Clark is one of the prettiest girls in Plainfield, says an Elizabeth dispatch to the New York Journal. She has laughing eyes and curly hair and is bright and vivacious. She is just budding into womanhood, and the restrictions of home were distasteful to her.

Today she is wearing the prison garb in the Union County Jail here. She was sent here by her father on a charge of disorderly conduct, Judge DeMeza, of Plainfield, committing her. She would not stay at home, and her father took this drastic method of enforcing his commands.

A young man called to see her today. She blushed with pleasure at the sight of him and hid her head when she thought of the horrible prison clothes. He used to be her suitor and came to say he would not forget her, and when the thirty days' sentence was up he wanted to be her friend as before.

There was a world of gratitude in her eyes as she said "Good-by" to him, with happy thoughts in her heart and the sound of wedding bells in her ears.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

Bits of News Picked up From All Parts of the City and Borough.

—There will be one adoption at the meeting of Miantonomoh Tribe, No. 118, I. O. R. M., this evening.

—The invitations are out for the subscription dance which will be held at the Olympia on March 26th.

—The Independent Fife and Drum Corps met last night for practice instead of last Tuesday night.

—The Peter Wooden will contest was brought up in Court at Somerville today and adjourned again.

—The estimates for the new City National Bank building are expected to be in by Wednesday, March 18th.

—The Amphion Ladies Mandolin and Vocal Quartette will appear at the Y. M. C. A., Tuesday evening, March 17th.

—The lecture to be given in the Casino tomorrow afternoon by Miss Lindley on Bicycling is for men as well as women. The impression seems to prevail that it is only for women, but this is wrong.

—Three students of Princeton University will speak at the young men's meeting in the Y. M. C. A. building, Sunday afternoon at 4:15. Music will be furnished by a choir from the Seventh-Day Baptist church.

—Jome of the largest freight cars that have ever come to Plainfield have just arrived from Grand Rapids and other western points with the stock for Garret Q. Packer's new furniture store in the Jackson building.

—Dr. McClellan, of Brooklyn, who will give an illustrated lecture in Warren chapel, Thursday evening, March 19th, on "Niagara, Winter and Summer," is a very interesting speaker and his views are exceptionally fine.

A Card.

If from our lips could go to each of you, our friends, the thankful feeling of our hearts for your many acts of kindness and words of loving sympathy, you would then know something of our appreciation. To Talk Town Improvement.

The Rasores has sent invitations to the six other women's clubs of the city and the borough to meet with them on Tuesday morning, March 17th, a 10 o'clock, in the lecture room of the Y. M. C. A. building to listen to a paper on "Town Improvement" by Mrs. Willis Smith, of Madison avenue, who was formerly president of the Montclair Town Improvement Society.

Not to be Trifled With.

(From Cincinnati Gazette.)

Will people ever learn that a "cold" is an accident to be dreaded, and that when it occurs treatment should be promptly applied? There is no knowing where the trouble will end; and while complete recovery is the rule, the exceptions are terribly frequent, and thousands upon thousands of fatal illnesses occur every year ushered in by a little injudicious exposure and seemingly trifling systems. Beyond this, there are today countless invalids who can trace their complaints to "colds," which at the time of occurrence gave no concern, and were therefore neglected.—When troubled with a cold use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is prompt and effectual. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue, T. S. Armstrong Manager.

ARMS FOR THE REBELS

A Big Cargo of War Supplies Safely Landed in Cuba.

WAS SHIPPED FROM PHILADELPHIA

The Steamer Cleared for Jamaica and Will Return To Endeavor To Land Another Load of War Material.

Philadelphia, March 13.—The vessel which is said to have left this port for Cuba a week ago to-day with arms and ammunition is reported to have landed safely at a small bay in the eastern end of the island, and within six hours the entire cargo was placed in the hands of the insurgent agents. One of the Cuban leaders who was instrumental in getting this vessel away, in speaking of it said: "So far as we have been able to learn, the ship with the munitions of war arrived in Cuba on Sunday, and got away all right. There were not many men aboard—only enough to handle the cargo and look after it properly. The consignment of war supplies was very large. The ship cleared from here for Jamaica, and, after stopping at Cuba, sailed immediately for Jamacia, from which place she will again come to Philadelphia with a cargo and be ready again for another trip south with arms."

Engagements with the Insurgents.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

Havana, March 13.—Several encounters between government troops and detached bands belonging to the forces of Gomez and Maceo have been reported around Los Palos, in the province of Matanzas, near the line of the province of Havana, and also near Bagaes, in the latter province. Gen. Gasco reports from Manzanillo that his command has had an engagement with the rebel band led by Reyes. One insurgent was captured. During a reconnoissance the insurgents exploded an earth torpedo, wounding several soldiers. In an engagement between Arápile's battalion and Palacio's band near Managua, province of Havana, the rebels lost five wounded and three prisoners.

Gunboat's Narrow Escape.

The gunboat Lince narrowly escaped capture by the insurgents at Juan Fernandez, near Sanoti Spiritus on March 2. The rebels blocked the river with chains made by twisting fence wire and preventing the gunboat from getting out of the river. The gunboat Satellite went to her rescue, and acting in conjunction with a land force succeeded in breaking the chains and saving the Lince, together with her convoy of several schooners laden with supplies. One hundred and ten prisoners arrived from Las Vilas yesand were sent to Morro castle.

American Sugar Refinery Burned.

Captain General Weyler has ordered that all individuals captured from this date in the provinces of Havana and Pinar del Rio, who are supposed to belong to the insurgent forces, be set at liberty if they deny having joined the rebels voluntarily, and if they will promise, before two witnesses, fidelity to the cause of Spain, and do not appear to be responsible for other crimes. They will, however, be subject to the surveillance of the authorities. A fire at Royla, opposite Havana, Tuesday night destroyed the sugar refinery of the American firm of Crabb, Triay & Co. Two warehouses and twelve small houses were also burned. The total loss is estimated at $230,000. The refinery was insured for $100,000.

J. FRANK CLARK.

WAR PREPARATIONS CONTINUE.

Spain, However, Does Not Expect Trouble with the United States.

Madrid, March 13.—A cabinet council was held last night, at which the queen regent presided. Senor Canovas del Castillo, the prime minister, made optimistic comments on the action of the American senate on the Cuban belligerency resolutions, he evidently believing that the fact that the senate has not already agreed to the report of its committee of conference and the committee of the house of representatives means that there is a good prospect of the senate not accepting the house resolution. He added, however, that the warlike preparations would be continued, the government being determined to be ready for any contingency. The prime minister announced that it was intended to immediately reopen the universities that had been closed on account of the anti-American demonstrations of the students.

CLAIMS AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP.

Agramonte, Under Arrest in Cuba, Appeals to the United States.

New York, March 13.—Counsel for Olivero Agramonte, manager of the Juragua estate, situated near St. Eorcengue, Cuba, appeared before United States Commissioner Shields yesterday afternoon for the purpose of securing governmental interference in behalf of his client. Agramonte has been arrested by the Spaniards and court martial proceedings are pending against him. He is an American citizen. Commissioner Shields holds the matter under advisement awaiting information from the department of state at Washington.

International Chess Match.

New York, March 13.—Pillsbury, Showalter, Hodges, Hymes, Barry, Burille, Delmar and D. G. Baird will be the American contestants in the international chess match which will begin to-day.

Mark Twain Ill at Jeypore.

London, March 13.—A dispatch to the Central News from Bombay says that Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain) is seriously ill at Jeypore.

BIG BOSTON BLAZE.

The Pope Bicycle Building Damaged to the Extent of $250,000.

Boston, March 13.—The handsome building on Columbus avenne occupied by the Pope Manufacturing company, bicycle manufacturers, was badly damaged by fire last night. The building is of six stories, of white brick with terra cotta trimmings. The inside of the building, from basement to roof, is almost entirely burned out and it is estimated that the entire loss to both building and stock will be about $250,000. The fire started in the basement of the building, presumably in the woodpile just back of the boiler. It spread like lightning and the whole basement was a mass of flames in a few seconds. The automatic fire alarm gave the first warning of a fire to the fire department. This was followed by a second, third, fourth and then a general alarm, calling every piece of apparatus in the city. The building was supposed to be fire proof, but did little in resisting the flames. At one time the flames leaped away across Columbus avenue. When the fire broke out there were some fifty-five employes in the building and several had a rather hard time in getting out. On the first, second and third floors were some 1,700 bicycles of various description and the fourth floor contained about 5,000 tires. All of these wheels and tires are completely destroyed and also some 175 second hand wheels. Besides these articles there were about 20,000 pieces of machinery, all of which are totally destroyed.

STEAMSHIP AILSA LIBELED.

La Bourgogne Company Files a Counter Suit for Damages.

New York, March 13.—Lawyers representing La Compagnie Generale Transatlantique, the owners of the steamship La Bourgogne, have filed a libel in the admiralty branch of the United States district court for $20,000 damages against the British steamship Ailsa, which was sunk in the harbor Feb. 29, and also asks for the arrest of W. J. Morris, captain of the Ailsa, for criminal carelessness. Had La Bourgogne foundered on its recent voyage, the lawyers say, the Ailsa's captain and owners would have been sued for the full value of the French liner and its cargo. The libel charges that the collision was due to the fact that the Ailsa was anchored in the channel in an improper and unsafe manner and in violation of laws. The Ailsa's owners libeled the French line company several days ago for $200,000 damages for the sinking of their steamship.

DUNRAVEN'S REPLY.

A Curt Note Mailed to the New York Yacht Club.

London, March 13.—Lord Dunraven has mailed the following to the secretary of the New York Yacht club: "I beg to acknowledge the receipt of a certified copy of the preamble and resolutions passed at the adjourned meeting of the New York Yacht club on February 27. My opinion as to the desirability of continuing a member of the New York Yacht club was expressed in my letter of resignation of the nineteenth." Dunraven presided at a meeting yesterday afternoon of the Yacht Racing association. Before the meeting was called to order, the question of the advisability of making a reply to the New York Yacht club in regard to the expulsion of Lord Dunraven was formally discussed and it was decided that it would not be good taste to do so. The matter was then dropped and the meeting was devoted to a discussion of the rating rules.

VENEZUELAN DISPUTE.

The Report of an Anglo-American Commission Still Believed.

London, March 13.—In reply to a question on the subject George N. Curzon, parliamentary secretary of the foreign office, stated that the government had no information that a settlement of the Venezuelan difficulty had been effected. Despite Mr. Curzon's statement a report is credited in the ministerial circles that Lord Salisbury has assented to the formation of an Anglo-American commission that will be authorized to settle the dispute.

Habeas Corpus for Dr. Remler.

Trenton, March 13.—Justice Van Syckle has granted a writ of habeas corpus commanding the Union county jailor to produce the body of Dr. Reimer of Elizabeth at Trenton on Monday. It is understood that the editor's lawyers will argue for a reduction of the $13,000 bail in default of which he is in jail for libeling Mayor Rankin of Elizabeth.

Chicago Tailors on Strike.

Chicago, March 13.—All union tailors employed in the city went on strike today to assist the clothing cutters and trimmers who have been struggling for several weeks to win against their former employers. It is estimated there are 7,500 organized tailors here.

Steamer Monohansett Floated.

Vineyard Haven, Mass., March 13.—The sunken steamer Monohansett, at Woods Holl, has been floated and now lies alongside the dock at that place with wrecking pumps still working. She will probably be towed to Provincetown for repairs.

Claims His Arrest Was Unjust.

Hartford, March 13. — Louis H. Schneider of Brooklyn, N. Y., who was arrested Wednesday in a civil suit, has secured bail and has been released from custody. He claims that his arrest was an attempt to make him settle an unjust claim.

Village Police Bill.

Albany, March 13.—The senate villages commission has agreed to report favorably the Greenbush police bill, which reorganizes the village police force.

PARADE ABANDONED

No Demonstration of Blue and Gray in New York City.

PROMOTERS ABANDON THE IDEA

Opposition of Commander-in-Chief Walker of the G. A. R. Too Great—Efforts for an Independent Parade Also Given Up.

New York, March 13.—The committee of citizens headed by the Hon. Charles A. Dana associated to make arrangements for a reunion of union and confederate war veterans, which was to have been held in this city on July 4, and a parade of the boys in gray and blue, which was intended to be a feature of the celebration to emphasize the disappearance of sectional feelings between the north and south, has finally determined to allow the project to die a natural death. The opposition of Ivan N. Walker, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, put a quietus on the movement so far as the Grand Army of the Republic as a body was concerned

Few Responded.

The committee then considered the advisability of asking the war veterans of the north, irrespective of their affiliation with the Grand Army, to take part in the parade, but the result was not satisfactory, for although many favorable replies were received from individuals expressing approval of the project and their intention to take part in the parade as individuals, there were so few responses from organizations of veterans that it was apparent that the demonstration would not be of a sufficiently representative character, so the matter has been dropped.

Confederates Fe l Aggrieve l.

Col. John J. Garnett, an ex-confederate soldier, who was secretary of the committee, when spoken to to-day by a representative of the United Press about the abandonment of the project said: "I regret very much that the committee has been compelled to drop the matter. It was intended to be a fraternal and prtriotic demonstration which would have been of lasting benefit to this city and the country at large, but in the face of the violent opposition expressed by the commander-in-chief of the Grand Army and his prohibition to the posts to take part in the parade, it could not be carried to a successful issue. The confederate veterans feel aggrieved by the attitude and words of the commander-in-chief of Grand Army of the Republic, and under the circumstances, they would not come north to take part as a body in a parade such as was projected."

TO BUY SUGAR IN EUROPE.

The American Sugar Trust Greatly Affected by Cuban War.

New York, March 13.—In regard to the cablegram from London in which it was stated that the United Press learns that the American Sugar trust is endeavoring to depress prices because of having to buy 500,000 tons of sugar in Europe before the end of August, secretary John E. Searles of the sugar trust said this morning: "Unless the Cuban war ends at once the sugar crop from the island will be practically nothing. It is now very ripe and must have attention at once or not at all. While the insurgents agreed to protect the milling of 200,000 tons of sugar by their friends, the Spaniards in turn will prevent the milling of the crop of the friends of the insurgents. The American Sugar Refining company will therefore be obliged to seek its sugar elsewhere. It will obtain most of it in the form of beet sugar from Germany. Of course, anybody in business would try to get it as cheaply as possible. I can say nothing more definite as to plans."

M'KINLEY'S SUPPORTERS.

Accommodations for 1,500 Boomers Already Secured at St. Louis.

St. Louis, March 13.—Within the last four days friends and supporters of Major McKinley have secured accommodations for 1,500 persons here for the time of the republican national convention. The Pennsylvania delegation gave up its contract with the Lindell hotel for accommodations for 300 persons, and the space was eagerly taken by the Ohioans. Iowa also gave up accomodations for 400 persons, and the McKinleyites also secured these. The McKinley supporters have made contracts also with the Southern for all the space the hotel can give them.

Skating Races at Washington.

Washington, March 13.—At the ice palace in this city last night in the skating race between Joseph F. Donoghue of Newburg, N. Y.; Harley Davidson of Toronto, Ont., and Howard P. Moshier of Storm King, N. Y., distance 2½ miles, Davidson won. Time, 7 minutes and 51¾ seconds.

Your Spring Clothing

Rather early to speak of it, but if it needs cleaning or dyeing, it isn't too early to have us do that work for you. This is our dull season—our employes are here ready for work. We'd like to have your goods now. We can give them better attention than in the rush of the spring season. Then we'll have to have more time or rush them at the expense of good work. Now we can take our time, do the work better than if hurried and you'll have the clothing all ready for warm weather.

Look in the closet or trunk and find your spring wear that needs cleaning and dyeing and bring it to us now, or better still, our wagon will call for it if you will send us word.

GET APPETITE.

If You Don't, You Will Never Be Strong or Healthy.

Appetite is one thing that you can't afford to be without, for without it your health, strength and comeliness flies out of the window.

Poor appetite means weak stomach, starved body, sick individual. Good appetite the opposite.

Poor appetite is a sign that your stomach is too weak for digestion. You can aid with the Shaker Digestive Cordial.

When your stomach is able to digest all the food that your body needs ypu will have a good appetite. Not before.

Good food, well digested, means strength and a long, healthy life. Undigested food creates poison which affects the whole body, and may give you headache, dizziness, nausea, constipation, flatulence, languor, weakness, mental depression, stomach ache, fever, nervousness, offensive breath, anæmia, rheumatism, etc.

All these disorders will be relieved if you will take Shaker Digestive Cordial.

It is a pure vegetable digestive and natural invigorator, which aids the stomach, purifies the system of the poisons of indigestion and makes you strong, fat and healthy.

Shaker Digestive Cordial does not act on the liver, but on the undigested food in the stomach. It cures indigestion or biliousness without irritating the liver or any of the internal organs.

At druggists. 10c for a trial bottle. Write for free book to The Shakers, 30 Reade st., New York.

BESIEGING KASSALA

Dervishes, 30,000 Strong, Endeavoring to Recapture the Town.

NOW HELD BY THE ITALIAN TROOPS

Baratieri Admits That He Contemplated Suicide in a Fit of Madness After Defeat—Blames His Generals for the Reverse.

Rome, March 13.—According to the Agenzia d'Italia 30,000 dervishes are investing Kassala, the town which was captured from them some time ago by the Italians. Gen. Baratieri, who was lately superseded in the command of the Italian forces in Africa, in an interview at Massowah on his reasons for attacking the Abyssinians at Adowah, said that information he had received led him to believe that it would be easy to occupy the positions he assailed. He reckoned that the force of Abyssinians would retreat. Instead of doing so they had inflicted a defeat on the Italian army, and he was ready to submit to the consequences.

Baratieri Blames His Generals.

The Tribuna publishes an interview with Gen. Baratieri, in which he denies that the government urged him to attack the Abyssinians, but he adds that all his generals favored the making of the attack. A victory for the Italians had been won and was virtually assured, when the native battalions became panic-stricken, and this produced disorder among the Italian soldiers. Gen. Baratieri declares that he has nothing to reproach himself for, but confesses that in a moment of madness after his defeat he was on the verge of committing suicide. He remembered, however, the piety of his family and wished to spare them the shame.

UNDER MARTIAL LAW.

Report of the Recent Trouble at Saint Kitts, West Indies.

Washington, March 13.—The state department has received from Leopold Moore, United States consular agent at Saint Kitts, one of the British West India islands, a complete account of the recent disturbances. He says that six weeks ago the laborers of the sugar estates struck for higher wages and set fire to the canes on the estates whose proprietors refused to accede to their demands. Fortunately H. M. S. Cordelia had just arrived and a force was landed. After a skirmish, in which "three of the black rioters were killed and several wounded," partial order was restored. The value of goods taken or destroyed by the mob is estimated at $5,000. Several attempts were made to fire the town, but the marines extinguished the flames. The warship will remain for the present, as the blacks are making threats to burn the town and murder the white people at the first opportunity. The island is now under martial law and all is reported quiet at present.

EX-GOV. CAMPBELL'S VIEWS.

Believes the House of Representatives Will Elect the Next President.

Cincinnati, March 13.—In an interview last night ex-Gov. Campbell said he was not a candidate for the democratic nomination for the presidency, but suggested Whitney and Matthews as a winning ticket. He believed the next president will be elected by the house of representatives. "There will be a fight in both the national conventions between the extreme gold men and the extreme silver men," said the ex-governor. "Both are cranks. The two parties as democrats and republicans have really no difference on the money question. The silver men will not be satisfied with the republican platform, and they will bolt and lose the party enough states to throw the election of the president into the hands of the house."

Don't Want the Bridge.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., March 13.—At a public meeting last night of the chamber of commerce, common council and citizens in general, resolutions to be forwarded to Albany and Washington were adopted in opposition to the proposed bridge to Grand island across the Niagara river, on the ground of a serious menace and detriment to navigation.

Coal Rate Agreement.

New York, March 13.—An agreement has been reached between the anthracite coal producing railroads and the railroads and coal dealers in New England whereby rates for transportation to, and prices to be charged at, different points east of the Hudson river have been fixed.

National Reform Party.

Pittsburg, March 13.—The conference of the dissatisfied element of the two old parties have adopted the name "National Reform party" and decided to hold a national convention of that organization in this city May 25.

Free Silver Democrats.

Lansing, Mich., March 13.—The free silver democratic party of Michigan was formed here yesterday afternoon at a conference of the free silver element of the democratic party. A general committee was appointed.

Ex-Gov. Fifer Out of Politics.

Bloomington, Ill., March 13.—Ex-Gov. Fifer, who was notified last night of his election as a national committeeman for Illinois, has telegraphed his declination of the honor. He says he is out of politics.

Killed Wife and Himself.

Denver, March 13.—Edward G. Ward, a railroad man, shot and killed his wife yesterday afternoon and committed suicide by blowing out his brains. Jealousy was the cause.

WORK BEFORE CONGRESS.

Senate Still Discussing the Cuban Resolutions—House Contest Cases.

Washington, March 13.—Mr. Sherman will some time during the day ask for unanimous consent to take up the conference report on the Cuban belligerency resolutions, displacing temporarily the Delaware election case and, if objection is made, he will move to take it up, so that the matter will be decided by a majority vote. Two more speeches have been made on the resolutions. The first was made by Senator Hill, dem., N. Y., announcing his purpose of voting against the conference report and stating the reasons which induced him to take that position after having voted for the resolution that passed the senate. His opposition was to the third clause of the conference report, which proclaims the purpose of the United States to be prepared to intervene in order to protect the legitimate interests of the United States. He opposed that resolution as being liable to misinterpretation, and as being unnecessary and therefore unwise. He thought it was too much like a threat, too much like buncombe, and that it was putting intervention on too low a ground. He could not vote for it, and, as a conference report is not amendable, he would have to vote against the report. The action of the committee on foreign relations and the senate conferees was defended by Mr. Sherman. Senator Pritchard, rep., N. C., delivered a speech in favor of Mr. Dupont's claim to a seat in the senate.

Affairs in the House.

Contested election cases still occupy the attention of the house. Another one of them—that of Coleman vs. Buck from the Second Louisiana district—has been disposed of without debate by the adoption of the resolutions unanimously reported by elections committee No. 2, that Coleman, rep., was not elected and that Buck, dem., had been and was entitled to his seat. Debate upon the other case now before the house—that of Aldrich vs. Robbins from the Fourth Alabama district—has not yet been concluded. In this case there are three reports, two by the republican majority agreeing that Aldrich was elected and should be seated, but differing as to the size of his majority. The minority admit that the majority of 3,736 returned for Robbins should be reduced to 559—still amply sufficient to warrant their recommendation that he retain his seat. The majority recommendation was supported by Messrs. Moody, Mass.; Linney, N. C., and Royse, Ind., and the minority's by Mr. Bartlett, Ga.

FOUL PLAY SUSPECTED.

The Remains of Mrs. Babcock, Who Died at Asbury Park, May Be Exhumed.

Asbury Park, N. J., March 13.—The circumstances connected with the sudden death of Mrs. Katherine Babcock, about two weeks ago at the residence of her adopted daughter on Second avenue, may cause an investigation. Mrs. Babcock was 78 years old, and is said to have had about $1,000 in cash a short time before her death. The cause of suspicion, which it is said several local temperance union friends of the deceased want cleared up, is the alleged undue haste in burying the remains. It is said that a coffin for Mrs. Babcock's body was purchased a few hours before she died, and that the funeral took place the same day, although the undertaker protested, claiming that such haste would create suspicion.

CREW BARELY ESCAPED.

Sealing Steamer Wolf Crushed by Ice and Sunk.

St. Johns, N. F., March 13.—The British sealing steamer Wolf was crushed by the ice off Fogo island yesterday afternoon and sank. The ice literally formed a raft over the vessel and the crew of 275 men aboard barely escaped with their lives.

Salvation Army's New Commanders.

New York, March 13.—Commissioner Eva Booth at last night's meeting of the Salvation Army announced that she had received a cablegram from Chief of Staff Bramwell Booth appointing Commander Booth Tucker and his wife to take charge of the forces in the United States. The announcement was greeted with hisses and applause.

RAINES BILL PASSED

New York's New Liquor Measure Now Goes to the Governor.

NO DOUBT OF HIS APPROVAL

One Among the Most Radical Liquor Laws Ever Adopted by Any State—Minority Issue a Statement of Protest to the People.

Albany, March 13.—As predicted in these dispatches, although against the opinion of a number of people interested in one way or another with the matter, the Raines liquor tax bill as received from the senate passed the assembly without any dangerous opposition being manifested at any time. That the governor will sign the measure there is no room for doubt, and New York state will have placed on its statute books one of the most radical liquor laws ever passed by any state legislature, except possibly actual prohibition. The assembly remained in session continuously from 10 o'clock yesterday morning until 7:10 o'clock last night, when the final vote was taken. The session was exceedingly exciting throughout and the galleries were never so crowded as they were during the entire day by interested spectators.

Members Who Voted No.

The vote on final passage resulted 84 ayes and 59 noes. Seventeen republicans voted with the democrats against the bill as follows: Adler, French, Laimbeer and Murphy of New York; Babcock of Chautauqua; Blasdell, Braun, Hill, Peevers, C. Smith, Springweiler and Steiner of Erie; Brennan, Degraw, Forrester, Hughes and Wagstaff of Kings. These members were absent: Ebbets, dem., of Kings; Goodman, dem., of New York; Gray, rep., of Dutchess; Kempner, dem., of New York; Malone, dem., of New York; G. W. Meyer, dem., of New York, and G. W. Wilson, rep., of Brooklyn. Those who voted in favor of Mr. Donnelly's ale and beer amendment were found to number forty upon a corrected count.

Protest of the Minority.

The minority members of the legislature claim that the Raines bill was passed in the assembly in violation of the state constitution. The democratic members last night drew up a protest against what they termed "the indecent haste and unconstitutional method" used in the passage of the Raines bill, and Senator Canter of New York holds that the bill was passed in violation of the constitution. They assert that their rights, as a minority, have been "ruthlessly trampled upon, and the decorum and procedure of the legislature of the state of New York flagrantly abused. We appeal, irrespective of class, creed, race or party, to all people of the state to resent at the polls this affront to their rights and liberties."

Statement of Senator Cantor.

Senator Cantor, the minority leader in the senate, gave out a statement in which he said the proceedings in the senate were "a disgrace to the state, and the first time in the history of this state that a parliamentary law has been so ruthlessly trampled upon." Continuing, he said: "It is to be sincerely hoped that before the bill is acted upon by Gov. Morton he will not only give intelligent consideration to its provisions and do his duty to the people who are opposed to this measure, but that he will take into consideration as well the defiance of rules and of the constitution and the lack of consideration which characterized its passage."

ALBANY CAPITOL EMPLOYES.

No Action Looking to Reducing the Force Yet Taken.

Albany, March 13.—The capitol commission met again yesterday afternoon with the expectation of making a reduction in the force of 690 men now at work in the construction department; but nothing was done, it being the sense of the commissioners that while there were possibly 100 men too many employed, there should be a full board present, which there was not yesterday, when a reduction was made so that all might agree to the list of those whose services should be disposed of. It has been shown that if all are not present to share the responsibility and stand by the action taken the discharged employes get back again on the work and the result is bad for the discipline of the force.

Confesses To Stealing $6,000.

Philadelphia, March 13.—Joseph H. Taylor, the alleged embezzling cashier of the Biddle Hardware company of this city, was brought here last evening from Cincinnati by detectives. He disappeared in December, after, it is said, appropriating $10,000 of the firm's money, and nothing was heard of him until his recent arrest in Cincinnati. Taylor, it is said, has confessed to the theft of $6,000.

Effort To Admit Women as Delegates.

Philadelphia, March 13.—The Methodist Episcopal conference will vote today upon a resolution which was adopted by the last general conference and also submitted to the different annual conferences, providing for the admission of men and women as lay delegates to the general body. It is expected that this will meet with affirmative action.

Verdict Against the Standard Oil Company.

New York, March 13.—Patrick Reany, who sued the Standard Oil company for $50,000 for personal injuries, has secured a verdict for $3,500.

Assemblyman Reed's yellow envelope bill met an untimely death in the Senate yesterday.

George M. Titus, of Newark, has been appointed chief of division in the Register's Office of the Treasury Department, to succeed Thomas F. Lane, of The Summit Record. The Press is not aware of the reasons for Mr. Lane's retirement, but it does know him to be a fighting Democrat.

The hat-raising device which has just been patented at Washington, ought to be welcomed by the crowds of commuters who struggle to the Jersey ferries every evening with a huge bundle in each hand, and likewise to the busy bicyclist. The average man would get into trouble if he used it.—Evening Sun.

The New York World this morning publishes the letters of James E. Martine and William C. Whitney, arising from Mr. Martine's interview in The Daily Press, in which he favored Mr. Whitney's nomination for President, and in speaking of Mr. Whitney's apparent indifference, The World says:

Mr. Martine is not discouraged, however. He is likely to be a delegate to Chicago, and will vote for Whitney unless something unforseen happens in the meantime.

As an assurance of efficient service the Borough Common Council can do no better than to reappoint James K. Arnold as their clerk. Mr. Arnold is well acquainted with the duties of the office, and has pleased those with whom he has had dealings in an official way. During his term of service he has made no mistakes for the Council to rectify, which is sufficient evidence that his mind is well informed as to the exact duties he has assigned to him. Mr. Arnold is not seeking a reappointment, but the interests of the borough will be best served by his selection.

The total number of votes in the Republican National Convention of 1892 was 906. Since then Utah has been admitted to Statehood, adding four votes, making 910. In the call for the convention this year Chairman Carter, of the National Committee, directed all Territories seeking Statehood to elect four delegates-at-large, the question of their admission to be decided by the convention. If Arizona, New Mexico and Oklohama each elect four delegates-at large, and they are all admitted, the total number of votes in the St. Louis convention will be 922. In the Democratic National Convention of 1892 there were 910 delegates, and under the two-thirds rule 604 votes were necessary to a choice. Cleveland received 617½ votes on the first ballot. The addition of Utah to the list of States will add four delegates this year, making a total of 914, and 610 will be necessary to a choice if the two-thirds rule is maintained.

So far as the charges of libel are concerned, The Press has no sympathy with Editor Reiner, of Elizabeth, who has become involved in the meshes of the law. The attacks which he made on Mayor Rankin were not only deplorable, but outrageous, though it must be admitted that some of the charges—notably the one concerning excise violations—were true. But no matter how bad the libels may have been, it seems that the bail of $13,000, which was fixed for his release, is excessive, and that the conduct of the officials who have had charge of the case has been unduly severe. While there are twenty-six separate charges preferred, yet they are all specific of one general defamatory act, and it seems to an unprejudiced mind that a more moderate sum would have satisfied the ends of justice just as well, and relieved the case of the color of oppression which it has assumed.

—White is making March, usually a dull month, one of the busiest. Through their New York connection with the New York Dry Goods Exchange they are put in the closest touch with the market, and there is not a good thing offered but what they have it, and when you trade there you are sure of getting your goods on the lowest possible basis. Walk through the store. The tickets on the goods tell the story.

—The Colonial Social Club will give a dance at T. A. B. Hall on the night of April 16th. The music will be furnished by Prof. O'Reilly. The committee in charge consists of Martin Kane, M. Higgins and J. Conroy. The admission will be thirty-five cents.

—The entertainments given yesterday by the musical clubs of Syracuse University were well patronized. That the people were pleased was evidenced by the frequent encores. The glee club's work was of a high order. The banjo and mandolin music was admirably rendered and very favorably received.—Cleveland Leader. The club will give one of their concerts in Monroe Avenue chapel next Friday evening.

THEATRICAL.

—In "The Span of Life" that comes to Music Hall next Wednesday, there are scenes for sensationalism and realism that have never been equalled in this country. The human bridge, and the approach of the big steamer through the fog at Coffin Rocks—the former is a wonderful feat of acrobatism, and the latter is the most realistic and artistic ever presented in melodrama.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. Ask your agents for tickets via this route.

CYCLING COMMENT.

James Manning, the builder, has ordered a new Sagamore wheel.

Arthur W. Vail, of LaGrande avenue, will ride a Pierce wheel this year.

F. W. Hargraves has purchased a 19-pound Cleveland track racer.

Isaac Giles, of Neuman Brothers' grocery, has ordered a Crescent racer.

Miss Etta Raybert, of North avenue, will ride a '96 Sagamore wheel this year.

Letter carrier E. T. VanWinkle purchased a new wheel yesterday and will use it in his business.

F. H. Martin, of Sandford avenue, has purchased three Sagamore wheels, two diamond frame and one ladies', from E. Frank Vail.

G. S. Martin, of The Daily Press, is contemplating the purchase of a wheel. "Gil" is as yet a novice in the art of wheeling, but ere the season closes it is safe to say he will hold his own with the best of the local riders.

The full membership of the Plainfield Wheeling Club, the new organization composed of pleasure riders from this city and the borough, met at the Columbia Cycle Academy last evening and enjoyed a club ride, accompanied by music. The members are by no means novices, and they have acquired a grace in riding that is the envy of those who don't ride. The club meets once a week until the weather will permit outdoor riding.

Among the recent purchasers of wheels from the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company are Wm. Blaker, Moses Terrill, Peter Nagel, and Miss Mowinkle. Henry Apgar has purchased a Crescent No. 1; S S. Swackhamer, a Crescent No. 4; A. M. Wilcox, a Cleveland, model 22; J. A. Robinson, a Crescent No. 1; Milton T. Bagg, of Brooklyn, a Crescent No. 3; and A. T. Brislow, a Crescent No. 4.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Wesley Abbott, of this city, is one of the most promising candidates for the freshmen crew at Yale. He is now in the first boat and competent judges say that he is very likely to become of the regular crew.

One of the most successful gymnasium classes of the Y. M. C. A. is the business men's. It has steadily grown in numbers and interest, until now the average attendance is about 14 or 15, among whom are several of the local clergymen, who take advantage of the class to better their physical condition. The class usually opens with a drill with dumb-bells, wands and Indian clubs. Then come the exercises on the horizontal and parallel bars and the German horse. Twenty minutes of a lively game of basket ball close the work of the class, and, after a bath and rub-down, the men are ready to return to their homes greatly refreshed by their hour's exercise. The class is held every Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoon, beginning at 5:30 o'clock, under the direction of Mr. Nichols, acting physical director.

BASKET BALL.

A basket ball team, composed of members of the business men's class at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, and captained by John H. Doane, is arranging a game with the regular Y. M. C. A. team for the near future.

WHIST.

The annual tournament of the New Jersey State Whist Association was begun last night at the Jersey City Club. It will continue the remainder of the week. Previous to the opening of the tournament the annual meeting and election of officers was held, with the following result: President, S. E. Otis, Orange Whist Club; vice-president, H. B. Newman, New Jersey A. C.; treasurer, S. T. Varian, Orange Whist Club; secretary, Gilbert C. Arrowsmith, Jersey City Club; executive committee, T. E. Otis, Orange Whist Club; H. B. Newman, New Jersey A. C.; George T. Rogers, Park Club, Plainfield; H. A. Dunbar, Ridgewood Club and Gilbert C. Arrowsmith, Jersey City Club; Board of Directors, H. B. Newman, New Jersey A. C.; George T. Rogers, Park Club; H. A. Dunbar, Ridgewood Club; E. C. Kelb, Elizabeth Chess and Whist Club; T. E. Otis, Orange Whist Club; C. E. Cameron, North End Club, Newark; V. S. Mulford, Montclair Club; Gilbert C. Arrowsmith, Jersey City Club; Dr. Samuel Long, Town and Gown Club, New Brunswick; C. H. Kenisston, Passaic Club; and A. C. Worth, Fanwood Whist Club. The tables were occupied last night in deciding the preliminary round for the team championship. Each club in the association was represented by its four best players. The first and second teams will meet in the final round tonight. The winning team will receive a handsome loving cup emblematic of the championship, while each member will get a prize.

The winners at last night's meeting were the Park Club four, of this city, the Newark Whisters, Jersey Athletic Club, and the Ridgeway Club. These clubs will play this evening, and then tomorrow evening the two winners will play for the championship.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

AT THE TRAPS.

The second tournament of the New Jersey Trap Shooters' League took place at Fanwood yesterday. The day was not an ideal one for the sport. A gale of wind blew during the whole day, and the glare of the sun on the snow almost blinded the shooters. Owing to these conditions it is not surprising that only six of the ten league teams put in an appearance. The clubs not showing up were the Unions, of Springfield; the Union Hills, of Weehawken; the Riversides, of Red Bank, and the Maplewoods. The latter, however, had four of their men on hand who shot in the sweepstakes. Included in the regular team match was an optional sweepstakes, in which eighteen men took part, the winners being Schortemeier, Edwards and Geoffroy, first; Keller, Wells, C. Smith, and Clark, second; Breintnall, Hebbard, and Addison, third; Manning, Hedden, Grieff, and Sickley, fourth; Astfalk and E. Collins, fifth. The scores of the day follow:

One Minute Cough Cure touches the right spot. It also touches it at the right time if you take it when you have a cough or cold. See the point? Then don't cough.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the eustachian tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube be restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

ELLEN OSBORN'S LETTER.

The Battle of the New Sleeve and the Old at Its Height.

Surrender or Compromise Sure—Short Gloves May Be Worn Again—Strap Adornment for Spring Jackets—Familiar Hat Forms.

[COPYRIGHT, 1896.]

The battle royal of the sleeves is a battle between the originators of style and their unwilling followers. The modistes of far Paris are making every endeavor to introduce the close sleeve, and everything favors them except the inborn conservatism of women, few of whom enjoy being the first by whom the new is tried. There can be but one of two results, victory or compromise. The biggest big sleeves are seeing their last days, that is certain.

There are sleeves, as I have written weeks ago, that do compromise, and some of these are not to be known at careless glance. The most of them have the tight wrinkled sleeve very nearly up to the shoulder, where it is hidden by small puffs at the top. A very beautiful gown of this order has a plain skirt of pale yellow satin, a narrow belt of orange velvet, a bodice of pale yellow chiffon over a folded corselet of yellow satin, while the yellow sleeves are arranged a la mousquetaire—I know not why the term may not fit them as well as gloves. The little round shoulder puffs of creamy lace are quite high, an elegant reminder of the hanging drapery we saw not three months ago which used to suggest the idea that it had slipped half way from the shoulder to the elbow. So change the fashion and we in them!

No suggestion of compromise mends or mars the ugliness of a huge balloon sleeve which a lady has just had made as a sort of nailing the flag to the mast against an invading mode. It is a flag, or sleeve, made of all superimposed tucks or ruffles from shoulder to elbow, the corsage opening framed with a wide black lace flounce with white lace applique. By the time Lent is over this gown will look older than it does now, while the yellow costume I have described will be in correct cut for months to come. There is wisdom in compromises.

The new sleeve slopes unwillingly at the elbow, except in extreme evening cut, and even at the wrist tends to become very long, according to the well-known rule that things never stay as they are, but get more so; and this will be the golden opportunity for wearing out any short gloves one may happen to have about. The golden age of simplicity in which the one, two or three-button glove was worn seems dawning again in the rosy east. For a time a woman's arms will look very long and lean in the new sleeve, but the cross-wrinkling will temper the gale of criticism, and in the meantime is not Lent the golden period for cultivating a plumper biceps?

If the average woman shows a willingness to compromise upon the small sleeve, or even to adopt it outright, since it is a mode that suits her well enough, on another point she is more firm—she will not take kindly to the draped skirt, and rightly, because it does not suit her well enough. The average woman is neither so tall nor so slender as the tailor's model, and has no mind to draw across her moderate stature the modest lines of self-effacement. No mode was ever so becoming to the average, loveable, plump little woman, as the plain, long skirt, and it is still not only the rule but almost the unvarying rule. The whole history of fashion seems to be an unending struggle of tall, slim women trying to force modes suitable to themselves upon short, plump women. And you can never tell when the latter are about to submit meekly, and when to rebel.

Some of the dressmakers are drawing in the seams of their sleeves by degrees, fearing lest some future wave of fancy may beat back the advancing tide. Perhaps they are wise, especially in the matter of outdoor garments. Spring raiment, like the flowers that brave the snow, makes most frequent use of sharp color contrasts and conservative cut. The newest velvet coat falls but to the hips, where it turns out jauntily. Its sleeves are of modest size and made of light, loose cloth to match the gown. And there are straps of the velvet upon the cloth sleeves and—to be perfectly fair—straps of cloth down the velvet front and about the collar. These straps of sharply different tone are most distinctive of the season. In evening gowns of the filmiest texture we have had them of velvet or even of feathers or fur. They are now to be dragged outdoors, where they are quite as appropriate.

Another device of the velvet worshipers is to make broad one's phylactery of it, to hang upon a jacket front two huge round-bottomed lapels, looking combined like a big black lung shield. This effect is relieved by elaborate embroidery upon the velvet, but the net result is not reassuring. Bodices of spring gowns have often bell-muzzled sleeves belching a smoke of lace, high ruff collars and a profusion of tabs and straps down the front most martial to behold.

Some of the spring hats are hints to recollection. One shape recalls the turban, of hateful memory, disguised though it be with a great black velvet rosette and black plume on the side. Another more coquettish shape, with veil and lace and egret has almost the form of a derby with a much curved brim tilted well over the eyes, but I do not know how to give it a name.

The strapped skirt has its dangers. Give the enemy an inch for strapping, and he may take an ell for drapery. For the moment, however, it is very smart. A stitched strap runs down the seams of many an outing skirt, especially in the canvas weaves, and at its bottom imps of frippery design it that: bows of black satin shall peep out. A curious variation is the skirt hem cut away in alternate squares like the machicolation of a castle wall, to show dainty lace and silk beneath.

The shoulder cape, either the large one entirely surrounding the figure or the tiny epaulet disguising but one shoulder is in the top of the mode. They are made of chiffon or lace-edged silk and sometimes have answering frills at elbow and wrist, each repetition a trifle smaller, like the diminuendo of an echo.

White duck or canvas, even white alpaca or serge will be much worn in the outdoor season, now not so far away.

We are still in our sequinage. All is not gold that glitters, else were there no need of boundary wars. The woman who does not glitter is not.

Many of the new jackets for spring will have huge turn-back cuffs, heavily marked with embroidery.

Some curious Chinese effects in blue and white are introduced into some of the popular spring weaves.

The medium sized hat will be in the spirit if not the letter of the '96 mode. Extreme size is discouraged, but is always admissible, except when worn at the theater, if the wearer choose.

A new wrinkle in hat braids is a fibre of wood known as "wood silk," not unlike rough tissue paper.

ROMANCE OF SLAVERY DAYS.

Mrs. Burghardt's Escape in Childhood to Warsaw and Col. Shepard's Part in It.

The late Col. Charles O. Shepard, of Warsaw, was an original abolitionist and a conspicuous figure among those who conducted the famous "underground railway," by which runaway slaves were taken to Canada or other places of refuge. Warsaw was a well-known station on the line.

One of the prettiest residences in Warsaw is the Burghardt residence. The wife of its present owner was seven years old in 1848. She was a slave child then in the District of Columbia. Her mother belonged to a resident of the district, who hired her out to a market gardener, who, with his brother, supplied the Washington maket with vegetables. The man and his brother were from Connecticut, and did not believe in slavery. One day the woman went to her employers in great distress. She had learned that her owner had sold her to a South Carolina planter, and that she was soon to be sent away with her child. The Connecticut gardener resolved to rescue the woman from her fate and preserve her to her child. They made a box to fit the running gear of a wagon in which they carted their vegetables to market. Into this they put bedding and a supply of provisions and water. Holes were bored in the bottom of the box for ventilation. One night the slave and her child were placed in the box and boards were nailed over the top. One of the brothers drove away with them, and the next morning was in Pennsylvania, where he delivered his charge to a trusted agent of the Underground railway. He was back home before the disappearance of the slave had been discovered.

The woman and her child remained in the box 22 days, when they were delivered to Col. Shepard, at Warsaw, the journey having been made by round about and isolated ways through the wilderness of Pennsylvania and New York. The slave mother never recovered from the hardships of the journey, and died soon after reaching Warsaw. Col. Shepard took charge of the child and secreted her near Arcade. Her safety being assured as time passed, she was taken by a Warsaw family, with whom she lived until she married well-to-do William Burghardt whose parents were fugitive slaves. With him she is passing her declining years in ease and comfort.—N. Y. Sun.

THE HOME-MAKING PROBLEM.

By Teaching the Girls a Reform in Housekeeping May Be Wrought.

Mrs. Etta Morse Hudders holds a new key to the domestic problem. "It is education, of course," she said the other day. "But it is the education of our future, rather than our present servants. It concerns itself with the children, those who have nothing to unlearn and no bad habits to get rid of, whose minds are still pliable and impressionable. For example, I have found it an utter impossibility to teach a full grown woman how to hold a broom properly, and not one full grown woman in a hundred holds a broom properly. She presses upon it and holds it sideways and digs the dirt up out of the carpet in a manner as revolting as it is impotent. What she should do is to hold the broom straight up and down, and sweep with short, light, quick strokes close to the carpet. It's just the same way with hundreds of other domestic details. Women are not only hopelessly ignorant of them, but apparently are incapable of mastering them unless the training begins at an early age. My plan proposes to establish cooking schools in all the thickly settled districts of the city, in which school children may be taught not only how to prepare foods in the best way, but what foods to buy in order to attain the greatest amount of nutriment at the least cost. The practical force of the plan is at once apparent, as an article on 'Our Girls in Tenement Houses,' says: 'If we begin to train little hands as well as little minds, and wait long enough, we shall have trained, if not reformed, grandmothers. The working girls' clubs are doing good work, but they do not begin on material early enough to achieve the best results. It is impossible to overestimate the value of having the earliest teaching correct.' To my mind, it is the solution of the domestic problem, which is nothing more or less than skilled service in the home.

"By 'domestic problem,' however, I do not alone mean the 'servant problem.' That is, indeed, a portentous question, but not so portentous nor so important as the domestic question. When the latter is solved it will mean reform in a hundred ways. More than half the trouble of this world comes from women not knowing how to be homekeepers — not housekeepers — though precious few of them are qualified for that — but perservers and cheerishers of the home. This is true of all classes of society, but especially of the poorer classes. Give a workingman a good dinner and insure him a quiet, comfortable, do-as-he-pleases evening, and he will be much less likely to frequent the liquor saloon. That treads close upon the heels of the temperance question, and in a much more practical manner than most answers to it do. But the wife must know how to provide and prepare the dinner, and also how to insure the evening's comfort. All this constitutes home-making, an accomplishment that is, unfortunately, much out of fashion, but which is the keystone to nothing less than national prosperity. This is the object of our plan—home-making. Of course, our great and imperative need is funds. The manufacturers have already donated enough appurtenances to equip several kitchens, but we want to employ the most competent teachers, and to do that takes money. In time, we hope that the same plan will be adopted by other cities. Every community must see the value of promoting the home spirit, and that can only be done by making homes attractive. Why, at present, the average child of the slums doesn't know the meaning of the word home."—N. Y. Sun.

AFTER A BARGAIN.

The Cloth Was Not What She Wanted, But It Was More Marked Down.

It was evident that she was troubled.

"I think I prefer this," she said, indicating a roll of cloth on the counter. "You say it has been marked down from twelve to ten cents a yard?"

"Yes, ma'am," replied the clerk.

"It's really what I want," she continued, "but this," and she indicated another roll, "has been marked down from 12½ to ten cents a yard, as I understand you."

"Yes, ma'am."

"Then I should think the other ought to be down to nine and a half cents."

"That would be cheaper than we can afford to sell it, ma'am."

"But you have taken two and a half cents off the price of the other and only two cents off this," she protested, taking up the first roll again. "That makes the other the better bargain."

"As a pure matter of cents, perhaps—"

"I'll give you nine and three-quarter cents for it."

"We cannot sell it at less than ten cents, ma'am."

"I'd rather have it than the other, but—"

"It's very cheap at ten cents a yard, ma'am."

"I suppose it is, but it isn't as good a bargain as the other."

"I can't make it any less."

"Then I suppose I will have to take the 12½ cents goods, but it seems a shame when I would rather have the other. You may give me ten yards."—Chicago Post.

An Astronomer.

Mrs. S.—By the way, I hear Jupiter—the evening star—is worth seeing just now. Can either of you girls tell me where to look for it?

Bertha—Yes; I can. It's exactly two yards and a half to the right of the Great Bear.

"Two yards and a half! What on earth do you mean?"

"Well, I've measured it carefully with my umbrella."—London Punch.

Not Laying.

"Can I get some eggs from your folks, little boy?"

"Nope, 'm; our hens have gone dry."—Judge.

do you eat iron

Some persons are always taking iron. If weak and easily exhausted; pale and without appetife; if the nervous system is weak, and sleep difficult, what do you take? Iron? But iron cannot supply food to the tissues; nor does it have any power to change the activity of unhealthy organs and bring them back to health. Cod-liver oil is what you need. The oil feeds the poorly-nourished tissues, and makes rich blood. Iodine, bromine, and other ingredients, which form part of the oil, have special power to alter unhealthy action.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, is the most palatable way to take cod-liver oil. The hypophosphites supply healthy nerve action, which controls all the processes of life.

SCOTT'S EMULSION has been indorsed by the medical profession for twenty years. (Ask your doctor.) This is because it is always palatable—always uniform—always contains the purest Norwegian Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites.

NEW DISCOVERY IN LIGHT

Solar Corona Photographed by Packer in Broad Daylight.

No Need to Wait for Eclipses—Cathode Rays from Sun Spots—Bearing Upon Our Knowledge of the Origin of Cyclones.

[COPYRIGHT, 1896.]

Close upon Prof. Roentgen's sensational discovery, D. E. Packer, of South Birmingham, England, announces another that has much similarity to it, though the cathode rays of which it treats proceed from that great reservoir of electric energy—the sun. Mr. Packer has, since July last, been photographing the sun's corona in broad daylight. The results of this photography are said to be so remarkable that Mr. Packer has withheld them from the public till this late date that he might test them thoroughly; and it is not until now, when he is convinced that his discovery is a real one, that he makes announcement of it to his brother astronomers.

The sun's corona, as is well known, can be seen only during total solar eclipses, when it shines out in soft, silvery beams all around the dark body of the moon as she crosses the sun's disk. It has been the hope of astronomers that some way of effectively blocking out the sun's glare might be discovered, so that it might be seen or photographed in ordinary times; but till recently all such efforts have met with little success. Now, apparently, Mr. Packer has succeeded.

The method is simple enough. It has long been known that thin metal foil, or metal films deposited on glass, will let strong light through, though in ordinary thicknesses the metals are extremely opaque. Packer has now discovered that the rays that do not succeed in getting through are the photographic rays, in which the corona is very rich, while the solar disk, with all its glare, has relatively few of them. He, therefore, simply photographs the sun through one of these films, and gets a picture of what no mortal eye can see—the solar corona in broad daylight.

The importance of this to astronomers may be imagined when it is known that they have not yet decided what the corona is. Probably most of them agree that it is an envelope of very thin matter surrounding the sun, and shining either by reflected light or electrically. But it is hard to find out anything about a thing that can be seen clearly only once in two or three years, and then for but a few seconds. Now, however, the corona and its changes can be observed from day to day, and probably Mr. Packer has seen more of it in the past few months than have all the other astronomers of the world since the dawn of time.

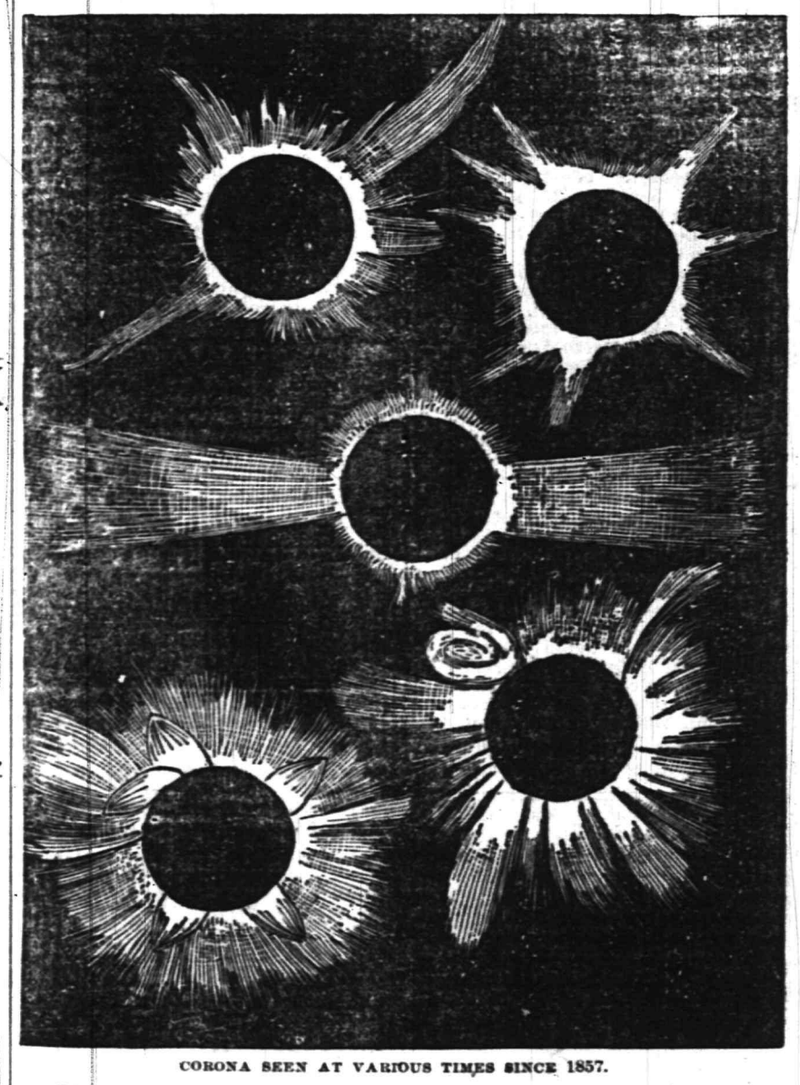
Packer's first photographs were taken with a camera of four-inch aperture, through screens of tin and lead foil and sheet copper. Later he substituted a pin-hole for the camera lens, with great advantage. He had made three or four pictures at a time, some with the lens and some with the pin-hole, and the close agreement of detail showed that the pictures were real, not the result of some reflection or refraction in his instrument. This was an important point to prove, since his brother astronomers would be sure to suggest that such remarkable results were probably unreliable.

The photographs thus taken show that the streamers of the corona are very closely connected with sun spots. Every sun spot has its own ray. Wherever a prominent ray shoots out in the corona a big sun spot is sure to be found at the bottom of it. The corona changes, too, with the number of sun spots. This accounts for the conflicting accounts of observers at eclipses, few of whom ever saw the corona of the same shape and size. The reason is now seen to be that its shape and size depend on the sun spot from which its rays spring. Many of the most prominent rays are twisted or spiral—a surprising fact, never before noted, and at present inexplicable.

But the most interesting part of the new discovery is the announcement that it definitely proves the corona to be electrical in its nature. If this is so, every sun spot must be a vast center of electrical disturbance, sending out visible rays into space. The similarity of these to the much talked-of cathode rays will at once attract attention, and the announcement of the discovery, coming as it does, close upon Prof. Roentgen's, is something of a coincidence.

Many astronomers have long believed the coronal streamers to be electric, and have compared them to those of the aurora: but while the aurora is more like the glow of a partially exhausted tube, the corona is like the cathode rays of a highly exhausted Crookes tube. Prof. Bigelow, of the weather bureau of Washington, has often pointed out the likeness between the curves of the coronal rays and those of electric or magnetic lines of force, such as those in which iron filings arrange themselves when sprinkled over a magnet. He thinks that they ultimately reach the earth, where they profoundly affect the weather, originating cyclonic storms, cold and warm waves, etc. The discovery of Mr. Packer may thus put at our disposal the machinery for studying the causes that lie at the root of all our changes of weather. We can already predict pretty well the progress of a storm when it has once started; we may now be able, by studying a series of corona photographs, to tell when and where it will start.

These experiments are strikingly illustrated by some performed recently by Dr. Pupin, of Columbia, who obtained an artificial electrical discharge, strongly resembling the corona, from an electrified brass sphere inclosed in an exhausted glass globe.



CORONA SEEN AT VARIOUS TIMES SINCE 1857.

WORSE THAN WAR.

The Trials of General Delivery in These Times of Peace.

"I tell you what, Sophia, I reckon some of the men that fit in our war an' got titles by so doin' would be glad to see the days o' battle an' bloodsheddin' back again, turrible though they was," remarked Uncle Wilson Flanders, as he laid down the evening paper and wiped his spectacles.

"Why, what cur'ous things you do say, Wilson!" returned Mrs. Flanders, calmly. "I s'pose they jest live on their pension money and rejoice in peace, most of 'em."

"No, they don't," said Mr. Flanders; "they have to work like all possessed, any number of 'em. Why, here's a man—here, jest listen to this," and the old man caught up the paper again and ran his finger down a column. "Here 'tis: 'Change in the post office. General Delivery will be sent out from the main office six times a day to all parts of the city.'

"Now, I'd jest like to have you put your mind on that, Sophia. A general—most likely wounded in his legs or somewheres—havin' to kerry letters all over the city six times a day! Why, there ain't a hoss in Creekville that has to work like that! An' I don't suppose they pay him enough to let him ride in them elekitral cars; an', anyway, I cal'late the houses is set so together—comparative—that 'twouldn't scussly pay him for gettin' off an' on 'em, which I expect is pooty dangerous business, what with sparks flyin' all round the cars, as in course they must.

"I tell you," concluded Uncle Wilson, warmly, "I shouldn't blame that man if he was to hanker for the days when he marched an' fit in the midst o' turmoil an' upheavin's. I reckon he ain't a mite more wore out when night come than he is now—not a mite!"—Youth's Companion.

MINISTERED TO POTENTATES.

Death of Dr. Fauvel, the Famous French Physician of Royalty.

Dr. Fauvel, who recently died at Paris, had the greatest practice, perhaps, in the world, of any doctor in his special branch—the treatment of throat disease. It cannot be said that he was mercenary. Specialists can ask what fees they like. Fauvel's fee for looking at a throat in his own consulting-room was 50 francs. He founded 30 years ago an infirmary, where he treated poor people for nothing. Innumerable were the singers and public speakers whose voices he saved. Among his patients were Gambetta, Queen Isabella, the emperor of Brazil, the king of Roumania, Thiers (who had an extremely delicate throat), Emperor Napoleon, Princess Clotilde, the comte de Paris and the late empress of Russia. Dr. Evans had not more first-class decorations or jeweled souvenirs sent him by royal and imperial clients. His parties were like those of the late M. Cremieux, who was advocate for most of the great singers and actors, and had them as friends to his soirees to entertain his guests.

Fauvel first studied at the Hotel Dieu, where his father, a doctor who migrated from Amiens, was head of the sanitary service. He then placed himself under Velpeau at La Charite, where he was engaged as house student. Appointed to look into the claims of the quack Vries, known as the "black doctor," Fauvel was very near being a witness for the Paris correspondent of the Daily News in an action for libel which the "black doctor" began in Paris, and threatened to take it to London. But the suit was dropped in consequence of the publicly expressed opinion of Velpeau, who said that Vries deserved the utmost penalty the law meted to homicidal impostors.

Vries was greatly patronized by the imperial court, and administered his quack medicine to a sister of the empress, to the utter ruin of her health. His great claim was to cure cancer. It was found that his treatment was violently mercurial, and that it drove the cancerous poison into the internal organs. Velpeau was too busy to show up all that had been observed of Vries' practice. He deputed Fauvel to write about it, and instructed him to be merciless. As the dean of the faculty, Tardieu was instructed from the Tuileries, where he was in favor, to do what he could for the "black doctor." Party feeling heated the affair. Every one opposed to the empire bought Fauvel's brochure, which almost brought him a fortune. He was astonished to find himself the most talked of man in Paris. Immediately he took his degree he had a large practice. His thesis on the use of the laryngoscope, and a treatise that soon followed it on throat diseases, gave him further eminence. He soon specialized his practice, but during the siege he served as surgeon major of a legion of national guards. During the illness of Emperor Frederick, Fauvel was applied to to give his opinion on a written diagnosis of the emperor's throat. He said he must see the throat himself. Empress Augusta wished him to be sent for, but she was overruled.—London News.

OLD BIRDS' NESTS HAVE VALUE.

Many Feathered Creatures Use the Same Ones Year After Year.

"That common expression for worthlessness: 'It has no more value than a last year's bird's nest,'" said a bird fancier, "is often far from correct. The majority of our birds do leave their nests after raising a brood, but many do not, and their nests are used through a succession of years. I have known some birds to use their nests ten years in succession, and so persistent are they that many times the female will return even after the nest has been robbed and the mate killed. Among these users of perennial nests are the wrens, some of the swallow family, bluebirds, great crested flycatchers, some of the owls, eagles, chickadies and some woodpeckers.

"They repair to the nest each year and often build it over. A little wren has made its nest in a hole in a tree in my garden and has occupied it for the last eight years. Each year it has piled on new stuff until the hole is nearly filled up. Some say that as soon as it becomes crowded the bird will clean it out. I know of a bluebird's nest that has been occupied for several years. It is the same female year after year, for she has two black wingfeathers and is lame.

"Birds that build in exposed positions, like hangbirds, always build anew each season, and some others build anew for every brood. Some never build; they either lay in the nests of other birds or in the sand. The eagle and the owl make a framework of sticks and slight repairs are needed. Many birds' nests that you find have never been used. For instance, the marsh wren builds several with the idea that in case of disturbance the male will attract attention to the nests other than that in which the female is brooding and so shield her from enemies."—N. Y. Press.

Justifiable Resentment.

He was a sedately dressed man, whose countenance was thoughtful and whose literary taste, as shown by the books which he carried with him to read on the train, indicated that he was a man of learned attainmens. Even the brakeman was moved to assume a respectful manner. As he leaned over him to open the window he said:

"Excuse me, professor."

The old gentleman was on his feet in an instant, his eyes flashing angrily.

"Needn't git mad," the brakeman said. "I've got ter 'ten' ter me business."

"I don't care how much you attend to your business, but don't you ever call me anything but 'mister.' Don't dare call me professor. I am neither a dancing master, a prize fighter nor a juggler, and I have therefore no right to the title!"—Washington Star.

Y. M. C. A. Directors Meet.

The directors of the Y. M. C. A. held a meeting last evening in the building. Those present were: President W. D. Murray, and A. B. Beers, E. L. Bonny, R. H. Radford, H. O. Newman, C. E Boss, S. Cahoone, G. R. Cornwell, J.W. Gavett, T.E.Hazell, A. C. LaBoyteau, H. M. Maxson and John Valiant. The religious, educational and music committees presented excellent written reports, and the baseball, entertainment and two special committees gave verbal reports. Many plans and suggestions for the advancement of the work were presented and discussed.

Reaching His Enemy.

Fair Shopper (to clerk, who has shown her every piece of goods in the store)—Well, I don't see anything here that suits me. I'll go down to Yard & Tapeley's and see what they have.

Salesman (eagerly)—Here's the card of one of their salesmen. Will you kindly get him to wait on you?

Fair Shopper (pleasantly) — Ah! a friend of yours, I suppose?

Salesman—Not at all!—Puck.

A Benefactor.

"I owe more comfort," said Mr. Johnson, "to my shoemaker than I do to any other man."

"Why, how is that," said Mr. Billings, "when you are always complaining about tight shoes?"

"Well, every evening when I take off my shoes and put on my slippers, the comfort I feel is simply intense!"

He Got It.

Cholly—Anything new by way of cocktails?

Barkeep—Yes. "The fool cocktail" is very popular just now.

Cholly—Give me one. (Drinks it.) Well, I don't see anything very stupendous about that.

Barkeep—No? Look at your check! (Cholly swoons and leaves his watch as security.)—N. Y. World.

The Principal Difference.

"I've heard your preacher half a dozen times," said the boy who was whittling a stick. "You people pay him $3,000 a year. He ain't a bit better'n our preacher, and all we pay our'n is $900."

"Yes, but our preacher says eyether and nyether, and your'n don't," replied the boy who was sharpening his knife on his shoe.—Chicago Tribune.

Stealing a Hole in the Ground.

A visitor to the Mammoth cave of Kentucky said to the guide:

"I am going to break off a little piece of a stalactite to take home as a relic."

"Not much you isn't. If every visitor were to do that it wouldn't be long before the whole cave would be toted off."—Tammany Times.

Unnecessary Excitement.

"Girls, what do you think? Blanche is going to marry a lord!" exclaimed Miss Kissam.

"Oh, tell us all about it!" exclaimed the rest of the girls in excited chorus.

"Yes, it's true. He owns a couple of houses. He's a landlord."—Town Topics.

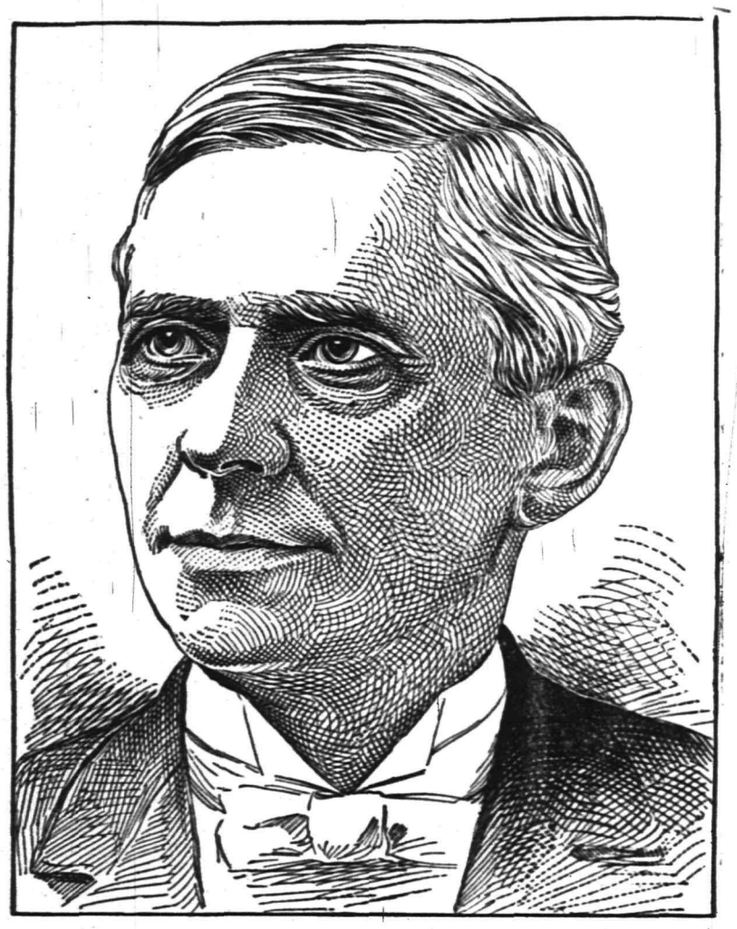
REV. ZEPHANIAH MEEK, D.D.
Eminent Methodist Divine Cured of Nerve Trouble
By Paine's Celery Compound.



Rev. Zephaniah Meek, D. D., is a household name all over the South. Since 1867 he has owned and edited the "Central Methodist," the leading paper of the Methodist Episcopal church in the South. He represented his State at the General Conference.

He was one of the Kentucky Commissioners at the Chicago Columbian Exposition. During his ministry in the South he has built and dedicated five chapels. He writes from Cattlettsburg, Ky., where his home is, as follows:

"I have used several bottles of Paine's celery compound for nervous trouble, resulting from overwork, and with immediate effect, as well as permanent benefit. It is the best nerve tonic that I have ever tried. It has also been used in my family with great benefit."

Tired-out, half sick men and women need something more than a mere rest. They need positive, unmistakable nerve food; they must have a reserve of nerve force to draw from before their heads will cease to ache and their nerves cease to tremble with neuralgia.

It is estimated that there are over ten million nerve fibres in the body.

So long as these minute tissues are kept fully nourished, one lives in blissful ignorance of any such thing as neuralgia, headaches, or even a nervous system, but let one become "run down" and the nutrition of the body get low, and every one of these myriad fibres becomes a "live wire" within the flesh. Headaches, neuralgia, rheumatism, and other forms of nervousness and debility result directly from a famished nervous system. Paine's celery compound is able to correct this faulty condition. It builds up the nervous system and sustains it. The brain at once feels the strengthening effects of the superb nutriment. There are thousands of men and women today who have been enabled to keep vigorously at work, who must have given up but for Paine's celery compound.

Nervous affections are a warning to busy people.

At the earliest sign of reduced nerve force, inability to sleep, languor, or a gloomy habit of mind, everyone should look immediately to the nutrition of their nervous system and to the purity of their bood. Paine's celery compound will attend to both of these urgent needs more thoroughly and more speedily than anything else in the world. Paine's celery compound is not to be confounded with the common preparations, the sarsaparillas and nervines. Being the discovery of a man of science, Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., L. L. D., of Dartmouth College, it has the support of the best physicians; they prescribe it universally; and the many sick persons made well by its use proves that that support is merited.

To the great majority of business men a vacation, to say nothing of three months of complete inactivity, is out of the question at this season, even when their brains demand a complete rest and their nerves ache and threaten them with prostration. Now, there are hundreds of business men and hard-worked professional men in this city in just this condition. What are they to do? Those who are tired out, "run down" and debilitated at this trying season will do well to read some of the staightforward and convincing statements from the men and women who have been cured by Paine's celery compound.

Nervous weakness vanishes before Paine's celery compound as mist before the strong, health giving rays of the sun. Convince yourself of the fact at once, if your health is at all impaired.

CLOSING DAYS AT TRENTON.

Legislature to Hold Night Sessions and Adjourn on March 25th.

The Republican Assemblymen caucused yesterday on final adjournment, and decided on Wednesday, March 25th, as the date. The Senate wants to get away on next Friday, but the House will not be ready. Night sessions will be held next week.

The House yesterday morning passed the Queen bill, which requires all national and State banks to pay taxes on their capital stock and surplus. Mr. Queen, said a member of the State Board of Taxation, was authority for the statement that under the present law eighty per cent, of the bank stock and surplus escapes taxation.

The House refused to act on McPherson's bill intended to oust State Dairy Commissioner McGuire, a Democrat, to make a place for a Republican. Mr. Skinner, a Republican leader, opposed it, and declared that he would not countenance the removal of a valuable official unless there was cause.

The hearing of the bill giving the United States Pipe Line Company right of way across the State has been postponed until Monday afternoon.

FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS.

To Meet at Trenton Next Friday and Hear Addresses and Read Papers.

A literary day of the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs will be held in Masonic Hall, Trenton, March 20th.

The morning session will be opened at 11 o'clock, with addresses by the president, Mrs. Yardley; by Mrs. Henrotin, president of the General Federation, and by presidents of other State Federations, and guests. Luncheon will be served at the Trenton House at 1 o'clock.

The afternoon session, at 2 o'clock, will be devoted to papers and discussions on the following subjects: "National Household Economic Association," by Mrs. Henrotin; "Forestry Interests in New Jersey," by Mrs. E. D. McCarthy; "Traveling Libraries," by Mrs. E. B. Horton; "Health Culture," by Mrs. Lindley; "Woman's Place Today," by Miss Beaston.

At the close of the afternoon session an informal reception will be tendered to Mrs. Henrotin. A delegation of Plainfield women will attend.

A Progressive Euchre Party.

A small, but very delightful, euchre party was given yesterday afternoon by the Misses French, daughters of John H. French, of West Seventh street. The party was in honor of Miss Edna Leonard, who is spending the winter in town. After the games, refreshments were served and prizes given the most successful players. The fortunate winners were Miss Florence Marsh, Miss Ashbridge, Miss Kate Overton, and Miss Negus, of Bound Brook.

Grace Choir to be Strengthened.

On Sunday, March 21st, the Grace P. E. church choir will be strengthened by several feminine voices, as was previously stated in The Daily Press. They will be: Altos, the Misses Tingley, Ada Clark, Olive Newell and Eva Noe; sopranos, the Misses Virginia Costelli, Mabelle Smith, Louise Egan and Mary Collier.

Changes Looked For.

There is considerable anxiety being felt on the part of some people in the borough in regard to the appointments to be made by Mayor Hegeman next Monday evening. It cannot be said that all of the appointments last year suited the boroughites and a change is being looked for.

Letter Carriers' Examination.

The United States Civil Service Commission have ordered that an examination be held by its local board in this city, of which Deputy-Postmaster John Whitenack is secretary, on Saturday, April 4th, for the grade of carriers in the local postal service. The age limitation for the examination is eighteen years.

Bishop Scarborough Coming.

Bishop Scarborough of the Northern New Jersey Diocese will visit Plainfield on the second Sunday in April. He will be present at the Grace P. E. church in the morning, at the Holy Cross church in the afternoon and St. Stephen's church in the evening.

Simon S. Hartman, of Tunnelton, West Va., has been subject to attacks of colic about once a year, and would have to call a doctor and then suffer for about twelve hours as much as some do when they die. He was taken recently just the same as at other times, and concluded to try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He says: "I took one dose of it and it gave me relief in five minutes. That is more than anything else has ever done for me. For sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

GROWING AND WORKING

THE TWO PRINCIPAL ELEMENTS OF AN ACTIVE YOUNG CHURCH BODY.

Annual Business Meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist Church Held Last Evening.

The annual meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church was held in the lecture room of the church last evening, with President John G. McLoughlin in the chair.

Secretary J. Henry Crane read the minutes of the previous meetings which were approved, after which the reports of the various committees were presented.

For the lookout committee, J. Herbert Case reported. He stated that the society had great cause for encouragement. During the year eight active members were added to the roll. Miss Alice G. Woodland, chairman of the prayer meeting committee, reported that good work had been done in that department. Miss Grace Yerkes, for the social committee, presented a report in which was stated that the committee had tried to carry out its objects. Not many socials had been held, but all had been very successful. One social was held when only eight persons were present, but a young man was quoted as saying it was the best he had ever attended.

Miss Florence I Marsh, chairman of the music committee, noted many improvements in this department. Credit was given R. W. Barnes, violinist, W. N. Runyon and Clifford Braider for substantial assistance during the year. She urged that new singing books be secured, and offered the plan of each member purchasing their own book and leaving it at the church for use.

R. W. Barnes, for the press and welcome committee, reported efficient work in this department. Henry Crane was given credit for valuable assistance. Miss Laura J. Runyon, treasurer, reported that $195.11 had been received and $194.22 expended, leaving a balance of 89 cents in the treasury.

The report of Miss Emily Coriell, corresponding secretary, was an excellent one in every respect. One of the best reports given was that of the secretary, J. Henry Crane. It set forth concisely, but in detail, what had been done during the year; and urged all to do more this coming year. The society has lost two members by death. At present the enrollment is 87 members, 72 of whom are active.

Samuel Case, chairman of the nominating committee, stated that the committee had been unable to decide on a person for president, and submitted the following nominations: Vice-president, Charles Conover; corresponding secretary, Miss Emily Coriell; recording secretary, Miss Florence I. Marsh; treasurer, Miss Susie Woodland; chairman of prayer meeting committee, Miss Grace Yerkes; lookout committee, J. Herbert Case; social committee, W. N. Runyon; music committee, L. H. Biglow, Jr.; missionary committee, Miss Alice G. Woodland; welcome and press committee, J. G. McLoughlin; flower committee, Miss Bertha Needham. The above were elected unanimously.

J. Henry Crane was then nominated for president, and received the entire vote of the society. After a few remarks by the president and ex-president, the meeting closed.

Commissioners of Deeds Appointed.

The following are the Commissioners of Deeds for Somerset county, appointed on Wednesday in joint session of the Legislature in Trenton: Bernards—John A. Whitenack, Jr., Alfred Gibb, P. C. Henry, Samuel Baldwin, George Codington; Bound Brook Borough—Robt. T. Brampton; Branchburg—J. Bradford Opie; James D. Van Derveer, Daniel Beekman; Bridgewater—Charles W. Clickener; Franklin—Alfred I. Voorhees; Hillsborough—Ellis F. Wood, Peter Sutphen; Montgomery—Edmund B. Dungan, Theo. F. Stryker; North Plainfield—Charles M. Mooney, George W. Bird, Horace J. Martin; Warren—Howard Toms.

A Mt. Pleasant Event.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Rowley, of Mt. Pleasant, have issued invitations announcing the marriage of their neice, Miss Isabelle S. Carkhuff, to Robert W. Barnes, of West Front street. The wedding will take place Thursday afternoon, March 26th, at 3 o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rowley, Mt. Pleasant.

Arranging Easter Music.

The Trinity Reformed church choir commences rehearsals for their Easter music this evening. There will be sixteen voices in the chorus. Mrs. Asa Collier, one of Plainfield's best singers, has kindly consented to render a solo.

FUNERAL OF MRS. BULLOCK.

Last Sad Obsequies Over the Remains of a Christian Woman.

Friends and relatives of the late Mrs. Lydia J. Bullock gathered at her late residence, 334 East Sixth street, yesterday afternoon to attend the funeral services that were conducted by Rev. W. R. Richards, D. D. Rev. Dr. Richards spoke very feelingly of the beautiful Christian life that had passed away and of her motherly love and kindness as exemplified in her life, typifying in a way, the motherly love of Mary for her son Jesus. He told of the beauty, sweetness and strength of her Christian character as seen by himself and others that knew her.

During the services a quartette composed of Miss Eleanor Demarest, Miss Bessie Blair, Ira W. Travell and Elmer E. Runyon, sang very expressively, "Abide With Me," and "Asleep in Jesus."

The funeral party left this morning for Fitchburg, Mass., where services will be conducted over the remains at Rollstone church by Rev. G. R. W. Scott, D. D., a former pastor. The interment will be made in the family lot at Guilford, Vermont

Three children are left to mourn the loss of a loving mother, a kind friend, a wise counselor and a Christian whose faith filled out her life. They are Miss Noel J. Bullock, principal of the Franklin School, Marion L. Bullock and William Starr Bullock.

TO REVERT TO THE STOCKHOLDERS.

The Townsend Sanitarium Company Will Not Keep the Netherwood Hotel.

The Netherwood hotel, lately called the Townsend Sanitarium, will soon revert to its original owners, owing to the inability of its recent purchasers to make the necessary payments. The Sanitarium people, however, spent several thousand dollars in making interior repairs in the structure and it has been greatly improved. J Fred MacDonald will endeavor to rent it to some hotel man for the summer season.

A Card.

If from our lips could go to each of you, our friends, the thankful feeling of our hearts for your many acts of kindness and words of loving sympathy, you would then know something of our appreciation. You have "Done unto others." May the Heavenly Father, whose disciple our darling mother was, send as kind hearts to "Do unto you" in your hour of sorrow.

Noel J. Bullock,
Mr. and Mrs. Marion L. Bullock,
William Starr Bullock.

Somerville's Post-Office Contest.

The report that Frank T. Ross has received the appointment of postmaster at Somerville, seems to be a false one, as no appointment has yet been made. The fight for the position has narrowed down to a three cornered one, the contestants being Walter Durling, James T. VanDerveer and Frank T. Ross. Let the fight be a fair and open one, with no mud-slinging, as some have attempted to do.—Somerville Democrat.

Recruiting for the New Movement.

John A. Hull, of 129 Grove street, desires The Daily Press to state that he has been authorized by Ballington to receive names and subscriptions for the recruiting of the Defenders League, the new auxiliary. Anyone desiring information in regard to the organization can obtain it by seeing him any evening or by writing to him at the above address. He reports great success in recruiting for this new society.

Affiliated With Other Clubs.

The Woman's Parliamentary Club at its meeting March 12th, joined the organization of the "American Institute of Civics." This action will add the systematic study and reporting of current events, to the present study of parliamentary law and usage. At this meeting also the club was received into the State Federation of Clubs, and several of its members will attend the next Federation meeting in Trenton.

Odd Cause of Death.

Mrs. Bargos, of Cranford, whose house was struck by lightning and burned last Saturday, died Thursday of pneumonia contracted by exposure when carried from her burning dwelling. She was a widow, forty-three years old.

All last winter Mr. Geo. A. Mills, of Labanon, Conn., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. At times it was so severe that he could not stand up straight, but was drawn over on one side. "I tried different remedies without receiving relief," he says, "until about six months ago I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. After using it for three days my rheumatism was gone and has not returned since. For sale by Reynold's Pharmacy, Park and North avenue. T. S Armstrong, Manager.

ALL ABOUT THE ARMENIANS.

Christian Endeavorers Hear Papers About These Much-Talked-of-People.

The subject of the missionary meeting held last night by the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the Park Avenue Baptist Church was "Armenia and the Armenians," and the service proved a very interesting and instructive one. The meeting was led by Miss Adelaide Runyon, and a carefully prepared program was given. The first paper was read by Miss Emma Virginia Fish, who told in a very interesting manner of the people and their mode of life. "Their religion" was the subject of a short talk by William Stimpson, who traced the ecclesiastical history of the Armenians back to very early times, and then described the present state of the church and the work of the missionaries. Wesley Brokaw read the closing paper, describing "The present situation," vividly picturing the sorrowful condition of the people, and telling of the great need for the doing of relief work among them. At the close of each paper, short items on the same subject were read by members of the society.

A quartette, "Over the Ocean Wave" and a tenor solo with quartette chorus "Send the Light," were sung by four members of the Young People's Society, Mrs. Wheaton S. Lowry, Miss Adelaide Runyon, William Stimpson and Wesley Brokaw.

PASSING OF THE TALMAGES.

Dan Talmage Was a Well-Known Man in This State.

The recent failure of Dan Talmage's Sons, the large rice traders, is not only a financial calamity, but a matter of more than passing interest to New Jersey, Dan Talmage lived at Bound Brook, in Somerset county. He was a Democrat of the most pronounced type during the war, and barely escaped spending a few days in Fort Lafayette because of his utterances He started the rice business and made money, and on his death left it to his sons. John F. Talmage, the eldest, was head of the firm. They are gentlemen of the highest character and all who know them personally will regret the business misfortunes which have overtaken them. The Dan Talmage homestead at Bound Brook, a very beautiful place known as "The Evergreens," is now occupied by Mr. George LaMonte, who once ran for governor of New Jersey on the Prohibition ticket, and who has been known for many years past as having one of the finest herds of Guernsey cattle in the State.—Elizabeth Journal.

DRAGGED BY HER PONIES.

Narrow Escape of a Westfield Girl While Out Driving.

While out riding in her sleigh drawn by her team of ponies, yesterday afternoon, Miss Nellie Drake, of Westfield had a narrow escape from injury. She had just passed under the railroad bridge, to the west of the Westfield station, when the driving seat slipped from its position and she was thrown forward. She was caught in the sleigh and reins and dragged for some distance. James Fogarty, of Westfield, and Dr. J. H. Lawlor saw the accident happen and ran after the ponies. Mr. Fogarty caught them, while Dr. Lawlor extricated Miss Drake from her perilous position She was not injured, but somewhat unnerved by the shock.

Miss Drake is the daughter of Alfred Drake, a prominent citizen of Westfield, and attends school at the Seminary in this city.

Verdict for the Plaintiff.

The case of Coddington against Giddis, in tort, came up this morning before Justice Crosley. The plaintiff was represented by Assemblyman W. R. Codington, and the defendant by Lawyer Fred Pope, of Somerville. It appears that Giddis was acting as an agent, and was given money by Coddington to make a purchase for him, which the latter claims he did not, hence the suit for damages. After the hearing the plaintiff was awarded $40 and costs.

A Dunellenite Succumbs.

With uncertain steps and muddled brain, Charles Nolde, of Dunellen, started to make his way homeward after a visit to this city last night. He reached the North Avenue station but Patrolman Cooney say him and, doubting his ability to reach home safely, escorted him to jail to spend the night. This morning he was arraigned before City Judge DeMeza on the charge of being drunk. The Judge suspended sentence on him.

Looks Like Business.

The contractors for the street railway extension are distributing rails along East and West Fourth street. This certainly looks like business.

—The Boys' Brigade, of the First Baptist church, will hold a meeting tonight for drill.

EDITOR LANE'S STORY.

THE SUMMIT RECORD MAN TELLS WHY HE LOST HIS POSITION.

Intimates That it Was Because He Hustled for His Father-in-law in the Recent Senatorial Contest in Kentucky.

Thomas F. Lane returned to Summit yesterday morning after a visit of four weeks to Frankfort, Ky. In response to an inquiry of the Newark News as to his removal as Chief of Division in the Treasury Department at Washington, Mr. Lane said:

"I have no disposition to enter upon a discussion of the reasons for my removal. If Mr. Carlisle's statement of them satisfies him they ought to satisfy me, as I do not believe public office is a hereditary right or traditional privilege and I have at all times believed that no man should hold office against the desire of the official who appointed him.

"So far as the case appears on the surface, however," continued Mr. Lane, "I obtained permission in October for a trip to Europe. An important libel suit against me was unexpectedly ordered to trial and I remained to defend it. My original absence was to be with pay. In January I went to Europe without pay and at a suitable opportunity the Secretary removed me. When I returned in February the Secretary offered to withdraw the order of removal and accept my resignation. This, however, I did not choose to assent to as I preferred to let the order of removal stand My removal took place on January 21st, nearly two months ago."

The date of Mr. Lane's removal was the day the first ballot was taken in the Kentucky Legislature for United States Senator, of which Secretary Carlisle received the votes of three bolting Democrats, who refused to vote for Senator Blackburn, Mr. Lane's father-in law.

Mr. Lane sailed for Europe this morning.

PLEASANT SOCIAL.

Mrs. Henry DeMott Entertained Missionary Workers of Grace M. E. Church.

A successful social was enjoyed last evening at the home of Mr. and and Mrs. Henry DeMott on Somerset street, under the auspices of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of Grace M. E. church.

The programme was as follows: Reading, Miss Emma Stevens; vocal solo, Miss Alice DeMott; piano solo, Miss Libby Joseph; vocal solos, Miss Lizzie Hoagland and Miss Belle DeMott; reading, Miss Taft; vocal selection, Miss Edith Kline, Misses Alice and Jennie DeMott; vocal duett, Mrs. Elmer Winckler and Miss Libby Joseph; vocal solo, Miss Kizzie DeMott.

The collection for the society amounted to $33.50.

Those present then joined in playing the latest games, after which refreshments were served by the following committee: Mrs. William Lunger, Mrs. Henry DeMott, Mrs Andrew Lutkins, Miss Van Cleef and Mrs. Herbert Randolph.

A Christian Endeavor Social.

A delightful social was given last evening in the parlors of the First Presbyterian church by the Christian Endeavor Society of the church. The programme was an informal one and consisted of a piano duet by Miss Petrie and Mrs. Remson and a vocal solo by Miss Charlotte Messersmith. Games and refreshments helped to make the time pass quickly, while conversation filled in the spare moments. The sociable was well attended and was a very pleasant affair. The social committee of the Christian Endeavor Society was in charge.

To Branch Out Extensively.

The well known and progressive firm of Marsh, Ayres & Co., who have been located at 141 East Front street for some years past, have rented the store on Park avenue now occupied by G. Q. Packer, the furniture dealer, and will occupy it as their paint store about April 1st. The firm will make extensive additions to their stock after the removal, which will consist of fabrics for decorations in Cario lattice, yacht canvas and plain, tinted and figured burlaps.

Young Men's Association Meets.

A special business meeting of the Young Men's Association of Monroe Avenue chapel was held last evening, and the reports of the different committees were received. Rev. W. C. O'Donnell and James McGee were appointed a committee to receive the Syracuse University Glee, Banjo and Mandolin Club. Already 400 tickets have been put out for the concert and over half of them were reported sold.

—An eastbound train bearing eight breech-loading rifles, each about thirty five feet long, passed through here about 10:30 o'clock this morning.

A LEAP YEAR SURPRISE.

A Novel Social Event Arranged For Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Anthony.

One of the most novel events of the season was the leap year surprise party given to E. E Anthony, of Westervelt avenue, last evening It was arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Anthony's lady friends, and they invited their gentlemen friends. At the proper time they went after the gentlemen and provided them with boquets, consisting of a numerous variety of vegetables.

They met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Love, on East Front street, and proceeded to the home of Mr. Anthony. When they entered the house, the latter was thoroughly overcome. The evening was one of unbounded pleasure to all and leap year games were a feature of the event.

The refreshments were furnished by the gentlemen and were served during the evening. The latter were obliged to act the part of ladies and they carried their parts exceedingly well. Those present were: the Misses VanAlstyne, W. F. Dunn. A. Holder, J. Holder, Vail, Stack, Sheppard, Crawford, Ross, Anthony. Mrs. Love, and Messrs. VanFleet, L. Holder, Love, Sheppard. Reed, Fenner, L. Wilson, M. Wilson, Crosson, Ross, Anthony. and S. E. Dunn, Mrs. A. J. Moore, Miss Martha Anothony, Miss May Anthony.

After the affair the ladies escorted the gentlemen to their homes. The whole event was a great success and it is likely will be repeated.

CHANGES IN TRAIN SCHEDULE.

New Time Table Goes Into Effect on the Jersey Central Tomorrow.

Extensive changes will be made in the train schedule of the Jersey Central railroad tomorrow. The express train now leaving at 7:53 a. m. for New York, will leave at its old time, 7:58, and the 8:27 express at 8:30. The other changes of New York trains are as follows: 9:32 a. m. to 9:37, 10:59 a. m. to 11:12, 12:06 p. m. to 12:10, 1:18 p. m. to 1:16, 5:24 p. m. to 5:32. A train leaving at 9:06 a. m. and 5:54 p. m. have been put on for New York.

The changes in trains leaving for Somerville are as follows: 5:05 p. m. to 5:03, and 5:14 p. m. to 5:15.

The Easton train changes are as follows: 5:05 p. m. to 4:48; the 5:14 p. m. has been abandoned.

Royal Blue Line changes to Philadelphia are as follows: 6:45 p. m. to 6:48. A new train at 10:03 p. m, has been put on.

The new trains out of New York for Plainfield are 9:06 p. m. week days, and 3:17 p. m. Sundays

Funeral of John S. Johnson.

The funeral services of the late John S. Johnson was held from the house, 508 Park avenue, at 2:30 yesterday afternoon. Rev. J. W. Richardson officiated and spoke words of comfort to the bereaved ones. The floral tributes consisted of a bunch of lilies and a bouquet of roses. The pall-bearers were five grandsons and one nephew, as follows: Clarence Johnson, John Johnson, Alex Johnson, Harry Johnson, Herbert Johnson and Wm. Crawford. Interment was in Samptown cemetery.

A Sleigh Ride on Bare Roads.

G.W. Parsell of Springfield, brought a box sleigh load of twenty young people to Plainfield last night. The roads were in worse condition than they anticipated, and it took over two hours to reach Plainfield. They arrived here soon after 11 o'clock and gave the nearly exhausted horses a rest, while the young people visited friends. They returned about 1 o'clock. They found the roads nearly bare all the way, and the sleigh dragged on the dirt part of the way.

A Correction.

It is quite a common failing for people to use the incorrect word "preventative" for the proper word "preventive," which prompts us to remark that the surest preventive to permanent defects of vision is timely examination of the eyes. Such examinations, together with expert advice as to treatment of the eyes, are free to you at Collier's, 103 Park avenue.

Capitalists Here.

A meeting of New York, Philadelphia and Plainfield capitalists was held at the Hotel Grenada this afternoon, when the garbage cremating process of Seymour G. Smith, of this city, was considered and the advisibility of pushing it on the market considered.

Kicked His Driver.

Scipio Welling, the colored driver for Neuman Bros, was kicked by a horse he was driving on Crescent avenue this morning, and had to be taken home in a hack. The horse was one recently purchased.

PLAY CHESS BY CABLE.

Opening Day of the Great International Contest.

NO GAMES HAVE BEEN DECIDED YET.

A Large Gathering Present at Both Ends of the Cable—Pillsbury Throws Away His Chances of Winning with Victory in Sight.

New York, March 14.—The opening day of the international chess match between the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland against an American team, a contest which was played on eight boards, the moves being forwarded between this and the British end by cable, the length of the wire being 3,483 miles, was the biggest chess spectacle ever shown in this country. The handsome and beautifully decorated hall in the Bank building at Court and Remsen streets, Brooklyn, was the scene of action in this country. Over 1,500 spectators, including an extraordinary large number of ladies, were present during the fight. While the players were sitting on a large platform with their boards and men placed on tables in front of them, the moves made on these boards were repeated on very large giant boards which were suspended on the walls of the hall, and every spectator present had a chance of seeing the games at every stage during the progress of the fight. Most interest as a matter of course centered in the games played by Pillsbury and Showalter. It is a pity that Pillsbury threw away his chances of winning when he had the victory within easy grasp. Showalter, however, is surely going to win his game to-day when play is resumed.

Details of the Play.

First table—Pillsbury (A) vs. Blackburne (B)—queen's gambit. Thirty-five moves. Pillsbury got the best of the game in the opening and middle game and but for an ill-considered move might have won straight out. As it was he had to give up a piece and he will probably lose to-day. Second table—Burn (B) vs. Showalter (A)—queen's gambit declined. Thirty-five moves. Showalter excelled in this game by brilliant and dashing tactics, and, barring accident, he will win to-day. Third table—Burille (A) vs. Bird (B)—P-Q 4 opening. Forty moves. This was a pretty game and full of interest, because of Bird's irregular style of play. At the call of time the game looked even. Fourth table—Tinsley (B) vs. Barry (A)—queen's gambit declined. Twenty-nine moves. This game was evenly conducted throughout, the positions being equal at adjournment last night. At the fifth table Hymes (A) and Lockwood (B) quit with honors easy, as did also Mills (B) and Hodges (A) at table six and Delmar (A) and Atkins (B) at table seven. Jackson (B) and Baird (A) who occupied table eight played a brilliant game, but Baird fell back greatly at the close and will probably lose to-day.

GREAT INTEREST IN LONDON.

Britishers Express Much Admiration for the Play of Americans.

London, March 14.—The British team, which did duty in the international chess match between the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland on the one side, and the United States of America on the other, conducted their games in the Pillar hall of the Cannon street hotel in this city yesterday. The affair created the greatest interest and no end of enthusiasm. At about 2 o'clock the hall began to fill with the most notable persons known in metropolitan chess circles, the arrangements being supervised by Sir George Newnes, president of the British Chess club. Among those present were the president of the City Chess club, a good many officials of the Metropolitan, Bohemian and St. George's and other chess clubs. The friendly greeting sent over by the American team from the Brooklyn Chess club was very cordially received and much applauded when read by Sir George Newnes to a brilliant assemblage of chess experts. Sir George Newnes also annonnced that owing to an indisposition of the British player, E. O. Jones, E. M. Jackson would take his place on the team. Before the beginning of the match the general opinion prevailed here that the American team was decidedly stronger than the British.

Admiration for American Players.

The admiration for Showalter's brilliant and dashing attack in his game against Burn was generally shown and no end of flattering remarks were made by the spectators about the Kentuckian. Pillsbury, too, had Blackburne at his mercy and Gunsberg, who was one of those present, remarked to some other by-standers that Pillsbury had an easy win. The spectators were all the more surprised when Pillsbury later lost a most valuable piece and general regret was prevailing at this accident. Jackson's play was very much appreciated by his many friends, but speaking generally, the Britishers found it very hard work indeed to cope with the American players and they were glad when time was called half an hour earlier than originally agreed upon. Among the numerous spectators was the lord chief justice.

Hartford, March 14.—A libel has been filed in the United States district court on the torpedo boat Ericsson by Austin Williams, a seaman of New London. He claims $120 as wages due.

ROUGH VOYAGE AT SEA.

The Tramp Steamship Ithamo Puts into Port at New York for Repairs.

New York, March 14.—The British tramp steamer Ithamo, Capt. Wigzell, put into this port last evening in a battered and leaky condition, the result of encounters with terrific gales off the coast. The steamer left Baltimore on March 5 with a full cargo of Indian corn for Londonderry, Ireland. During the first days of the voyage good weather prevailed. On the 7th the wind increased to a gale and continued blowing during the 7th and 8th, until it assumed hurricane force. Capt. Wigzell was obliged to heave to during the afternoon of the 8th. Abont 5 p. m. an enormous sea boarded the steamer over the stern smashing the ventilators and breaking in No. 3 hatch, flooding the cabin and after-hold. The waves continued to pour over the vessel fore and aft, causing her to labor and strain terribly. The vessel was at this time in lat. 39, long. 63. The seas tore away everything movable about the decks and disabled the hand-steering gear, filling the cabin with three feet of water. The Ithamo continued to labor and plunge heavily throughout the night of the 8th. At 9 p. m. another enormous sea broke over the bows, breaking the steel bulkhead under the awning, or hurricane deck, twenty-seven planks of which deck were torn up and the No. 1 hatch stove in, filling the fore hold. Rails and ventilators were carried away and the steamer was flooded between decks, doing other serious damage. About 560 bags of corn were thrown over the side to permit the pumps to free the fore hold. The gale continued to blow with unabateing fury for thirty-six hours from the W. N. W. When moderating the officers were enabled to investigate the damages, which were so extensive that it was deemed best to shape the vessel's course for New York, where she arrived, passing Sandy Hook at 5 p. m. Capt. Wigzell says that a greater part of the cargo is damaged and will probably be discharged.

FIGHT NOT OVER YET.

Opponents of the Raines Bill Endeavoring To Secure Its Veto.

Albany, March 14.—Mayor John Boyd Thatcher of Albany is putting forth strenuous efforts to prevent Gov. Morton from signing the Raines bill, and he has addressed telegrams to the mayors of the various cities in this state urging them to appeal to the governor that the bill be referred to the various cities for public hearings and action by the various cities before he attaches his signature and makes the bill a law. Gov. Morton has ten days in which to sign or veto the bill. As two Sundays are not counted he need not act until the 25th inst., the day after the state convention of the republicans meets. Statutory Revision Commissioner Lincoln, who also acts as the governor's legal adviser, said that it would take several days to examine the constitution and laws so as to determine whether or not the Raines bill must be sent to all the cities affected by it. There are very grave doubts at present, he said, concerning the constitutionality of allowing it to be signed without first sending it to the cities for the approval of the local authorities. If it should be decided that the bill must be sent to the mayors of the cities it would certainly be returned disapproved, which would mean its defeat, as it would have to run the gauntlets of both houses again. Should this be attempted, the opposition could put up a stiffer fight, and there would be no early adjournment, even if the bill went through again. The democrats declare that the bill was passed in an unconstitutional session of the assembly and it is understood they have engaged several eminent lawyers to look up the question.

FOR MURDERING WADDELL.

Tom O'Brien, the American Bunco-Steerer, on Trial in Paris.

Paris, March 14.—The trial of Tom O'Brien, an American bunco-steerer and all round swindler, for the murder of "Kid" Waddell, another American crook, is now being conducted here. In March last O'Brien shot Waddell at the Northern railway station in this city. Waddell was standing in the station when he was approached by O'Brien, who drew a revolver and fired several shots at him, all of them taking effect. Waddell fell to the floor and was thence removed to a hospital, where he subsequently died.

Unequal to Family Duties--No Appetite

Hood's Sarsaparilla Gave Strength and Courage to Work.

"I was in such condition I could not walk even about the house to attend to household duties and care for my children and family. I did not have the strength of a child. I was treated by several physicians, who pronounced my trouble Scrofula and Female Weakness. I could eat only a slice of bread and drink a cup of tea, three times a day. Sometimes I could stand a soft boiled egg for dinner. I became reduced to skin and bones; at last they had to draw me about the house seated in a rocking chair. I was in a terrible state when my husband, having noticed advertisements of Hood's

Take In the Spring

Dr. Greene's Nervura

Blood and Nerve Remedy.

Guaranteed Purely Vegetable and Harmless.
It is the most Perfect Spring Medicine in the World.
The Discovery and Prescription of a Physician.

MRS. ADDIE I. CRAGG.

IT IS TRUE!

You Can Certainly Be Cured.

Here is the proof and evidence to perfectly settle all doubt.

Read the wonderful cure of Mrs. Addie I. Cragg, of 101 North Portland Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

"I had poor health for several years. Have been under the treatment of many doctors, but they did me no good. The more medicine I took the weaker I grew; was so bad at last that I could not eat or sleep, and had a cough that almost racked me to pieces. I had pains in my chest, which made breathing very difficult.

"As my father, brother, and sister had died with consumption, I thought my time had come. With much pleasure and gratitude I can now say that I have been entirely cured of my troubles by Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy.

"My appetite is excellent, food digests easily, sleep is refreshing, and altogether I feel restored to health once more.

"I most earnestly recommend Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy to all who are afflicted with obstinate chronic, nervous, or painful diseases. I have recommended it to many sufferers, and am pleased to say that it has given general satisfaction."

Dr. Greene's Nervura Blood and Nerve Remedy Cured Mrs. Cragg; It Will Cure You.

One of the Most Popular G. A. R. Veterans in the Country.

A wonderful thing and we know it to be true.

This is the experience of Past Commander David Noyes of Manchester, N. J. His story is interesting.

"For over 27 years, since the close of the late war, I suffered from dyspepsia, paid out hundreds of dollars, but got no relief.

"I suffered from heart disease for six years, was carried out of church and from m. work three times, and for the past two years was unable to do any work whatever.

HON. DAVID NOYES.

"I was told by my physician that I never could get well.

"I was also paralyzed on the right side from my hip down, and suffered severely with lumbago and a trembling of the hands.

"I took Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and feel entirely cured of all these troubles, and feel like a well man.

"I could not sleep on my right side for years, now I can sleep well and eat anything.

"It has proved to be a wonderful remedy for me, and I am a living witness to testify to the truth of my statement. It is the grandest medicine ever made, and all my friends are amazed at the cure."

A Strange Experience.

One can scarcely credit it.

Almost Miraculous

"I began at first having trembling feelings of the heart," said Mrs. H. E. Skillin, of East North Yarmouth, Me., "and was very bad at times. Any little excitement would make it worse. I became languid, and felt constantly tired and worn, lost all my natural energy and ambition, and was consequently weak and nervous.

"Indeed I was so nervous at times I could not bear to hear anyone rock a chair. I had numbness in my right hand so it would seem apparently dead; and when it would come to its feeling there would be a deathly feeling at my stomach. I had a dull, tired feeling in my head.

"It was evident that there was a terrible diseased condition of my nerves and system which required immediate attention. I at once began taking Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and have taken four bottles.

"I now have a good appetite and have grown strong and recovered my old-time energy and ambition. I do not feel at all nervous. The dull feeling in my head is all gone, and I really feel as well as I have for a number of years.

"I consider these results remarkable in the comparatively short time I have been taking the remedy, and I cannot speak too highly of the good that it has done me.

"I hope others affected with nervous or chronic diseases will use Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, for after what it has done in my case it will surely cure them."

IN ROYAL ARCHIVES

The Venezuelan Commission Will Search for Ancient Documents.

NECESSARY FOR A CLEAR DECISION

Members of the Commission or Their Secretary To Visit Madrid and The Hague To Look Up Data Bearing on the Boundary Dispute.

Washington, March 14.—The Venezuelan commission at its regular meeting yesterday afternoon, with all the members present, virtually reached the conclusion that the main points at issue in the dispute hinged on documents lying in the royal archives of Spain and Holland, and perhaps some other countries, and that while such documents would probably be quoted by each of the disputants in support of the contradictory claims presented, the duty would devolve on the commission not only to verify by actual examination all such citations, but, if practicable, to develop contemporary documents which might throw strong side lights upon the evidence submitted. While definite action was postponed until the full British and Venezuelan cases shall have been formally brought under consideration there remains no doubt that some of the commissioners, or, at all events, the secretary of the commission, Malat-Prevost, and agents under his direction, will soon be sent to Madrid and The Hague. It is explained that this determination is not due to the alleged discovery of misquotations in decrees and treaties already in the commission's possession, but from the conviction that the final decision of the commission ought not to be open to any attack as to the inconclusiveness of the pivotal evidence upon which such decision will in all probability be found to depend.

Personal Examination Necessary.

In the preliminary investigation of the commission they have been confronted with numerous diametrically conflicting maps and translations. While geographical discrepancies are within the power of the commission to harmonize through the enormous mass of corroborative charts it commands, the comparative indecipherability and partial illegibility of royal decrees are thought to be matters which necessitate personal and expert examination. The commission expects to be in possession of the British blue book as well as the greater part of Venezuela's case early next week and in view of this anticipation, Mr. Coudert and President Gilman, who have hitherto spent little time in Washington, will remain here for the present for daily meetings at which the weighing and comparison of evidence will be prosecuted continuously. No one of the commissioners has yet had an opportunity to carefully examine the British case, as the only available copy that has reached them was one of the advanced edition sent by Ambassador Bayard to the state department, which may contain typographical or other errors incident to hasty preparation. The regular copies for the commission will arrive here in all probability this evening or Monday next. While access to the state department copy has been allowed, there has been no opportunity to examine it fully.

PLACE FOR BALLINGTON BOOTH

Efforts To Have Him Take Charge of the National Gospel Union.

Washington, March 14.—Negotiations have been set on foot looking to the selection of Ballington Booth to take charge of the National Gospel Union mission, which has its headquarters in this city. Major Hilton, the national organizer of the mission, is in communication with Mr. Booth, and as the work of the mission is so nearly in the line of the work the Booths have mapped out for themselves, the supporters of the mission believe that his acceptance of the place would result in good. It is purely an American movement, and Mr. Booth could consistently take charge of it without antagonizing the work of the Salvation army.

New Tonnage Bill.

Washington, March 14.—The new tonnage tax bill passed by the house, which has also been favorably reported by the senate in a similar shape, reduces by one-third the tonnage taxes imposed on American and foreign vessels entering from North American, West Indian and Hawaiian ports and ports on the Gulf of Mexico. It also requires all vessels coming from Germany, the Netherlands and a few minor ports to pay regular tonnage taxes and restores equality of tonnage taxation.

A Woman's Awful Suicide.

Paulsboro, N. J., March 14.—Mrs. Joseph Featherer, a middle-aged woman, living at Bridgeport, near here, committed suicide yesterday by burning herself to death. She saturated her clothing with kerosene and then set herself afire. Before help came the woman was so badly burned that she died shortly afterward. Insanity is supposed to have been the cause.

"Poorbox Thief" Commits Suicide.

Boston, March 14.—It has just been made known to the public that Louis Morphy, the old Frenchmen, known throughout the country as the "Poorbox Thief," committed suicide in the South Boston house of correction February 17. He was serving a sentence for robbing the poorbox at the cathedral on Washington street.

RARE OLD STAMPS.

Big Prices Realized at the Auction Sale in Boston.

Boston, March 14.—Two little pieces of paper, which, when originally issued by the Canadian government were valued at twelve pence each, were sold at auction in this city for $1,520. The price paid was the largest given for any single lot of stamps in the three days' sale which closed last night. All Canadian stamps of the issue of 1851 are rare, but these two twelve pence stamps are believed to be the only unused ones of the kind printed on laid paper. The stamps were purchased by Mr. Needham of Hamilton, Ont., who sold these stamps to the company holding the auction and got $1,500 for them. Mr. Needham also bought a number of other Canadian stamps at prices ranging from $10 to $125. A 5-cent St. Louis 1845-46, which is a postmasters' provisional issue, sold for $251, while a 10-cent specimen of the same date brought $105. United States government issues sold from $90 down. The former price was paid for an 1851-56 30-cent, unperforated, unused, which is one of the rarest of United States stamps.

TALK OF LYNCHING.

John Wayne, One of the Powell Murderers, Confesses.

Hempstead, N. Y., March 14.—John Wayne, one of the Powell murderers, made a confession before a Pinkerton detective, Detective Cavanagh of Long Island City, and others, in the Queens county jail yesterday afternoon. He stated that he and Arthur Mayhew killed Powell with a piece of rock placed in a stocking. The greatest excitement prevailed in Hempstead when the fact of the confession became known. Many threats were uttered of lynching the negroes when they are brought to Hempstead for the coroner's jury next Wednesday night.

To Reduce Its Capital Stock.

Albany, March 14.—The Genesee Fruit company of Rochester has filed with the secretary of state a certificate of reduction of its capital stock from $1,000,000 to $400,000. The amount of the capital of the company actually paid in is $1,020,000 and the debts and liabilities are $234,354.

✲ Starvation

is daily the cause of death on every side, not from inability to get food, but from the impossibility, caused by disease to assimilate it. Everyone has marked the continual losing of flesh and daily wasting away of some beloved friend. Call the disease what name you will, the fact remains that the ultimate end has been due to starvation. Don't wait too long, give the sufferer

Bovinine

It is not a medicine, but a food product, a powerful concentration into small bulk of the vital elements of lean beef, every bit of the nutritive qualities of which have been retained, on account of the special cold process by which it is prepared. It creates new red blood corpuscles, increases weight, builds flesh and nerve tissue, and strengthening the life-maintaining organs of the body, enables them to perform their functions naturally and throw off disease—ask your doctor, he will tell you this is so.

March 14—Lecture on Bicycling in Casino for Grace Church Guild.

March 17—Concert in Y. M. C. A. Hall by Amphion Ladies' Mandolin and Vocal Quartette.

The Assembly has non-concurred in an adverse report by the committee on railroads and canals on the bill providing that trolley companies shall furnish waiting-rooms at all transfer stations in cities.

The Raines license bill in New York State having been made a party measure in the Legislature, there is but little doubt but what Governor Morton will sign it. It is a bitter pill for Republicans in the big cities, however.

The Assembly has passed the bill requiring all trolley cars to have vestibuled platforms, and thereby did a humane act. The motorman should be protected from the wild winds of winter and the hot rays of Old Sol in the summer.

The Press is glad to learn that the Board of Trade is waking up and talking of indulging in a subscription dinner. It's a capital idea. Keep at it, gentlemen. There is lots of material to talk about profitably in the after-dinner toasts.

The bills fathered by Assemblyman Reed may not have nine lives, but they certainly have more than one. The yellow envelope bill, which was thought to have met its fate in the Senate's adverse vote on Thursday, has been ordered reconsidered.

There is no likelihood that the Senate will pass Assemblyman Walling's bill reducing by 25 per cent all State salaries over $3,000. Some salaries are too high, but whatever scaling down is done should be governed by a consideration of the work and the responsibilities involved.—Tribune.

Wednesday, March 25th, was agreed upon at an Assembly conference yesterday afternoon for sine die adjournment, and Senator Voorhees says the Senate will probably concur. Night sessions will be held by the House Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, and the adjournment until Monday will follow in order to give the Borough Commission an opportunity to make a report.

Next week the Joint Committee on the Revision of Borough Acts, of which Assemblyman Reed is a member, and who have been hard at work and will submit schemes to the Legislature whereby will be rendered possible the rehabilitation of more than one hundred boroughs in this State which were recently declared by the Appellate Court to be without any legal existence. The plan contemplates giving all boroughs now in existence a de facto government by means of a general law.

James E. Martine is not dismayed by the apparent indifference of William C. Whitney towards accepting the candidacy for the Democratic nomination of President. The Farmer Orator is a man who always looks at the bright side of things, but uses his shrewd political intuition in forming opinions. Mr. Martine is confident that Whitney will be the nominee of the National Convention. Concerning Mr. Whitney's position the Newark News published the following yesterday:

A gentleman, who enjoys the friendship of William C. Whitney, E. C. Benedict and others in that coterie, has told The News correspondent that from recent conversations with several of the coterie—not including Whitney—he is of opinion that Whitney will be put forward at the last moment as the administration and New York man for the Chicago nomination. He says that Whitney will lie very low till then. But he says that there is very little doubt of his not only being put forward, but of his getting the nomination. This is interesting because it shows what some of Whitney's close friends are thinking of.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND.

Mrs. J. A. Sample Owes Her Strength to This, the Best of All Remedies.

For the unfortunates who lie awake staring at the ceilings and counting the strokes of the clock, every sleepless night is an eternity.

Mrs. J. A. Sample of 1558 Broadway, New York City, was afflicted with insomnia until her nerves were on the verge of prostration. She thinks her condition was due to indigestion. Here is what Mrs. Sample says:

"I have used Paine's celery compound with marked and decided benefit. It is especially useful in insomnia, arising from indigestion and poorly nourished nerves.

"I should add that my granddaughter, Vera Hafleigh, was so thin and puny at the age of ten as to cause us the greatest anxiety We had no difficulty in inducing her to take Paine's celery compound. Today the roses bloom in her cheeks, and I never saw a healthier, stronger child than Paine's celery compound has made her."

The brain is the centre of the nervous system. Sleep alone rests this vital organ, together with the nerves. During the waking hours the nervous system works incessantly. Poor sleep means a poor nervous condition, and prolonged insomnia leads in every case to prostration, and too often to dread insanity. The mischief that results from weakened nerves is much greater and more destructive than most folks even dream of.

The all important thing for nervous, rundown persons, and for those who are losing sleep is that Paine's celery compound builds up the whole physical system, and by improving the digestion and regulating the nerves, it insures sound, refreshing sleep.

In winter, most women and many men lead hot house lives. A flagging appetite, a disposition to pick at this dish and that, rather than to eat a square meal, is among the early indications of failing health. Then comes delay in falling asleep and the fretful, uneasy feeling the next day.

Deliverance from such a miserable condition by the use of Paine's celery compound has caused men and women from every section of the United States to write sincere, hearty words of praise and thankfullness for this grand invigorator. People enjoying perfect health sometimes wonder at this gratitude; but whoever has suffered from prostration of the nerves of which insomnia is one of the symptoms, will understand how hard it is to overstate the torment of this condition. And whoever has been made completely well by Paine's celery compound feels that no words can overstate the joy and gratitude such persons feel.

This is the state of mind of thousands of nervous, sickly, broken-down persons who have used Paine's celery compound and been made well.

Mrs. Sample tells of the happy result in the case of her grandchild. One of the most conspicuous instances of the remarkable power of Paine's celery compound over deability is shown in the relief it has afforded children. Of course the dose is adapted to the age of the little patient. The compound purifies the blood and corrects any tendency to constipation. Pale, puny children are made vigorous rosy and healthy by this incomparable remedy.

SPORTS

CYCLING COMMENT.

The Linwood Wheelmen, of New York, will a run to this city on April 12th.

J. R. Giles, of East Sixth street, has purchased a new blue-rimmed Columbia.

Martin & Zimmer have nearly completed one of their "Plainfield" bicycles. The wheel weighs 22 pounds.

Beginning with the first of the week the Eldridge Bicycle Company will store the wheels of their customers free of charge.

Among the wheels recently purchased from the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company are three Crescents and a Cleveland by O. T. Waring, a Crescent by H. W. Rand, a Cleveland model 24 by Arthur Pope, and a Crescent by Miss Annie Hummer.

The F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company have received nearly a carload of sundries during the last few days, and some idea of the large amount received may be gained from the fact that among the items were 500 Christe saddles, 4,000 rolls of tire tape, and other sundries in like proportion.

The bicycle company which has pledged itself to contribute the sum of $12,000 to help build a bicycle path from New York to Philadelphia has established a precedent which other great companies should follow. A complete system of cycle paths throughout the country is a thing of the near future, and the bicycle manufacturing companies have the most to gain by its development. With the immense future the growing popularity of the wheel assures them, they can well afford to take the initiative. The Road Improvement Committee of the League of American Wheelmen will proceed at once to the consideration of this offer. If the plan goes through, the coming summer may see New Jersey the first State in the Union to be crossed from end to end by a path specially laid for the rubber tire.

Plainfield, like most towns that experience a wave of enterprise, is "developing" at a rate that is surprising. Its recent effort to assume metropolitan dignity by acquiring a squad of police mounted on bicycles, to do patrol duty, has been succeeded by a more radical move along the same line. The letter-carriers now are to be put on wheels. All through the summer and when the weather is good the city mail will be delivered by the flying wheelmen. The opponents of the scheme declare that it will work well enough on the outlying route which begin some distance from the office, and on which the houses are separated by considerable intervals, but for delivering mail in the business sections and on crowded streets it will be entirely impracticable and time will be wasted instead of saved. —New Brunswick Times.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The Sportsmen's Exposition will open at Madison Square Garden next week.

Under the direction of Physical Director Nichols, the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium classes are all doing excellent work.

Wesley Abbott, of this city, has secured third place in putting the shot at the indoor contest held at the Yale gymnasium last week.

The regular monthly meeting of the Plainfield High School Athletic Association was held yesterday afternoon in the Stillman High School building, and was one of great importance and interest. The meeting was called to order by George P. Smith, president of the association. The $10 assessment due the New Jersey Interscholastic Athletic Association was ordered paid as were all other bills against the association. A communication from the president of the New Jersey Athletic Association was read, in which he offered through the association to give the use of their grounds at Bayonne City, and prizes for a team race, if four of the schools of the Interscholastic Association would enter. Four men can be entered from each school, but only three can run. Three prizes in gold, three in silver and three in bronze will be given to the winners of the first, second and third places respectively. The race to be a 440 yard run. A resolution was passed by the association saying that the P.H.S.A.A. would do all in its power to promote the interest in this race and would enter a team. This resolution was ordered sent to the president of the N. J. A. A. A tennis team will be organized the coming season, and will play match games with the other schools of the association. A report from the executive committee was read by F. Wilbur Cornwell showing a list of thirteen events for the coming State meet. They are as follows: 100-yards dash; 100 yards dash for juniors; 1-mile bicycle race; 440-yards run; putting the shot, twelve pounds; running broad jump; running high jump; 120-yard hurdle race, three feet hurdles; 1 mile walk; 1 mile run; throwing the hammer, twelve pounds; 220 yards run; pole vault. The State meet will be held the first Saturday in June.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the eustachian tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube be restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

—U. B. Crane and Chas. Clark, 120 West Front street, are having a special in overalls and mechanics' goods. Sweet Orr, Rosevear Brothers and other makes at reduced prices.

—Those who are to take part in the concert to be given at the Union Village M. E. church, Friday, March 20th, had a rehearsal last evening at the home of Wm. Townsend on Somerset street.

—"A person can run into debt." But when it comes to getting out "one has got to crawl." The moral is plain enough: Buy your goods at Peck's and never run into debt or pay other person's debts.

—Of the many attractions at Music Hall this season "The Span of Life" which comes Wednesday night is the best. It is a play that will suit all, as it has in its makeup sentiment, comedy and sensation, beautiful scenic and climatic effect.

—Much indignation has been expressed by citizens in Elizabeth over the use of salt on the tracks by the trolley company, as a decision against the use of salt on the public streets was rendered by the Supreme Court but a week ago.

One Minute Cough Cure touches the right spot. It also touches it at the right time if you take it when you have a cough or cold. See the point? Then don't cough.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

THEATRICAL.

A bridge of human bodies is in itself a novelty, but when the human footway is suspended in mid-air across a raging cataract the spectator is thrilled and astounded. This scene is an actual feature in "The Span of Life," which will be presented by William Calder's Company at Music Hall, Wednesday night. "The Span of Life" is so successful that it is now touring in four countries, America, Great Britain, France, Germany and Belgium.

Edward Townsend's dramatization of his own comic book, "Chimmie Fadden," in which he had the able assistance of Augustus Thomas, has been transferred to the Standard Theatre, where it has been put forth for a long run. The cast has not been materially changed, and Charles Hopper is still the plump and mature, but sufficiently lively, representative of the Bowery boy. He still sings, too, and, what is more, his public seems to like to hear his songs. Marie Bates retains her role of Mrs. Murphy. The play is an eccentric mixture of farce, melo-drama and comedy. In some passages it is elemental and crude, in others ingenious and polished. The little intrigue involving Miss Fanny and her rival lovers is particularly diverting. But, after all, Chimmie's slang and his delightfully sympathic heart, the vagaries of Mrs. Murphy, and the very real "scrap," make the play "go."

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

J. W. Pierce, Republic, Ia., says: "I have used One Minute Cough Cure in my family and for myself, with results so entirely satisfactory that I can hardly find words to express myself as to its merit. I will never fail to recommend it to others, on every occasion that presents itself." L. W. Randolph, 143 W. Front St.

OUTOOK OF BUSINESS

No Noticeable Change in the General Situation This Week.

WAITING IS STILL THE RULE

Some Industries Reducing Prices To Effect Sales — Insurance Companies Present the Most Encouraging Side of the Situation.

New York, March 14.—Dun's weekly report of the condition of trade will, to-day, say: Waiting is still the rule. Large hope but little actual business explains the strength of some markets and the weakness of others. The feeling that the spring of 1896 ought to bring larger business will not suffice to meet expenses all the season if the larger business does not come. Thus far, there is decided increase in the demand for boots and shoes, secured by considerable concessions in price, but in other branches of business concessions are made in vain or are not made. Meanwhile, it is encouraging to know that one of the most important business interests has realized definite improvement. The insurance companies show a larger business and larger income than ever before, and also a most remarkable soundness of mortgage loans and other investments. The comparison of reports for two years is in the highest degree interesting to investors, and constitutes strong evidence of the wonderful recuperative power of the nation in spite of the general depression in business.

Prices Very Low.

Prices about February 21, were, on the whole, the lowest ever known in this country. It is especially noteworthy that prices of materials have varied quite differently from manufactured products, although in most cases the advance last fall was commenced by extraordinary uplifting of prices for materials. Thus cotton is 27.9 per cent. higher than a year ago, but cotton goods average only 10.7 per cent. Wool is but 5.3 per cent. higher than a year ago, but woolen goods are on the whole about 4 per cent lower. Pig iron is only 17 per cent. higher than a year ago, while finished products of iron and steel average 45 per cent. higher. Boots and shoes are practically not higher than a year ago, while leather has risen 11.5 per cent., and hides at the moment are only 2.2 per cent. higher. These comparisons are important because they disclose something of the grave dislocation of prices which inadequate consumption and combinations have produced.

Boots and Shoes, Cottons and Woolens.

The boot and shoe manufacturers have gone out for business during the past week, and by dint of reducing prices much below the parity of leather have secured quite large contracts, so that many establishments are resuming work. It is not supposed that the manufacture can be profitable at such prices, and there are many producers who do not care to get business on terms so undesirable, but competition of the greater number to secure contracts has put prices down about to the level of a year ago. Shipments from Boston are [illegible] corresponding week in any of the past [illegible] slowly notwithstanding recent reductions in price, and the enormous accumulation of unsold stocks causes apprehension in many quarters. In woolens the demand is very largely for low grade goods, and fierce competition affects the prices of the better grades materially. In clay worsteds the manufacture has been so far overdone that stoppage of some most important works is considered not improbable.

Iron and Steel Market.

The output of pig iron March 1 was 189,583 tons weekly, against 198,599 February 1, but the unsold stocks have risen 69,764 tons during the past month or 17,441 weekly, and the unsold stocks of the great steel companies are not included. There is every reason to believe that actual consumption is still at least 10 per cent. smaller than the production of pig, and the price of Bessemer at Pittsburg has again declined slightly to $12.25, with exceptionally large sales even below that figure. Prices of finished product are not quotably lower, although all markets are weak in tone. The industry is waiting for a larger demand, which it is hoped may soon come to clear away the accumulation of surplus stocks.

NOT TO BE ARRESTED TO-DAY.

New York Officers Will Wait Two Days for Ex-Inspector McLaughlin to Surrender.

New York, March 14.—Ex-Police Inspector McLaughlin, whose conviction on the charge of extortion was yesterday afternoon affirmed by the supreme court, will not be arrested to-day, according to information given out at the district attorney's office. Acting District Attorney Davis said it had been decided to give two days' notice of the affirmance of the former conviction to the defense, and at the end of that time if no cognizance was taken then McLaughlin would be arrested.

For Admitting New Mexico.

Washington, March 14.—The senate committee on territories has authorized a favorable report upon the bill for the admission of New Mexico as a state. A number of amendments have been made to the original bill, but these relate only to details as to the manner in which the constitutional convention shall be held and to preliminary proceedings in the territory previous to admission.

To Go in Commission April 15.

Washington, March 14.—The new turret ship Terror will be placed in commission at the Brooklyn navy yard on April 15.

WATER SUPPLY CO.,

Incorporated 1869.

Frank Bergen, President. E. R. Pope, Sec. & Treas.

The Plainfield Water Supply Company supplies the inhabitants of the City of Plainfield and the Borough of North Plainfield with water for domestic use.

In June last the water supplied by the Company was analyzed by Allan Hazen, Esq., a leading hydraulic expert of Boston, and pronounced by him to be "water of great organic purity," and in a letter to one of the Company's patrons he added: "You are to be congratulated upon having so good a supply, and you need have no anxiety whatever as to the wholesomeness." The completion of the city's sewer system will add to the convenience of the supply of water from the Company's mains. A representative of the Company will be pleased to call on parties who do not at present use water from its mains, and explain rates, terms, methods of service, etc. The work of making connections will be resumed as soon as the weather permits. 3,000 DEATHS A DAY.

Startling Statistics in Regard to Consumption.

Some Idea Also of the Proportion of Cures—Analysis of the Dread Disease.

When we visit a factory where there are the most delicate and most dangerous machines, we are amazed to notice how indifferent the workmen are to the danger about them. Saws and knives work rapidly, and yet no one seems to think of danger. Long association with danger causes indifference to it.

If the statement were made that there was a contagious disease abroad in the land which was killing people at the rate of 3,000 a day in Europe, thirty a day in New York State, and nearly 100,000 in one year in the United States, every one would be aroused to action. Yet such a condition exists to-day. Consumption is a contagious disease, and the above figures concerning it are taken from recent reports. But we have become so familiar with the disease in our midst, that we do not fully understand its terrible nature.

Yet it is surprising how many recover from this disease. Even after the germs of consumption cause serious damage to the lungs, thousands recover. As yet, no specific is known for the disease. The treatment consists in giving aid to the body in its efforts to destroy the disease germs. For two centuries, cod-liver oil has occupied the first place in the list of remedies. The next valuable remedies are the hypophosphites. Some rely on one alone, but as both are recognized as of great value, we think it best to combine them. Thus you are sure of getting every help which the best remedies known to medical science can afford. In Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites, the oil is emulsified, that is the oil is broken up into minute globules of fat. The oil is digested and thus saves the weakened body from doing this work. What will Scott's Emulsion do for those with weak lungs?

If taken before the germs of consumption have secured a foothold in the lungs, it will so invigorate and nourish the body that the disease will be successfully resisted. In this way it prevents consumption. Even after the lungs are diseased, the body emaciated, and the health greatly affected it will often enable the system to come off victorious. And even in the last stages of the disease, when all hope of recovery has been abandoned, it lessens the severity of the attack, and makes the last days more comfortable. Scott's Emulsion brings hope and health to the great majority, while it brings comfort and relief to all.

Scott's Emulsion contains more pure Norwegian Cod-liver Oil than any other emulsion in the world, that will stand the test of time as being a perfect inseparable emulsion. Ask your doctor.

OLDEST EX-SENATOR.

George Wallace Jones and His Eventful Career.

He Was the First Senator from the State of Iowa, and a Great Friend of Daniel Webster and Other Famous Statesmen.

There is good ground for the belief that the human race is longer-lived than it was a few generations ago. A statistician recently offered, as evidence of increased longevity, the ages of some prominent men of to-day, notably some members of the United States senate who participate actively in national affairs at an age at which, 50 years ago, they would have been deemed ready to be laid on the shelf.

Another notable example, says the Illustrated American, is General and ex-Senator George Wallace Jones, of Dubuque, Ia., who is now in his 92d year. Gen. Jones was born at Vincennes, Ind., April 12, 1804. He was a frontier lad, yet he was early alive to the fact that his part of the country was not always to remain the frontier. He was graduated from Transylvania university, where he was a classmate of Jefferson Davis; at the same time Zachary Taylor and Lewis Cass were students at Transylvania. After graduation he entered the legal profession, and not long afterward formed a business partnership with Daniel Webster, with whom he purchased the site of the present city of Madison, Wis. The spirit of the frontiersman was in his veins, so he moved westward in the early thirties, and was made congressional delegate from the Territory of Michigan in 1833. He was largely instrumental in securing the division of which came the territories of Wisconsin and Iowa, and he held many important offices in the new region.

Gen. Jones was the associate in congress of James K. Polk, Alexander H. Stevens and Abraham Lincoln, and, after being elected the first United States senator from the new state of Iowa, sat in the upper house with Thomas H. Benton, Charles Sumner, Stephen A. Douglas, William H. Seward and James Buchanan. He was a warm personal friend of John C. Calhoun, Martin Van Buren, Henry Clay, Andrew Jackson, John C. Fremont and Franklin Pierce, and his intimacy with such men, and his native diplomacy, as well as his interest in and knowledge of the needs of the new northwest, made him of great service in furthering many measures for the development of the new empire of the west. He was aide-de-camp to Gen. Henry Dodge in the Black Hawk war, serving through that campaign, but had earlier served his country in the field, for while a mere boy he was a drummer in our army on the Canadian frontier during the war of 1812-1815. On leaving his seat in the senate in 1859, he became minister to the United States of Colombia; a notable event in Washington, before his departure, was the dinner given in his honor by William H. Seward.

The prominent politicians of half a century ago had some social duties which their modern successors would scarcely know how to perform creditably. For instance, Gen. Jones acted as the second to Jonathan Cilley, of Maine, in the celebrated duel in which that gentleman was killed by William J. Graves, of Kentucky. He was also chosen as "best man" in 12 other projected duels, in seven of which he was able to prevent the combatants exchanging shots. In 1837 he had a "little affair" of his own of this nature at St. Louis, where he was challenged by Lieut. Williams, of the regular army, after a discussion which grew out of the attempt of the lieutenant to remove the glasses with which Gen. Jones had been serving some ladies with refreshments. The lieutenant, learning that Jones was a dead shot, withdrew the challenge, and the affair of honor stopped at that point.

On his 90th birthday, April 12, 1894, the state of Iowa tendered Gen. Jones a public reception at Des Moines, the capital of the state. The governor presided, and the legislature, in a body, the executive council, the judges of the supreme court and many of the distinguished citizens of the commonwealth attended.

In person Gen. Jones is of commanding figure, and remains a remarkably handsome man. Aside from somewhat defective eyesight, he enjoys excellent health. He has seldom slept more than six hours of 24. He has not been sick in bed a single day since the year 1827, though up to that time his health was so poor that he was not expected to live long. He has played an important part in the advancement of the west, for which he will be long and gratefully remembered.

Sea as a Producer.

The sea is infinitely more productive than the land. It is estimated that an acre of good fishing will yield more food in a week than an acre of the best land will yield in a year.

Will Soften the Skin.

A starch bath will aid to soften and whiten the skin. It is made by dissolving half a pound of starch in water and adding it to the bath.

MAN THEIR ONLY PREY.

Three Splendid Specimens of the Bloodhound Family.

Owned by a Cincinnati Druggist—Remarkable Test to Which They Were Subjected a Few Days Ago—Canine Beauties.

Wade, Freeman and Muse are the names of three marvelous bloodhounds owned by Thomas Barkley, a druggist at 3005 West Sixth street, Cincinnati who the other morning gave a wonderful exhibition of their intelligence and sagacity in man-tracking. They were taken to the Delhi pike at seven o'clock by their owner, who was accompanied by a Cincinnati Enquirer representative and George Kleem, who was to act the part of a fugitive. The dogs were held in leash by Barkley, while Kleem deposited his vest in Sharp's pasture, on the Sedam place. Keelm then struck up a rapid gait, going in a zigzag course, retracing and doubling his tracks up the hill to the south. Having reached the summit, almost to the schoolhouse, he came back eastwardly in the same devious manner through the gully on the edge of Paul's woods, through which he went, doubling on his tracks, until he came to the northern end, which terminates in a small creek. Crossing this by means of the bridge, he came back over Delhi pike and made for a small woods at Mount Echo. There he climbed a tree and awaited the arrival of the dogs.

Kleem had a half hour's start of the dogs, who were first taken to Sharp's pasture, where Kleem's vest lay. They took up the scent at once, and barking frantically followed the trail. Several times they crossed and recrossed the tracks, and only once or twice were momentarily nonplused. They soon picked up the lost trail, however, and kept closely to it, passing through the gulley and woods with their noses close to the ground, sniffing, alert and full of excitement.

At the bridge they lost the trail for the last time, and when once more on the pike made a bee line for the Mount Echo woods. In an incredibly short time their growls and barks told that they had treed the man, and when their master and an Enquirer representative came up, Kleem was seated in the branches of a large oak, which the dogs encircled again and again in their mad efforts to lay hold of him.

The test was a remarkable one, the chase having been over territory miles in extent, which had in many places been walked over and where the numerous footprints might have been misleading.

The dogs are splendid specimens of their breed. Wade and Muse are 2½ years old, and Freeman is only two. The two older dogs have run down 35 convicts during their brief career. Their best record, in which Freedman also participated, was the running down of a negro convict nine days after his escape from a convict farm in the mountains of North Carolina. The chase extended over 125 miles, and when at bay the negro killed two other dogs in the pack and knocked Wade senseless before he was finally captured by the officers. The trio can run a trail 18 to 30 hours old. They have been trained from the time they were puppies, with only men as their game. The dogs are valued at $500 each, and are considered the best man-trailers in the country.

How Is It Possible?

You can't see how mince meat, as good as any made at home, can be sold for 10 cents a package (enough for 2 large pies)?

The Reason's Plain.

Many carloads of the materials for None Such Mince Meat are bought at one time, at first hands. All the paring, chopping, seeding, stemming, and cleaning are done by perfected machinery. Such immense quantities are sold that a mite of profit on each package of is enough. All grocers sell it. Be sure and get the genuine.

The True Facts.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Your communication signed X Rays, does not state the whole facts in the case of Fanwood election. The borough voters went to the primary at Scotch Plains for the purpose of participating in the nomination of freeholder which they were perfectly justified in, and entitled to do.

It appeared by a newspaper report that the Borough Acts were unconstitutional, and upon the advice of Senator Voorhees and the Counsel for the borough and township, the names of the borough voters were sworn to as being entitled to vote in the township. On March 9th, after the decision had been read at Trenton, and upon the advice of members of the Joint Committee to revise the Borough Laws, a communication was written to the registry board asking to have the names of borough voters taken from the registry list of the township as the place for them to vote was within the borough limits, the borough being a de facto government.

The registry board should have refused to allow the borough voters to vote within the township.
